INDIANS GO TO PRISON

THEIR SENTENCES RANGE FROM 60 DAYS TO 10 MONTHS.

Fines Ranging From $25 to $300 Are Also Imposed—Four Go to Moorhead, Four to Fergus Falls and Four Will Serve Time at Duluth—One Indian Makes an Eloquent Plea for Clemency, but Judge Lochren Gives Him Eight Months and $100 Fine—Fifty Leech Lake Indians Go to Hold a Council With Chief "Bug."

Duluth, Oct. 24.—The jury found all of the Bear Island Indian prisoners guilty of the charge of having resisted the officers and in affecting the rescue of old man Bug and his companion, Sept. 15. The trial was witnessed by a great crowd of spectators and was concluded late Saturday afternoon. The jury was out but a few moments to arrive at a verdict. Judge Lochren sentenced the Indians at once. They drew sentences as follows: Oge-mah-we-go-bow, and Wah-be-shay-sheence, eight months and $100 fine; May-dway-we-nind and Mah-gnom, ten months and $100 fine, imprisonment at Moorhead; Bay-bah-mosh, Na-gu-nays-gonce and Mah-quam, eight months' imprisonment and a fine of $100 each, and Pee-nay-see-ets, ten months and $100 fine, imprisonment at Fergus Falls jail. She-mah-gun-ish gets ten months in jail at Duluth and $100 fine. Dung-ish-bow will be imprisoned here for eight months and is fined $100.

The two Indian boys were let off light, with the understanding that they were led into the mischief. Bah-dway-we-dung-gosh gets sixty days and $25 fine and May-maush-ko-wash gets the same. The latter is a cripple. Mah-quam made an eloquent plea for clemency, but Judge Lochren did not heed it. The Indian, addressing the court, said he had a family of five, and they would freeze or starve or die of some sickness if he should be separated from them.

COUNCIL WITH CHIEF "BUG."

Fifty Leech Lake Indians Go to Hold One.

Walker, Oct. 24.—The troops of Col. Harbach's command left here yesterday morning by special train, and Capt. French, with Company G, Third Infantry, now holds the fort. The first order issued by the new post commander was to detail First Lieut. Stetson, Third infantry, adjutant, acting assistant quartermaster, acting commissary of subsistence and ordnance officer. Lieut. Robert Hannan, upon his arrival with the detachment from the government dam, will, it is understood, be detailed for duty as signal officer and be given charge of the Gatling gun squad. He is expected hourly.

The news from the agency is encouraging. Fifty Indians have been appointed to go to Bear Island to sit in council with Chief Bug-a-nay-ge-shig. They met last night, matured their plans and started to-day. Some rather startling developments may be looked for in the near future.

CIVILIANS AGAIN.

Battery Men Lay Aside Their Arms and Go Home.

St. Paul, Oct. 24.—Batteries A and B, First battalion of artillery, M. N. G., have laid aside their weapons to resume peaceful pursuits. When they disbanded at the St. Paul and Minneapolis armories they were allowed to go home at once, a privilege which they eagerly accepted. Their trip to the Indian country was pleasant, with no feature to mar the cordial relations that have at all times existed between the officers and men and between the organizations under Maj. Libbey's command. The detachment of the Fourteenth has also returned from the Indian country and gone into camp at Kittsondale.

HAVANA FLOODED.

Four Feet of Water in the Streets and Houses Submerged.

Havana, Oct. 24.—One of the heaviest rain storms in years fell here Saturday night, as a continuation of the storm of the last three days. Every stream in the vicinity of this city overflowed, flooding its surroundings. The streets of Havana presented the appearance of running rivers. The water was over four feet deep at many of the crossings, swamping houses, stores and damaging furniture and other property. The fire brigade was called out and many sick and aged people were carried to places of safety. Traffic was delayed on every railroad running out of the city.

REPORT FROM SAMPSON.

Conduct of the Fleet Prior to the Destruction Cervera's Fleet.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The navy department has made public that portion of Admiral Sampson's report covering the conduct of the fleet under his command in its operations in the West Indies for about two months prior to the destruction of Admiral Cevera's fleet on July 3. It is made up largely of official dispatches and the movements of the fleet with, with explanations and comment by the admiral.

Man Killed by Train.

Litchfield, Minn., Oct. 24.—The body of a man was found on the railroad track two miles west of Litchfield. It had been dragged half a mile by the train and was mutilated beyond recognition. The body is supposed to be that of a tramp who was stealing a ride.

Diphtheria Epidemic.

Neillsville, Wis., Oct. 24.—The grammar schools of the city have been closed owing to the prevalence of an epidemic of diphtheria.

WHOLESALE ROBBERY.

Free-for-All Grab-as-Grab-Can Game Going on in Cuba.

Havana, Oct. 24.—Posa la Liberte, one of the daily papers of Cienfuegos, published with the sanction of the government, prints a manifesto with over 300 signatures, a great many of which are those of Spaniards, openly proclaiming Cuban independence. Owing to the fact that Spanish officers are selling commissary stores at any price obtainable making legitimate trade impossible, army supplies are now a drug on the market in the interior. It is asserted that as the Spanish rule in Cuba is drawing to a close the robbery daily becomes more and more open and wholesale. The commission of transportation, charged with furnishing passage tickets to Spanish officers returning to Spain, are charging an arbitrary rate of $4 each for a berth. If the victim refuses to give up he is made to wait for several steamers, the commission claiming that there is no room. Generally the officer is glad to pay the tax in order to get away. This abuse is openly spoken of, but the present situation is a free-for-all grab-as-grab-can game, and everyone appears eager to make money while the Spanish sun still shines.

WAR AGAINST AMERICANS.

Insurgents Being Urged to Fight for Their Independence.

Havana, Oct. 24.—The Cuban general, Rego, has arrived at Havana from Puerto Principe, and preaching in the Havana cafes and the insurgent camps near the capital a holy war against the Americans. He has interviewed many of the leaders of the Cubans and has urged the carrying on of war against the Americans if independence is not at once granted to Cuba. The Cuban colonel, Torriste, has also arrived at Havana from the east and is carrying on a strong campaign against the Americans and Calixto Garcia. The Spanish colonel, Cervera, military governor of Mariano, pays daily visits to the insurgent camp in his district, advising the Cubans not to surrender their arms and to make resistance until the independence of the island is declared. Col. Cervera is an intimate friend of Gen. Parado, president of the Spanish evacuation commission.

SPANIARDS DESERTING.

Poor Quality of Food Served Causes Insubordination.

Havana, Oct. 24.—The poor quality of the food supplied to the soldiers has caused much ill feeling and serious insubordination is feared in several localities. In the province of Puerto Principe, of the 400 members of the civil guards, 300 have deserted and gone over to the insurgents. At Nuevitas, the Taragona battalion became insubordinate and attempted to join the insurgents on account of the short rations and the wretched quality of the food supplied by their chief. Gen. March, in command in that province, on learning of the occurrence, went to Nuevitas and succeeded in quieting the soldiers by furnishing them with good and plentiful rations. Many soldiers, until recently, were deserting, but Gen. Blanco's decree regarding them has put a stop to the defections. Over 50,000 soldiers have been mustered out since the issuance of the decree.

ARCHBISHOP GOES TO ROME.

Called by the Pope to Give Views of American People on Philippines.

New York, Oct. 24.—Archbishop Keane's departure for Rome on the Werra Saturday was a surprise. He had not intended to sail until December, when Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul was to have gone with him. His hurried departure, a prominent Catholic clergyman said, was due to the fact that he was summoned to Rome to make a report on the state of feeling in America in regard to the annexation of the Philippines and the attitude of the American people toward the Catholic church in Cuba, Porto Rico and other new American possessions. Archbishop Ireland's friends, in view of the many interviews between that prelate and Archbishop Keane, look for a realization shortly of their anticipation of a cardinalship for Mgr. Ireland.

THE MARIA TERESA.

She Will Probably Sail for the United States Thursday.

Caimanera, Cuba, Oct. 24.—The armored cruiser Maria Teresa began coaling yesterday. The cement worked in over the patches will be hardened by Tuesday and all points will be watertight. On account of the wrecked deck beams a heavy chain, carried around both turrets, wrapped and hove taut amidships, will be employed to take up the fore and aft strain, and in heavy weather extra wire hawsers will be carried from the main masthead to the deck. The engines are in a satisfactory condition, and it is now confidently expected that the Maria Teresa will start for the United States Thursday.

THE EMPEROR'S GIFT.

He Will Erect a Marble Fountain in Constantinople.

Constantinople, Oct. 24.—Emperor William has designed a marble fountain which he proposes to erect in Constantinople as a gift to commemorate his visit and that of Empress Augusta Victoria to the sultan's capital. The departure of their German majesties last evening was marked with great ceremony. The sultan took a most cordial leave of his imperial guests on the steps of the palace. All the Turkish vessels were dressed and manned and the Germans exchanged salutes with the shore forts.

Jealousy the Cause.

Omaha, Oct. 24.—John Mebiner, a Chicago photographer exhibiting at the exposition grounds, shot and killed Lillian L. Morris, his affianced wife, and then committed suicide here. Jealousy of the woman was the cause.

Death Rate in Havana.

Havana, Oct. 24.—The official report of the burials in the city of Havana since the first of the present year shows that there have been 16,281 interments. The average death rate keeps on steadily at 47 per cent.

MINNESOTA'S SICK SOLDIERS

FOURTEEN ARRIVE IN SAN FRANCISCO FROM MANILA.

Only Two of the Fourteen Are Sick—Eight Men Die on the Voyage and Five Are Buried at Sea—None of These Were From Minnesota—Col. Hurley, of the Governor's Staff, Meets the Soldiers at San Francisco and Provides for Their Comfort—All Will Be Home Thursday—All Praise the Management of the Ship During the Voyage.

San Francisco, Oct. 24.—The Rio de Janeiro weighed anchor at Manila Sept. 22 with 147 sick and wounded soldiers. She sailed to Hongkong, where she remained two days coaling. She then steamed down the inland passage of the Japan sea, passing the great Japanese forts, touching for two days at Nagasaki, leaving there Oct. 2 for San Francisco, passing through the Golden Gate Saturday morning at 4 o'clock. She dropped anchor off Angel Island at 4:30, where she was immediately boarded by federal and state quarantine officers, and, after inspection, the soldiers were taken on tugs to the division hospital at the Presidio. The sixteen Minnesota boys were landed in good condition and spirits. At 1 a. m. they were met by Col. Roland H. Hartley, Gov. Clough's representative, who has all arrangements made for their departure homeward bound this evening. All hands join in praising the management of the ship during the voyage. There were eight deaths on board during the trip, none of them from Minnesota. Five were buried at sea and three were brought here. There was also one suicide by jumping overboard. All San Francisco is praising the manner in which Minnesota is caring for returning sick and wounded heroes, she being the only state having representatives on the ground to meet the floating hospital from Manila. It opens their eyes to see surgeons, nurses and special palace, sleeping and dining cars, stocked with all that money can procure for their comfort. They will be taken by special yacht from the hospital this afternoon to Oakland, where they will board their cars for St. Paul, where they should arrive some time Thursday. The party consists of the governor's representatives and the following soldires: Lieut. C. G. Bunker, Corporals Harry L. Hart, David Small and Bedbury, Privates David K. Christian, Walter J. Cork, Antone E. Johnson, George Lenze, William L. Murkland, L. J. Nichols, Edward Robinson, Clarence L. Rice, Joseph Webb, R. I. Obermire and Corporal Lindholm and Sergeant W. K. Neal, of the signal corps, and Raymond R. Tennaur, of the First South Dakota.

MORE SOLDIERS COMING HOME.

Third Wisconsin and Sixth Massachusetts Sail From Ponce.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The following bulletins from military commanders in Porto Rico were posted at the war department:

"Ponce, Oct. 24.—The Manitoba sailed for New York to-day with 30 convalescents, 60 discharged soldiers and 36 officers and 560 men of the Third Wisconsin. The Missouri and Relief sailed also, but they were not reported to me officially.

—"Henry, Brigadier General."

"Ponce, Oct. 24.—The Mississippi sailed at 4:30 o'clock this evening, with Gen. Gordon, of the Sixth Massachusetts, 37 officers and 813 men.

—"Brooke, Commanding."

"Ponce, Oct. 24.—The surgeon general reports that the Relief sailed with 246 patients. The Missouri has gone to Arroyo to take sick. She will return here and then go to Mayaguez to get the sick.

—"Henry, Brigadier General."

MINISTERIAL CRISIS.

Spain Continues to Have Considerable Trouble at Home.

Madrid, Oct. 24.—The newspapers here regard a ministerial crisis as imminent, and they urge the ministers to sink their differences, in view of Spain's many difficulties. Several of the papers violently attack Senor Gamazo, the minister of public instruction, for resigning and thus complicating the situation.

Insurgents Are Menacing.

Manila, Oct. 24.—The attitude of the insurgent troops has become very menacing. Their supplies are growing scarce and they are becoming desperate. Their leaders assure the troops, who have had no pay for months, that they will soon capture Manila. The Filipino newspapers insist upon absolute independence and denounce annexation to the United States or an American protectorate with equal energy. The American authorities, both naval and military, are taking precautionary measures, although no immediate trouble is anticipated.

A Cowardly Deed.

Stephen, Minn., Oct. 24.—A laboring man living here named F. A. Gordon committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. He has been out of work for some time and drank a good deal and became despondent. He leaves a wife and three small children.

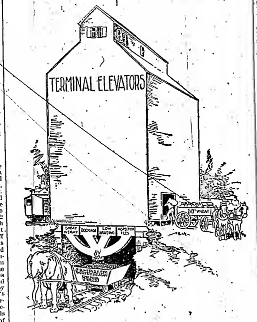
Three Men Drowned.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—A small skiff, in which Louis Bahan, son of a wealthy brick manufacturer of Evanston; William Schaeffer and another man whose identity has not been established, capsized in Lake Michigan and all were drowned.

Norwegian Steamer Ashore.

Stavanger, Norway, Oct. 24.—The Norwegian steamer Colin Archer, Capt. Larsen, from New York, Sept. 27, for Stockholm, is ashore in a critical position at Aarr Jaerderen.

THE UNDERGROUND RAILWAY.



Robbery of Minnesota Farmers By False Grain Inspection.

The outrageous administration of the state grain inspection department and its Republican machinery is one of the most urgent reforms demanding the election of John Lind and his associates on the Union ticket, and it has been emphasized by the action of the Red River Valley farmers by the meetings held at Moorhead, and the findings of the committee appointed to investigate and report. In the first meeting held, Oct. 1, facts almost passing belief were reported. New experiences, they were, under the same old system of robbery, by under-grading, excessive dockage and false weights. The well authenticated cases there presented have been quite widely published. One of these cases was that of O. B. Benedict, widely known in Minnesota, whose losses are thus detailed:

He sold, shipping to a Duluth terminal elevator, 28,810 bushels of wheat of this season's crop. It was prime wheat, and supposed to be reasonably clean. It was graded No. 2 Northern, when it was known to have been No. 1, and it was "docked" for dirt, a total of 1,365 bushels. The undergrading amounted to 8 per cent; the dockage steal, 5 per cent; making his cash loss 13 per cent, or $2,195.32. Besides this, he was out $122.80 for freight on the dockage, and for threshing the same, $136.54; making his total forced contribution to this Republican system of $2,454.74. Besides this, there are inspection fees and other outlay.

In this lot of wheat were two certain cars, containing within a fraction of 1,000 bushels each, for one of which the owner received $494.81, and for the other, $452.70, a difference of $42.11, for which there was no explanation or pretense whatever. On a previous occasion this owner shipped three cars of wheat from the same bin, the grain having been all from the same field and all treated exactly the same way. One car was graded No. 1 Northern and the other No. 2 Northern. The difference in grades ranges all the way from 1 to 5 cents per bushel, apparently arbitrarily fixed by the department.

Numerous like cases were described at the meeting referred to, which appointed a committee of seven grain raisers to ascertain other cases and report. This the committee did, to a meeting on Saturday, the 8th instant, giving a number of affidavits in cases almost exactly similar to that above given. Reports and affidavits have been widely published, but should be known by every voter in Minnesota.

The facts are proven beyond any question. A. G. Kassenberg of Oakport, Clay county, twenty years a grain raiser and forty years resident in Minnesota, shipped 2,000 bushels of the highest grade, No. 1 hard, and good and clean grain, to the Duluth terminal elevator, in three cars. One graded No. 1 Northern and two cars No. 2 Northern. One car was docked forty-five bushels for dirt; one car thirty-nine, and the other sixteen bushels. Samples of this wheat were sent to two different elevators at Duluth, and were all given the highest grade, and pronounced very clean. Applied to cash results, and the case is this: The net price to Mr. Kassenberg was 50 cents per bushel, at which his allowed 1,900 bushels brought him $950. The 100 bushels of dockage amounts to $50. There was taken over 5 cents per bushel by wrong grade, which amounts to $100, and $47.40 dockage, which makes $147.50. "This," says the committee's report, "is over 15 per cent on THE $950 TAKEN FROM HIM UNDER THE MINNESOTA INSPECTION LAW WITHOUT CONSIDERATION. THIS IS NOT AN EXTREME CASE; BUT SUPPOSE BUT 10 PER CENT OF THE VALUE OF OUR WHEAT IS TAKEN UNDER THIS LAW, AND THE STATES OF MINNESOTA AND NORTH DAKOTA MARKET FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF WHEAT THIS YEAR; 10 PER CENT ON $50,000,900 IS $5,000,000."

It happened that the head of the grain inspection department, A. C. Clausen, was the party who actually inspected the samples mentioned, so that he himself found the grain fully the highest grade, WHILE HIS REPUBLICAN MACHINERY, WHEN IT HAD DONE WITH THE SAME GRAIN, TOOK OUT THE PORTION STOLEN FROM THE OWNER, FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE ELEVATOR.

And yet after these cases reached the public, we find Inspector Clausen, in an interview in the Pioneer Press, attempts to defend his department and its action. He admits that he so graded the grain, but excuses it on the ground that the samples were very small. Errors in general he attributed to the large number of cases dealt with. The people attribute it to entirely different causes; but, whatever they are, are determined to get to the bottom of it by such change in administration as will permit the public, at least, to know what is done in that department.

The other cases are every bit as flagrant. Among them are O. G. Bergland of Kragness, Clay county; N. T. Lauder of Moorhead; Ole E. Tangen of Kragness, and Alfred Olson of the same town and county. The latter shipped from the Dalrymple farm, where he was formerly foreman, he having now purchased a portion of the land, on the crop-payment plan of one-half the annual crop, and which, on account of these steals, will leave the farmer not a cent for his years' labors. He shipped 12,299 bushels to Duluth, of No. 1 hard wheat. As undergraded, about one-third of it was made No. 1 Northern, and the rest No. 2 Northern. It was docked 537 bushels, or about three pounds to the bushel. He took all the dirt obtained in a half-bushel of the same wheat to a drug-store scale, and found it to weigh less than half a pound, or one pound per bushel, rightful dockage, where they took three. The victim makes oath that he was defrauded, by reason of such wrong grading, 6 cents per bushel on all of said wheat so graded No. 2 Northern, and 1 cent per bushel on all of said wheat so graded No. 1 Northern, amounting to the sum of $565.49, and was defrauded by reason of such excess of dockage out of the sum of $202.42, amounting in all to the sum of $762.91.

Defrauded by whom? BY THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, THROUGH THE MALADMINISTRATION OF ONE OF ITS GREAT DEPARTMENTS.

With reference to the pretended investigation, by the state board, when farmers were asked to come to St. Paul and present their grievances, the committee repudiate such means. Well they may, for these crimes against which they protest have been continually occurring, and appeals to the board result like kicks at the elevators. Re-inspections are obtained when there is too much pressure, or when, as in the certain case in the Minneapolis board recently, where the victim, on the floor of the exchange, denounced the robberies, and read the riot act of Lind's election, as the only remedy. Concerning the way the "old thing works," so far as the Pillsbury interests are concerned, the committee's report says:

'English Syndicate Work.

"An English syndicate, some years ago, purchased the Minneapolis mills and the Minneapolis and Northern elevators along the Great Northern railway, two or three hundred in number. Pillsbury was a party in interest in the syndicate, and has since had principal charge of its affairs. The elevators and mills are in fact owned by the same syndicate. The elevator company purchases the wheat at the country elevators. It is shipped to Minneapolis and purchased by the mills on the grade and the dockage fixed by the state grain inspector. The elevator branch of the syndicate at Minneapolis reports to the country elevators that they are grading the wheat too high, and are not getting enough dockage. The country agents lower the grade and increase the dockage. Then they purchase the same grade of wheat at No. 2 Northern they had previously bought at No. 1 Northern, and increase the dockage. When this wheat reaches Minneapolis it is taken in by the mills at No. 2 Northern, and there is a difference in price between No. 1 Northern, and No. 2 Northern of 5 cents per bushel, amounting to 10 per cent of its value. Do not the mills get the benefit of this difference in grade? If not, who does? The farmer loses it; who gets it?"

Is it any wonder that these victims, despairing of reform in the department itself, under Republican domination, should find and declare for the abolishing of the whole system, which they did on the following reasons?

First—It gives to one man autocratic power to say how much we shall receive for our property.

Second—It degrades and humiliates us by placing us in the position of wards of an unscrupulous ring.

Third—It makes millionaires at the terminal points at the expense of the producers.

Fourth—It depreciates the value of our real estate.

Fifth—It crushes the poor man who is laboring to make a home for himself and family.

Sixth—It legalizes robbery.

"For these and other reasons," closes the report, "we ask the repeal of the Minnesota state inspection law, and that we be allowed to live in peace in this garden spot of America, under our own vine and fig tree, with none to molest or make us afraid."

Committee.

And what is the defense to this terrible arraignment? It is made by the Pioneer Press. The charge is unworthy of attention because a biennial affair, coming at each election time, says the P. P. In odd numbered years, says that paper, sneeringly, the crop goes to market without complaint. It should have said that in years when Leiter and famine make the price above the normal under the gold standard, farmers are more inclined to suffer in silence. The movement this year is declared partisan, notwithstanding politics was carefully eliminated from every phase of the Clay county movement. The committee itself is divided in the party affiliation of its members. This is to stir up the farmers for votes, says the Pioneer Press. If ever there was a cause demanding votes, it is that of the outraged and robbed raisers of the state's great staple. The Moorhead men refused to accept the invitation to attend the St. Paul meeting. They knew from experience how absolutely useless was such expense. Finally the defenders of the grain robbery fall back on the threadbare claim that the system of grades and inspection saves Minnesota from being robbed of millions by the Eastern dealers. It should have added, "in order that the said millions might run into the pockets of the home elevators. The operation of the steal is well shown by the artist in the picture herewith, and how the swag, it is safe to conclude, finds itself regularly carted away into the Republican campaign fund by which this iniquity has been fostered.

As in other reforms, the Democracy and Peoples' party are condemned for mentioning this as one of the reforms they will accomplish in the election of John Lind. One of the candidates on our ticket have been criticised because he as an individual, assisted in bringing these facts to light. This is Hon. Geo. N. Lamphere, our candidate for state auditor, editor of the Moorhead News. Instead of criticism, this should be a commendation for his interest in the welfare of the people. Farmers are combined for asking for the abolishment of the system. If it cannot be reformed, it were better abolished. But the people know that it can be reformed, and they are at least determined to try. All that the farmers want is an honest administration of the department, a fair grading of their grain. It is in their own hands to obtain it. Will they not make the attempt to accomplish it? The demand for abolition grows out of the despair of securing honest administration. It is the same as with other departments of the state government. If they cannot be reformed it were better that they did not exist. It is time to set before all of the substance of our producers, goes into that insatiable maw of the corporations, and the specialty privileged. From this we can only be delivered by the triumph of the people themselves, and the taking possession of their own by themselves.

The election of Lind will enable an honest man to give the farmers an honest administration of the department, that, as conducted by the Republican administration, is a gigantic robbery.

RESPONSIBILITY OF FINANCIAL LOSSES.

Mankato Review: The Republican spell-binders and country press are making a defensive campaign, because of the attacks made upon Mr. Eustis, their gubernatorial candidate. * * * The records of the Guaranty Loan show that Mr. Eustis was at one time a director, and participated in the meetings of the board. * * * When brought to the crucial test of 1893, there was a general collapse, and heavy losses to investors was the result, leaving many sore spots. St. Paul citizens did the same thing, and in the failures of banks, building and loan associations and kindred financial institutions, things have been uncovered that, because of their failure, are very dark and damaging to character, but, had they succeeded, would never have reached the public eye. It was a reckless use of one's character and influence, that has worked a vast amount of injury.

His (Eustis) friends meet this very serious matter with a complete and overwhelming denial that he ever had any connection with it. The reading public know and believe otherwise, and herein lies their distrust.

Cushman Not the Man.

Preston Republican: Cush Davis has been in the senate twelve years, and has done nothing for the people, of course. He has looked after the corporation interests, and now, while he is away on a junket in Paris, as a member of the "piece" commission, the corporations will look out for Cush.

LIND IS BACK.

John Lind is back.
Less play the fifes and drums,
Fer he's goin 'ter be elected
When November comes.
He wus way down South, lie the good and true,
Marchin' 'neath the banner of the Red, White and Blue—
He seen that the boys got enuff hard tack—
And we'll send him to St. Paul
Now that he's
back!

Hooray, Lind's back,
An' his brave regiment
I'll soon be mustered out—
The boys who with him went—
He'll find we ain't forgot him that we so adore,
But we'll send him whar there's scrappin' without the cannon's roar;
Fer he's a real lootenant (which the Eustis fellers lack)
An' we'll send him to St. Paul
Now

EUSTIS AND MENAGE.

Little Falls Democrat: Now, just suppose Menage had not absconded, but boldly told the truth, what would have become of the Fletchers, the Pillsbury's, the Eustises, and other shining business men of Minneapolis? It was on the strength of these names as directors that Menage was enabled to sell stock and float his colossal fraud.

So far as we know, a few shares of the stock was all these men got for permitting their names to be used for the purpose of defrauding others. It appears that Wm. H. Eustis was steeped to the neck in this unholy business (and we say it on Republican authority.) But Minneapolis got a magnificent building out of it, and that covers a multitude of sins.

By the way, we have a vague impression that Menage was a Republican. If all the rascally Republicans in Minneapolis should take a notion to join their comrade in South America, what would the Republicans do for a candidate?

Weighed and Found Wanting.

Irish Standard on C. K. Davis: It is therefore the bounden duty of the independent voters of all parties in Minnesota to register their votes for the retirement of C. K. Davis from the United States senate. They can do so by voting for the legislative candidates of the fusion ticket in this campaign. Every man elected to both houses of the state legislature will cast a vote for Davis' successor. Let the people see to it that no man is sent to St. Paul to be "bought and sold" and made a "puppet" of by "vulgar lobbyists" in the interests of Cush Davis. He has been weighed in the balance and has failed to give satisfaction to the people of this state.

No Assault on Lind.

Winona Herald: We venture the remark that nothing is said against John Lind for the simple and sufficient reason that nothing can truthfully be said against him, and he will not permit untruths, as the St. Paul Dispatch found at an expense of several hundred dollars. The newspapers have been shy of Lind ever since—we don't blame them in the least—we would be too. The fact is that Lind is a man beyond reproach, and our friends on the other side know it. We are sorry for the other man. The truth is too much for him. But the Republicans should not have nominated a fraud.

A CHANCE FOR CLAUSEN.

Willmar Argus (Rep.): If Mr. Clausen and the men for whom he is working want to have a farmers' meeting, let them advertise one in the wheat country, and see how quickly they will come about. But that would never do, you know. Pillsbury and the other millers, who benefit by the present methods, would never agree to anything like that. No, the dear farmer must be played for a fool, just to satisfy the big millers who are starving for wheat to grind, that they may sell their flour cheaper in the city of London than in Minneapolis.

No Doubt About It.

Preston Republican: Lind will be elected. There are many reasons for that. In the first place Lind is a man and the people have confidence in him. In the second place that cross between man and something else which the Republicans nominated has not the respect of even the Republicans. The corporations will assist Eustis as they assisted Clough; but we firmly believe that Lind's strength this time is sufficient to overcome all opposition.

Hard to Please.

Mapleton Messenger: But then we have the gold standard, the Dingley bill, a war scandal and Eustis and the Wright county ring. A people that want more than that are hard to please.

Moorhead News: The only politics there is in it is that those responsible for this stealing, incompetency, or whatever one has a mind to call it, should not longer be retained in office, but be discharged, and their disgrace with them.

Winona Herald: The fact that if the people of Minnesota learn the character of the two candidates [illegible] shown by their public records, Lind will be the next governor [illegible] this state.

The Very Worst.

"I wouldn't live in your house another minute," said the angry tenant.

"What's the matter?" asked the agent.

"Why, your sanitary work has been done as though the plumber was building an army camp."—Philadelphia North American.

Very Easy.

"What do you think of this scheme of taking gold out of sea water?"

"Bathhouse keepers do it every summer."—Philadelphia North American.

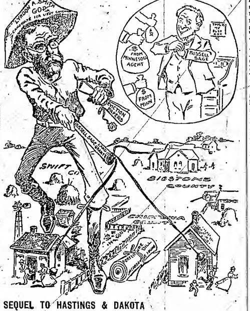
HOW THE OLD THING WORKS.



SEQUEL TO HASTINGS & DAKOTA LAND GRANT FORFEITURE AC.

LAND GRANT AND RUINED SETTLERS

The Political Sequel to the Hastings & Dakota Land Grant.

WHEN WILL REPUBLICAN OUTRAGE END?

Having Tricked the State by Deeding Lands to Russell Sage, to Defeat the Forfeiture Bill, Sage's Agent and Attorney in Evicting Settlers, Lyndon A. Smith, Is Made Candidate for Lieutenant Governor—Fraud and Trickery Fit Companion to Guaranty Loan.

Two years ago, although somewhat late in the campaign, attention was called to the manner in which the State of Minnesota was defrauded out of more than 5,000 acres of land in the western part of the state by the Russell Sage—Hastings & Dakota—land grant fraud, better known as the Hastings & Dakota steal. In the time that has elapsed the matters come home to individuals and people and come into the campaign with peculiar applicability, from two facts. First, that the settlers on the lands are being ejected therefrom; and second, that the instrument or attorney in Russell Sage's evictions IS THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, LYNDON A. SMITH, of CHIPPEWA COUNTY.

Two years ago the state Democratic committee officially stated the case from the records, and from the same source the Reform Press now presents the following summary:

Hastings and Dakota Grant.

The land grant of the Hastings & Dakota railroad had never been finally adjusted, but in the course of time the supposed rights remaining due under it had come into the ownership of Russell Sage, the many times millionaire of New York. In what manner this occurred, and how the hocus pocus has been worked to keep the lands from the tax assessment rolls, is not important to the case now. Concerning the grant itself, the facts are old to most residents of the western portion of the state. Congress granted the lands away back in 1866, reserving, and by subsequent act continuing to withhold, such lands in the certain belt, as might have been taken by the settlers. In the years following there were numerous changes, lapses and extensions, during which time settlers continued to go upon the lands which the railroad company expected to obtain, and the question of title and ownership became greatly complicated. One thing remained clear, however, that people settled on lands in good faith and went on to make their homes and improve the country, increasing the other lands in value.

Where Sage Comes In.

In due time the Hastings & Dakota company dissolved, and what it possessed, or expected to possess, passed, as has been said, into the hands of Russell Sage. What remained? The people claimed that nothing remained, but that the lands belonged to those who had secured them under the government laws and the protection of the state. This matter has been agitated for years and reached several sessions of the legislature, and was the stock in trade of several very active Republican politicians. It came to a head in the session of 1895, under the efforts of two such politicians, respectively, Representative J. F. Jacobson, of Lac qui Parle, in the House, and Senator E. T. Young, of Swift county, in the Senate, as representatives from the region where many of the victims of what has come to pass reside—or did before ejected from their homes. Those gentlemen made the campaigns of their lives for their friends and neighbors, oppressed by these adverse claims on the part of Russell Sage. The Hastings & Dakota land grant was more talked of than any other proposed legislation of the period. In a previous session something had been attempted, but not till the session of '95 was success attained. These "defenders of the poor settlers," united the whole Republican strength of both houses for the bill they agreed on, which declared a forfeiture of all rights and interests of Sage and any one else but the settlers occupying the lands. Lands not occupied by settlers became the property of the state. This was agreed to be the only way in which relief could be had for those people in that part of the state.

Where the People Go Out.

Senator Young, by agreement with Representative Jacobson, introduced the bill in the senate, and piloted it through that body. It passed there on the 11th of April by a vote of 82 to 6. Then Mr. Jacobson took it up in the house, where it passed on the 13th of April by a vote of 90 to 1. While both managers talked much of corporate opposition to the measure, and expended oratory galore, it was notorious that there was little or no opposition to the measure from the railroad lobby, which usually fought such legislation. The reason came out later. The bill became a law on the 18th of April by being signed by the Republican governor and being deposited in the office of secretary of state, and the legislature a few days later adjourned. When it was safely departed, then was the discovery made that on the 13th of April, FIVE DAYS BEFORE GOVERNOR CLOUGH HAD SIGNED THE FORFEITURE BILL, THERE HAD BEEN MADE, SIGNED, SEALED AND DELIVERED, BY THE SAME GOVERNOR, A DEED FOR THE STATE, TO THE SAME RUSSELL SAGE, FOR THE VERY LANDS DECLARED FORFEITED BY THE YOUNG-JACOBSON BILL. Thus, not only had the whole legislative machinery of the state been employed in a shameful trick upon the people, at the latter's expense, BUT THE POOR VICTIMS FOR WHOM SO MUCH TALK HAS BEEN MADE ARE FASTENED DOWN IRRETRIEVABLY IN THEIR MISFORTUNES.

Lyndon A. Smith, Attorney.

There has been no recourse but to leave their homes and their property, or to make settlement at Russell Sage's own terms. This engages the attention of much of the court machinery and the several agents in the counties chiefly interested, those of Chippewa, Big Stone and Traverse, including Candidate Lyndon A. Smith. The following is a list of the lands which Sage thus obtained, by Republican assistance, and from which the farmers will be evicted, unless they pay Russell Sage:

How the Old Thing Works.

The sequel to this interesting story is to be found, first, in the actions to deprive the farmers and other owners of the lands on which for the most part settlements have long since been made, and next in the action of the Republican party in making its candidate for Lieutenant Governor, the attorney for Russell Sage in the evictions which have followed. The actions are found in the courts of Bigstone, Swift and Traverse counties, where the lands for the most part are located. The cases are so numerous that the complaints on which they are brought are printed by the wholesale, all ready for filling out and filing. Some of the farmers are able to defend by having occupied the lands long enough, under the statute, to make them secure by adverse possession, fifteen years. Such as have not this defense must leave, or what is mostly desired, settle, and pay Sage's agent or agents. THE RESULT IS THE CONSTANT REMITTANCE TO THE NEW YORK OFFICE OF SUCH SUMS OF GOOD MINNESOTA MONEY AS ARE EXCEEDINGLY GRATIFYING TO ALL CONCERNED, EXCEPT THE POOR VICTIMS. The whole is well illustrated in the picture, "How the Old Thing Works."

In the Republican state convention, after Guaranty Loan Candidate Eustis had been selected to head the ticket, the attorney and agent of Russell Sage, Lyndon A. Smith of Montevideo, was very properly selected as the candidate for Lieutenant Governor. Guaranty Loan, and the Hastings & Dakota grant, with their sequels of ruin and distress, are proper companion pieces. THE DEFEAT OF BOTH SUCH CANDIDATES WILL BE ATTENDED TO CAREFULLY BY THE VOTERS OF MINNESOTA AT THE POLLS NEXT MONTH.

EUSTIS UNDER A GALLING FIRE.

Preston National Republican: William Henry Eustis is under a galling fire from his outraged Minneapolis constituency. His conduct as mayor of the city was flagrantly wrong and inimical to the sacred rights of the whole population, except those of the Guarantee Loan Association and the Tom Lowry street car combine, and now he is called to account for his absurdities and corrupt peculations. In favor of the street car company he disobeyed the law as laid down by Judge Smith. The City of Minneapolis has never been aroused by a mayor more heedless of its municipal rights. What he has been to that municipality he is expected to be, if elected governor, to the pine land rings, the school land and iron mountain thieves, and all other combinations organized to rob the state. All of the local political rings that are now shouting for Eustis do so with a full knowledge of his unworthiness. From the tables of his central masters in political fraud the most of their crumbs are distributed. In return misrepresentation and lies are manufactured to deceive voters. These proclaim that Eustis is clean and has a saintly horror for the detestable outrages of which the party that nominated him is guilty. Those who want an honest man for governor must vote for John Lind. His patriotism is genuine.

A SENSE OF HUMOR.

It Is a Precious Gift and Helps to Lighten Life's Way.

I regard a sense of humor as one of the most precious gifts that can be vouchsafed to a human being. He is not necessarily a better man for having it, but he is a happier one. It renders him indifferent to good or bad fortune. It enables him to enjoy his own discomfiture.

Blessed with this sense he is never unduly elated or cast down. No one can ruffle his temper. No abuse disturbs his equanimity. Bores do not bore him. Humbugs do not humbug him. Solemn airs do not impose on him. Sentimental gush does not influence him. The follies of the moment have no hold on him. Titles and decorations are but childish baubles in his eyes. Prejudice does not warp his judgment. He is never in conceit or out of conceit with himself. He abhors all dogmatism. The world is a stage on which actors strut and fret for his edification and amusement, and he pursues the even current of his way, invulnerable, doing what is right and proper according to his lights, but utterly indifferent whether what he does finds approval or disapproval from others.

If Hamlet had had any sense of humor, he would not have been a nuisance to himself and to all surrounding him.—London Truth.

Spending Money.

It is an excellent thing to give children as soon as they arrive at about 12 years, or even before, a little allowance for spending money and an account book. Show them how to keep an account of small expenditures and make it a condition that they do so if they wish to receive their allowance. There is no instruction more necessary to children than instruction in the wise management of money. Children should be taught early what true economy is and to exercise their judgment—not their fancy—in making purchases. A little instruction now, and experience if need be, of the genuine discomforts of extravagance may save them from much suffering in after years.—New York Ledger.

He Had Changed.

A widow once called upon an artist and asked him to paint a portrait of her husband. "When can he sit?" inquired the artist. "He can't sit at all," said the widow, "he's dead." "Then you will have to furnish me with his photograph," said the artist. "He never had his picture taken," said the widow. Nevertheless the artist undertook the job, and when he had finished the work he asked the widow to come and see it.

"It's a fine picture," said she, "and you'll please send it to my home—but how the old man has changed."—Boston Herald.

He Saw the Play.

They were giving "She Stoops to Conquer" in a small provincial town. A penniless individual, anxious to see the play, stalked past the ticket office in a careless, independent sort of way. When stopped and asked by what right he went in without paying, he replied:

"By what right! I am Oliver Goldsmith, the author of the piece they are going to perform!"

"Ah, beg pardon, sir," said the check-taker, making a bow.

And Goldsmith walked in to see his play.—London Answers

Growing boys and girls do not always appreciate that it is while they are growing that they are forming their figures for after life. Drooping the shoulders a little more every day, drooping the head as one walks, standing unevenly so that one hip sinks more than the other—all these defects, easily corrected now, will be five times as hard in five years, and twenty-five times as hard in ten years. A graceful easy carriage, and an erect, straight figure are a pleasure to beholder and possessor, and are worth striving for. An easy way to practice walking well is to start out right. Just before you leave the house, walk up to the wall and see that your toes, chest and nose touch it at once; then in that attitude walk away. Keep your head up and your chest out, and your shoulders and back will take care of themselves. A southern school-teacher used to instruct her pupils to walk always as if trying to look over the top of an imaginary carriage just in front of them. It was good advice, for it kept the head raised. Don't think these things are of no value. They add to your health and attractiveness—two things to which everybody should pay heed.—Richland County Gazette.

LOCAL NEWS.

Fresh Oysters, at the Ideal Lunch Room.

H. E. Ives is doing business at the county seat this week.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Go to the new drug store for your school supplies and stationary.

Mr. Ballard and wife visited friends at Crookston the first of the week.

E. J. Holmes returned yesterday from a trip to his old home in Goodhue Co.

Atty. Lee and A. Piche of Thief River Falls was in the village last Monday.

Hon. P. M. Ringdal was in the village to day on his way to Red Lake Falls.

Quite a number of our citizens have been courting at the county seat this week.

The planing mill was shut down two days the first of the week on account of scarcity of cars.

For a reliable blood purifier try the Imperial Sarsaparilla for sale at the new Drug Store.

Mr. Hannay our new banker came up last Monday and will make St. Hilaire his future home.

The SPECTATOR has on hand a large stock of cards for campaign purposes. Leave your orders for 500 or 1,000.

Girls and boys keep your eyes pealed for Santa Claus this year he will have his head quarters at the new Drug Store.

According to law the stars and stripes must float over all poling places election day—November 8th.—Remember this.

The new bank building is rapidly nearing completion. Painter Myerson expects to give it the finishing touch this week.

Among the prominent men seen on our streets last Monday were Judge Ives, Hon. H. Steenerson, A. Miller and P. O. Hegglund.

Don't forget to register next Tuesday. The Board will be in session at the village hall from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. on that day.

A large number of our mill men left Monday for the Red Lake country where they will put in the winter working in the woods.

If you are troubled with cold and cough buy a bottle of the Imperial cough syrup and be happy. For sale at the new Drug Store.

—The SPECTATOR is the official paper of the village and county. Now is the time to subscribe. $1.00 per year if paid in advance—otherwise $1.50.

Ye editor and M. E. Bjerk left last Sunday on a hunting trip at Red Lake and down the river. They will remain away the better part of the week.

A number of our young people gave a surprise party to Miss Celia Troddler last evening. The evening was pleasantly passed in dancing and all report a good time.

—Familiarize yourselves to with the winning ticket that you will vote on the 8th day of November. You will find it on the second page of the SPECTATOR.

The Imperial Drug Co., has a fine line of clocks that must be closed out by Nov. 15th to make room for a new line of holiday goods. Every clock guaranteed.

The SPECTATOR will take cord wood on subscription—a good way for some to settle their accounts, and others can come around and saw the same and we will give them credit for same.

Two Weeks Only.

For the next two weeks, beginning Friday Oct. 19th, I will give with every dozen cabinet photographs, one 16x20 crayon picture free.
D. COLLINS.

The following circular, signed by the most prominent lawyers of Crookston, representing all shades of political faith is published with their consent, and should affectually silence the opponents of Judge Ives, in their attack on his fitness for District Judge.

To the electors and all persons interested in the 14th Judicial District of Minnesota:

In a circular signed by John Vig, L. E. Gossman and Ole J. Vaule as "Independent Judicial Committee for Polk County," the Hon. Frank Ives, Judge of the District Court, is charged with physical and mental weakness, caused by old age, and that for these reasons he is unfit to occupy his present position. The undersigned attorneys having practiced for many years before Judge Ives court, hereby certify that the above charge is not true. We know that Judge Ives has done his work more promptly than it has ever been done in this district before. We believe Judge Ives is to-day as strong and healthy, both in mind and body, as he was when first elected to the position he now holds. This statement is made by us regardless of our personal preference between the two candidates for judge and solely in the interest of justice and fairness.

Signed,
H. STEENERSON,
W. E. ROWE,
A. C. WILKINSON,
A. A. MILLER,
MARTIN O'BRIEN,
All of Crookston, Minn.

Dated October 12th, 1898.

The Ladies of the Norwegian Sewing Society of St. Hilaire will hold their annual auction in Norwegian church Saturday evening Oct. 20th, commencing at 8:00 o'clock. Supper served immediately after the auction. All are cordially invited.

The Odd Fellows lodge have arranged for a ball and supper at their hall a week from next Thursday which will fall on Oct. 27th, it being the first anniversary of St. Hilaire Lodge No. 117. Good music has been secured and an excellent time is guaranteed. Tickets including supper $1.00.

The first annual ball of the A. O. U. W. held at the St. Hilaire Hotel last Saturday evening was a success in every sense of the word. A large crowd was present, the large dining room being filled to overflowing. At 12 o'clock an elegant repast was served and after several hours more dancing the guests left for home all thoroughly satisfied with the evenings entertainment.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war: The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

Judge Ives is gaining strength daily. His opponents are not making any friends by underhand methods: the people will not swallow stories of a man told behind his back but demand the accusers to come out boldly and give the judge an opportunity to prove them lies—if they are such. But behind Judge Ives is his official record, one that none of them can impeach, and it is not with honest intentions that he is forced into this fight. Just look at the standing of these sore heads who are opposing him. They are simply fools and a cheap lot of men who have no principal whatever.

"Will some populist paper please rise and tell us some law that P. M. Ringdal has passed in the senate that benefited the people? Don't all speak at once, but just bump up against this.—Crookston Tribune.

Why, you old fogy, no man passed laws in the senate or in any other legislative body. It takes a majority to do that, and Mr. Ringdal's name will be found recorded along with that majority in favor of every good measure that was passed during his term. But in this connection we might mention that in connection with our representatives he secured $1,150 from the road and bridge fund at the last session of the legislature, more than has been received at any one session, even when the members "stood in with the administration." They also secured $7,500 for drainage in the face of the promise given two years ago that if an appropriation was made then there would be no further demands made.—McIntosh Times.

Council Proceedinge.

Adjourned meeting of the council Tuesday Oct. 18th 1898.

INSTRUCTIONS.

The Secretary of State Tells Voters How to Prepare Their Ballots. Information that Should be Carefully Studied By Every Voter. How Easy One May Become Guilty of Misdemeanor on Election Day.

The following are the instructions to voters as sent out by the secretary of state to the clerks of each voting district: The judges of election will furnish each person entitled to vote with one ballot of each kind that is to be voted. The voter will then retire, alone, to one of the stalls or rooms provided for that purpose, and make a cross (X) mark on the line of the name of each candidate for whom he wishes to vote, in the space left for that purpose.

He will then fold his ballot in such a way as to conceal the face of it, but so that the initials of the judges of election may be seen on its back, hand it to one of the judges, who shall deposit it in the proper box. The voter will then retire from the voting room. If any voter, by mistake, spoils a ballot, he shall return it to the judges of election who shall preserve it, and furnish the elector with a new one. If the voter places a cross (X) marked opposite the names of two or more persons running for the same office, said ballot shall not be counted for those officers.

Voters may be allowed to carry with them a sample ballot for use in assisting them in marking the official ballot.

If any person during the day of election, and before the closing, remove from the polling room any of the ballots printed for that election, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred (100) dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both.

When an elector shall make oath that he cannot read or that he cannot read English, or that because of physical disability he cannot mark his ballot, he shall have the right to call to his aid one or more of the judges of election, or a qualified elector to mark the ballot provided, that no person shall so mark the ballot of more than three voters in any one election district, at one election. Such person shall mark the ballot as directed by such voter and not otherwise: and when so marked the voter shall, before depositing the same, privately show his ballot to one of the judges or clerks, to ascertain that it is marked as directed.

Any judge of election, or any person marking the ballot of a voter, who shall disclose to any other person the name of any candidate voted for, by such elector, or shall mark the ballot in any other manner than as directed by the voter, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than thirty (30) dollars nor more than two hundred (200) dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than ten days or more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Any person in the polling room or compartment connected therewith, who shall persuade or attempt to persuad any person to vote for any particular candidate, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor for each and every person so approached; and on conviction shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment.

If any person after having marked his ballot, shows it to any one except as hereinbefore provided, the judge of election shall refuse to receive or place in the ballot box such a ticket.

POLITICAL APOTHEGMS.

Curse of populism, did you say? Yes, the populists of Polk county have saved the taxpayers $196,000 in salaries alone, in eight years, at a time, too when the public business doubled, and the population increased by one third.

Before the populists acquired control of the affairs of Polk county, the republicans ran the county into debt to the extent of $104,500, and all the county has to show for this enormous sum is the old jail and court house worth less than $10,000. The populists have not only paid $16,000 of the republican debt, but built a splendid and modern jail worth $30,000 and paid for the same in cash. The "blight" of populism is awful, you know, for—the bond sharks.

The populists of Polk county have not given the bond managers their "pound of flesh," hence the cry about "the curse of populism."

According to the state treasurer's report $200,000 of the state's money is tied up in defunct banks. Why don't the moral G. O. P. sheets, which in righteous wrath went into sack cloth and ashes over Beaudry, do the same over the carelessness of the republican state treasurer?

The taxes in Polk county have been reduced from 9.6 mills under republican regime to 4.5 mills—nearly one-half, but that is a hair-raising populist "curse", you know.

Twine, did you say? Yes, in 1892—after the fusion legislature appropriated the money—machinery for the manufacture of hemp twine was bought in Ireland at a cost of about $68,000. Last spring, when the twine trust had grabbed up all the manila fibre, the republican management of the Stillwater twine plant sold the machinery bought in Ireland for $20,000, and on top of that sold the twine, too, to the speculators. Result, double price on twine for the farmers. The republicans are friends of the farmers, you see.

THE JUDGESHIP QUESTION.

Ever since the judicial campaign opened there has been considerable prominence given to certain affidavits which originated in Roseau county and which reflected upon Judge Ives' conduct while holding a term of court in Roseau county in May last.

The first of these affidavits was signed by Marian L. Riddell, the second by Reverend N. Askeland, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church of Roseau and twenty members of his congregation and the third by Jens C. Storm and twenty-seven other residents of that county.

The principal charge set forth in these affidavits is in effect that Judge Ives was intoxicated while on the bench during several days of that term of court. These affidavits have gained considerable publicity from having appeared in a number of republican newspapers, and from being circulated in pamphlet form throughout the district. The intent of such publicity was to reflect upon Judge Ives' character and to injure him politically.

Up to the present time, neither Judge Ives nor his friends have taken any notice of this attack, but so persistently have these affidavits been circulated that the impression has commenced to prevail that there might be some truth to them, and Judge Ives, feeling that he could not longer remain silent under these aspersions, has published the following letter, which, in no uncertain tone, answers the allegations of his accusers and gives the truth concerning the accusations that have been made against him:

To the Freemen of the Fourteenth Judicial District of Minnesota.

In June last, without solicitation, a regularly called and lawful convention of the people's party nominated me for the position of judge of such district for the ensuing term. Mr. Watts, who now opposes me as the republican nominee, sought a nomination in our convention, claiming to be a member of the party. I did not attend the convention, but was chosen over Mr. Watts by a vote of 35 to 9.

At the setting of such convention the friends of Mr. Watts circulated reports that while holding a term of court in Roseau I was intoxicated and sat upon the bench in a condition of intoxication. I denied this assertion to my supporters at that time, and still deny that I was, to any extent, under the influence of intoxicating liquor while at Roseau, and I emphatically deny that I ever, at any time since I have been on the bench, entered court in a condition of intoxication.

At the close of the 4th day of the last term at Roseau, while passing out of the court house down the outside stairs covered with mud and water, I slipped and fell, striking with great force upon the end of my spinal column. For thirty-six hours I was delirious with the pain of the wound, could not eat, and was continuously, for the next five days, unable to take any food on account of the nausea occasioned by the injury. From the time of the injury to the day I left there, I was constantly under the influence of opiates to enable me to bear the pain and finish the business of the term, and with all the aid of such remedies the pain and the resultant nervous shock was so great that I was really unfit for business. The charge of my enemies, that I was intoxicated, had no other or greater foundation than the opinions of a few persons who saw me while I was suffering and who had not sufficient discernment to know the difference between sickness and intoxication. The affidavits now circulated are the opinions of the lowest element of society of Roseau. Not one representative man can be found among them, while many of the best men of the county, including the sheriff, the clerk, judge of probate and many jurymen, were in court during the term who know the truth, but were not called upon to testify, for the simple reason that their testimony would not serve the nefarious schemes of the gang of harpies who have taken it upon themselves to ruin my character for their own selfish interests. It was this same gang of ruffians that attempted my impeachment in 1895, and if they succeed now the district will again experience the reign of terror that existed then.

For the last six years I have served the people of the district (perhaps not with the ability that some others might have brought to the office), but no fair-minded person has ever accused me of corruption in office. I have striven to serve all alike, regardless of politics, religion or caste. Every litigant has been accorded what I believe to have been his rights, and if I am re-elected such will be my purpose and course to the end of the term. I am still in good health, as vigorous as when first elected six years ago, with an intellect as clear and unclouded as it was thirty years ago. Notwithstanding the adverse opinions of the sages who have publicly proclaimed my decline, I have no words of condemnation for Mr. Watts, except that I am surprised that, as a candidate for an office of honor and integrity, he will permit his supporters to persevere in such a vile course in their attempt to injure the character of one who has always accorded him the fairest treatment.

Truly yours,
FRANK IVES.

Oct. 15th, 1898.

The Times does not claim to know the people who made the affidavits referred to above, but Judge Ives who has held several terms of court in Roseau county is undoubtedly very well acquainted with them, and his letter showing up the facts in the case can have no other result than to set at rest the false impressions which many people in the district have obtained from the circulation of these charges.

J. Q. Adams, the jewler and optician will be here again Nov., 10th; 11th and 12th, at Johnson's Drug Store.

Hiller was a laborer and strongly addicted to drink, and it is presumed he was on his way home and fell from the sidewalk into the hole. There is no evidence of foul play. Deceased was sixty years old.

Minnie Olson, a young lady about twenty-two years of age, was almost instantly killed at Winona by being struck by a horse and buggy driven by Louis Heintz, a young clothing merchant. The girl was riding a bicycle, and was struck while turning a street corner. Her neck was broken. She died a few minutes later. Heintz immediately gave himself up and is now in jail.

Mrs. John Cunningham died suddenly at Delano in the sixty-fourth year of her age, of heart trouble complicated with asthma. She was an old settler in the town of Franklin, since 1853, and lived on a farm two and a half miles from Delano on the Watertown road, until the fall of 1896, when she moved to Minneapolis and in the spring of 1898 moved to Delano, where she died. She leaves a husband and seven grown children to mourn her loss.

A man giving the name of Charles Slater, who says he is from Kasson, offered a creamery check at Loyhed's store in Faribault, to have it cashed. Loyhed suspected that all was not right, and called in Chief of Police Moes, and, as the young man could not explain the matter, the chief took him to F. A. Berry, and inquired if the check was signed by him. Mr. Berry said it was not, and that it was a forgery. Slater was arrested at once, and is now in jail awaiting further investigation.

A transfer was recorded in the register's office at Duluth for 3,500 acres of land by Walter F. Cobb, to the Moon & Kerr Lumber company, for a consideration of $10,000. The land is in Township 54, Range 12. An effort was made by the Duluth & Iron Range railroad company to have this transfer kept from the public, for the reason that the land is part of the state land grant to that railroad, which is now in litigation, through the efforts of State Auditor Dunn. Shortly before the action was brought the railroad transferred all the lands to Walter F. Cobb. It will be noticed that, while the land grant lands were supposed to be swamp lands, this transfer is to a lumber company.

Telespore Robillard, living east of Crookston, has slept almost continuously during the past ten days. He went to bed in his usual health on Saturday evening, Oct. 8, and expected to rise next morning and go about his usual farm work. He failed to wake, however, and has put in the entire time sleeping, but with two exceptions, when he woke for an hour, laughed and chatted with his family, took some nourishment and again slept. Except one interval of three years, Mr. Robillard has taken one of these long sleeps each year during the past twelve years. Heretofore he has risen from his bed apparently none the worse for his experience, but this time, it is said, his body is becoming practically paralyzed, and it is extremely doubtful if he recovers from his present attack.

Louis Larson, aged about ten years, and another boy about twelve years of age, succeeded in getting a gun from the residence of a farmer in the town of Foldal, twelve miles northeast of Warren, and in some way the gun was discharged, killing Larson.

The Vernon Center Bank has been opened for business. It is a private institution, with H. Quimby as president and A. E. Quimby as cashier. The proprietors are well known in banking and business circles throughout Southern Minnesota.

Annie Slawick, widow, of Montgomery, attempted suicide by setting her house on fire in several places and then getting into bed, where the neighbors found her when they broke in to extinguish the fire. She lived alone in the country, and is supposed to be insane. She has two sons, but they are away from home all the time working.

Work on the Eastern Minnesota railway cut-off, that will shorten the distance between St. Paul and Duluth about thirty miles and give that road as short a line, if not a shorter one, than any other, has been commenced.

MRS. PINKHAM TALKS ABOUT OVARITIS.

Letter from Mrs. Carrie F. Tremper that all Suffering Women Should Read.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation with all its terrors may easily result from neglect.

The fullest counsel on this subject can be secured without cost by writing to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and asking for her advice. Your letter will be confidential and seen by women only.

Mrs. CARRIE F. TREMPER, Lake, Ind., whose letter we print, is only one of many that have been cured of ovarian troubles by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was suffering from congestion of the ovaries, misplacement of the womb, irregular, scanty, and painful menstruation, also kidney trouble. I had let it go on until I could not sit up, and could not straighten my left leg. My physician gave me relief, but failed to cure me. Reading the testimonials of different women, telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for them, I decided to give it a trial. I had almost given up hopes, as I had suffered untold agony. The first dose helped me. And now, after using eight bottles of Vegetable Compound, one bottle of Blood Purifier, one box of Liver Pills, I am proud to say I am as well as I ever was. I might have saved a large doctor's bill and much suffering, had I tried your precious medicine in the beginning of my sickness. All in the village know I was not expected to live, when I had the first and second attacks. In fact, I had no hope until I began taking your Vegetable Compound. It has saved my life."

ANNEX THE PHILIPPINES

AMERICA WILL TAKE OVER THE ENTIRE ARCHIPELAGO.

Spain May Not Make Any Serious Objections, Although There Is Some Talk of a Renewal of Hostilities Should the United States Attempt to Take the Philippines Without Making Adequate Financial Compensation—American Commissioners Expected to Present Their Demands To-Day—Spain Would Be Well Rid of the Islands.

Paris, Nov. 1. — While the Spanish and American peace commissioners now stand upon the threshhold of the Philippine question, it seems probable, in the light of this hour, that the United States will take over the entire archipelago. This view is the focus point of the best unofficial opinion of the trend of events. During the four days just passed those in touch with, though possibly not in the confidence of, the commissioners, have felt the concentration of tendencies to be occupied by the United States commissioners at to-day's session of the two commissions. In 1897 Spain issued by royal decree bonds in the sum of $40,000,000, to which were pledged the revenues of the Philippines, and to which the Spanish was added. From these $40,000,000 in obligations Spain realized $36,000,000 in cash. These forty millions represent the Philippine debt. Should the United States absorb the Philippines, none but officials yet know whether they would assume a part or all of this debt or more than the Philippine debt. The Americans have declined to assume any of the Cuban debt because Cuba is not theirs, but in deposing Spain in the Philippines the Americans acquire the territory and it is believed there will be some financial assumption by the United States. At this point rises the question of how much financial relief might compose Spain to her loss of the Philippines. Some well-informed persons believe that Premier Sagasta has determined to be rid of the Philippines and would direct his commission to by which the United States should take the islands and assume the $40,000,000 of debt. Spaniards now in Paris declare that the Philippines are a drag and assert that Spain would lift a cry of joy to be relieved of them if the terrific debt pressure should be thus lessened. On the other hand Spaniards at home are clamoring that their commission should bolt the conference, and, returning, thus fulfill the highest duty. There are Spaniards in Paris who insist that, should the United States take the Philippines without a large money consideration, Spain's commission should return and the nation, holding its soldiers in Cuba and elsewhere again take up arms, achieve thus a glorious martyrdom to national honor. In these contending currents the Spanish commissioners are awaiting the American declaration to-day, and they declare they cannot sign a treaty of peace involving the loss of the Philippines to Spain.

Anxiety at Madrid.

London, Nov. 1—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says there is much anxiety in Madrid as to the result of to-day's joint sitting of the peace commission. Inasmuch as Spain accepted the Cuban articles of the protocol only on condition of a subsequent agreement being arrived at on the Philippine question she will strenuously resist any infringement of her rights in the Philippines without compensation.

ABUSE AND ILL TREATMENT.

Charged by Sailors Against Their Captain.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 1.—A delegation of eight sailors from the American bark St. Catherine, from New York, tell harrowing stories of ill treatment and abuse at the police station here. They wanted warrants for the arrest of Capt. Edward Matthews and First Mate Dresel. Owing to the fact that the prosecuting attorney could not be found the matter was postponed until to-morrow. The sailors were Germans and Scandinavians and cannot speak English. Capt. Matthews strongly denies the charges.

PROTOCOL SIGNED.

Argentine-Chilean Dispute Will Be Amicably Settled.

Buenos Ayres, Nov. 1. — A dispatch from Santiago announces that the protocol about the Puna de Atacama dispute has been signed. The protocol establishes that in case the conference of the commissioners is without result, each country will appoint one commissioner, who will proceed to fix the boundary of Puna according to the treaty of 1896.

Mrs. Hughes Indicted.

Mason City, Iowa, Nov. 1. — Mrs. Lottie Hughes has been indicted by the grand jury for the murder of her husband. Mrs. Hughes had a preliminary hearing in June and offered no evidence to prove her innocence. What her defense is none but her attorneys know. She was infatuated with a young man of this city. The parties were all prominent.

Mrs. Botkin Pleads Not Guilty.

San Francisco, Nov. 1. — Mrs. Cordelia Botkin was formally arraigned in Justice Cook's court yesterday upon the indictment found by the grand jury, charging her with the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning of Dover, Del. Objection was made to the document. Mrs. Botkin pleaded not guilty.

ODDITIES OF POISONING.

Much of Earthly Happiness Depends Upon What We Eat.

The constitutional differences and peculiarities which exist among individuals should always be carefully watched and considered. One person can handle poison ivy with impunity while another is poisoned if only in the vicinity of the vine and without contact. Some members of a family residing in a malarial district will suffer regularly with chills and fever, while other members will not be at all affected.

Food that is actually poisonous to some persons will not act so on others. One person may eat all kinds of green fruit and vegetables with impunity, while another person could do so only at the risk of life. Certain kinds of fish are actually poisonous to some people and perfectly wholesome to others.

It is this peculiar condition of the system which constitutes the danger point in the individual case and should be prudently observed by each one for himself. Intestinal derangements frequently arise from and are aggravated by certain kinds of food. Thus a person affected with kidney or liver trouble should not eat very white bread, since the extreme whiteness is often produced by the use of alum with an inferior article of flour, and as alum is known to be poisonous in its effects on a sound constitution, this is why alum baking powder is never used by people of judgment and discretion.

More of earthly happiness depends upon what we eat than many people realize and it is for this reason that the different states are one by one passing pure-food laws.

CAUSED A SENSATION.

Arrest of Suspected Anarchists at Ponce.

Ponce, Porto Rico, Nov. 1.—A sensation was caused here on the arrival of the Red line Pennsylvania from the Spanish main, by the discovery of two passengers in possession of a number of explosive cartridges containing dynamite. The discovery was made by the customs officers and the passengers were arrested on the supposition that they were anarchists. The police, who fear that others belonging to the gang have escaped, are making a secret search.

BLANCO TO GO.

Cuba's Last Spanish Governor Will Leave Havana in Three Weeks.

Havana, Nov. 1.—Gen. Blanco leaves Havana Nov. 20. He himself does not admit that the statement is correct, but it comes from a source of undoubted authenticity that he is averse to witnessing the closing scenes of evacuation, and will go to Spain before any possible entry of the American flag.

Generals Wheeler and Chaffee.

Washington, Nov. 1. —Maj. Gen. Wheeler and Maj. Gen. Chaffee, who have been in attendance at the peace jubilee at Philadelphia, were at the war department in conference with the officials in regard to their future military duties. Gen. Wheeler is in command of the Fourth corps at Huntsville, Ala. Gen. Chaffee is in command of the First division of the Fourth corps which is being assembled at Southern camps.

Book Dealers Fail.

Kansas City, Nov. 1.—L. H. Fielding & Co., dealers in books, stationery, notions and fine art goods, assigned with liabilities of $90,000 and assets estimated at $120,000. Pressure by Eastern creditors precipitated the assignment.

Another Victim of Plague.

Vienna, Nov. 1.— The death is announced of Fraulein Pecha, one of the two nurses who attended the late Herr Barisch, the first victim of the outbreak of bubonic plague in Vienna.

TO PREVENT DISORDERS.

Bull Fight and Baseball Game Prohibited in Havana.

Havana, Nov. 1.—The work of cataloguing the military property of the Santa Clara battery has begun. Rear Admiral Sampson did not attend the services in the Independent Baptist church as he was advertised to do. This fact has given a great deal of satisfaction to Americans here, who feared that his presence might be used to give a semi-official indorsement to an anti-Catholic meeting.

The bull fight and baseball game advertised for Sunday were vetoed by the civil governor, the former owing to the alleged fraudulent means used in advertising it and the latter because a license to play was not obtained. These are official reasons, but the real reason was probably to prevent trouble with the soldiers, and the fear of a riot.

The commission which is inquiring into the health conditions of Guanabacoa, as the proposed site for a camp for troops, has found that there have been 8,995 deaths there during the last two years and ten months. The former death rate was 250 annually. Local physicians had promised to give a full report of the health conditions.

Mr. Hammel, the purchaser of bronze cannon from the Spaniards, sails to-day for New York. He believes the sale will not be completed.

DEATHS AT MANILA.

Several Dakota Boys Are on the List.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The following cablegram has been received from Gen. Otis, dated Manila, Oct. 30, and addressed to the adjutant general:

"Following deaths since last report:

"Oct. 21—Sergt. Maj. Roy W. Hover, First South Dakota, malarial fever.

"Oct. 22 — Private Henry Weaver, Tenth Pennsylvania, chronic dysentery; Alfred J. Erisman, First Nebraska, typhoid fever; Thomas W. P. Harney, Fourteenth infantry, malarial fever.

"Oct. 23—Privates Arthur C. Simms, First Nebraska, acute diarrhea; Frank H. Heeley, hospital corps, typhoid fever.

"Oct. 25—Private B. Lee, Twenty-third infantry, smallpox.

"Oct. 26—Privates Charles J. Jorgenson, Eighteenth infantry, typhoid fever; John Morgan, First North Dakota, acute dysentery; Corporal Royal H. Smith, First South Dakota, smallpox.

"Oct. 27 — Private Earl W. Osterhoult, First Nebraska, typhoid fever.

"Oct. 28—Private Walter J. McLean, First Montana, typhoid fever.

"Sept. 8—Private Edward Manches, First South Dakota, typhoid fever, not reported at time."

VICTIM OF THE WAR.

Col. Waring Dies of Yellow Fever Contracted in Cuba.

New York, Nov. 1.—Col. G. E. Waring, Jr., died of yellow fever at his home here, where he has been since he arrived from Havana on the Yucatan on Tuesday last. He was sixty-seven years of age. Dr. Blauvelt, who has been attending Col. Waring during his illness, was summoned to the house at 1 o'clock in the morning. He found that Col. Waring had been attacked with the black vomit. This symptom continued all morning without cessation. Everything possible was done for the dying man, but he only lived until a quarter of 8. President Murphy, of the board of health, was informed of the death of Col. Waring within five minutes after it occurred. Dr. Roberts, the sanitary superintendent, was ordered to have the body placed in a hermetically sealed casket immediately. Mr. Murphy also gave orders that every precaution should be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

THE BUBONIC PLAGUE.

A French Bark From Hongkong Is Inspected.

San Francisco, Nov. 1.—The French bark Duchesse Anne has arrived in port from Hongkong flying the yellow flag. Both the federal and state quarantine launches put out to the vessel and soon the news came back to port that there had been two deaths on board during the voyage from the bubonic plague. Capt. Cervary, master of the ship, was the first to succumb to the dread disease. He was sick only a few days and died on Aug. 20. Nearly a month afterward a sailor was stricken with the plague and on Sept. 19 he died and was buried at sea. The bark was ordered into quarantine.

OFF FOR NORFOLK.

Raised Spanish Cruiser Teresa in Tow of the Vulcan.

Caimanera, Cuba, Nov. 1. — The Spanish cruiser Infanta Maria Teresa, which was raised and repaired under the direction of Naval Constructor Hobson, has sailed for Norfolk. Owing to a slight accident to one of her engines she started north in tow of the repair ship Vulcan.

Quaked a Bit.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Three distinct earthquake shocks were felt in this city, each being about ten seconds in length. The quake was not severe enough to be noticed generally, except in tall buildings and on seismographs. The trend of the quakes were in a northerly and southerly direction.

One of the New Torpedo Boats.

San Francisco, Nov. 1.—The torpedo boat Farragut has made another speed trial. She made several short but very fast races against time and attained better than thirty knots speed. She will doubtless be given her governmental trial trip next week. She is in good condition and ready for the test.

Pacific Bonds.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The secretary of the treasury has continued the option for the redemption at any time before Dec. 1 of 6 per cent Pacific bonds, known as currency 6s, at their full value, less half of 1 per cent.

Destroyed Many Buildings.

Bombay, Nov. 1. — A great fire in Seringur, capital of Cashmere, in the valley of Cashmere, destroyed all the public buildings and many residences. One man was killed. The damage is estimated at $500,000.

FALSE WEALTH AND POLITICS

The Evils of Over-capitalization and Escape of Corporations From Taxation.

COUNTERFEIT CAPITAL VS. "SOUND" MONEY

Immense Drain on the Producers From the Combines and Watered Stock—Illustrations at Home and Abroad—Only Relief Is Political Revolution—The Party Fostering the Present System Must Go, and Go Now.

There are grateful signs that the people of Minnesota are getting their eyes open regarding some of the great burdens upon them traceable directly to bad legislation and maladministration. While our matchless leader John Lind is presenting these in his great speeches more or less in a general way, owing to the demands on his time and labors, the Reform Press can emphasize what our leader is doing and can give details beyond the bounds of limited speeches.

In the past year the people have had a great awakening, from the fearless action of Judges Canty, Buck and Mitchell in the Steenerson case, and in the taxation decision under the Anderson law. Our producers should not tire of studying these cases and should show their appreciation in untiring efforts for the election of our candidates. Not stopping here with those cases, however, it is the wish to call attention to what one of the ablest of Minnesota's economists has called "false capital," or what others call "over-capitalization," and still others use the general term of "watered stocks," and kindred to it the escape of property from bearing its just share of taxation.

One of these subjects has been emphasized in the success of the Lowry corporations of the Twin Cities in escaping a raise in valuation by the Republican board of equalization, the iniquities of which have been noted by the state reform press with more or less details, but which cannot be too strongly placed before the masses of the people. The following facts were brought out regarding the Lowry franchises and corporations:

The Lowry Corporations.

The Minneapolis street railway was capitalized at $5,000,000, the St. Paul street railway at $5,000,000 and the old Minneapolis, Lyndale & Minnetonka railway at $385,000, all of which stock was issued, and all of which companies are consolidated in the Twin City Rapid Transit company. The latter has an authorized capital of $20,000,000. The home companies were organized under the laws of Minnesota and the Twin City company under those of New Jersey. Of the Twin City company's authorized stock there has been issued $15,000,000 of common and $1,647,000 of preferred stock. The mileage of the lines is:

Hennepin county..........................122
Ramsey county............................101

Total......................................223

There is no statement giving the number of its cars or the details of its other property, but the attempt, led by the Twin City Guardian, was to have the state board make the total assessment of the Twin City company something near its rightful share of the public burdens. On the question of valuation it was shown that it should be based at least on the earning capacity of the corporation. It was shown that the gross earnings, by the company's own statement filed in New Jersey, in the year 1897, was:

Ramsey county.................815,673.55

Total.........................$2,009,120.98
Total operating expenses and all other expenses for the year..............$1,002,080.38

Net earnings for the year...$1,007,040.60

The official statement of Attorney General Childs was that the net earnings of the company were $235,133.74, AFTER PAYING ALL EXPENSES OF EVERY KIND AND INTEREST ON OUTSTANDING BONDS, SAID TO BE $10,000,000, AND DIVIDENDS TO STOCKHOLDERS ON THE VAST AMOUNT OF OUTSTANDING STOCK, THAT SUM BEING A NET SURPLUS.

Street Cars Are "Wagons."

Further, it was shown that the cars are taxed on a valuation of $10 each and are classed as "wagons," against the valuation of $42 for the real owners of such farm implements. It is also to be considered that, although the Minnesota statutes require the assessment of the trackage or mileage of railways, there is no such assessment of the Twin City company. Notwithstanding this showing that there had been a net surplus of more than a quarter of a million of dollars, after paying all expenses and interest on stock and bonds aggregating 26,000,000, what did the company set up in their efforts to escape a raise in assessment? Why, that the outstanding stock and bonds did not represent the value of the property, notwithstanding that it had earned interest on the total, but that there had been a great outlay, covered by stocks and bonds, beyond the real or proper cost of the property. THAT IS, IF A FARMER IS TAXED ON A FARM FOR WHICH HE HAS PAID TOO MUCH HE MUST HAVE ITS VALUE REDUCED, NOTWITHSTANDING THAT IT EARNED HIM FULL RETURN ON THE OUTSIDE COST. But more. The Twin City company's agents showed that they could reproduce the Twin City property, which now represents $29,000,000, for the sum of less than $3,000,000. But the company's own balance sheet, in its financial statement for 1897, showed that it valued its roadway, equipment, real estate, tools and machinery at $14,288,584.46. It is known that it has cars ("wagons") to the number of over 1,000 in Minneapolis and 600 in St. Paul. The taxes are not the difference in the real value of the property, on which it should make returns and bear its proper share of the burdens of the state, and the total amount of capital stock and bonds—in this case the enormous sum of $25,000,000—on which its charges of 5-cent fares has, as shown, earned interest, IS WATERED STOCK AND BONDS, FALSE OR COUNTERFEIT WEALTH.

The Steenerson case applies to this state of affairs and fixes it so that hereafter, wherever the point is raised in this state, CORPORATIONS CANNOT CHARGE RATES ON THIS FALSE WEALTH, OR OVER-CAPITALIZATION, BUT MUST BASE THEM ON THE REASONABLE VALUE OF THE PROPERTY, WHICH IS WHAT IT WILL COST TO REPRODUCE IT.

The people have no quarrel with the corporations, their own creatures, but with the abuse of the privileges granted them they may justly deal. It is a hopeful sign, as in the Great Northern, concerned in the Steenerson case, that the corporations show respect for the people when the latter assert their own rights. The Great Northern might have continued the battle, and long delayed, by appeal to the United States supreme court, but yielded to the interpretation of the law by Minnesota's honored court, as at present constituted, giving the people an immediate benefit of thousands of dollars in rates reduced.

The application of false valuations or counterfeit capital has been made very emphatic by our sister state of South Dakota, in dealing with the Milwaukee railway. As showing the railway plan of having one valuation for basing freight and passenger rates on, and another for taxation, this case is worth noting. The valuation for taxation for 1897 was on an average of $2,300 per mile. The people claimed that the company's rates should be based on such approximation value, but the company claimed that its value for such basing rates was much greater, not less than $19,000 per mile, being the actual cost.

Judge Garland, to whom the case came on appeal, after hearing all the facts fixed $10,000,000 as the value of all the company's lines in the state. The mileage being 1,100, this was a little under $10,000 per mile. The company appealed to the United States supreme court. This was last year.

This year the Populist governor, Lee, led the people in their effort to have the valuation of the company for taxation raised, and used the same showing the company had made in the former case to fix its valuation at from $15,000 to $10,000 per mile. The company resisted claiming that valuation was far too high. Gov. Lee and the people only asked that the valuation be made an average of $5,000 per mile. As in the Lowry case in Minnesota, the company made up in New Jersey, for it paid [illegible] under the New Jersey laws, [illegible].36 for 1897.

There is no assessment on the valuable franchise for Minneapolis, and but $300,000 in St. Paul, though the franchise has got two generations to run!

It is but an incident that the Twin City company was upheld by the Republican board, by what means is best known to itself, and the assessment remains based on a valuation of $1,426,695 for both Hennepin and Ramsey counties, and that its reports showed that it had a cash surplus of $220,170 for the year 1894, $258,479 for 1895, $299,998 for 1896 and $235,133 for 1897, or a total of $1,013,780 for the four years, which has also escaped the assessor, either as money in bank or elsewhere. The point sought is that had sufficient "pull" with the Republican board and the people were defeated. The valuation for taxation remains at $2,300 per mile. But in fact, the capitalization of the company is $40,000 PER MILE, ON WHICH ITS PREVAILING RATES FOR FREIGHT AND PASSENGERS ARE EARNING THE REGULAR RATE OF INTEREST.

Railway vs. Farm Taxation.

Hon. S. M. Owen has publicly called attention to a circular recently issued by certain railway interests on this subject, stating that the railways in 1897 paid the enormous sum of $43,000,000 in taxes in the United States, or nearly one-half of the total income available for dividends. The national census of 1890 showed that but 39 per cent of the real value of property was taxed in that year, and the average rate of taxation was 1.85 per cent. At this rate the railroads, to pay taxes as other people do, would have paid 1.85 per cent on $4,680,000,000, or $86,580,000, which is twice the sum they claim to have paid. The farmers of the United States paid in the same year $116,365,000 of taxes, OR NEARLY THREE TIMES THE TOTAL PAID BY ALL THE RAILROADS. AND YET THE TOTAL VALUE OF ALL FARMS IS BUT TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT MORE THAN ALL THE RAILROADS.

A farmer in the southwestern part of the state thus puts the case:

"While in town to-day my merchant told me that three thousand farmers in this locality raised an average of 1,000 bushels of grain last season, or a total of 3,000,000 bushels, which cost them an average of 9 cents a bushel to get to market, or $270,000 for the entire crop, and as it was carried on railways capitalized for over three times their real cost, we were mulct to the tune of $180,000. IN OTHER WORDS, HAD THESE ROADS CARRIED OUR GRAIN ON THE BASIS OF THEIR ACTUAL COST WE WOULD HAVE PAID 3 CENTS PER BUSHEL, OR $90,000, INSTEAD OF 9 CENTS, OR $270,000, WHICH WOULD HAVE LEFT US $60 EACH, OR $180,000, THAT WENT INTO THE POCKETS OF PROBABLY NOT MORE THAN SIX MEN. When we contemplate a system like this operating in every other county in the United States, is it any wonder that we are in the midst of mortgaged farms, carpetless, curtainless and bookless homes? I OFTEN WONDER HOW MANY FARMERS ACTUALLY SEE WHAT VICTIMS THEY ARE TO IMAGINARY CAPITAL. One thing is certain: votes indicate that a good many of them don't see it."

Another thing is certain, and that is that thousands are seeing the point who have not seen it before, and nothing has opened their eyes more than the Steenerson rate case and what has recently been seen in the Twin City case.

Things to Remember.

A statistician, estimating the wheat yield of Minnesota and the two Dakotas for 1898 at 200,000,000 bushels, says its transportation to market over over-capitalized railways will cost the growers over $20,000,000, of which $13,000,000 goes to pay interest and dividends on counterfeit capital. What patient, uncomplaining farmers, indeed.

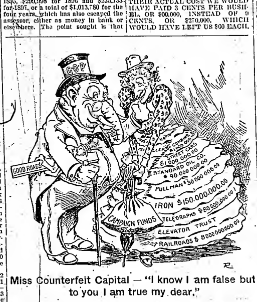
THE DEMOCRATIC AND PEOPLE'S PARTIES OF MINNESOTA STAND AS THE DEFENDERS OF ONE HUNDRED-CENT DOLLARS, BUT ARE OPPOSED TO TAXING MUSCLE, BLOOD, BONE AND BRAINS TO PAY INTEREST ON THE MILLIONS OF NO-CENT DOLLARS CREATED BY THE RAILWAYS OF THE STATE.

Farmers and others who like to toil and sweat and sweat and toil in the interest of the holders of bonds and mortgages which represent imaginary values only should keep right on voting the Republican ticket.

The man who counterfeits a genuine dollar three times is a criminal, but he who counterfeits railway stocks in the same proportion, for the "dear people" to pay tribute to, is a genius.

To contemplate, when paying 90 cents for a railway ticket, that 60 cents of it goes to pay interest on counterfeit capital and 30 cents to real capital does not tend to lift the eyebrows and raise the corners of the mouth.

Organize, incorporate, secure a franchise (monopoly). Invest one good, genuine dollar, capitalize it up to four dollars—by creating three imaginary (counterfeit) dollars—and you have all the requisites to become a modern corporation magnate and to "prosper" under the Republican system of legislation, which fosters the trust and the combine while destroying the small dealer and pauperizing the producer.



Miss Counterfeit Capital — "I know I am false but to you I am true my dear."

"Do you really think you love my daughter as a husband should?"

"Love her? Why, I would give up my bicycle for her."

STAND UP, EUSTIS.

AND TELL THE PEOPLE SOMETHING ABOUT STATE ISSUES.

The Republican Candidate Touched on the Legislature of 1891, But There Is Lots More for Him to Mention.

To Mr. Eustis' single and only reference to state issues, in his opening campaign essay, to-wit: touching on the Alliance or fusion legislature of 1891, in which Mr. Eustis charged the raising of the tax levy, which is being also prated on by Republican "reformers" like Jackson, of Lac qui Parle, Hon. A. T. Ankeny has published in the St. Paul Globe a stinging reply.

In his statement, says Mr. Ankeny, Mr. Eustis, either wittingly or unwittingly, perpetrated a gross fraud, in suppressing the real facts. Under the long Republican administration and growth of the state the needs had become very pressing. That provided $215,000 for a hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls; $105,000 for the soldiers' home at Minnehaha; $75,000 for the institute for defectives at Faribault; $215,000 for material and machinery for manufacturing twine, tubs and pails at Stillwater, and $80,000 for new buildings at the state university at Minneapolis. Here are appropriations, new and extras, amounting to nearly $700,000, and every one of them for objects the most worthy. Five-tenths of a mill on the assessed valuation of the state, of about $600,000,000, produced about $300,000. Yet that legislature was enabled, by that small increase in the tax levy, to give the people of Minnesota all these worthy improvements, costing more than twice that sum.

Deserves Highest Credit.

Had the legislature failed, as its predecessors had failed before, to provide them, it would, indeed have been worthy of the censure which is now attempted to be placed upon it. Instead thereof, it has received, and is entitled to receive the highest credit therfor. At that time the house consisted of forty-seven Republicans, forty-six Democrats and twenty-three Alliance men. The latter held the balance of power. It is true the Democrats and Alliance men joined in the selection of a chaplain and speaker, but upon many matters of legislation the Alliance men as often joined with the Republicans as with the Democrats. In fact, the Republicans generally voted for the general appropriation bill, while some of the Democrats opposed it. It was carried by the votes of the Alliance men, and to their credit.

Besides providing for the binding twine factory, which the Republicans have so mismanaged as to well-nigh defeat its object, that same legislature gave to the State of Minnesota such laws as the anti-Pinkerton law, the summer schools, the anti-trust law, and many others. In fact, it stands, and must ever stand, as one of the best legislatures in the state's history. For a man in the position of Mr. Eustis to attempt, at this late day, to make political capital out of an act which provided for the poor and unfortunate, as well as for higher education and the reformatory interests, is an act which deserves and should receive the condemnation of every honest man.

Chance for Eustis.

Let Mr. Eustis continue to give some attention to the interests of the suffering and ring-ridden state. He will find plenty of matter to engage his attention. Let him quit treating about the blessings of a high protective tariff and the banker's sound money. Let him leave the Philippines and come nearer home. What has he to say on the all-important charges which the reform platforms bring against his party for its strict, long and oppressive misrule? What about the fact that in the forty years of such rule, the railroads have managed to get control of over 20,000,000 acres of public lands? That the vast and splendid forests of pine timber have been squandered without a pretense of their value? That a single mine, now owned by Rockefeller and Carnegie, and worth fully $20,000,000, was wrongfully permitted to be taken from the public school fund? That this one iron mine is worth more than has ever been received from the sale and sacrifice of 1,500,000 acres of school lands. That a public school fund, in itself worth fully $50,000,000, has been so mismanaged that not over one-half that sum will ever be realized? That, until the late decision of the supreme court, vast areas of unused railroad lands were allowed to remain without taxation, while the burden was thus being made more oppressive to the farmers? That, until the decision by the same court in the Steenerson case, our shippers, merchants and producers were obliged to pay freight based on extravagant construction and watered stock? That, until stopped by a Democratic auditor, in 1894, the railroad companies were allowed to make their own selection of the swamp lands, which had been generously donated to them by the Republican legislatures? That all over the state the cry has gone up, long and loud, against the infamous robbery in the inspection of grain and the charges for elevator and warehouse service?

More of Them, Mr. Eustis.

That our banking institutions, in a time of panic, were allowed to go uninspected, and thus rob depositors and blacken the character and good name of the state? That a "political machine," run by exorbitant exaction in the shape of official fees, has set up after another, and knocked down one administration after another, and now seeks to inflict upon the people a new gang? That, in short, every way, this grand old party, while shouting for the flag, has succeeded, by means the most damnable, in retarding the growth and prosperity of the state and inflicting upon its people evils which can no longer be borne?

But few wives who drive their husbands to drink have to use whips.

WEDNESDAY, NOV., 2, 1898.

A Bat With a Beak.

The wise one was explaining to the other that the bat cannot see in the daytime. It was in the basement of a butter, eggs and chicken place on Washington street.

"You see," he said, as he stuck his finger close to the wide open eyes of the bat, "he can't see a thing. Now watch."

He jabbed his finger into the eyeball of the unsuspecting little victim, which at once threw up its wings and hopped to the farther end of the perch.

But the wise man was not satisfied. He wanted to demonstrate his knowledge still further.

"No, he can't see a bit," he said, jabbing his finger the second time into the staring eye.

"See," he said, as he repeated his demonstration.

The bat in the meantime was flapping its wings excitedly and trying to grope its way to safety.

"That's a peculiar thing about owls and bats," the wise one went on, "that they can see only in the nighttime. Now, you just watch for yourself." Again he tortured the frightened night bird.

By this time the worm turned. The bat fought back, and by a quick movement caught the torturing finger in its beak. The wise man jerked his hand away, and with a loud "Ouch!" put the digit into his own mouth to suck the blood.

"Yes, I see," said his friend.—Chicago Journal.

French Local Papers.

The French local papers are the merest rags, conducted in many cases by people who appear to be totally ignorant of everything that goes on outside their own department. The result is that the most extraordinary statements appear. In a paper local to the Riviera there once appeared the announcement:

"Cowardly attempt on the life of a president. Mr. Jamesson has been arrested for the attempted assassination of M. Johannes Burg, the president of the Transvaal republic." This was at the time of the Jameson raid.

This same paper recently noted the arrival of "Lady Killarny" on the Riviera and added that "Lady Killarney" was a daughter of the Prince of Wales who had married an Irish nobleman of high rank and had been obliged to renounce all her royal rights in order to do so. This was why she did not go to the same place as the queen or the Princess of Wales. "Lady Killarney" was the Duchess of York.

Another French local paper of equal standing once announced that "Lord Balfour, president of the Liberator club and son-in-law of Lord Salisbury," had been imprisoned by "Sir Gladstone" in the Tower of London.—London Graphic.

Swallowing Salt Water.

One of the most beneficial features of a sea bath is the salt water inadvertently swallowed by bathers. It is a wonderful tonic for the liver, stomach and kidneys. In many cases it will cure biliousness when all drug preparations have failed. It is peculiarly effective in ordinary cases of indigestion, disordered stomach and insomnia, and has been known to produce excellent results in many cases of dyspepsia.

Clean sea water is full of tonic and sedative properties. It won't hurt anybody. Indeed, two or three big swallows of it would be of positive benefit to nine bathers out of ten. It is not of course a palatable or tempting dose to take, but neither is quinine nor calomel. You seldom if ever see an old sailor who is bilious or dyspeptic or a victim to insomnia, and why? For the reason that an ocean of good medicine spreads all about his sky, and he doses himself copiously with it whenever his physical mechanism becomes the least bit deranged.—Washington Star.

The Humidity Meter.

The amount of moisture present or the humidity of the air is determined by a comparison of dry and wet bulb thermometers. They are both ordinary thermometers, but the bulb of the latter is covered with muslin that is wet. In the latest form of instrument the thermometers are mounted on arms carried by a shaft that is rotated by a crank which is geared to the shaft. The motion of the shaft rotates the thermometers in vertical planes and causes the water in the muslin to evaporate more or less rapidly, according to the amount of moisture in the air. This evaporation lowers the temperature of the thermometer, and from tables constructed after long experiments the degree of moisture can be determined by the difference in temperature between the two thermometers.—E. J. Prindle in Popular Science.

Washing In Hard Water.

It is difficult to wash our hands clean with hard water, because the soda of the soap combines with the sulphuric acid of the hard water and the oil of the soap with the lime and floats in flakes on the top of the water. Sulphate of lime consists of sulphuric acid and lime. It is difficult to wash in salt water because it contains muriatic acid, and the soda of soap combines with the muriatic acid of the salt water and produces a cloudiness.

He Knew Later.

"It is a pretty name," the impressionable traveler murmured. "But tell me, why do they call you Manita?"

There was an arch smile on the savage maiden's face.

A SPANISH BRAVADO.

REVOLTING SCENE PICTURED BY A CASTILIAN NOVELIST.

A Striking Description of the Daring and Courage Displayed by the Retired General Who Would Not Permit an Englishman to Outdo Him.

The realistic Spanish novelist, Valdes, in one of his most popular stories ("Sister San Suplice," translated by Nathan Haskell Dole) gives a description of a retired Spanish general's afternoon out which will illuminate many chivalric incidents in Spanish life and aptly illustrates the reckless daring and courage of which the average haughty don is liberally possessed. The scene is a sort of picnic grounds in the outskirts of Seville:

"Meantime the animation had been on the increase among the ruffians. The period of unmannerly action had come. One of them climbed upon the table to make a speech, and the others, by way of applause, threw sherry and manzanilla in his face. Another was trying to lift with his teeth a companion whom drunkenness had stretched out on the floor. He did not succeed. He merely tore his sack coat. Still others were committing absurd and extravagant actions, making a great noise and uproar.

"The count remained grave and silent, drinking one glass of sherry after another. But his eyes were no longer, as usual, incomprehensible and unfathomable, like those of a man tired of life. Though he did not speak or move about he seemed a different man.

"The Englishman had taken off his jacket and waistcoat, and, rolling up his shirt sleeves, was exhibiting his biceps, which were really powerful, and trying to break empty bottles on his arm. Once blood had come, but he went on breaking the bottles without paying any attention to it. Then he asked the waiter to bring a bottle of rum and a large glass. He filled this to the brim with the liquor, and then slowly, without moving a muscle or even winking, he drained it to the bottom. Then he sat down at the table opposite the count and said solemnly:

"'You can't do that.'

"A flash of fury gleamed through the harebrained nobleman's eyes, but he succeeded in restraining himself, and, turning the rest of the bottle into the glass, he calmly ordered the waiter to bring him some pepper. He threw in a pinch of it, then threw into it his cigar ashes heaped up before him, and, without saying a word, with the same scornful, contemptuous smile, drained the glass, and, not content with that, bit it in pieces. We saw his lips spotted with blood. The company received with oles and shouts of triumph this proof of an unconquerable stomach, in which it seemed as though the national honor were concerned.

"Our neighbors in the other booths must have reached the same happy grade of temperature, for nothing was heard but extravagant shouts, the crashing of glasses, coarse laughter and swearing.

"The count was not yet satisfied with his victory over the Englishman. While he was swallowing with apparent calmness the glasses of liquor which were offered to him he did not cease to devour him with his eyes, carried away by a dull madness, which soon broke out. His eyes, which were the only part of his impassive face that moved, gleamed more and more ferociously, like those of a madman when a straitjacket has been put on him. The Englishman continued to boast of his strength. He was now thoroughly intoxicated and talking impudently enough to the others, who were not so drunk.

"'So you are very valiant, are you?' asked the count, still smiling disdainfully.

"'More than you,' retorted the Englishman.

"Don Jenaro started to spring at him, but the others restrained him. Soon calming himself, he said:

"'If you are so brave, why not put your hand on the table?'

"'What for?'

"'To pin it down with mine.'

"The Englishman, without an instant's hesitation, stretched out his huge, brawny hand. The count took out of his pocket a damaskeened dagger and laid his delicate, gentlemanly hand on the Englishman's, and without hesitation and with a ferocious grip he raised the point with the other and drove it through both into the table.

"The women uttered a cry of terror. All of us men ran to their assistance. A few left the place in search of help. In an instant our booth was filled with blood. From the wounds great drops of blood streamed, staining the handkerchiefs which we applied to them.

"A doctor who happened to be among the bystanders dressed the wounds provisionally with the few means at his disposal. The count smiled while they were dressing his hand. The Englishman was as sick as a horse and vomiting. Soon the count was doing the same, and both were taken to such rooms as the establishment had to offer and went to bed. Every one left, commenting on the barbarism of the deed."

If She Were a Man.

"Oh," she suddenly exclaimed, "I wish I were a man."

"What would you do?" he asked.

"I'll not say what I would do, but there is one thing I will confess that I wouldn't do."

"And that is?"

"I wouldn't sit around as if I had handcuffs on when I happened to be alone with a girl."—Cleveland Leader.

FOR GOVERNOR

Fifty-Three Elevator Companies Working For W. H. Eustis Looks Bad.

You Are in a Position to Have These Men Side-Tracked. Vote For Lind.

W. H. Eustis, the republican candidate for governor has fifty-three elevator companies working for him and they were instrumental in securing his nomination. What their object was, we will not say, but leave that part to the farmers. Are the elevator companies working in the interest of the farmers? Again we leave this question to the farmers, as they are better judges in this respect than we are. Two-thirds of these companies have offices in the Corn and Flour Exchange building owned by William H. Eustis and located in Minneapolis. Following is a list.

Peavey Elevator Co.
J. Q. Adams.
Barnum Grain Co.
Belt Line Elevator Co.
Central Elevator Co.
Duluth Elevator Co.
Dunwoody Grain Co.
Globe Elevator Co.

E. S. Woodworth & Co.
Cunningham & Crosby.
W. O. Dodge & Co.
J. E. & W. L. Luce.
O. F. Moulton.
Tromanhauser Bros., Elevator builders.

The following elevator companies have representatives in Hennepin county delegation, which voted as a unit for the nomination of William Henry Eustis at the Republican State Convention, St. Paul:

F. H. Peavey & Co
Charles Pillsbury & Co.
Minneapolis Mill Co.
St. Anthony & Dakota Elevator Co.
Minneapolis & Northern Elevator Co.
Van Dusen-Harrison Grain Co.
Peavey Elevator Co.
Dunwoody Grain Co.
St. Paul & Kansas Grain Co.
St. Anthony Elevator Co.
Pillsbury Flour Mill.
Empire Elevator Co.
Atlantic Elevator Co.
Monarch Elevator Co.
Central Elevator Co.
Globe Elevator Co
Interior Elevator Co.
Republic Elevator Co.
O. F. Moulton.
Tromanhauser Bros., Elevator builders.

Do you for one moment believe that these men whose whole interest is in keeping the matter of grain grading and inspection where it is, will allow Mr. Eustis to fulfil any promise he has made for your emancipation from the evils of the grading system?

A vote for Eustis means that you do. A vote for Eustis means that nearly one quarter of every crop you raise will be sacrificed to the rapacity of these ghouls of the graveyards of the farmers hopes of prosperity.

Life In Colorado.

A person in this country no sooner gets through shoveling coal and carrying out the ashes than he has to sprinkle his grass and push the lawn mower. The more coal he shovels the more ashes he carries, and the more water he squirts the harder he has to push the lawn mower. It is ever thus.—Longmont (Colo.) Ledger.

What She Was Doing.

"You see, Phyllis had to stop to fix her hair"—

"Arrange, child; not fix. Fix means to make fast."

"Well, that's what she was doing. It was coming loose."—Indianapolis Journal.

The Recruit's Religion.

Captain Philip Trevor begins a paper in The Nineteenth Century on "The Catholicism of the British Army" as follows:

"What's yer religious persuasion?" said the sergeant to the recruit.

"My what?"

"Yer what? Why, what I said. What's yer after o' Sundays?"

"Rabbits mostly."

"'Ere, stow that lip. Come, now, chu'ch, chapel or 'oly Roman?"

And after explanation from his questioner the recruit replied: "I ain't nowise perticler. Put me down chu'ch o' England, sergeant. I'll go with the band."

Accounting For the Size of a Fee.

"It strikes me, Mr. Brief," said Mr. Dogway, "that your charge of $750 for this opinion is pretty steep."

"No doubt," said Mr. Brief. "But you see, Dogway, when you come and ask me for an opinion which violates all my convictions you've got to pay not only for your law, but for my conscience."—Harper's Bazar.

The Place For the Repentant.

They had eloped and returned for the parental blessing.

"Father," the beautiful young woman said, "we are sorry for what we have done. Will you"—

"Then," the stern old man interrupted, "why don't you go to the lawyer around the corner? I'm no divorce court."—Chicago News.

One Consolation.

There is one consolation in being on the shady side of life. When a man gets to be 60 years or so and he says of a young woman, "Confound it, if I wasn't married already I'd marry the girl myself," he serenely believes she would have him. This is as good as getting her, better perhaps.—Boston Transcript.

What Prominent Lawyers say About Judge Ives.

The following circular, signed by the most prominent lawyers of Crookston, representing all shades of political faith is published with their consent, and should effectually silence the opponents of Judge Ives, in their attack on his fitness for District Judge.

To the electors and all persons interested in the 14th Judicial District of Minnesota:

In a circular signed by John Vig, L. E. Gossman and Ole J. Vaule as "Independent Judicial Committee for Polk County," the Hon. Frank Ives, Judge of the District Court, is charged with physical and mental weakness, caused by old age, and that for these reasons he is unfit to occupy his present position. The undersigned attorneys having practiced for many years before Judge Ives court, hereby certify that the above charge is not true. We know that Judge Ives has done his work more promptly than it has ever been done in this district before. We believe Judge Ives is to day as strong and healthy, both in mind and body, as he was when first elected to the position he now holds. This statement is made by us regardless of our personal preference between the two candidates for judge and solely in the interest of justice and fairness.

An Arizona Hair Cut.

"Doesn't it disturb you when they have a shooting scrape next door?" asked the tenderfoot who was undergoing an Arizona hair cut.

"Disturb nothin!" answered the barber. "It gener'ly makes it easier."

At this juncture the shooting began at Red Mike's saloon next door. The tenderfoot's hair rose on end, and the barber trimmed it as expeditiously as if he were shearing a hedgehog.—Chicago Tribune.

Before our next issue the election will bs over.

Saturday was a disagreeable day—rain, snow and sleet.

A vote for P. M. Ringdol means to better your eonditions.

Try a luneh, a meal or a weeks hoord at the Ideal Luneh Room.

O. W. Brink was at tho county seat last Friday on legal business.

Go to the new drug store for your school supplies and stotionary.

Horry E. Ives returned home to day from a few days trip in Beltrami county.

Mrs. W. A. Arthur and son were visiting friends at Crookston last week.

Miss Mey Halvorson returned Mondoy from o weeks visit with friends at Crookston.

Read this paper over carefully os it will be two years before another state election oceurs.

For a reliable blood purafier try the Imperial Sarsaparilla for sale at tho new Drug Store.

Vote for Harry E. Ives, he is an easy winner—it is just a questioa of mojority—let it be a big one.

Any one wanting hard eool should leave orders with H. J. Freeman this week. Cheoper than ever before.

Girls and boys keep your eyes pealed for Santa Clous this year he will hove his head quarters et the new Drug Store.

Farmers! weigh carefully your vote and vote to help your own conditions. Think the motter over seriously and you eannot go astray.

Mondays train was about three hours late and all on accouat of hauling up forty-one cars—few of them being loaded down with freight.

If you ere troubled with eold and cough buy a bottle of the Imperial eough syrup and ha happy. For sale at tho new Drug Store.

The season for killing deer, moose and carribeau opened yesterday. St. Hiloire has two nimrods who ore now locoted on the "runwoys."

Havo your ticket studied over carefully before you go into the booth—and then vote to your own interest—good government—reform.

—The SPECTATOR is the official paper of the village aad county. Now is the time to subscribe. $1.00 per year if poid in odvence—otherwise $1.50.

The SPECTATOR urges upon its reoders not to pey eny attention to charges egainst any man, printed for the first tima between now and election day.

Vote for Frank Ives if you went a fair and honest judicial officer. Just take into consideration the gang that is working for Watts—you know a few of them.

The Imperial Drug Co., has a fine line of clocks that must be closed out by Nov. 15th to make room for a new line of holiday goods. Every clock guaranteed.

Chief clerk of the Chippewa estimating corpse, Paul S. Ware, now stationed at Brainerd, passed through here today enroute to Thief River Falls where he will remeln to cast his vote.

The SPECTATOR will take cord wood on subscription—e good way for some to settle their accounts, ond others can come oround and saw the same and we will give them credit for same.

Pay no attention whatever to the sayings of the gang known as the Montague, Gossman, Vigend Vaule. They are simply tools working for salary. They are in dirty law business.

Now is tha proper time to pay the printer. Please remember this as we have use of money once in a while too and this is supposed to be harvest time with us. Up to date our crop has almost been a total failure.

There is going to be s landslide next Tuesday ond the republican party will be snowed under. Everybody entitled to a vote turn out ond moke the job complete.

This campaign has sprouted a few tin-horn politicans. Perhaps two years hence thoy will come out ond work over and obove boord—which they are not doing now.

There is nobody better qualified to pass judgement as to the ability of Harry E. Ives than the people who havo resided here for the past fifteen years. Yet F. M. Eddy had tho nerve to dietate to them.

At a sociol and auction given by the Swedish Luthern Church in tho town of Wyendotte last Thursday evening over $200 was raised to be applied on the new church building which they aro ereeting on Water Street. Chas. Fellman was the auctioneer.

—If you ore in need of a pair of glasses J. Q. Adams will fix you out on his next trip to St. Hilaire which will be Nov. 12th 13th and 14th. If you havo a watch or clock that needs repairing or cleaning leave it ot Johnson's drug store and that will be attendedto.

Now is the time to get the SPECTATOR. Official county and village paper.☜

The Bank of St. Hilaire.

Tho new bank opened its doors for business on Monday morning and it will undoubtedly prove e substantial and useful additioo to the business interests of St. Hilaire. The people of this town hevo lobored under a greot disodvantage in having to tronsact their banking business in surrounding towns and furnishing our rivals with a substontial port of their business. Now however, St. Hilaire will do its own banking business and reap the profits which ligitimately belongs here.

The bank is a neat one story framo building of threa rooms an the corner of 3rd and Broadwoy, focing tho post office, and contains one of the finest steele burglar proof, time lock Hall safes—the weight of which is upwards of ten thousand pounds—and the price of which was $1,800.00.

The resident manager of the bank is Mr. J. K. Hannay, lately of Minneapolis and for 14 years a resident of Huron South Dak. Mr. Hannay is a man of wide business experienee, is a lawyer by profession, having practiced in Illinois and South Dakota, and has been engaged quite extensively in the loaning business for the past twelvo years. Associated with him is Mr. N. B. Bailey at present eoshier of the Bank of Hudson, Wisconsin. We anticipate a good patronage for the Bank of St. Hilaire.

If O. H. Myran had canvassed Red Loke county another week he would not have 100 votes to bis eredit. Ha was ealled upon to meke a speech at tha Eddy meeting in this village a short time ago, and it was rather hard work for him to get up ond say: "Ladies ond gentlemen, I an no speaker" ond at that he politely sat down. What can e mon like that do in the senete? Nothing.

One of the most instructive political speeches we hove ever attended was the one mode at the village holl last Thursday afternoon by Hon. P. M. Ringdal. Ha is a gentleman and a scholar—did not say e word against the republicans but showed up their methods of doing business and taking advontage when opportunity efforded. P. M. Ringdal will be elected to eongress. Vote for him and giva him a rousing majority. Ha is a man thet will work for the interests of the commoa people.

A man in Rockshury township who did not vote for Judge Ives six years ago says of Judge Ives: "The best Judga of 14th Judicial District ever had in integrity, intelligence and sense of justice Judge Ives is ranking heavenly high above the members of tha so-called Independent Judicial Committee of Polk county." He got a hunch of circulers from the Vig-Gossman-Veule Co, and returned them after reading one which thoroughly disgusted him. All honest people would do as this men did. A vote for Judge Ives means turing down this miserable gang.

Notice to Farmers.

For salo by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

We would respectfully call the attention of our readers to tho fact that the men working for the republican candidate for state sonator has these instructions:- "Do all you can for me ond send in your bill for your work rendered." These small bored politicians are working for a salary. Vote for your own interests—pay no attention whot these men say—they are not working for your interest.

Both Sides of The Question.

The Alexandria Post News in a recent issue asks:

What person in the Seventh district ever ploced his personal interests in Congressmon Eddy's hands and did not have them eared for? What homesteader or old soldier ever asked his help at Washington and did not receive it? On what national question has he not voted right? What interest of this district has he neglected? Ho has experience, he is industrious, he is able, he is honest and he will be re-lected.

Wheelock's Weekly, of Fergus Falls, which we wish to say in passing, is a most ably conducted newspaper, and is doing very effective work for the union ticket and reform, in answer, publishes a letter from Robert Miller, editor of tho Jeffersonian Democrat. Washington, D. C., dated September 29th, 1898, addressed to Chas. W. Smith, Fergus Falls, chairman Peoples party county committee of Otter Tail county, and also a member of tho Peoples party congressional committee for the seventh district, which states that he has examined the roll calls of tho house of representatives of tho last session and finds that Congressman Eddy was not present in congress at any timo ofter June 11th. As congress did not edjourn until July 8th, he was therefore absent more than one month. On June 11 Mr. Eddy introduced a bill to pension Mrs. Maria Blaisdell—the Minnesota Blizzard, and then disappeared from the halls of congress. Mr. Miller says the record shows that on ell the important legislation that was passed at the close of the session he did not vote. The important roll calls after that date were as follows:

June 15—Annexation of Hawaii, two roll calls.
June 20—District of Columbia bill.
June 22—District of Columbia bill.
June 23—Bankruptcy bill.
June 29—Authorizing military store keeper.
June 29—For Catholic chopel ot West Point.
June 30—International bank bill.
July 1—Motion to adjourn.
July 6—Pacific R. R. bill.
July 8—Question of privilege.

Mr. Miller also says:

"Eddy from his peculier habits hod but few friends in the house, and wos absolutely worthless except to vote, and that you see, he seldom did."

Editor Wheelock sarcastically comments upon tho showing os follows:

"Perhaps it is better not to vote at all than to voto wrong; but, really, this district has interests which require closer attention than the above would indicate they are getting, particularly when tho congressman is paid something like $15 a day for that sole duty. But we forget Mrs. Blaisdell's pension. The attention paid to that estimablo lady's case will excuse many sins of omission."

Every republican paper in this district has copied the extract from the Alexandria Post News in regard to F. M. Eddy, but not o one has ever made a comment about him heing absent from roll call from June 11th to the end of the session. Why this silenee?

Wo were not ot home last week therefore could not give o generol write-up of the speech made by F. M. Eddy on the 19th ult. But for pure unadulterated gall, he has no peers. He got up and spoke at a family gathering and told them while a certain man in the family was a good jolly fellow—eame right out ond told them not to vote for him. Use your own judgement and vote for a gentleman and seholar—Hon. P. M. Ringdal.

At a meeting of the congregation of the Norwegian Luthern church of this place held last Thursday evening it was desided to build a new church. Over $200 was raised and a committee was appointed to secure o site. They expect to commence building in the near future.

REGAINED HEALTH.

Gratifying Letters to Mrs. Pinkham From Happy Women.

"I Owe You My Life."

Mrs. E. Woolhiser,
Mills, Neb., writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I owe my life to your Vegetable Compound. The doctors said I had consumption and nothing could be done for me. My menstruation had stopped and they said my blood was turning to water. I had several doctors. They all said I could not live. I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me right away; menses returned and I have gained in weight. I have better health than I have had for years. It is wonderful what your Compound has done for me."

"I Feel Like a New Person."

Mrs. Geo. Leach,
1609 Belle St., Alton, Ill., writes:

"Before I began to take your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer from womb trouble. Menses would appear two and three times in a month, causing me to be so weak I could not stand. I could neither sleep nor eat, and looked so badly my friends hardly knew me.

"I took doctor's medicine but did not derive much benefit from it. My druggist gave me one of your little books, and after reading it I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel like a new person. I would not give your Compound for all the doctors' medicine in the world. I can not praise it enough."

"Hendee is very much puffed up over his war record."

"Oh, yes. He comes back a thorough expansionist."—Philadelphia North American.

Only Thirty and Gray

How is this?

Perhaps sleepless nights caused it, or grief, or sickness, or perhaps it was care.

No matter what the cause, you cannot wish to look old at thirty.

Gray hair is starved hair.

The hair bulbs have been deprived of proper food or proper nerve force.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

increases the circulation in the scalp, gives more power to the nerves, supplies missing elements to the hair bulbs.

Used according to directions, gray hair begins to show color in a few days. Soon it has all the softness and richness of youth and the color of early life returns.

Would you like our book on the Hair? We will gladly send it to you.

Write us!

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the Vigor, write the doctor about it. He may be able to suggest something of value to you. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

LIGHTNING AND LYNCH LAW.

How the First Wiped Out the Witness of the Other.

Gazing northward from any train on the Big Four road as it runs across the fertile plains of Benton county, near Templeton Junction, Ind., 100 miles out from Chicago, no observant passenger will fail to see, perhaps half a mile distant from the tracks, the charred and shattered, sharp-pointed stump of what was once a great tree. Around it for a radius of twenty feet are piled old rails and pieces of timber. Well cared for and generally rich with heavy crops is the field in which the tree, one of the few in Benton, which is Indiana's greatest prairie county, flourished. But not so around the blackened trunk. The plowman and all who till the land seem to avoid any familiar proximity to it, and the rude barrier which surrounds it seems to tell that the spot was the scene of some uncanny doing.

And so it was—the scene of the vengeance meted out to the perpetrator of one of the most terrible crimes in Indiana's annals. Sixteen years ago Benton county was not the well-populated and prosperous one it is today. It was a favorite place for Illinois and Indiana hunters to seek when the prairie chicken was plentiful. The wolves of Benton county, and even lions and other ferocious beasts supposed to have lairs there, were used to terrify children, and even some older people. A few years before only had railroads opened up the country.

In 1882 old Mr. Atkinson was one of the most prosperous farmers in Benton. With his wife he went to the nearest town one day late in the fall of that year. They returned home to find their beautiful daughter Ada, 19 years old, dead—murdered and mangled horribly. No clew was left by the murderer, but suspicion fell on Jacob Nelling, a farm hand employed on the Atkinson place. He was arrested, and, despite the fact that no actual evidence could be adduced, so great was the indignation aroused against him that he was hurried overland to Lafayette, Ind., and lodged in the Tippecanoe county jail, which was guarded by troops ordered out by the governor.

While confined there a man who now occupies a responsible position with a leading Chicago hotel was introduced into the jail as a prisoner. He was really an employe of a Chicago detective agency. He gained Nelling's confidence, and to him the latter related his guilt of the murder of Ada Atkinson. Nelling was advised by the lawyer he engaged to go to Benton county and plead guilty, the lawyer promising to follow and make a plea for mercy. Nelling was taken to Fowler, Benton county, on the day before the one set for his trial. Early the next morning his lawyer was waiting in Lafayette to take the train for Fowler, when he received a telegram telling him not to come. "Your client don't need you," it said. Nelling's body was dangling from a limb of the tree not far from the scene of his crime. A mob had broken into the jail a few hours after his arrival there and taken him to the place of vengeance. The tree never flourished after bearing such ghastly fruit. It was dying when a blast of lightning from the heavens struck and shattered it. And the barrier was placed around it, and there the stump remains, an object lesson or warning or whatever it may be.

Didn't Keep It.

"Well, Mr. Slickers," said the doctor to a patient he had not seen the day before, "how are you getting along?" "Nearly starving to death." "Why, didn't you have the oysters?" "No, I couldn't get them the way you said, and I was afraid it would be dangerous to eat them any other way." "Why, that's odd. Couldn't you get stewed oysters easy? I told you you could eat stewed oysters with impunity." "That's just it. I could get the stewed oysters easy enough, but I sent to all the restaurants in the neighborhood for the impunity, and the blamed fools said they never had such a thing on the bill of fare."—New York World.

An Awful Disappointment.

Mrs. Greyneck—Why, Johnny, what makes you feel so bad? Johnny—Boo-hoo! Grandpa fell down on the wet walk and got his clothes all mud. Mrs. Greyneck—I'm so glad, my child, to find you kind-hearted and sympathetic. Johnny—Ye-ye-yes, and sister saw him and I—I didn't.—New York World.

Lace coats are much worn. They are three-quarter length and round in front.

We are to wear velvet this fall, tucked, stitched and strapped, even as though it were cheaper material.

Poppy-red will play a cheerful part in autumn fashions, and a handsome gown is in cherry and white taffetas, trimmed with black velvet ribbon.

Feather boas, like all other popular and too widely adopted favorites, are now being replaced by the white tulle boa covered with large chenille spots, which is proclaimed the last adjunct of the well dressed.

The sheath skirt is vastly improved in Paris, but as yet does not seem to have been grasped by the comprehension of American dressmakers. The whole trouble lies in the fact that under the folds that meet flatly at the back much of the material is concealed which is invisibly folded away. The skimped, "poor" look is done away with in this wise.

Alpaca has been used by the French dressmakers this year much as serge is made up here—it forms the material of the great majority of their dresses. A pink alpaca sent from Paris, in response to an order for "a smart dress for the afternoon," was adorned with a series of graduated tucks, from the deep hem-like footing one to the tiniest pretense of a tuck that was the eleventh and came well above the knee. The bodice, cut off short at the waistline, boasted a double belt—a half Swiss-shaped deep one of guipure and a narrow band of ruby velvet fastened with a paste buckle; the alpaca bodice pouched a little over the belts and was trimmed with a yoke of guipure, under which bands of ruby velvet showed.

A Depth Yet to Be Reached.

"You boast of your greater civilization," exclaimed the Indian, contemptuously.

"Haven't we a right to?"

"No, sir. The Indian has been dragged down by your influence, but he is still your superior. He may drink intoxicating liquor, but he doesn't smash the bottles on the asphalt for bicycles to run over."—Washington Star.

Shall We Keep the Philippines?

While public opinion is divided as to the wisdom of keeping the Philippines, it is, however, all one way in regard to the wisdom of everybody keeping their health. For this purpose Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is widely used. This medicine is both a preventive and cure for malarial fevers and stomach disorders.

As She Understood It.

His Preference.

"I presume," remarked the promoter who had a scheme for benefiting his fellow men by supplying them with a new and improved article of illuminating gas made from air and sunshine, "your platform is sound money?"

There was a slight clinking noise, and the alderman from the 'steenth ward gave a responsive but non-committal sort of cough.

"Well," he replied, "I think I prefer that it should give out as little sound as possible."—Chicago Tribune.

A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS.

From the Mountaineer, Walhalla, N. Dakota.

The remorse of a guilty stomach is what a large majority of the people are suffering with to-day. Dyspepsia is a characteristic American disease and it is frequently stated that "we a nation of dyspeptics."

Improper food, hurried eating, mental worry, exhaustion; any of these produce a lack of vitality in the system, by causing the blood to lose its life-sustaining elements. The blood is the vital element in our lives and should be carefully nurtured. Restore the blood to its proper condition, dyspepsia will vanish and good health follow.

For example, in the county of Pembina, North Dakota, a few miles from Walhalla, resides Mr. Earnest Snider, a man of sterling integrity, whose veracity cannot be doubted. He says:

The Doctors Disagreed.

"I became seriously ill three years ago. The doctor gave me medicine for indigestion, but I continued to become worse. I had several physicians at intervals who gave me some relief, but the disease would return with all its accustomed severity.

"I read in the newspapers articles regarding the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and finally concluded to try the pills. I purchased six boxes. This was five months ago. The first box gave me much relief. I continued taking the pills, and after using four boxes was cured."

These pills are recognized everywhere as a specific for diseases of the blood and nerves. For paralysis, locomotor ataxia, and other diseases long supposed incurable, they have proved their efficacy in thousands of cases.

PITH OF THE NEWS

DIGEST OF THE NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

A Comprehensive Review of the Important Happenings of the Past Week Culled From the Telegraph Reports—The Notable Events at Home and Abroad That Have Attracted Attention.

From Washington.

The American commissioners at Havana have notified the Spaniards that the evacuation must be formally accomplished by Jan. 1.

'The naval bureau favors working on the Colon until it is shown whether or not she can be raised.' It would raise the Reina Mercedes and abandon the Vizcaya and Oquendo.

The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows the total coinage at the United States mints during October to have been $8,600,841, as follows: Gold, $5,180,000; silver, $3,354,191; minor coins, $66,650.

An order has been issued by the war department directing that greater care be taken of the magazines of the various batteries in order to prevent the deterioration of the ammunition by damp. Instructions are given in order to avoid this by a proper method of ventilating.

Foreign.

Count Shigenobu Okuma, the new premier of Japan, began life as a poor boy, and is now a proof that the self-made man can be manufactured even in the despotic East.

Polonski, the celebrated Russian poet, is dead at St. Petersburg. Since the death of Nicholas Nekrasoff, who died in 1877, Polonski had been regarded by literary Russians as their most elegant versifier.

Parisian journals are commenting on the fact that President Faure was seen smoking a cigarette at a Champs Elysees garden party the other day. This makes him the first head of the French republic to smoke.

The Czar has ordered Prince Alexander Oldenburg to depart at once for Asia to supervise the measures which the minister for the interior, M. Goremykine, has set on foot for the relief of sufferers from the pestilence which is raging around Samarcand, Turkestan.

Criminal Record.

A party of boys playing Halloween pranks at Toledo, Ohio, frightened Mrs. William Sagus so badly that she died before help could be got to her.

Frank B. Leefe, convicted, with J. N. Wolfson, of wrecking the Union National Bank, died in the parish prison at New Orleans.

Michael Doty, under arrest at Chicago for polygamy, has been identified as Jacob Adolph Huff of Wheeling, W. Va., suspected of wife murder in 1895.

William P. McElhany, under arrest at Denver, Colo., for the murder of Fred Schroeder, in La Grange, Ill., will be brought back for trial.

The president has appointed John W. Lutz of Ohio consul of the United States in Arica, Chile, and Edward E. Garrett receiver of public moneys in Boise, Idaho.

Clara Dumont was shot through the left breast at Chicago by Paul Vincent, who then shot himself. Vincent is dead and the woman will die.

The murder of a prospector named Botleau, on the Ashcroft-Glenora trail, has been reported to the provincial police at Victoria. The murderer is variously known as T. Wilson, McGregor and McGraw.

Count Leopold de la Boritz was arrested in Chicago for obtaining $8.73 by false pretenses. He then caused the arrest of a teacher of dramatic art and two lawyers, on the charge of attempting to swindle him out of $6,000.

It was definitely announced at the civil service commission that the evidence taken in the recent investigation of charges against the federal officers at Richmond, Va., had not been sustained and no further action is probable.

Rose Laurier, aged twenty-two, and J. E. Cleckner, aged thirty-two, both of Cleveland, walked out to the end of the dock of the Cleveland Yacht club, tied themselves together with strips torn from a bed sheet and jumped into the lake. They were rescued by two Lake Shore detectives.

People Talked About.

The London Daily Mail announces the appointment as governor of Khartum of Col. Kitchener, brother of the sirdar, Gen. Lord Kitchener.

Rev. Dr. Samuel White Duncan died at his home in Brookline, near Boston, from heart disease. He was born in Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 10, 1833.

Miss Mary Hoffman, daughter of United States Judge Ogden Hoffman, has begun a course in the Bellevue hospital, New York, from which she will graduate a professional nurse.

Gen. Wesley Merritt and Mrs. Merritt are still in London. Mrs. Merritt is suffering from typhoid fever. Although her condition is not serious, her sickness will necessitate her remaining here for some time.

C. H. Summers, chief electrician of the Western Union Telegraph company at Chicago, was suddenly seized with heart failure at San Francisco while walking with a friend. He expired in a few minutes.

At the meeting of the Bible society managers of New York Rev. Dr. John Dix was elected corresponding secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Alexander McLean in March last.

John F. Phillips, treasurer of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad, is dead at Chicago of paralysis. Mr. Phillips was born in Brattleboro, Vt., July 14, 1837, and had been connected with the Rock Island road for thirty years.

Western Mining Notes.

The output of ore in the Cripple Creek, Colo., district in October is valued at $1,488,130, the highest for any month in the history of the camp.

On Mount Chapaca, the Golden Zone has struck a body of free gold at a depth of 300 feet, and mill tests are being made with a view to the construction of a mill. The ledge is from six to ten feet wide, and there is ore enough exposed to justify the enterprise.

A number of new strikes have been made in mines in Tintic and elsewhere, in Utah. Chief among these is the Four Aces, where there was a strike of good ore in both drifts from the 750-foot level. Assays give it values of fifty ounces silver, thirty per cent lead and one dollar gold to the ton.

In Northport district, Wash., in the Colville country, the Red Top group, owned by Sutherland & Hayes, has made a strike of gray copper, a shipment from which has given returns of $600 per ton net. It is estimated that there is enough ore in sight to keep the miners busy three years.

Some Denver capitalists are investigating the South Fork of Payette, Idaho, with a view to turning the river below Cherry creek. The Star mine is now marketing smelting ore that carries nearly 3,000 ounces of silver per ton. A plant with a daily capacity of 150 tons will be in operation by January 1st.

The Topeka mine in Central City, Col., continues to cause astonishment. Manager Henry Lowe brought from the mine three pieces of ore weighing about 200 pounds, which showed large streaks of pure gold. These particular specimens will be mounted and exhibited in Denver.

Otherwise.

Gen. Greely, chief signal officer, tells in his report of inventions which promise 3,000 words per minute by cable.

The first test of American Krupp armor was made at Bethlehem, Pa. The plate was not cracked. Russia has ordered a large consignment.

The national convention of wholesale saddlery dealers was held at Cincinnati last week. The next meeting will be held in Boston.

The Newcastle, Pa., wire nail mill shut down on account of a strike of seventy of the helpers against what they believe to be a reduction of wages.

In the Cape Colony assembly W. B. Schriener, the premier, introduced a bill proposing an annual contribution by the colony of £30,000 to the British navy.

Miss Flora Shaw, who is now in the Klondike, is the woman connected with the London Times who was said to have engineered the London end of the Jameson raid.

The first case in Ohio under the bankruptcy law was that of the Lehigh Carriage company of Dayton, O. The liabilities are $115,000 and the assets $65,000.

The First Maine artillery, consisting of four batteries, 450 out of the 519 members and 12 officers, commanded by Maj. F. F. Newcomb, left Augusta for Savannah, Ga.

At Huntsville, Ala., preparation is being made for the troops to spend the winter there. A contract involving an expenditure of $55,000 has been let for the erection of mess halls and sheds.

The affairs of the First National Bank of Lisbon, Ohio, look more promising. The shortage of Child, the missing cashier, will not exceed $40,000. Depositors will be paid in full.

The citizens of Atlanta, Ga., having in charge the arrangements for Atlanta's peace jubilee, have decided upon Dec. 1 and 15 for the big event. President McKinley has signified his intention of being present.

George H. Bonebrake, president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, Cal., and a well known financier, is dead at his home, aged sixty years. He was born in Ohio and was a pioneer of Southern California.

The Massillon Stoneware Company of Massillon, Ohio has voluntarily increased the wages of its employes, restoring the 12 1-2 per cent cut made last winter. The force of employes will also be increased 50 per cent.

Frank Collier of Chicago, who was said to be insane as the result of a blow, underwent an operation upon the brain. Nothing was found and the doctors now diagnose "tumor on the brain."

The Vienna correspondent of the London Standard says that official negotiations are about to be opened between the United States and Turkey to raise their ministers to the rank of ambassadors.

The civil service commission has ordered an investigation of the charges preferred by ex-Gov. Buriel of New Hampshire, against the Republican state committee of New Hampshire for making political assessments upon United States officials in that state.

In the United States circuit court Monday, Judge Hallett will hear a motion for a preliminary injunction to restrain Western railroads from enforcing discriminating rates to the Pacific coast on iron and steel products, in violation of the interstate commerce law.

John H. Mason & Sons, cotton goods manufacturers, have filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy at Providence, R. I. The petition shows that the liabilities amount to $810,000 and the assets to about $300,000, $120,000 in real estate and personal property and $180,000 in accounts.

The revenue cutter Morrill, Capt. Davis, has arrived at Woodsholl, Mass., from Norfolk, bound for Milwaukee via the St. Lawrence river and the great lakes. She will take the place of the Gresham, which came to the coast during the war, and which, owing to her size, cannot return.

The executive committee of the Inter-Collegiate Prohibition association met at Chicago. Buffalo, N. Y., was chosen as the place for the next national convention and oratorical contest.

EXPLOSION IN THE CAPITOL

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT ROOM WRECKED.

Priceless Documents in the Record Room Underneath the Court Room Almost Totally Destroyed—Explosion Shook the Immense Structure to Its Foundations—Fire Followed the Explosion and Much of the Damage Was Caused by Smoke and Water—Valuable Law Library Seriously Damaged—The Loss Will Be Very Heavy.

Washington, Nov. 8. — An explosion and fire at 5:15 o'clock last evening wrecked the supreme court room, and the rooms immediately adjoining it on the main floor of the capitol. The damage is enormous. The entire central eastern part of the great marble pile from the main floor to the subterranean basement, practically in a mass of ruins. The force of the explosion was so heavy that the coping stones on the outer walls, just east of the point where the explosion occurred were bulged out nearly two inches; windows in all that part of the building were blown out and locked doors were forced from their hinges quite a hundred and fifty feet from the scene of it. Fire followed the explosion so quickly as to seem practically simultaneous. The explosion shook the immense structure to its foundations and was heard several squares from the capitol. It occurred in a small room tightly enclosed by heavy stone walls in the subterranean basement immediately below the main entrance to the old capitol building. In this room was a gas meter which is fed from the gas main. Very little gas is used in that part of the building, but at the

the gas had not been turned on at the meter. The meter itself was wrecked. The flames resulting from the explosion darted up the shaft of the elevator, which had been completely destroyed by the force of the explosion, and communicated with the record room of the supreme court, the office of the marshal of the court and the supreme court library. Before the flames could be subdued the priceless documents in the record room had been almost totally destroyed and serious damage had been done in the marshal's office and some minor rooms in the immediate vicinity. The library of the supreme court, located immediately beneath the supreme court room, was badly damaged by fire, smoke and water, practically destroying the great collection of law reference books. The library contains about 20,000 volumes and was used not only by the justices of the supreme court, but by members of congress and lawyers practicing before the supreme court. Justice Harlan said last night that the library was very valuable. Many of the works it contained would, he thought, be Difficult to Replace.

The most serious damage, in the opinion of the justices of the supreme court, is to the records stored in the sub-basement. These include all of the records of the supreme court from 1792 to 1832. The room contains records of cases and opinions rendered by the fathers of the judiciary. Undoubtedly the volumes in this basement are either totally destroyed by fire or so damaged by water and fire as to be utterly worthless. Justice Harlan said that while the loss was irreparable, it was fortunate that the later reports of the court, which were kept in the office of the clerk, on the main floor, were not injured. As documents for reference at this time Justice Harlan thought they were of more value than the documents destroyed. Fortunately the clerk's office was not the least damaged by fire and the explosion did no damage in it except to blow out one window. James McKenna, clerk of the supreme court, expressed the hope that some, at least, of the documents, priceless from the view point of the historian, could be saved.

While many theories are offered as to the cause of the explosion, it seems beyond doubt to have been due to escaping gas.

DAD PLANNED TO MURDER.

A Negro Culprit in Anantago County, Ala., Is Lynched.

Selma, Ala., Nov. 8. — News of a lynching in Anantago county has been received here. Mrs. Streidlock, wife of a merchant and justice of the peace at Jono's Switch, while preparing to retire discovered a negro under her bed. Upon her screaming for aid the man sprang for the door and made his escape, leaving behind a strip of iron with which he intended to do his murderous work. A negro, living near by, was suspected. He was tried and committed to jail. The constable started for Prattville with him, and when a mile from Jone's Switch was met by a crowd who took the negro and swung him to a tree.

Robbed for Years.

Toledo, Nov. 8. — William Beck, a Lake Shore employe, has been arrested for systematically robbing express cars. His house was stored full of silverware, clothing, silks and satins. He confessed that he had been stealing for years. Goods to the value of $5,000 were recovered.

Another G. A. R.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 8.— Saturday night there was a society inaugurated in this city which aims to be for the soldiers who enlisted for the Spanish war what the G. A. R. has been to the Union men. The plan of organization was conceived by Capt. I. H. Daveney.

For a Handsome Synagogue.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 8.—A contract has been closed here for the erection of a Jewish synagogue, to be one of the finest structures of the kind in the West.

SIGN UNDER PROTEST.

Possible Outcome of the Peace Negotiations.

London, Nov. 8.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "Spain will sign the treaty of peace under protest."

Madrid, Nov. 8.—In political circles it is assured that peace will be declared the coming week. An important politician here says in reference to the question of the Philippines that there exists an official note from Spain to the United States in which the former demands recognition of her sovereignty over the islands. At heart Premier Sagasta is glad to get rid of the expense, trouble and drain of his life which the Philippines have continuously been to Spain, and in his mind the future government of the country will have been rendered infinitely more easy when her rebellious colonies have been disposed of.

Papers Called Off.

London, Nov. 8. — The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says: "The semi-official papers have received a hint to stop their attacks upon the Americans. I have good reason to believe, however, that Germany will doff her reserve so soon as the powers seek a share of the spoil in the Philippines.

Germans Are Sore.

London, Nov. 8. — The Berlin correspondent of the Times, after giving extracts from a long and violent article in the Kolnische Zeitung, declaring that the fate of the Philippines cannot be a matter of indifference to Germany, expresses the opinion that such utterances will only stiffen the attitude of the United States.

A BRUTAL MURDER.

Aged Man and Wife Killed for Their Money.

Two Rivers, Wis., Nov. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. John Bahls, aged sixty-five and fifty-six years respectively, were brutally murdered in the village of Mishicott, about ten miles northwest of here, some time last night. Mr. Bahls was killed in his barn and his wife was slain in their cottage. The faces of the victims were hacked to pieces with an ax. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive. Ernest Messmann, a laborer who had worked about the village and who had been allowed at times to sleep in the barn, has been arrested on suspicion of having committed the crime.

Good Stock Business.

Pierre, S. D., Nov. 8. — The cattle shipping season is practically over for this part of the country this year and about the average number have gone out from this city, while the country for sixty miles east of here has greatly exceeded shipments of past years. Five hundred cars went from this point alone, and probably as many more from the small stations for sixty miles east of here. Blunt, Highmore and Miller have all been heavy shipping points this season, while many have gone from the smaller stations.

Dying of Diphtheria.

Lisbon, N. D., Nov. 8.—One of the most distressing cases of diphtheria has just been unearthed in the northwestern part of the county, a whole family, consisting of father, mother, five children and the hired man being down with the disease and practically dying for want of care. A three-year-old child has died.

Navigation Closed.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 8.—The season of navigation on the Mississippi has closed here, and all boats with headquarters here will go into winter quarters. The Bart E. Linehan, Sam Atlee and Inverness have gone into quarters in Black river. The Mountain Belle will also winter here.

Killed the Coachman.

St. Paul, Nov. 8.—A switch engine and a box car ran into the carriage of Theodore Hamm last night at the University avenue crossing, near Minneapolis, killing the coachman, Fred Graham, and injuring Mr. Hamm and his nephew, William Hamm.

Strange Suicide.

New Hampton, Iowa, Nov. 8.—John Clary, a well-to-do and much respected citizen of this county, who lives near Boyd, four miles south of this city, cut his throat with a razor and died half an hour later. No cause can be assigned for the deed.

Mine Shipments Begun.

Biwabik, Minn., Nov. 8. — The Etha mine has commenced shipments and will continue the balance of the season. The company will make repairs and erect a number of buildings this winter. It expects to be a heavy shipper next season.

Stole a Horse.

Elroy, Wis., Nov. 8.—P. H. King, canvasser for a portrait house, is wanted at Necedah for horse stealing and jumping a board bill. No trace of him has yet been found.

Killed in a Runaway.

Pierre, S. D., Nov. 8.—The remains of Elba Patterson, a ranchman who was killed in a runaway out on the range, were brought here for interment.

Paying off the Twelfth.

New Ulm, Minn., Nov. 8.—Paymaster Cumming is here and the Twelfth is being paid off and given their discharges.

American Marines at Peking.

Peking, Nov. 8.—The force directed to protect the United States legation has arrived.

Lumber Mill Destroyed.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 8.—The Benoit Lumber company's mill at Benoit, about twenty-five miles from here on the Omaha road, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $10,000. The fire caught from sparks from the planing mill.

Staples Goes to Prison.

Washburn, Wis., Nov. 8.—The jury in the Staples case returned a verdict of guilty and Judge Fish sentenced him to eighteen months in the penitentiary. He is the present member of the legislature.

LAST OF THE MARIA TERESA

GOES TO THE BOTTOM IN A VIOLENT STORM.

The Spanish Cruiser Which Naval Constructor Hobson Successfully Raised at Santiago Succumbs to a Gale After Battling With It All Day—The Crew Was Rescued by the Tug Merritt—No Lives Were Lost—The Ill-Fated Cruiser Lies in About Three Miles of Water.

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 8.—The ocean tug Merritt put into Charleston Saturday for supplies. She reported the loss of the cruiser Maria Teresa, raised by Constructor Hobson recently off San Salvador, off the Bahamas, Nov. 1, in the midst of a furious storm.

The cruiser left Caimanera, Cuba, on the morning of Oct. 30, in tow for New York. She had already passed Cape Maysi and started northward around the Bahamas. A furious storm, warning of which had already been sent out, overtook her, and in her condition she was unable to weather the gale. The strain opened rents in her hull which had been patched to enable her to make the journey, and she began to fill rapidly. The Merritt took off Capt. Harris and the crew from the sinking ship and she soon went down. The Merritt brought the captain and 136 men, who will proceed North by rail. No lives were lost as far as known.

Washington, Nov. 8. — The news of the loss of the Spanish cruiser came to the navy department in a telegraph dispatch from Lieut. Commander Harris. Secretary Long being temporarily absent from the department the officials of the navigation bureau, acting under a strict construction of official etiquette, refused to make the dispatch public until the secretary had given his consent. When finally published the dispatch read as follows:

"Arrived here last night in steamer Merritt, with all of the crew of the Infanta Maria Teresa, abandoned in heavy northeaster Nov. 1, thirty miles north of San Salvador. Have fifty-eight enlisted men. —Harris."

Upon the receipt of the news the naval officers attached to the navigation bureau immediately consulted the charts to locate the scene of the disaster. The first glance satisfied them that the last had been seen of the ill-fated Maria Teresa. As near as they could calculate the vessel lies in about 2,600 fathoms of water, or nearly three miles. The location is 24 deg. north latitude by 74.30 west longitude, about 235 miles distant from Nassau. At the time the Teresa sunk she was about 310 miles from Caimanera, the port from which she started a little over two days before.

YELLOW FEVER.

Americans Are Alarmed by the Situation in Havana.

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 8.—The yellow fever situation here is causing great anxiety among the American officials. The increasing number of cases, a majority of which are of a serious nature, has alarmed the entire American colony, and the announcement of two more cases caused the alarm to develop almost the character of a panic. The disease is apparently spreading rapidly and is not confined to the Vedado district, where Captains Foraker and Heebe were stricken.

Chief Clerk Caldwell, of the quartermaster's department, was seen and examined by Dr. Laine. The doctor declared his disease yellow fever and ordered his removal and isolation in a building near the trocha. A clerk named Stewart, of the quartermaster's department, has been ill since Wednesday last. His case was also diagnosed as yellow fever, and he was removed to the same place.

BRITONS WARLIKE.

Would Rather Fight Now Than Any Other Time.

London, Nov. 8.—A majority of the people here have been convinced that war between Great Britain and France is inevitable sooner or later, and many expressions of regret were heard at the military and other clubs that the conflict apparently is not to take place in the near future, as it is the general belief that the army and navy are in a perfect state of preparedness. The general feeling in the country is such as would indorse any warlike action on the part of the government. In any case work at the arsenals and dockyards actively and vigorously continues. All the officers have strict orders not to talk.

WITH FIRM HAND.

British Admiral Teaches a Turkish Officer a Lesson in Obedience.

Candia, Island of Crete, Nov. 8. — Rear Admiral Gerard Henry Noel, British commander in these waters, yesterday ordered the Turkish troops, whose embarkation was detained by order from Constantinople, to embark on a British transport. The soldiers proceeded to obey, but the Turkish officer in command stopped the embarkation, whereupon the British admiral caused the barracks to be surrounded and declared the Turks prisoners. He also threatened to use force to compel them to embark. The Turkish commanding officer then allowed the embarkation to proceed.

Swindler Captured.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Wilhelm Lodtman, once a wealthy lumber dealer of Bohemia, and later a lieutenant in the German army, is under arrest in this city charged with swindling. He admits passing worthless checks.

An Editor Badly Injured.

Grantsburg, Wis., Nov. 8.—William Hoffstead, editor of the Sentinel, was in a runaway and was seriously injured. The amputation of his right leg was anticipated, but it is hoped the limb can be saved.

REAL TRAGEDY IN A THEATER.

Fifteen or More Men Killed by the Collapse of an Unfinished Theater Building.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—The new five-story Wonderland theater building is in a state of collapse and fifteen or more lives have been sacrificed by an accident which occurred here yesterday afternoon. Shortly before 2 o'clock, while some thirty-five men were at work in various parts of the unfinished theater portion of the structure, the roof fell in without a second's warning. Nearly every workman was carried down into the theater pit. The top gallery was crushed down upon the lower gallery, forming a sort of fatal hillside down which slid broken steel girders, planking, timbers, brick and a great amount of cement from the roof, and carrying along a struggling company of men into the pit below, very few of whom escaped injury. The front wall of the building remained perfectly intact, but the east side wall bulged and buckled threateningly. Notwithstanding the latter danger, the work of rescuing the injured and taking out the dead was rushed and good progress was made until 5:15 p. m., when the upper portion of the east wall fell, causing a stampede for the street. None of those who were struck by the second downfall were seriously injured, although several were precipitated into the basement through the steel joist, over which only a few loose planks were laid.

SENSATIONAL DEATH.

A Woman Succumbs to Heart Disease at a Religious Meeting.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 8.—"I'm trying to live a Christian life. I'm homesick to see Jesus. I'm ready to go this day, this hour, this minute, if necessary. Praise the Lord."

Scarcely had these words left the lips of Mrs. Jennie Walker at a religious meeting at the Good Way mission yesterday when she fell back into her seat, dead. The hall was crowded with worshippers. After a short service the congregation rose, one by one and began to bear testimony. Mrs. Walker had risen to testify. In one breath she said she was ready to go—her next breath was her last. The woman died of heart disease.

Will Report to Dewey.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Lieut. Niblack, formerly in charge of the naval militia branch of the navy department, and just detached from the command of the torpedo boat Winslow, which has gone out of commission, reported at the navy department yesterday en route to Manila. He sails from San Francisco on the 19th, having been assigned to duty on Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia.

Call to Be Declined.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 8.—Rev. E. S. Van Ness, formerly of Minneapolis, but later of New Jersey, who is at present supplying the First Baptist church of this city, has been called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Anoka. It is probable that the call will be declined as there are complications that threaten united work.

Watertown, S. D., Nov. 8.—The sixteenth annual meeting of the Northern Association of Congregational churches has closed. The following officers were elected: President, Rev. Frank Mitchell, Faulkton; secretary, Rev. W. M. Muir, Henry; treasurer, G. A. Wood, Milbank. The next annual meeting will be held at Clark.

Joe Jefferson's Condition.

New York, Nov. 8.—Joseph Jefferson was to have appeared in "Rip Van Winkle" at the Fifth Avenue theater to-night, but a consultation of physicians forbade him to leave his room for at least a week. He has a chronic throat trouble.

British Troops Mobilise.

London, Nov. 8.—The military force at Davenport, the site of the largest arsenal in Great Britain, has received orders to mobilize all the troops in the Western district.

MINNESOTA NEWS

Robert B. Henton died at his home in Morton recently.

Patrick Costello, a prominent farmer, was killed in the outskirts of Wabasha by a load of lumber overturning.

Mrs. J. M. Sheets, the wife of a prominent citizen of Nora Springs, died suddenly from Appoplexy while attending to her household duties.

Margaret, the seven-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Moyer, fell from the steps in the public school building at Montevideo and broke her arm.

Thieves gained an entrance to A. J. Rind's store at Barrett and carried away goods to the value of about $400. The goods stolen were eight fur coats and considerable jewelry.

E. O. Richmond's wood working establishment at Melrose was completely destroyed by fire recently, which caught in the engine room. The loss is from $8,000 to $10,000.

The Mankato Heating and Plumbing company have started work on the sewers which are to be laid in the principal business streets at Easton. The streets will be graded and new gutters put in immediately.

The residence of John Finne at Rush City was destroyed by fire which originated by the chimney burning out. The residence was insured. The household goods were nearly all saved, but about seventy-five dollars in currency was burned.

Hans Lund, a prosperous farmer who lives near Watson, was the victim of a serious runaway accident while in Montevideo. Mr. Lund was thrown from the wagon and had one leg broken and was badly bruised about the head and face.

In the United States court at Mankato Frank Stevens, who robbed the New Ulm postoffice of $1,000 in stamps and money last September, was sentenced to three years and six months in the penitentiary. When his trial was nearly completed he pleaded guilty and received the above sentence.

While pitching bundles to a threshing machine on the farm of his father near Elysian, Walter Williams, only son of John Williams, met with a most terrible accident, the pitchfork tine striking the large belt, causing the handle to turn, striking him in the bowels and so injuring him that he died in a few hours.

A new Congregational church building was dedicated at Belview. Rev. John H. Morley, State Superintendent James Earle of Granite Falls, and David Donovan of Madison officiating. There was a large attendance and a hopeful feeling. The new congregation starts out free of debt, a situation which speaks well for the spirit of this community.

Jacob K. Mertz, assistant adjutant general of the G. A. R., department of Minnesota, died suddenly in his room at the Brunswick hotel in Minneapolis.

Christian Olson, a workman at the Union depot at St. Paul, fell from the roof and was killed.

The railroad and warehouse commission applies to the courts to compel a report from the United States Express company.

Claud M. Waggoner, whose home is in Ontario, is under arrest at Mankato on the charge of passing forged checks on a number of leading local business firms. He confessed to having passed six for amounts ranging from $14 to $20. Waggoner was arrested near Alma City after a warm chase by the sheriff and chief of police. He is a stylishly dressed young man, twenty-one years of age and has been visiting relatives in this city for two months.

The Red River valley is a lake of mud, and every day rain adds to the gravity of the situation. There is a small proportion of grain still in shock in this section, but much remains unthreshed and in the stack. If a hard breeze should come before the stacks dry out, the grain would be in very bad shape. It is much colder to-night and the freeze is evidently coming. Grain is in better shape this side of Grand Forks than north of here, where a large per cent of the wheat is in a critical condition and will probably lose grade. Flax is suffering more from the wet weather about here than the wheat. Whole fields of flax are ruined by the rains.

Officer McLennan, while arresting two colored women at Duluth had a desperate struggle. Lizzie Wethers and Lizzie Jackson, the two women, came over from West Superior and were holding high carnival in a colored restaurant. They were thrown out and the officer was arresting them for disorderly conduct, when the Jackson woman drew a revolver and fired four shots at him, all going wild. She then fled. McLennan held the Wethers woman and in the struggle she drew a knife and made a vicious lunge at him. The blow was warded off by a man who came up at that instant and she was landed in jail. She has already served a term at Stillwater for shooting a man. The Jackson woman was captured later.

By a late arrangement and through the absorption of the lines of the Western Electric company, which operated principally in Southern Minnesota, Wisconsin and a large part of South Dakota, the Bell Telephone company of Winona comes into possession of the following lines and stations: Lines from Waseca to Mankato, with branches from Janesville to Alma City, Alma City to Vivian, Wis.; Alma City to Creme, Wis.; Creme to St. Clair; St. Clair to Eagle Lake; Eagle Lake to Madison Lake; also lines from Mankato, St. Peter and from Sioux Falls to Luverne, Minn. The new stations are as follows: Manly, Beaver, Luverne, Armstrong, Manchester, Maitland, Freeborn, New Richland, Otisco, Waseca, Janesville, Alma City, Vivian, Creme, St. Clair, Eagle Lake, St. Peter, Kasota, Brandon, S. D., Garrettson, Valley Springs.

Nelson Rust shot and killed William McMullen, a settler near Lake Itasca, while hunting deer. They were hunting together and had been separated but a few moments when Rust heard something in the brush not far away. As he turned to see what it was he saw McMullen's white necktie and took it for the flag of a deer. He fired and the bullet struck McMullen near the heart, killing him instantly. Mr. Rust is an old hunter and a near friend of McMullen, and he feels very badly over the fatal mistake.

Old Things.

"'As easy as an old shoe,' is a familiar saying," said Mr. Staybolt, "and there can be no doubt that an old shoe is a mighty comfortable thing. After we have worn the new shoes, close fitting, hard and formal, how gladly we put them off, and with what joy we put on the shoes that are old and worn and familiar to the feet! Old shoes, however, are not the only things old that we like. We like an old bed, if it is not too old, but just old enough, so that while still soft and comfortable it is also shaped somewhat to the body, which it supports at every point, yielding a degree of comfort which not the finest of beds can afford when it is new.

"But it is so with all things old; that are not too old, including old habits. We cling to them so long as they give us comfort, and we hate to change. We are creatures of habit, who would if we could follow to the end along the first comfortable rut we fall into and never look out above its sides. And it is well for us that our shoes wear out and that we have to buy new ones and wear them, that we are in various ways compelled to change, that we are rooted out now and then and set going anew."—New York Sun.

The Passion of the Hour.

Every year modern habits become more unlovely and modern sensibilities more blunted. The preservation of what is beautiful, per se, at the present time is almost always ridiculed, unless it can be shown to be joined to some profit or utility.

The characteristic passion of the hour is greed—greed of possession, desire of acquisition and passion for ostentation. Trade has become an octopus embracing the whole world. The thirst for gain engrosses all classes. Beauty, unless it be a means of gain, is to this temper a useless, or worse than a useless, thing: it is regarded as a stumbling block and incumbrance. It is doubtful if even the power of perceiving what is beautiful has not in a great measure left a large part of the population in all countries. Modern cities would not be what they are now had not the race to a great extent grown color blind and become without the sense of proportion. Modern builders and modern engineers would remain unoccupied were not the generations which employ and enrich them destitute of all artistic feelings.—Ouida in Fortnightly Review.

The Birthplace of Josephine.

Fort de France, Martinique, is the strongest fortified point the French own in America. It is both a military and naval station, and a fort was erected on a mountain top there years ago, which has since been improved and strengthened by some of the most modern guns known in warfare.

During the civil war the United States cruiser Kearsarge chased the Confederate blockade runner Alabama into the harbor, and was on the point of opening fire on her when the authorities forbade it. Here they remained for some time, and during a stormy night the Alabama slipped out and disappeared in the Caribbean sea.

Several times the place has been badly damaged by tropical cyclones, during which hundreds lost their lives. It is noted as being the birthplace of the Empress Josephine; a life size piece of statuary of her adorns the principal plaza. The fort has had for years but one family—the king of Dahomey and his six wives, whom the French captured after great trouble in the African wilds and imprisoned.—Philadelphia Record.

His Two Questions.

"I say, pa," began little Clarence Cullipers, with the rising inflection of one who earnestly desires to acquire important information, "what"—

"Oh, I don't know," replied his long suffering sire wearily.

"Yes. But the question I wanted to ask isn't foolish, pa."

"H'm! If it isn't foolish, you may ask it. But remember, just one question and no more."

"Well, pa, there are two of 'em that I want to ask. One is, which is the smartest, the man who knows enough to know that he don't know much or the man who knows enough to look as if he knew everything? The other is, if the end of the world was to come and the earth be destroyed while a man was up in a balloon, where would he land when he came down? And, pa, I don't know which one of 'em to ask."—Pearson's Weekly.

Hunger Madness.

The sufferings of pellagra are those well known in times of famine. The effects sometimes do not entirely disappear. A woman of my acquaintance near Monza, who had the pellagra some years before, was considered cured. She was the wife of a prosperous shopkeeper when I knew her. The only remaining trace of her malady was that from time to time she stopped in conversation, a look of anguish came into her eyes, and she would say in her dialect: "Il pan l'e bon, e il vin l'e bon ma il pan l'a bon!"—Bread is good, and wine is good, but bread is good! The horror of that suffering from starvation had never left her.—"Hunger and Poverty In Italy," by Mrs. Dario Papa in North American Review.

Anchovies.

Sir Walter Scott used to tell a story of one of the nursery gardeners of his day: "An old friend of mine having asked him to supply him with a dozen anchovies, he replied, 'He had plenty, but being a delicate plant they were still in the hothouse.'"—Household Work.

The library of congress ranks sixth among the libraries of the world in its present contents. France has the largest, England next; then comes Russia, and Germany follows with her libraries in Munich, Berlin and Strassburg, the last named holding almost equal rank with ours in Washington.

Heroism of the Fishermen.

It is always with a vague regret that we read the sagas, and are thrilled by the viking's exploits. It seems as if the deeds of daring had gone by forever, and as if the heroes of the deep were a myth of the past. Absorbed in the Norse romance, we forget that the vikings were only pirates, and that they dared for slaughter and for booty. If the Gloucester of today had only existed then, what heroic saga would it not have inspired! For to risk life for glory or riches or rescue or love is in the heart of every man to do, but to risk life for a bare existence, for other people's profit and for an anonymous end partakes of that commonplace sublimity which does not form the favorite plot of poets, although once in awhile it is the subject of a daily paragraph.

For the vikings are not dead. From Portland to New Orleans, our harbors are full of them. They lounge upon our wharfs, and we do not recognize them. They loiter on our streets, and we know them not. But if there is a more modest, unconscious, or braver fellow than Jack the Fisherman, our eyes have yet to rest upon his face. He is the hardiest and most daring, the best sailor in the world today. Any continental kingdom would give its wealth to possess him for its defense. He is the envy of every maritime nation. Has he no value for us, beyond the halibut and the cod, the haddock and the cusk?—Herbert D. Ward in Century.

The Debut of the Bowie Knife.

To the public mind duels were really a necessity. The man who would not fight "at the drop of a hat and drop it himself," was soon made to feel that he had very much better not have been born.

There were progressive duels, too, from which the popular mind no more revolted than it does in this era from progressive whist or euchre. It was one of them which gave Bowie and his knife to fame. In some way there had come to be bad blood, black and bitter, between him and a certain Colonel Norris Wright. After long bickering, it was agreed to meet upon the levee opposite Natchez, Miss., each with half a dozen friends, duly armed, and there shoot the matter out. There were a dozen on each side when it came to fighting. The battle was arranged to begin with threes, the rest standing by, and coming in only when those of the first fight were dead or disabled. But they had miscalculated their own self control. After the first fire there was a general melee—the reserves to a man gripped pistols hard, drew knife belts to a handy clutch and went into the combat to do or die.—Martha McCulloch-Williams in Harper's Magazine.

The Climate of the Philippines.

In regard to the climate which a foreigner encounters it is easy to exaggerate its discomforts. Although it is tropical, still even in summer the climate may be called healthy. From December to March there are warm days, with cool nights and little rain. During March, April and May the days are hot, dry and dusty, while the thermometer rises to 96 degrees at noon, but the nights are not uncomfortable. In the latter part of May and of June there are thunderstorms every afternoon with a tremendous downpour of rain. The greatest heat occurs in these months, the thermometer rising frequently to 105 degrees in the shade. July, August and September are the months of the great typhoons, and while Manila escapes the greatest fury of these still enough of their force remains to demolish many houses. During October and November storms lessen in frequency and severity, and the weather gradually settles into the fine days of December.—Isaac M. Elliott in Scribner's.

His Only Opportunity.

"Hattie," said the clerk at the blanket counter in the department store, speaking rapidly and in an undertone, "just a moment. Will you—what is it, sir? Harness department? Six aisles down—Hattie, do you think you could —furniture, madam? Third floor. Take the elevator—Hattie, I'd like to know—handkerchiefs, ma'am? Third, counter to your right. Blankets, sir? Right here. Wait on you in a moment—Hattie, will you marry me?"

"Yes, Tom," whispered the girl at the notion counter, still tapping with her pencil on the showcase. "Ca-a-a-a-ash!"—Chicago Tribune.

Ikes, No End.

Up at New Haven, W. Va., there are so many people named Isaac Roush that to avoid confusion they are thus designated:

Big Ike, Gentleman Ike, Spectacle Ike, Ike on the Hill, Ike In the Hollow, Rosa's Ike, Little Ike, Soldier Ike, Lazy Ike, Thirteenth Virginia Ike, Fifer Ike, Aunt Cassy's Ike, Drummer Ike, Fourth Virginia Ike, Hartford Ike, Dam It Ike, Kanawha Ike, Sally's Ike, Heiliky Ike, Trotter Ike, Fiddler Ike, Ten Mile Ike, Mart's Ike and Aunt Betsy's Ike.—Gallipolis Tribune.

His Distinction.

The following is said to have occurred to a distinguished but modest divine who had undertaken the duty of a brother clergyman at a cathedral church. "I am come," said he, addressing the silk gowned verger, "to take Canon Blank's place this morning."

"Pray, sir," replied the official pompously, "are you the 'man' who is to read the prayers or the 'gentleman' who is to deliver the sermon?"—Household Words.

The Brooklyn Bridge.

The greatest suspension bridge in the world is the Brooklyn bridge, which also leads the world in the number of its daily passengers. Its length, including approaches, is 5,989 feet, the distance between the towers 930 feet, the weight of the structure is 6,470 tons, its cost was over $15,000,000. The bridge cars carry over 45,000,000 people every year.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

Cretaceous Sea Serpents.

In the latter part of the mesozoic age there was a great inland ocean, spreading over a large part of the present continent. The lands then above water were covered with a flora peculiar to the times and were inhabited by some of the animals which later distinguished the cenozoic age. In the seas were reptiles, fishes and turtles of gigantic proportions, armed for offense or defense. There were also oysterlike bivalves, with enormous shells, three or four feet in diameter, the meat of which would have fed many people.

In time this great ocean, swarming with vigorous life, disappeared. Mountain ranges and plains gradually arose, casting forth the waters and leaving the monsters to die and bleach in tertiary suns. As the waters remaining divided into smaller tracts they gradually lost their saline stability. The stronger monsters gorged on the weaker tribes until they, too, stranded on rising sand bars or lost vitality and perished as the waters freshened. In imagination we can picture the strongest, bereft of their food supply at last and floundering in the shallow pools until all remaining mired or starved. It would be interesting to know how much of the great cretaceous ocean forms a part if any of the vast oceans of today.—Popular Science.

Surgery on Snakes.

Snakes in captivity, it seems, sometimes find difficulty in getting rid of the skin which is shed every year, and an Australian diamond snake in the Bombay museum appeared likely to succumb. It was quite blind and refused all food.

A European sympathizer therefore pressed the native snake keeper into service to hold the snake, and himself with a pair of sharp pointed scissors performed the delicate and risky operation of clipping away the membrane which adhered to the eyes.

J. M. Phipson, editor of The Journal of the Bombay Natural History society, performed a far more dangerous operation a couple of years ago. His patient was a large hamadryad, or king cobra, the most vicious and poisonous of all Indian snakes, and a most powerful creature to boot. Mr. Phipson gripped the king cobra round the neck, and a native literally held on for his life further down, and when the reptile's struggles were over a third man, armed with a surgeon's scalpel, removed eight layers of membrane from each eye.—Sketch.

Gladstone's Eloquence.

His persuasive witchery of eloquence will be poorly understood by generations to come, says The Atlantic. It is not found in the word, the phrase, the argument or the thought. It came for the most part from the spirit that warmed the breath of the man, sounded in his voice, looked out of his eyes. It was personal to him, and largely part of the moral qualities that seemed to be his greater distinction. No man of his day has had such power of persuasion as he. It may not be too bold to say that no man of any time has surpassed him in that power. Yet he was never logically strong. His argumentative writings, the most carefully and deliberately composed, show defects of reasoning that are marked. From controversy with an antagonist like Professor Huxley he was sure to come with wounds. Yet his masterful influence over minds of every class is a certain fact. It was once said by somebody that "Gladstone could persuade anybody to anything—himself included," and the epigram carries no doubt a significant truth.

Pressure of the Sea.

There are spots in the ocean where the water is five miles deep. If it is true that the pressure of the water on any body in the water is one pound to the square inch for every two feet of the depth, anything at the bottom of one of the "five mile holes" would have a pressure about it of 13,200 feet to every square inch. There is nothing of human manufacture that would resist such a pressure. That it exists there is no doubt. It is known that the pressure on a well corked glass bottle at the depth of 300 feet is so great that the water will force its way through the pores of the glass. It is also said that pieces of wood have been weighted and sunk in the sea to such a depth that the tissues have become so condensed that the wood has lost its buoyancy and would never float again. It could not be even made to burn when dry.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE ROSES OF SEATTLE.

O roses of Seattle,
That bloom in June and May,
You are perfect as the poet's dream,
Fair as the golden day;
You scatter waves of fragrance
On the sleeping air of night;
Your rainbow painted petals
Are the glory of the light!

Fair is Nile's storied lotus
And the rose of Gulistan,
And pleasant is the poppy seed
That lulls the soul of man,
Rare are the lights and shadows
In the pansy's purple eyes,
But the roses of Seattle
Are the flowers of paradise.

O roses of Seattle,
That bloom in May and June,
Deep hearts of gold and crimson
That light the summer noon,
The cottage of the lowly
You paint with God's own plan;
In the mansion of the lordly
You shame the art of man!

I hold them fast in memory
Wherever I may roam,
These blossoms from the garden
Of the gods, dropped down from home.
The cruel years take from us
What years cannot restore,
But the roses of Seattle—
They bloom forevermore!

—Eliza Archard Conner in Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

LOCAL NEWS.

Thanks—election is over.

L. N. Nolan was at the upper Falls Sunday.

Postmaster Rapp spent Sunday at Crookston.

Will Mageau came up from Crookston Monday.

Go to the new Drug Store for your holiday goods.

Politicians were rather thick in the village Saturday.

Charley Lindquist was in from Black River last Saturday.

J. H. Strawbridge Sundayed at Polk county's metropolis.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Chas Tedford was up to Thief River Falls the first of the week.

went to live, I have to leave my family here and go to the woods."

Several deer hunters came up from the cities the first of the week.

W. A. Arthur returned yesterday after a two months absence in the west.

Now that the election is over, all put a shoulder to the wheel and work for St. Hilaire.

Saturday was a busy day in St. Hilaire Fully two hundred farmers were in marketing grain.

The Imperial Drug Co. has ordered a large stock of wall paper which will be in at a later date.

No less than three smashups have occurred on the Fosston-Duluth line the past two weeks.

The town of Sanders gave Lind 31, Eustis 23 votes, Eddy 35, Ringdel 19 and Myran 23 H. Ives 33.

Eight heavy horses passed through here Monday with three men. They go to the pineries for the winter.

Any one wanting hard coal should leave orders with H. J. Freeman this week. Cheaper than ever before.

The time seems to have come when a person can't rely upon his best friend —this was shown in the late election.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure, For sale at the new Drug Store.

The battle was fought yesterday but it will be several days before the victory is known. It was a hard contested fight.

Lamps! Lamps! Lamps! Buy your lamps at the new Drug Store where you have a fine line to select from.

The less said about this election the better. St. Hilaire has a few tomyhawk politicians—and we are proud of them—nit.

The fellows that were in the Eddy band wagon the past few weeks will be dumped out now—not enough places to go around.

Miss Mary Kyle, teacher of the primary department of our village school went to Crookston Saturday on a short visit returning Monday.

Chas. Tedford sold out his place of business to his former partner, M. E. Bjerk. Mr. Tedford will hereafter reside at Thief River Falls.

The new Drug Store have just received an elegant stock of holiday goods which will be displayed in a few days. Make your selection now.

—The SPECTATOR is the official paper of the village and county. Now is the time to subscribe. $1.00 per year if paid in advance—otherwise $1.50.

The Imperial Drug Co. has still a few eight day clocks left which will be sold cheap to make room for new goods. Every clock guaranteed for one year.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Stranahan of Fargo arrived here last Friday to make a short visit with relatives. They returned home yesterday in order to vote.

If John Lind is not elected for governor there will be no use putting up man two years hence to work against the machine.

St. Hilaire Woodmen, to the number of ten drove to Thief River Falls Sunday to attend the funeral of a neighbor of Thief River Falls Camp.

Geo. Coogan and Chas. E. Lord came up from St. Paul yesterday to cast their ballots. Both of these gentlemen are corporals of Company "L" 14th regiment.

The SPECTATOR is a cash in advance paper, and if you don't want it, just pay up and stop it. A man that wont pay his board and paper bill is too small to live.

The depot platform was crowded last Saturday with friends of Mrs. Martineau to bid her good-bye. Miss Tessie Hughes accompanied her to her new home in Bemidji.

A number of people right here in St. Hilaire should save a sample ballot and practice—some were so afraid they wouldn't vote right so they marked every man—good.

A pleasant party gathered at the room over Rapp & Post's store last Thursday evening and enjoyed themselves by tripping the light fantastic toe for several hours.

A. H. Weagant of Bemidji was here last Thursday and Friday making a deal with Fred Eikhoff and after the 15th inst. will put in a full and complete stock of hardware.

T. H. Shevlin, president of the St. Hilaire Lumber Co., was here last Saturday looking after his business interests and found time to make several bets on the outcome of election.

Rev. H. Logan will preach on Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Subject "Our part in Life Eternal." Dr. Forbes the P. E. preaches on Tuesday Nov. 15th at 7.30. You are invited to these services.

The auction sale of hotel furniture last Saturday was well attended and numerous articles sold for more than was paid for them in the first place—which of course was a good thing for the party selling them.

August Peterson made a trip to Bemidji last week and was so well pleased with the town that he has decided to locate there and make it his future home. Mr. Peterson and family will leave some time next week.

What a shame these men who howled for McKinley two years ago were not endowed with better memory. Two years ago they said any man that wanted work could get from $1.50 to $200 per day. Only last week one of these same fellows said: "Its impossible for me to get a days work here, and if I

Mrs. Amanda Webber Assistant Supt. of the Childrens Home Society of Minnesota visited St. Hilaire for a few days in the interest of the work. She spoke Sunday eve in the Methodist church and gave quite an insight into the working of the society. More than 1,800 children have been cared for by the Children's Home Society.

We have a number of readers of the SPECTATOR who have been taking the paper for several years but have paid nothing on their account. Don't you think its about time to call around and and do something? How would you like to work year after year, haul in wheat and get no pay for it? Same thing—with the subscribers referred to.

There is a great deal of difference between a true friend and the fellow who feigns friendship when he thinks you can be of service to him. Friendship cannot be counterfeited, and the way faring man, though a fool, can tell the genuine article. We sometimes accept the counterfeit at par, but let no man believe that he has deceived us.—Odd Fellow Review.

Owing to the amount of business transacted at the Great Northern depot in this village Jim Hill came to the conclusion that an assistant was really necessary and now Harry Swenson is on the pay roll for this soulless corporation commencing November 1st. Agent Freeman has been doing two men's work since last spring and only receiving one men's pay—but then that is what Jim Hill expects of all his men,

Everybody on this line know that "Spot" Murray was conductor on No. 31 last Saturday for the simple reason that she come in on time and has been ever since. While conductor Murray was on the Breckenridge division temporary No. 31 was always from two to four hours late in making twenty-eight miles. Once again has "Spot" came to the rescue of the people living on this line and saved them from going south.

Much credit is due Messrs. Kersh and Montague, managers of the Crookston Opera House for securing the attraction of Clay Clement. It was one of the best comedy plays we have ever witnessed. The house was crowded and everyone went home satisfied they got more than value received. This company showed at Crookston last Thursday evening. Clay Clement carries no "sticks" or "chairwarmers" with his combination.

Watches Clocks and Jewelery.

I will carry a full line of watches, clocks and jewlery hereafter at Johnson's drug store. Anything you want that we do not carry in stock we will order for you at ten per cent above the wholesale prices and by doing this you will save money by dealing at home. Watches left for repairs will be sent down on first train and returned the next day. I shall continue to be at Johnson's drug store the 10th 11th and 12th of each month. Eyes examined free.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A good story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and your sorrows. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in the world keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your pains and aches under a pleasant smile. No one cares to hear whether you have the corache, headache or rheumatism. Don't cry. Tears do well enough in novels, but they are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friends with a smile The good-natured man or women is always welcomed, but the dyspepsie or hypochondriac is not wanted anywhere and is a nuisance as well.

—The Crookston College building is now complete and is modern and up to date. The Institution is one of the best in the northwest. It is cheap, thorough and practical. By writing Malm & Sathre a catalogue containing full information will be sent to any address.

Mother Had Changed.

This story is told of a young lady who had found a package of love letters that had been written to her mother by her father before they were married. The daughter saw she could have a little sport and read them to her, substituting her own name for that of her mother, and a fine young man for that of her father. The mother jumped up and down in her chair, shifted her feet and seemed terribly disgusted and forbade her daughter to have anything to do with a young man who could write such nonsensical stuff to a young lady. When the young lady handed the letters to her mother to read, the house became so still that one could hear the grass grow in the back yard—Paris News.

Thanksgiving Ladies' Home Journal.

The Thanksgiving Ladies Home Journal marks the fifteenth anniversary of that widely read magazine, which now sells 850,000 copies each month, and its editor reviews its past under the unique heading. "Fifteen Years of Mistakes" revealing his plans for its improvement and for its great usefullness in the future. A page of illustrations admirably typifies "Thanksgiving in the country," and another of photographs is filled with suggestions for decorations, etc., for "Thanksgiving in the Church." "The Anecdotal Side of Mr. Moody" reveals the chief chereceteristics of the great Evangelists in a succession of interesting stories, and "My First Fight in the Jungle" is Henry M. Stanley's narrative of the first of his journeys into Africa. "How Richard Wagner Wrote His Operas" gives the nearest, clearest and most interesting view of the famous composer that has yet been written. In "A Polish Fantasy" is told in a beautiful and pathetic story, the early career of Paderewski. The first chapters of Mary E. Wilkins new serial are among the fiction features. Miss Wilkins reverses the novelist's usual order, and makes ludicrous the mistakes of city people in the country. Another that will be followed with keen interest is "The Girls of Camp Arcady," also beginning in the Nov., issue. It is a sparkling, vivacious narrative of four girl breadwinners who live together in a New York flat, "The Minister of Carthage" grows in interest and "The Silk-Lined Girl" is a fascinating short piece of romance. There are innumerable, useful, practical articles. Of special interest to women is "Prize Dollar Dinners" for four people. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar per year; ten cents per copy.

The Best Cough Remedy on Earth.

Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, Consumption Cure, cures a cold in 24 hours if taken in time and does not stop a cough in ONE MINUTE by paralyzing the throat, but it cures the disease and leaves the throat and lungs healthy and strong. 25 and 50 cts. For sale by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

The SPECTATOR will take cord wood on subscription—a good way for some to settle their accounts, and others can come around and saw the same and we will give them credit for same.

Washington Letter.

From our Regular Correspondent.

The Ladies of the M. E. Church will give an oyster supper Nov. 10th, and also sell many fancy articles at auction and the money recieved will go toward paying the debt on the parsonage. You are all invited to attend.

They are repeating a story in armey and navey circles about how Gen. Shafter tried to bluff Lieut. W. H. Stayton commanding U. S. S. Allene, who had charge of the assignment of positions for anchorage, for sanitary inspecton, to the troopships which brought Shafter,s men from Santiago to Mankato. When the ship which brought Gen. Shafter was sighted off Montauk point, Lieut. Stayton put out in his boat and ordered her to heave to. The only reply he got was an order to get out of the way or be sunk. Lieut. Stayton then ordered the Cuptian to stop or he would fire a shot through his ship. That's where Shafter made his bluff. "I am Gen. Shafter, and I am not going to stop for anybody", he yellow, and then asked: "Who are you, anyway?" "I am Lieut. Stayton, of the Navy", replied that officer, "and am directed by the secretary of the Navy to see that no vessel lends passengers without having been certified by the health authorities, and I order you to heave to, under penalty of a shot." Shafter then retired, leaving the captian of the ship to apologize, and to ask Lieut. Stayton where he should anchor pending the medical inspection.

Not for many years have so many republican office holders gone from Washington to vote in a Congressional election, and not for many years has so compulsion been used to make republican voters in the government departments go home. Very few democratic government employes have succeded in getting leave of absence to go home to vote, and the most of those who did get leave vote in states that are so certainly democratic that their votes will make no difference. Democrats who have votes in close districts or states who applied for leave to go home, were told that their services could not be dispended with, owing to important business in their respective offices.

How officials regard Roosevelt's chances to be elected Gov. of New York may be judged by the fact that they are talking about making him Ambassador to England, as a balm for his defeat and to get him out of the country.

LIND OUR NEXT GOVERNOR.

From late dispatches the indications are that Lind is elected and it is only a question of majority. The rest of the republican state ticket is elected. The outlook is that Eddy will go back to congress.

Cloak Sale.

Special cloak sale at the "New Store" St. Hilaire, on Wednesday & Thursday 16th and 17th of November. Cloaks from $5.00 to $20.00. Having numerous calls for cloaks and not having any in stock, we have made arrangements with Mr. A. Chabot, of the New York Store, Crookston, to be at our Store on the 16th and 17th of November with a full line of Ladies, Misses and Children's Cloaks. We do this simply as a matter of accommodation to the people of St. Hilaire and vicinity. Take advantage of the opportunity and save paying expenses to Crookston where you will have to pay exactly the same for your garment.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Take Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, the best cough remedy on earth. 25 and 50 cts. For sale by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

To run a newspaper without occasionally publishing an item that is untrue or giving offence, is like running a railroad without having accidents and smash-ups, says a level-headed contemporary—it can't be done. No man on earth is so much imposed on as the editor of a newspaper. Pushed with work continually, he must rely on second and third parties for information in regard to events that transpire. Frequently statements are received from reliable people, which are subsequently discovered to be without foundation. If, therefore, kind reader, you find yourself aggravated by some statement in your home paper keep this fact in mind. Do not fly off the handle but go to the editor and ask for correction.

Auction Sale.

Continued on Saturday Nov 12th in the St. Hilaire Hotel at 1 o'clock p. m. the following:—6 dozen kitchen chairs, 6 office chairs, 5 dozen dining chairs, 6 tables, 2 bed room sets, 6 bed steads, 6 bed springs, 3 stoves, 12 wash stands, 10 combination dressers, 2 parlor tables, bedding, carpets, dishes, window shades and curtains, lamps, stove pipes, horse and buggy. Stop Coughing

Every cough makes your throat more raw and irritable. Every cough congests the lining membrane of your lungs. Cease tearing your throat and lungs in this way. Put the parts at rest and give them a chance to heal. You will need some help to do this, and you will find it in

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

From the first dose the quiet and rest begin: the tickling in the throat ceases; the spasm weakens; the cough disappears. Do not wait for pneumonia and consumption but cut short your cold without delay.

Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Plaster should be over the lungs of every person troubled with a cough.

Biggest Camera in the World.

Out in Chicago there is now in operation the biggest camera and the strangest photographic apparatus in the world. The camera takes a picture 25x32 inches in size, and is mounted on a tripod fifteen feet high. For taking flash-lights the operator has a set of fifteen poles, from twelve to twenty feet in height. On the top of these, set up all about a room, is placed the powder, which is fired simultaneously by electricity. So brilliant a flash is made that people in conventions and at banquets are taken in motion, as in a sunlight snap-shot. But, queerest of all, is the fact that inventive photographer has devised balloon bags to suspend in rooms where the flash-light powder is burned to catch the dense and offensive smoke made by it. The bags close up automatically after the flash.—Exchange.

Diamonds in Street Rubbish.

Street cleaners in London have rich pickings. The other day a purse containing four diamond rings was found in a dust cart. STORIES OF RELIEF.

Two Letters to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. JOHN WILLIAMS, Englishtown, N. J., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot begin to tell you how I suffered before taking your remedies. I was so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without falling. I had womb trouble and such a bearing-down feeling; also suffered with my back and limbs, pain in womb, inflammation of the bladder, piles and indigestion. Before I had taken one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt a great deal better, and after taking two and one-half bottles and half a box of your Liver Pills I was cured. If more would take your medicine they would not have to suffer so much."

Mrs. JOSEPH PETERSON, 513 East St., Warren, Pa., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered with womb trouble over fifteen years. I had inflammation, enlargement and displacement of the womb. I had the backache constantly, also headache, and was so dizzy. I had heart trouble, it seemed as though my heart was in my throat at times choking me. I could not walk around and I could not lie down, for then my heart would beat so fast I would feel as though I was smothering. I had to sit up in bed nights in order to breathe. I was so weak I could not do anything.

"I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and can say I am perfectly cured. I do not think I could have lived long if Mrs. Pinkham's medicine had not helped me."

5 DROPS

[TRADE MARK.]

CURED BY "5 DROPS" TWO YEARS AGO FROM RHEUMATISM AND HEART WEAKNESS.

After Suffering 49 Years—69 Years Old and Still Well.

IT PROVES TO BE A PERMANENT CURE.—READ LETTERS.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO., 167 Dearborn St., Chicago: DEAR SIR—Your bottle of "5 DROPS" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown, Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart, and he could not sleep on account of a smothered feeling. He had been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but obtained no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 DROPS." He rested well the very first night, and has ever since, and is gaining daily. I myself am 69 years old, and commenced taking "5 DROPS" last April for Rheumatism, which has troubled me terribly for 49 years; also for a weak heart, from which I have suffered since I was 18. Since taking "5 DROPS" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness has gone from my joints and my heart never misses a beat. In all my life I have never felt so well, and I owe my health to "5 DROPS." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard the world over, and could convince every sufferer that "5 DROPS" is all you claim it to be and more.—Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill. Sept. 9, 1896.

STILL WELL TWO YEARS LATER.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO.—Two years ago this present month I sent you an unsolicited testimonial of what "5 DROPS" had done for myself and friend, Mr. Edwards, and now I want to send you another, saying we have not had a return of Neuralgia or Rheumatism since. I think the cure must be permanent; but if it should return, I keep "5 DROPS" in the house and I know that would stop it. It is good for so many things no house should be without it. Yours truly, Mrs. D. T. Carver. Sept. 26, 1898.

The wonderful success that has attended the introduction of "5 DROPS" is unprecedented in the history of the world. Think of it! It has CURED more than One Million and a Quarter sufferers within the last three years. This must appeal to you. [illegible] a $1.00 bottle, which contains enough medicine to more than prove its wonderful curative properties. Prepaid by mail or express. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a PERMANENT CURE for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, La Grippe, Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis, and kindred diseases.

"5 DROPS" is the name and dose. LARGE BOTTLE (300 doses), $1.00, prepaid by mail or express; THREE BOTTLES, $2.50. Sold only by us and our agents. Agents Appointed in New Territory. Write today.

"THE POT CALLED THE KETTLE BLACK," BECAUSE THE HOUSEWIFE DIDN'T USE SAPOLIO

THE CANDY TASTERS.

COME IN AND SAMPLE EVERY CONFECTION.

Men Are as Bad as the Women—They Have Free-Lunch Counters Galore but Their Weakness Crops Out at the Tea and Coffee Stores.

"Oh heaven!" moaned the proprietor behind the candy counter, "the tasters are back again." The woman reporter of the Washington Post inquired what tasters might be. "Well," he reflected, "there are some folks that have to taste everything before buying, and those folks revel in a candy store more than any place else. The business died down from June to fall, but they are back again now. Why, the minute they enter this store they make a center rush for any uncovered confection in sight. They taste and order, taste and order. Well," with a sweep of his hand, "you women are responsible for those very glass cases——" Just then a pretty girl came in with a swish of fresh skirts and hazy brown over her peach-blow cheeks. She ordered a half-pound of the best. The man who invented the glass case and wire screen did not get the best of that girl. The candy girl clerk behind the counter set a half-pound box on the scale, then began picking out chocolates and marshmallow out from under the glass case and ranging them in the box. The purchaser began picking them out of the box and ranging them between her teeth. One more layer should have balanced it, but she never seemed to quite complete the layer. It was growing interesting, as the farce was kept up for some time. The unsuspecting clerk could not strike a balance. She looked beseechingly at the proprietor, who gave her a sign. The box still lacked a layer of being full, but the irate clerk chucked the lid on, the taster passed over her coin and had not enough nerve left to enter a complaint. At another confectioner's, where they do not cover the sweets, a pretty girl sallied in with her young man. Both were well dressed, respectable-looking citizens. The young man ordered a one-pound box, the taster dictating—"and this," taking one, "and this, and this," each time tossing from one to two dainties in her mouth. She hovered lovingly, greedily over each until presumably the pound was weighed. She gurgled and tasted as the dainty wrapper was put about the dainty box and then clasped it to her heart; as she passed out she jauntily boasted, "I got ahead of that firm by a half-pound."

"Eh! Eh!" said the pretty clerk, squinting her eye knowingly; "no, she didn't. When they have such hearty appetite I always weigh them short. These tasters consume pounds a day, and we know the ones who come with a 5-cent limit and two-pound appetite, and we lay for them with short weight." But, while some appetites run to confections, other tasters prefer something more healthful and refreshing. A simple display of anything to eat invariably keeps as big a crowd as a merry-go-round at a country fair. The tasting public all have strong digestive organs and willingly put a layer of five pickles upon a sample of breakfast wheat and cream. The grocer will tell you it does not take a "demonstration" to call out the tasters. One merchant, who makes a specialty of small cakes and crackers, says he loses pounds a day of this light provender. However, they become still more sordid in appetite and this taster leaves dainties and turns to "tub butter." A huge paddle stands upright in the tub and one fat woman wabbles by, thrusts her nose suspiciously near, and then takes a taste, only to be followed by another whose throttle needs oiling in the same way, and she doesn't especially object to the remainder of the taste that the first fat lady left sticking to the paddle. The clerk doesn't know how many pounds a day they taste, but that there is a heap more money in "prints" than in tub butter. A far-sighted merchant, who carries a big stock of fruit with his other wares, had a basket of luscious-looking grapes set in a conspicuous place, with a noisy card upon it "To Taste, Try One." When asked what that meant he said that in the arrangement of his market it was his habit to make an enticing display by opening a number of baskets of grapes. As customers and passers-by in general came and went they invariably took from one grape to a bunch and when bona-fide purchasers came they as invariably chose an unbroken basket. A baker's stand came next and he, too, suffered from the cake mania. Just then a matron came by with an army of children and an appetite for rye bread and other substantials. As the clerk disposed of her purchases in paper bags she helped each of her offspring to a cake of the kind that best suited its fancy. At 10 cents a dozen, the baker reckoned that on Saturdays when the tasters were out in full force, he lost about $2.50 or $3 worth of cakes. There is comfort in some lines of business, however, for the ruddy fish man across the way wondered what all this talk was about and after finding out wabbled off, ejaculating, "Well, I'm mighty glad none of these tasters take to raw fish, but there's no telling when they will." But women are not the only tasters. The sterner sex have a fancy for it and they should be ashamed, too, for they have free lunch counters galore and no one ever heard of such a thing for a woman.

A B. & O. Denial.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is not going to adopt the Rauh locomotive for service between New York and Washington, as has been stated. The motive power department of this railroad has looked upon the rumor with considerable amusement, as within the past year and a half the Royal Blue trains have been hauled by the finest, fastest and strongest ten-wheel passenger engines in the world. These locomotives have 78-inch drivers, and since they have been in service have proved so eminently satisfactory that nothing better can probably be secured. It will be remembered that one of these magnificent new locomotives, the 1313, pulled Vice President-Elect Hobart on March 2, 1896 from Philadelphia to Washington in 136 minutes, a distance of 135 miles, and made one five-minute stop. They frequently run eighty-five miles an hour with six and eight cars, so the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is under no necessity of changing its type of passenger motive power on the Royal Blue Line, and experiment with a locomotive whose usefulness has yet to be demonstrated.

HINMAN'S DEATH RECALLS OLD TRAFFIC.

Father and Uncle In It—They Purchase Textile Goods Recovered by Wreckers on the South Shore of Long Island and Grow Wealthy.

In speaking of the death recently of William Hinman the New York Journal says:

When he was born, forty-six years ago, Brooklyn was little more than a straggling and struggling settlement. The water needed for household purposes all came from wells; what are now high-priced residential and business thoroughfares were then cowpaths or neglected wastes, and the site of the Long Island railroad station at Flatbush and Atlantic avenues was so far out of town that only few people went there except on "mustering day," when the local militia were put through an exhibition drill there. That very place is now considered too far down town for an armory site, and the old armory of the Thirteenth regiment stands there vacant and neglected. His father, also a William Hinman, was born in the country place where his oldest son is to be buried. A country village was too small for him and he settled in Brooklyn about sixty years ago. With his brother he started in a unique business which made them both wealthy in a comparatively few years, and when, at about the breaking out of the civil war, each found himself the possessor of what in those times was considered a burdensome amount of wealth, they retired from active work, although each was in the suntime of life. Almost all of the silk, cotton and woolen fabrics used in this country then were imported from Europe in sailing vessels, the number of steamships trafficking the Atlantic being inconsiderable. The sparsely settled south side of Long Island had among its denizens many desperately bad and bold men, whose chief source of monetary supply was the profits which came from saving the cargoes of incoming vessels wrecked on the beach. Life saving crews were unknown in those days; pilots were few in number, and an exhausted and half-frozen crew approaching the coast in a blinding snow storm or on an unusually dark night would hail as a friendly beacon a light which had been set alone to lure them to shipwreck. Wrecks were numerous between the Shinnecock Hills and Rockaway Inlet, and the prizes cast up by the sea were varied and valuable. From these the elder Hinmans selected carefully and purchased those which women would buy. Dress goods, linens, cottons, flannels, napkins, table cloths, bed coverings, bolts of cloth—anything, in fact, in the line of textiles were what they readily bought. With the men who acquired this stuff they had no relations except as buyers and sellers, and their interests terminated with each transaction. As the city grew their trade grew with it, and they removed their business place to Fulton and Sands streets, where the Bridge plaza is now. When the demand exceeded the supply of salable goods from wrecked vessels recourse was had to articles which had been damaged by a fire in a store. Such a business now would probably not prosper. It was originated by the Hinmans, so far as relates to Brooklyn, and when they retired there was no one to continue it. Love of the freedom of country life was a strong characteristic of the senior William Hinman, and he established his home in the old-fashioned mansion on the west side of Vanderbilt avenue.

A Wise Precaution.

Persons who have spent time in the waiting room of medical specialists, must have remarked the general absence of reading matter to while away the time. In point of fact there is an important reason for this. The most careful physicians do not permit any literature in their office, for fear of contagion. One up-town doctor, who leaves two or three daily papers lying in his waiting room, to be taken out each day, never allows a member of his family to touch papers after they have been in the office. It is wise to give these instances of possible danger from contact the widest publicity. They should be a lesson to every one toward cultivating the habit of touching things as little as possible. It was found not long ago that serious diseases were communicated through the medium of a speaking tube used in a manufactory by a number of persons. The mouthpiece of a public telephone is, when under proper care, frequently disinfected. The danger of the moment to the physical world is contact, and the more complete the practice of personal isolation can be made the better for everybody.

Away Down in Georgia.

A few nights ago a lad from the mountains brought down some three or four gallons of blockade liquor for those that love the juice so well. He hid it in the woods near the town and came on in search of customers. Soon after he arrived a lot of boys found their way to the lovely spot and while the lad was supplying them some boys in the woods near by made a rush and the blockader made off at breakneck speed, being told by his customers that it was the revenue officers approaching. He had been used to the stock law and ran against a fence, causing much pain. By this time the naughty boys had seized the liquor and were making off in another direction, and you could see the effects of it in Dahlonega for several days afterwards.—Dahlonega, Ga., Nugget.

Looking Ahead.

A horrible scandal is brewing in Topeka, Kansas. It is charged that the wife of a Presbyterian elder used the pitcher belonging to the communion service to serve sherbet in at her 4 o'clock tea. However, this is no worse than the act of that Episcopal clergyman who loaned his gown to a man who wanted to play Cardinal Richelieu in some amateur theatricals.—Kansas City Journal.

A FATHER'S STORY.

From the Evening Crescent, Appleton, Wis.

A remarkable cure for a disease which has generally wrecked the lives of children, and left them in a condition to which death itself would be preferred, has attracted a great amount of attention among the residents of the west end of Appleton.

The case is that of little Willard Creech, son of Richard D. Creech, a well known employe of one of the large paper mills in the Fox River Valley. The lad was attacked by spinal disease and his parents had given up all hope of his ever being well again when, as by a miracle, he was healed and is now to school as happy as any of his mates.

Mr. Creech, the father of the boy, who resides at 1003 Second Street, Appleton, Wisconsin, told the following story:

He Goes to School.

"Our boy was absolutely helpless. His lower limbs were paralyzed, and when we used electricity he could not feel it below his hips. Finally we fot the doctor go as he did not seem to help our son and we nearly gave up hope. Finally my mother who lives in Canada wrote, advising the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I bought some.

"This was when our boy had been on the stretcher for an entire year and helpless for nine months. In six weeks after taking the pills we noticed signs of vitality in his legs, and in four months he was able to go to school.

"It is two years since he took the first of the pills and he is at school now just as happy and well as any of the other children. 'It was nothing else in the world that saved the boy than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.'"

Punishment.

"The idea of sending children to bed early to punish 'em!" exclaimed Mrs. Corntossel, who was discussing her city relatives. "That ain't any way to erect 'em."

"Of course it ain't," answered her husband. "If you want to convince 'em that you mean business, make 'em get up an hour or so earlier in the morning."—Washington Star.

Their Meaning.

Two Irishmen were walking along one of the main streets of Bolton, when they noticed a large placard in the window of a shop with the words, "Butter! Butter! Butter!" printed on it in giant type.

An Irish lady one morning took her servant girl to task for having boiled the breakfast eggs too long.

A PERFECT BAKING POWDER.

The constantly increasing demand for Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, the standard cream of tartar powder for forty years, is due to two causes.

FIRST:—The extreme care exercised by the manufacturers to make it pure, uniform in quality and of highest leavening power. Skilled chemists test every ingredient as to purity and strength.

SECOND:—Recent State investigations show that the majority of other baking powders contain alum, and consumers are giving such powders a wide berth.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

It is pronounced by all authorities as free from alum or other adulterant. It never disappoints. Each can is like the other. The BEST is ALWAYS the CHEAPEST.

MAY TERMINATE UNEXPECTEDLY

IMPRESSION THAT THE PEACE CONFERENCE WILL FAIL.

Spanish Commissioners Will Not Agree to a Treaty of Peace Which the Americans Will Sign—Next Session May Be the Last or the Last but One—Spaniards Just Beginning to Realize That the Americans Are in Earnest Regarding the Philippines—Scheme for the Acquisition of the Philippines by an International Syndicate.

Paris, Nov. 15.—Among the onlookers here the impression prevails—though it is not the result of any official statement—that the Spanish peace commissioners will not agree to a treaty of peace which the Americans will sign. It seems almost possible, however, that in view of the tremendous pressure to which the Spanish commissioners are subjected between their large creditors, who are on the spot watching them, and the stern attitude of the United States, the Spaniards may abandon their struggles and leave two forces to comfort each other. The Spaniards, it has been arranged, will inform the Americans whether they need the day to prepare their next memorandum. If they want Monday the meeting will take place on Tuesday. Under the rules of procedure adopted by the conference it is thought the deliberations may be unexpectedly terminated. The statement printed here that the last memorandum from the Americans is regarded by the Spaniards as

A Virtual Ultimatum

But as a matter of fact the Americans have not presented an ultimatum. It is only since Wednesday last that the Spaniards have begun to feel that the Philippines, that, too, without any assumption of Spanish indebtedness. As they are now convinced of this it may be that Spain's next presentment in conference will be the supreme rally of diplomatic argumentative and tactful force. It may even mark the conclusion of all she has to say, but if the usual procedure is followed the Americans will still have another presentment to present. Ever since Oct. 1 it has been within the possibilities that an open rupture might occur, and on one or two occasions it might have been easily in fact even before the taking up of the Philippine question.

Scheme to Buy the Philippines.

The Gaulois says: The acquisition of the Philippines for twenty-five years by an international syndicate from which our power may eventually acquire them is a rumor based on facts of which the Gaulois will to-day give details.

Following this lead the Gaulois and other Paris papers will announce the scheme somewhat on these lines: A syndicate representing $400,000,000 capital proposes to take over the commercial resources and advantages of the Philippines for a term of twenty-five years, paying to the dominant power therein $125,000,000 for the privilege. Under the alleged terms of this scheme the dominant power would administer the political and military government of the islands at its own expense under the apportionment named, while the syndicate would collect all the customs and revenues for the term specified. The scheme involves giving Spain $175,000,000 to satisfy any real or imaginary claims she may make as to the territory. This feature is said to be based on the assumption that the United States will be the dominant power.

May Be the Last.

Madrid, Nov. 14.—El Imparcial says that the government has forwarded instructions to Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish peace commission at Paris, and that to-day's conference may be the last or the last but one "unless the American commissioners moderate their claims." According to El Imparcial a member of the cabinet has virtually declared as much.

QUIET AT WILMINGTON.

No Further Clash Expected Between the Races.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 15.—Wilmington is rapidly cooling down to its normal quietude. There has been no further clash between the races. The new city government is exerting every effort to reassure the negroes so that they will resume their labors at the cotton compressers and shipping wharves. The mayor sent negro messengers through the woods adjacent to the city to urge hundreds of their race who are in hiding to return to the city and assure them that they can come back to the city in perfect safety. Many of them, men, women and children, are reported in a starving condition. The coroner's jury held an inquest over the negroes killed in the riot. The verdict was that they came to their death at the hands of parties unknown to the jury.

A CRIME AGAINST HEALTH.

The Use of Alum in Food.

Recent investigation shows that the stores are largely stocked with baking powders which contain alum, the injurious ingredient which the Iowa and Minnesota State Boards of Health have so strongly condemned. England, Germany and France have laws prohibiting the use of alum in bread, and the States of Minnesota and Wisconsin forbid baking powder containing alum to be put upon the market unless the words "this baking powder contains alum" are printed upon the label of every package offered for sale. This is the danger signal which the law throws out for the protection of the people. These alum powders are frequently labeled "pure," "best in the world," "none so good," or with some other equally misleading catch phrase.

Below will be found a partial list of the baking powders sold in this market that have been examined and found to contain alum:

RESULT OF THE ELECTION

COMPLETE SUMMARY COVERING ALL THE STATES.

Republicans Retain Control of the House of Representatives by a Small Majority—In the Senate the Republicans Make Slight Gains, Giving Them Control—Col. Roosevelt Carries New York by Over 20,000—Pennsylvania Gives the Republican Ticket a Good Majority.

Official returns on the recent election are not yet obtained, but in only one or two states are they likely to change the results. In New York Col. Roosevelt was elected governor by a plurality of 21,286 over Judge Van Wyck. The result on congressmen was a surprise, even to the Democrats themselves. Nineteen of their candidates were elected, the Republicans getting but fifteen. This is a gain of thirteen. The legislature is undoubtedly Republican, and will choose a successor to Senator Murphy, the present Democratic incumbent.

In Illinois the Republican candidate for state treasurer received a plurality of nearly 30,000. The other candidates received slightly larger majorities. The Democrats gained five, and probably, six congressmen, leaving the delegation about equally divided. The Republicans will have a slight majority in the legislature.

The Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania received a plurality of about 123,000. This may be increased slightly by the official canvass. The delegation in the next congress will stand twenty Republicans and ten Democrats. The legislature is Republican by a safe majority.

The entire Democratic ticket in Missouri was elected by about 30,000 majority. The legislature is Democratic. Twelve Democratic congressmen were elected and three Republicans.

Gov. Pingree was re-elected governor of Michigan by about 70,000 majority. The legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. A solid Republican delegation will go to congress.

Kansas went Republican by about 13,000, and elected a Republican legislature. Jerry Simpson was defeated for congress.

The fusion ticket in Colorado was successful by a margin of about 50,000. The legislature is strongly fusion.

In Nebraska the fusion ticket was victorious, according to the unofficial returns, by a safe majority. The governor's majority will be about 7,000.

The vote on governor in Nevada is very close, the Republican candidate is slightly in the lead, but official returns may show a majority for his opponent. The legislature is Republican.

Democrats elected six congressmen in West Virginia, the Republicans two, leaving five in doubt. Both parties claim the legislature.

Tennessee elected the Democratic ticket by a large majority. The legislature is Democratic, and the Democrats elected eight of the ten congressmen.

The Democrats of Kentucky won a sweeping victory, by electing nine of the eleven congressmen.

Ohio went Republican by a large majority, the candidate for secretary of state receiving a plurality of about 59,000. The congressional delegation will stand fifteen Republicans and six Democrats.

The Democrats gained two congressmen in Maryland, the delegation now standing four Republicans and two Democrats.

The election in North Carolina resulted in the return of seven Democratic congressmen, one fusion and one Republican.

Gov. Wolcott (Rep.) is re-elected governor of Massachusetts by a majority of 83,348. The legislature is Republican, and the Republicans elected ten of the thirteen congressmen.

Texas went Democratic by about 200,000 on the state ticket. The congressional delegation will stand eleven Democrats, one Republican and one Independent.

Republicans of New Jersey re-elected Gov. Voorhees by about 5,000 plurality. Democrats elected two of the eight congressmen. The legislature is Republican.

New Hampshire gave the Republican ticket a majority of about 8,000. The legislature is Republican, and both Republican congressmen were elected.

Wyoming went Republican on state and congressional tickets. The legislature is in doubt.

Republican candidates for congress were all elected in Delaware. The legislature will be Republican by a narrow margin.

The Democrats elected solid congressional delegations in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia, Virginia and Alabama.

The fusion ticket in Idaho was victorious by about 5,000 majority. The legislature is fusion.

The Democrats elected their congressional candidate and carried the legislature, which will elect a United States senator.

Iowa went Republican by about 30,000, and elected the entire Republican congressional ticket.

Democrats swept Montana by about 5,000 majority.

Minnesota elected the entire Republican ticket except governor, the fusion candidate winning by about 10,000 plurality.

The Republican ticket in North Dakota will have a majority of over 6,000.

South Dakota is in doubt on governor, but the Republicans elected the balance of the state and congressional tickets.

Wisconsin elected the Republican State ticket and returned a solid Republican congressional delegation. The legislature is Republican.

There was no opposition to the Democratic ticket in South Carolina.

MAJORITY OF THIRTEEN

Is Claimed in the Next House of Representatives.

Chairman Babcock, of the Republican congressional committee says:

"We have received confirmatory information from every district in the United States. This shows that the Republicans will certainly have thirteen majority, and perhaps more than that, over the combined opposition in the next house of representatives. Any change which subsequent reports may make will be in the direction of increasing our majority. The straight-out Republican strength will be 185."

Word has been received at headquarters that in the Second California and Twelfth Texas districts, which were considered doubtful, the Democratic nominees have been elected. Chairman Babcock has received information indicating that the Republican nominees in the Tenth Kentucky, Ninth North Carolina and Ninth Virginia will contest the election of their Democratic opponents, and that George H. Higgins, the Republican nominee in the Twenty-sixth Pennsylvania, will demand a recount of the official vote which gave the election to his Democratic competitor.

TRAPPING THIEVES IN INDIA.

A Brahmin Who Is the Worker of Seeming Miracles.

Madras Weekly Mail: The following extraordinary narration of facts as they occurred, and which, we are informed, were witnessed and can be testified to by the members of three households occupying a large house in Bentinck street, Calcutta, are so remarkable that it is worth the while of any scientist to test them personally, as this can be easily done on the occasion of any theft by domestics in a house. It may be added that every servant in Calcutta is a lively believer in its efficacy, and, if a thief, at once confesses. A Brahmin is the worker of these marvels. He is well known in Calcutta, and does not profess to work out his method of theft detection for money, but leaves it to those who employ him to reward him if they think fit. It is said that this is readily done, and that he makes a good thing out of it.

A cook in the service of a family in the locality alluded to intrusted his nephew with a large sum of money to keep in deposit. The nephew alleged that he placed the money in an earthen pot, which he buried. The location of the exact spot was confided to a friend. Shortly after this the cook was informed by his nephew that the pot and money had disappeared. With the nephew's consent the Brahmin was summoned to discover the thief, and the following is a bare narration of the extraordinary procedure he adopted, and usually adopts, in all such cases. Accompanied by an aid, he comes to the house, provided with two bamboo rods about sixteen feet long and an inch and a half in diameter. He also has with him a number of fresh peepul leaves, a cocoanut, some rice and some vermilion and sowries. A fresh earthen dish has to be provided by the person who summons him, as well as a stool.

All the servants in the house are summoned. They are made to stand in a half-circle, and their names are written on each leaf, and these leaves, with one painted with the vermilion, are placed in the dish, which in its turn is placed on the stool. Two utter strangers are then made to hold the bamboo rods, one in each hand, opposite each other, with their elbows far behind their hips, so that they can have little or no influence in turning or bending the rods. Now comes the strange part of the proceedings. At the Brahmin's call of each name the bamboo rods in the first instance rise together and form a semi-circle above. They then bend, and, forming a semi-circle below, gradually come together, pick up the leaf containing the name called out and throw it out of the dish. This strange process is repeated until the name of the thief, as alleged, is called, when they both seize the leaf, lift it up, and only disengage at the call of the Brahmin, who entreats the rods to let the leaf go. To all appearances the two men who hold the rods make no effort whatever.

The thing is done in such an extraordinary fashion as to exceed belief. In fact, a reasonable human being cannot believe it till he has witnessed it, and when he has done so his amazement is all the greater. Here is, indeed, a marvel for the scientist to puzzle over. The two rods bend, come together and seize upon the right names as they are called out, and then throw them aside except to the case of the thief. In this instance the nephew confessed to the theft, and a number of his relatives who had come from up-country to witness the ordeal made restitution.

JOHN LIND IS GOVERNOR

FUSION CANDIDATE RECEIVES A LARGE MAJORITY.

The Republicans Elected the Balance of Their Ticket by Safe Majorities—Lind's Plurality Over Eustis Will Go Over 10,000—The Three Republican Candidates for the Supreme Bench Were Elected By Good Majorities—All the Republican Candidates for Congress Were Elected—Morris Wins Over Towne By a Safe Majority.

Governor—John Lind.
Lieut. Gov.—Lyndon A. Smith.
Secretary of State, Albert Berg.
State Auditor—R. C. Dunn.
State Treasurer—A. T. Koerner.
Attorney General—W. B. Douglass.
Clerk Supreme Court—D. F. Reese.
Justices of Supreme Court—C. L. Brown, John A. Lovely, Charles L. Lewis.

The election in Minnesota resulted in the election of the above officers. All are Republicans except John Lind, who was nominated for governor by the Fusionists. Almost complete returns give Mr. Lind a majority of about 10,000. Official figures are likely to increase this figure rather than diminish it. Figures on the balance of the officers will not be obtainable until the official count has been made. Conservative estimates, however, show an average plurality of about 20,000.

Woman's Way.

Mrs. Triggs—Oh, dear, did you ever hear of such luck? Mrs. Waggsley has made me a present of a vase that must have cost at least $30. But that's the way it always goes! Bad luck comes when you're hard up and can least afford to face it.

Mr. Triggs—I don't understand you. Why should this beautiful present make you talk about bad luck and being hard up?

Mrs. Triggs—Why, you dull thing, don't you see that I shall have to give her something in return that will cost at least $5 more?—Chicago News.

Actions Versus Words.

"Johnnie, which does your sister like the best—Mr. Hankinson or Mr. Spoonamore?"

Johnnie—Well, Mr. Hankinson, he talks sweet to her, and Mr. Spoonamore, he always brings her candy. She likes him a heap the best. But she's going to marry Mr. Peluncle. He takes her to the theater in a kerridge.—Chicago Tribune.

Cheerful Soul

Good gracious, Bridget! I never dreamed that when I gave you ... afternoon off, you'd come back begging one of the funeral wreaths."

"Oi'm goin' to sind it to me sister's husband's aunt, poor soul. She has been sick foive wakes, an' Oi think it might cheer her up."—Indianapolis Journal.

Limited Opportunities.

"Charley," said young Mrs. Torkins, "it must be dreadfully unsociable to be a member of the French cabinet."

"The members are not selected for social reasons."

"I know it. But, as a rule, I don't believe they hold office long enough to learn how to pronounce one another's names."—Washington Star.

Infallible Signs.

Mr. Wrenter—Well, we might as well look out for steady cold weather now.

Mrs. Wrenter—When did you set up for a weather prophet?

Mr. Wrenter—That window which has been sticking fast all summer has come loose.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Artful Advertisers.

Watts—Women do dearly love the military.

Potts—Oh, yes; I think that is the instinct the department houses appeal to when they always advertise bargain slaughters.—Indianapolis Journal.

Refutation.

"What does that mean by saying you made all your money out of politics?" exclaimed the indignant friend.

"I don't know," answered Senator Sorghum. "I ain't accurate, anyhow. It was in politics that I made my money."—Washington Star.

Early Depravity.

"Let it alone, Willie," said the bad boy's mother. "Don't try to tear it open. It will be a beautiful butterfly next year."

"Mebbe it will and mebbe it won't," replied the bad boy, proceeding to dissect it. "All cocoons look alike to me."—Chicago Tribune.

Rude British Raillery.

First English Lord—Did you ever see so lean a girl as that girl Bertie has married?

Second English Lord—Never before. It is plainly another of those Angular-American alliances.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

One Advantage.

"Still, living in a boarding house has its advantages."

"I don't know of any."

"Well, there are generally a few umbrellas around there that one may borrow."—Philadelphia North-American.

Why They Wore Armor.

To such a pitch of exasperation did the practice of using buttons in the shirt drive the men of the middle ages that they adopted the plan of wearing brass or steel armor, fastened together with metallic bolts. The popular idea that men wore armor in order to fight in it is manifestly absurd, since no man could possibly have fought when incased in half a hundredweight of metal. Armor was worn solely in order to avoid the worry of shirts with missing buttons.

There were distinct advantages connected with the chain steel shirts. When one of these garments came home on Saturday night from the washerwoman, the owner could feel reasonably certain that the metallic clasps at the neck and in the bosom were all in their proper places, for no washerwoman could have succeeded in detaching them without the use of a cold chisel. If it did so happen that the washerwoman's husband had been run over by a steam roller while wearing a steel shirt belonging to one of his wife's customers, and one of the metallic fastenings had thereby been injured, the customer in question could not accuse his wife of negligence and demand to know why she failed to keep his shirts in proper repair.—London Answers.

Russia's Magnificent Churches.

"The churches in St. Petersburg are so magnificent that they go to your head," writes Lilian Bell in The Ladies' Home Journal. "We did nothing but go to mass on Christmas eve and Christmas day, for although we spent our Christmas in Berlin we arrived in St. Petersburg in time for the Russian Christmas, which comes 12 days later than ours. St. Isaac's, the Kazan and Sts. Peter and Paul dazed me. The icons or images of the Virgin are set with diamonds and emeralds worth a king's ransom. They are only under glass, which is kept murky from the kisses which the people press upon the hands and feet. The interiors of the cathedrals, with their hundreds of silver couronnes and battleflags and trophies of conquests, look like great bazaars. Every column is covered clear to the dome. The tombs of the czar are always surrounded by people, and candles burn the year round. Upon the tomb of Alexander II, under glass, is the exquisite laurel wreath placed there by President Faure. It is of gold and was made by the most famous carver of gold in Europe."

Lucid Explanation.

An Irishman walking over a plank sidewalk, in counting some money accidentally dropped a nickel, which rolled down a crack between two of the boards. The Irishman was much put out by his loss, trifling though it was, and continued on his way, swearing audibly.

Early the next day a friend, while walking by the spot, discovered the Irishman deliberately dropping a dollar down the same crack through which he had lost his nickel. The friend was of course much astonished at what he saw, and desiring to learn why Pat should deliberately, to all appearances, throw away money inquired his reasons and was fairly taken off his feet by the following explanation:

"It was this way," said Pat. "It's yesterday I was passin this way when I lost a nickel down that hole. Now, I reasoned that it wasn't worth me while to pull up that sidewalk for a nickel, but last night a scheme struck me, and I am dropping down the dollar to make it worth me while."—Chicago News.

At the Wrong Door.

"There be a stranger at the outer gate," said the bellboy with a low bow, "who knows not whence he comes."

"'Tis passing strange," quoth St. Peter. "What sayeth he concerning his home on earth?"

"But little," exclaimed the youth. "He says that it be located on a river so thick with mud it can be walked across in summer. He says that where he lived, life is held at naught and that money is the one god worshiped. That the most successful pickpocket is the best man, and that one day he may be worth $2,000,000 and the next be compelled to borrow 10 cents for a plate of baked beans. That it was a city of fat, diamonds and soiled linen, and that"—

"Hold, sirrah!" exclaimed St. Peter. "'Tis enough. Register him from Chicago and send him down."—Detroit Free Press.

War and Soldiers.

Old Thomas Fuller spoke thus of war in his "Holy State:" "A soldier is one of a lawful, necessary, commendable and honorable profession; yea, God himself may seem to be one free of the company of soldiers, in that he styleth himself 'a man of war.' Now, though many hate soldiers as twigs of the rod war, wherewith God scourgeth wanton countries into repentance, yet is their calling so needful that were not some soldiers we must be all soldiers, daily employed to defend our own, the world would grow so licentious."

Color East and West.

California is beautiful in color—red, purple, yellow. No other state and few countries can compare with it in this. When Californians come east, however, they are delighted with the scenery and they explain that it is the greenness of everything. Their colors are more gorgeous, but they are high and hot and dry, the damp, dark tones of the east are an æsthetic bath.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

It is calculated that if the children under the care of the London school board were to join hands they would reach from London to Carlisle, a distance of 800 miles.

A clock in St. Petersburg has 95 faces, indicating simultaneously the time at 30 different spots on the earth's surface, besides the movements of the earth and planets.

Captain Kidd In Story and In Fact.

Among all the pirates who have figured in history, legend or song there is one whose name stands pre-eminent in America as the typical hero of the dreaded black flag. The name of this man will instantly come to the mind of almost every reader, for when we speak of pirates we usually think of Captain Kidd.

In fact, however, Captain Kidd was not a typical pirate, for in many ways he was different from the ordinary marine freebooter, especially when we consider him in relation to our own country. All other pirates who made themselves notorious on our coast were known as robbers, pillagers and ruthless destroyers of life and property, but Captain Kidd's fame was of another kind. We do not think of him as a pirate who came to carry away the property of American citizens, for nearly all the stories about him relate to his arrival at different points on our shores for the sole purpose of hiding the rich treasures which he had collected in other parts of the world.

This could not fail to make Captain Kidd a most interesting personage, and the result has been that he has been lifted into the region of legendary romance. There are two Captain Kidds—the Kidd of song and story, and the other the Kidd of fact.—Frank R. Stockton in St. Nicholas.

Tennessee Assurance.

In March, 1796, the sheriffs of the territory which is now Tennessee took a census of their own, and as there were 60,000 citizens of proper age the territory declared itself a state, proceeded to choose a governor, a congressman and a legislature, which selected two United States senators. Congress, then in session in Philadelphia, had received no information regarding the action in the territory until congressman and senators walked in uninvited and announced that a state had been born, had elected its officers, made its laws and was running on scheduled time.

Congress was disconcerted and notified the applicants that the sheriff's census was irregular and they must wait at least for an invitation before they proceeded to sit at the federal table. Upon second thought congress decided to be courteous, and on June 1 admitted Tennessee, nearly three months after she had become a state by her own action. This state, whose coming into the Union was a little previous, was the third state in the Union to provide a president for the Union and the first outside the original 13, and with one exception the only state south of the Ohio and the James ever to furnish a president, and she has provided three, more than any other state except New York, Virginia and Ohio.—Boston Transcript.

Smart Boy This.

"Father," asked Tommy, the other day, "why is it that the boy is said to be the father of the man?"

Mr. Tompkins had never given this subject any thought, and was hardly prepared to answer offhand.

"Why—why," he said stumblingly, "it's so because it is, I suppose."

"Well, pop, since I'm your father, I'm going to give you a ticket to the circus and half a crown besides. I always said that if I was a father I wouldn't be so stingy as the rest of them are. Go in, pop, and have a good time while you're young. I never had any chance myself!"

Mr. Tompkins gazed in blank astonishment at Tommy. Slowly the significance of the hint dawned upon him. Producing a half sovereign, he said:

"Take it, Thomas. When you really do become a father, I hope it won't be your misfortune to have a son who is smarter than yourself."—London Graphic.

Sun and Weather.

On the 1st of July the earth receives 6 per cent less heat from the sun than it does during a corresponding period in the month of January. But winter does not occur then in the northern hemisphere, because the sun runs high in the sky and its rays fall upon the earth more nearly vertically than six months later, and, too, the day is much longer than the night, so that while the sun sends us a little less heat in total amount we get a much larger proportion of what it does give us than we do in January, when the total heat for the whole earth is greater.—New York Times.

Fun From the French.

A boulevardier is at once surprised and enchanted to meet an old time companion whose suicide had been reported.

"It's true," said the latter. "I did want to kill myself, simply from distaste of life. And then came along the doctors and discovered that I had a grave disorder. Since then, you understand, I take care of myself!"—Figaro.

Surely He Wouldn't.

"If I were only a man," she said, "we could"—

"Possibly we could," he said, "but the chances are we wouldn't. If you were a man, I wouldn't be here. I'd be saying nice things to somebody who wasn't a man."

Sometimes it is worth while to think of such facts as these.—Chicago Post.

The Tongue.

The tongue is divided into three regions of taste, each of which has its own special function. The tip of the tongue is chiefly sensible to pungent and acid tastes, the middle portion to sweets or bitters, while the back is confined entirely to the flavors of roast meats, butter, oils and rich and fatty substances.

A STRANGE SENTENCE.

Punishment For a Murder That Was More Cruel Than Death.

In 1801 a man died in the Catskills who had been condemned by one of the strangest sentences on record. Ralph Sutherland was born in 1701 and lived in a stone house near Leeds. He was a man of violent temper and morose disposition, shunned by his neighbors and generally disliked. Not being able to get an American servant, he imported a Scotchwoman, and, according to the usage of the times, virtually held her in bondage until her passage money had been refunded.

Unable to endure any longer the raging temper of her master, the girl ran away. Immediately upon discovering her absence the man set off in an angry chase upon his horse and soon overtook her. The poor woman never reached the house alive, and Sutherland was indicted and arrested on the charge of murder.

At the trial he tried to prove that his horse had taken fright, run away, pitched him out of the saddle and dashed the girl to death upon the rocks, but the jury did not accept the defense, and Sutherland was sentenced to die upon the scaffold.

Then came the plea of the insufficiency of circumstantial evidence and the efforts of influential relatives. These so worked upon the court that the judge delayed the sentence of death until the prisoner should be 99 years old.

It was ordered that the culprit should be released on his own recognizance, and that, pending the final execution of his sentence, he should keep a hangman's noose about his neck and show himself before the judges of Catskill once a year to prove that he wore his badge of infamy and kept his crime in mind. It was a more cruel decision than the sentence of immediate death would have been, but it was no doubt in harmony with the spirit of the times.

Thus Ralph Sutherland lived. He always lived alone. He seldom spoke. His rough, imperious manner had gone. Years followed years. At each session of the court the broken man came before the bar of justice and silently showed the noose that circled his neck.

At last his ninety-ninth year came, the time when the court had ordered that the utmost penalty of the law should be executed. For the last time the man tottered before the judge's bench, but new judges had arisen in the land, new laws had been made, old crimes had been forgotten or forgiven, and there was none who would accuse him or execute sentence. Indeed the awful restriction that had bound his life so intimately to the expiation of his crime was now legally removed.

But the spirit of self punishment continued, and when Sutherland, after he had passed his hundredth year, was discovered dead, alone in his house, his throat was found to be encircled by the rope which had been placed there nearly three-quarters of a century before.—Youth's Companion.

Value of a Constitution.

It happened in the spring of 1860, when Garibaldi was pursuing his expedition in Sicily and when the words "Constitution and Liberty" were on every Neapolitan's lips. "Why are you so anxious for a constitution?" asked a foreign tourist of his guide and donkey driver, while they were traveling through the mountains of Sorrento. "Well, you see, your excellency," was the answer, "because I think we shall be all the better for it. It is now close upon 26 years that I am letting out my asses to visitors from all countries—English, French, Americans; all of these have a constitution, and they are all rich."—Argonaut.

Mr. Aug. Peterson and family left yesterday for Bemidji where they will make their future home. Friends and relatives were at the depot to bid them good-bye.

Wolves are reported numerous all over the county. If we are not mistaken Ed. Whaley of this village can give all a very valuable receipe for exterminating them.

Now is the proper time to kill off the English sparrows that are so numerous around here. They are now bunched and with a shot gun loaded with No. 10 shot it would not take long to exterminate them.

Will Strenahan, traveling salesman for a Duluth hardware firm was here the first of the week assisting taking stock in Fred Eikhoff's hardware store preparatory to selling out to A. H. Weagant lately of Bemidji.

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

The three by five inch cards printed with poster type that read "Work for your own interests, vote for O. H. Myran for senator, vote for Frank M. Eddy for congress" proved to be a drawing card and another instance where advertising pays.

J. A. Dalnard went to Red Lake Falls last Saturday evening to meet a pugilist in a friendly four round boxing contest which was decided in a draw. W. A. Tyler and P. G. Paradis were present and they claimed that Jim is decidedly the best man of the two.

Now is a good time for those who have not used their homestead right to go up and secure one. Congressman Eddy has promised to give you one free—no dollar and a quarter per acre on the installment plan either. Thousands of acres up this way—ready to file on. Come early and avoid the rush.

Another one of those pleasant gatherings occurred last evening at the beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Patterson. Like the one Saturday evening it was in the shape of a surprise, it being the 15th anniversary of the marriage of Mr and Mrs. Patterson. Dancing was indulged in and games played and all had a real good time from all accounts.

The Imperial Drug Co. has ordered a large stock of wall paper which will be in at a later date.

J. M. Strenahan of McCook Nebraska son of Mr. and Mrs. Col. Stranahan of this city, will wed a charming young lady of Wm. Bryan's state to-day. This makes two of the Strenahan boys that have been married within a month and still there are two more left. W. C. and L. J. may fall in line in order to make a "first set of fours." The SPECTATOR with a host of friends congratulates Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stranahan.

It is stated that all code books carried on warships have leaden backs, to make them sink if lost overboard. The letters in the book, moreover, are printed with peculiar ink, which fades away when it comes in contact with the water. To make things still more safe the letters are changed every few months by the navy department. Even on the warships few officers knew their vessel's official signal code. Of course, these are wise precautions, but so far there have not been any code books lost overboard.

The SPECTATOR will take cord wood on subscription—a good way for some to settle their accounts, and others can come around and saw the same and we will give them credit for same.

Congressman Eddy ascribes a good share of his success to his drummer Capt. Hoffman, and recites to his friends the best joke of the campaign, and the joke at his expense—this taken from the Glenwood Herald—Eddy's home paper: "At St. Hilaire Mr. Eddy addressed the audience after the Captain had drummed. At the close of speech he approached a bright eyed boy who had attracted his attention by the apparent interest the lad took in political philosophy as he expounded it, and said, "Well, my boy, how did you like the speech?" "Oh, all right," was the answer, "but if I was you I'd let Capt. Hoffman drum all the time."

Dr. Robert Forbes of Duluth is here in the interest of the M. E. church.

Let every citizen be loyal to his home town. Always have a good word to say for it to strangers and friends: never let your personal feelings, jealousies or prejudices creep in or allow you to say one word against a neighbor You are not only doing him and your town an injustice, but you hurt yourself more than you do your enemy. Any man conversant with the world, will notice the venom in the talk of the man who has a bad word for his business opponent and the result is nearly certain to be that of the boomerang. The better you speak of his business ability, the more you praise his shrewdness and the louder you sing his praise and popularity, the more surely are you to reap the reward of being considered generous and public spirited.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Surprise Party.

Several teams loaded down with merry makers drove down to the beautiful farm residence of W. A. Sorsoiell last Saturday for the purpose of springing a surprise party on Mrs. Sorsoiell but like most parties of these kind a near and dear friend of the estimable lady gave the snap away, but never-the less they entered the doors to the number of forty-nine which was a surprise in itself. Rooms were cleared and dancing commenced, card parties organized and a general good time was had by everybody. At twelve o'clock a light repast was served after which general conversation parties held the floor until the hour of two o'clock had arrived when they all departed for home. From all accounts the people were so well pleased that there is danger of making another raid on Mr. and Mrs. Sorsoiell before "Gentle Annie" comes around.

To Thicken the Hair.

To thicken the hair try the following; Put a teaspoonful of salt into a cup and pour over it some cold tea from the teapot. Keep this where it can be rubbed into the roots of the hair two or three times a week, using the tips of the fingers for the purpose.

Dentistry.

Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at St. Hilaire December 7th and 8th. Parties wishing first-class dental work done will do well to call on Dr. Thomas early and make dates. Remember the dates. All work fully warranted.

Show Friday Night.

"Mark Twain's "Pudd'nhead Wilson" dramatized by Frank Mayo, was a houling success—houling because there was scarce a lull in the applause that greeted Mr. Mayo and his company from the moment they forced the audience until the loud and often repeated cries of "Success! success!" as the final curtain descended."—New York Recorder.

The above attraction will show at the Crookston Opera House Friday evening November 18. It is pronounced one of the best plays on the road and that is a sufficient guarantee. The way the trains run now there will be no loss in time and the theatre going people of St. Hilaire can well afford to take it in.

400 Pretty Homes and Gardens.

How general the use of photography is coming to be adopted by the modern magazine as a means of illustration is shown in the announcement of The Ladies' Home Journal that it is about to publish six new, distinct series of articles which will include not less than 400 photographs. The idea of the magazine is to present one hundred of the prettiest country homes in America, to encourage artistic architecture: one hundred of the prettiest gardens, to encourage taste in floriculture: seventy churches decorated for festal occasions of all kinds, such as weddings, Christmas and Easter services, etc.; some forty of the prettiest girls' rooms in this country; twenty-five floral porches and vine-clad houses; and the story of the native wild flowers in America, told in seventy-five photographs. Over 800 photographers, in every part of the country, were employed by the magazine to get these pictures, and several thousands of dollars were paid in prize awards for the best photographs. The choice was made out of over 10,000 photographs received by the magazine.

Good to Eat.

Ye editor has been experimenting with a new food product. The English sparrows have been picnicing on his back porch for sometime, the attraction being crumbs thrown out to bait them. With one of those new fashioned copper wire mouse traps we caught a mess of them. They were plump and fat, and broiled, were simply delicious. We can't commence filling orders yet for awhile though, as it took us a week to catch a mess, and the measly little rascals have got so cunning that they wont go near the trap now.—Lansing (Ia.) Journal.

—The Crookston College building is now complete and is modern and up to date. The Institution is one of the best in the northwest. It is cheap, thorough and practical. By writing Malm & Sathre a catalogue containing full information will be sent to any address.

The result of the recent election, while not unexpected, proves a source of surprise in many sections of the country and will be a subject of discussion for many days yet. It is evident from the returns that the war with Spain did not furnish much of an issue between the two great political parties. The Dingly Tariff law did not prove the drawing card that might have been anticipated, in the East, especially. Neither did the outcry of the gold-bugs against the dangers from the free coinage of silver have any appreciable effect. While one or two of the silver states have swung back into the Republican column by a scratch, these losses are more than counterbalanced by the return of states like Kentucky and Virginia to the Democratic or silver column.

It must be apparent to all, since the recent election, that the People's party seems hopelessly divided. The intense partisanship of the faction known as the middle-of-the-roaders and their rule or ruin policy, has resulted in the defeat of many silver candidates and the election of gold-bugs in several western states. This policy, however, if it has not already destroyed the organization, if continued must certainly do so, before the beginning of another campaign.

The republican papers ran riot with large headlines the day after election, telling of republican victory in Nebraska Jubilation over such a rebuke to Bryanism and the resulting defeat of Senator Allen was cut short by later returns showing victory for the Fusionists.

Watches Clocks and Jewelery.

I will carry a full line of watches, clocks and jewlery hereafter at Johnson's drug store. Anything you want that we do not carry in stock we will order for you at ten per cent above the wholesale prices and by doing this you will save money by dealing at home. Watches left for repairs will be sent down on first train and returned the next day. I shall continue to be at Johnson's drug store the 10th 11th and 12th of each month. Eyes examined free.

PROF. J. Q. ADAMS.
Red Lake Falls.

Gravel and Grit.

Many farmers in the west are totally devoid of gravel and grit. Fowls on such farms are expected to get along all right and do well with what grit they can get. For the purpose of grinding their food they pick up pieces of glass, buttons, and such other hard substances as they can find in their wanderings. If they find a roundish gravel they pick it up, but the gizzard is so constructed that a roundish gravel is voided and nothing but the rough stones retained, as no other will be of longer use. Sharp shells are preferable to rounded gravel. The reason why they require more shells when laying is that they require more food when laying, hence they will have greater need for something to aid in digesting it. We say digestion, for that is what it is. There are rellions of hens that never saw an oyster shell and there are many more that are not provided with sharp gravel or grit.

We believe many diseases of fowls are largely due to the absence or gravel to act as teeth for hens. Large quantities of grain are fed to them, and if there is nothing in the gizzard to properly grind it they get indigestion and die, and it is attributed to cholera, perhaps. Plenty of sharp grit should be provided fowls, and especially when large quantities of grain are fed to them. For vegetable and animal diet, such as grass and worms they will not need so sharp grit.

Many farmers erroneously suppose that when soft shelled eggs are found that it is due to lack of lime This is not the sole cause of soft shelled eggs. It is consed by over feeding. It is the over fed hen that lays the soft shelled eggs.

Consumption Cured.

Does Your Back Ache?

In constant pain when on your feet?

Is that dragging, pulling sensation with you from morn till night?

Why not put the medicine exactly on the disease? Why not apply the cure right to the spot itself?

You can do it with

Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Plaster

Immediately after the Plaster is applied, you feel its warming, soothing influence. Its healing remedies quickly penetrate down deep into the inflamed tissues. Pain is quieted, soreness is relieved and strength imparted.

No plaster was ever made like it. No plaster ever acted so quickly and thoroughly. No plaster ever had such complete control over all kinds of pain.

Placed over the chest it is a powerful aid to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral; relieving congestion and drawing out all inflammation.

A Soft Thing.

"Dear Sue," he whispered, "do you think if I married you your father would ever forgive me?"

"I'm sure he would, dear," she asserted, softly.

"And would he give us a house of our own?"

"I know he would, dearest."

"And would he give us enough to live sumptuously on?"

"I am sure of it, Harry."

"And would he take me into the firm?"

"Certainly he would."

"And let me run the business to suit myself?"

"Of course he would, darling."

She snuggled to his bosom, but he put her aside, coldly.

"I can never marry you," he said, hoarsely. "Your father is too eager to get you off his hands."

The "Royal Limited," the B. & O.'s new crack train, that is to be run between Washington and New York, is being exhibited this week by Manager of Passenger Traffic Martin in Chicago, Akron, Cleveland, Youngstown, Pittsburg, Wheeling, Columbus, Cincinnati and Washington. The train is just out of Pullman shops, and is the finest strictly daylight train in the world. It consists of dining car, parlor car and buffet observation car. The diners are named Waldorf and Astoria.

Wife—William, you owe me 21 cents.

Husband—Yes, but I paid the gas bill, and you owe me $1.35.

"Well, before that I paid the paper boy, and that made you owe me 60 cents."

"Yes, but there was 30 cents I paid out the other day for grass-cutting."

"I know it; but you borrowed 50 cents of me the next day, and—"

GIANT BEES IN PHILIPPINES.

Honeymakers Which It Is Proposed to Introduce.

There's one race inhabiting the Philippines which will be a welcome addition to American citizenship and will receive every facility and inducement to emigrate to the United States and engage in skilled labor in which it has no peer. This is the giant East Indian honey bee, whose immense capacity for making honey and wax has interested the department of agriculture in the consideration of any early effort to introduce it into the United States. To science this bee is known as apis dorsata. It is common throughout the tropical regions of the east, and in the Philippine islands the very largest variety of the species is found. It is nearly one-half larger than the American native honey bee and builds a comb, heavily with wax and honey, five or six times as large as those found in American orchards and forests. The question of acclimatizing these inhabitants of the Philippines in the colder latitudes of America is not discouraging. The giant bees are found in the mountain regions, all through India and have been seen busily at work at altitudes of 5,000 feet. In the Philippine islands, their colonies are most numerous in the mountains, as the unceasing quest of the natives for their honeycomb has driven them from the unprotected flatlands of the heavily wooded mountain regions. The Filipinos find their daily bread a rather easy proposition, but they are very fond of honey on the staff of life. There is also a large demand for wax for use in dyeing. The big bees build their hives on tall forest trees or on overhanging ledges of cliffs. When undisturbed branch swarms build near the parent colony, so that in a few years an immense bee settlement often grows up in the forest. The bees build a comb five or six feet long, four feet wide and from seven-eighths to one and one-half inches in thickness. The largest combs of American honey bees are not more than one-fifth of these dimensions. In appearance the giant bee is a smoky, glittering, iridescent black wasp-like figure, with orange bands encircling its body. There have been reports that this bee is most ferocious, and on account of its great size extremely dangerous, but Professor Frank Benton of the department of agriculture has seen and handled them in their jungle haunts, and he tells a different story. They are such busy and persevering workers, according to Professor Benton's account, that they have lost dexterity with their stinging apparatus, and though they may alight, full of wrath and with evil intent, upon human hand or neck, they do not handle their offensive weapon with skill, and it takes them twenty or thirty seconds to get their sting in working order. They are quiet as compared with American bees.

Petitions have been coming into the department of agriculture for years asking that the government introduce these giant bees into the United States. No attempt at bringing them here has ever been successful. Professor Benton tried to bring to the United States a swarm of these honeymakers which he captured in the jungle. While he was sick in bed, on his way home, no one else on the vessel would attend them and they all died.—New York Sun.

CLEVER MATCH MAKING.

Both of the American Girls Got Eligible Husbands.

"An exceedingly clever bit of match-making has just been executed by an American lady whose eldest daughter left New York with some friends on a European tour, and who, after doing the continent, returned to our gay capital for several months of rest and pleasuring," writes a resident of Paris to the New York Commercial Advertiser. "Attractive and clever, she had many suitors. She adroitly reduced the number to two. Then she wrote home to her mother, explaining the exact situation of affairs, adding that they were both so handsome, agreeable, well-conducted and rich that she could not decide between them, and closed with the question: 'What shall I do?' Ten days later she received a telegram from her mother: 'I sail tomorrow; hold both until I come.' The next transatlantic steamer brought the mother with her second daughter, just turned 18. On her arrival she at once took the helm of affairs, and she attended the wedding of her two daughters at the American chapel on the same morning."

WHAT THE LAW DECIDES.

The duty to trim a hedge fence planted by a landowner on his part of a division line is held, in Kinney vs. Kinney (Iowa), 40 L. R. A. 626, not to be imposed upon him by a statute which authorizes such hedges without specifying their height or how they shall be trimmed.

A state statute making it unlawful to keep a place in which the business of transmitting money for bets on horse races, etc., either within or without the state, is carried on, is upheld in State vs. Harbourne (Conn.), 40 L. R. A. 607, against the contention that it is an unconstitutional regulation of interstate commerce, as applied to the agent of a telegraph company who keeps such a place and transmits the money to another state by telegraph.

A signature to a blank transfer of stock showing that it is made by a guardian of infants is held, in O'Herron vs. Gray (Mass.), 40 L. R. A. 498, insufficient to pass a good title to a person taking the stock without any transfer on the books of the corporation, without injury and merely as a pledge for a debt from the cashier of the bank in which the shares were placed for safe keeping, but from which they were feloniously taken by the cashier.

India has perhaps a greater variety of plants than any other country in the world, having fifteen thousand native species, while the flora of the entire continent of Europe only embraces about ten thousand.

Moody Silenced the Noisy Rough.

On one occasion when Evangelist Moody was addressing a crowd of roughs, a man in the rear of the assembly kept shouting to the preacher: "Old yer jaw, there!" For some minutes Mr. Moody paid no attention to these insults, but at length he deemed it necessary to call the man to order, and, on the repetition of the cry, he calmly responded: "Don't forget that example is better than precept, my friend." The desired effect was instantaneous.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Ignore the Scrub Bull.

No dairyman should breed his cows to a scrub bull, if it be possible to get the services of a pure bred animal of a dairy type. Neither should a man that is trying to build up a dairy herd breed his cows to a bull of a beef strain. This is perhaps more commonly the error than that of breeding to a pronounced scrub. We have known a Shorthorn bull kept in a neighborhood where milk dairies were plentiful and to receive the patronage of most, if not all, of the milkmen, notwithstanding the fact that there was a first-class Jersey bull in the immediate vicinity. The cause for that was that the services of the Jersey bull were two or three dollars higher than those of the Shorthorn bull. Yet the men that were patronizing the Shorthorn bull expected to get something wonderful in the way of milkers. Some of them were quite surprised to find, when such calves came to the point of giving milk, they in no wise kept pace with the expectations that had been raised by the standards set by their mothers. They were good for "beefers," it is true, and the butchers often cast longing eyes at them, but as milkers they were failures. Yet that fact did not seem to impress the dairymen to any great extent. They seemed to think that getting a good milker was a matter of chance anyway.

There is some difference between the fees charged for the services of the right kind of a bull and the services of the wrong kind of a bull, but the difference in fees in no wise keeps pace with the difference in the value of the product as milkers. The scrub bull is a good thing to ignore, and next to him the bull of a beef breed, when it comes to a question of raising dairy cows. Every farmer should be willing to pay a good price for the services of a good bull, for only in that way can a man be induced to invest money in an animal of that character. The man that purchases a bull for neighborhood use must charge a good price, for he knows that he has got to get back his whole purchase price plus a fair profit for the use of the money and for labor, in a very few years. He also takes the risk of accidents and diseases. Dairymen should encourage the keeping of first-class bulls by giving a liberal fee for their services.

Profit Lies in Pure Bred Cattle.

The Journal has said that the demand for the best classes of cattle has kept their prices well sustained, and perhaps this is always true, says Texas Stock and Farm Journal. There are several reasons why it pays the best to produce the best. One of these is the condition presented by the market today, and, it might be said, presented always, that is, that the supply of animals of the really choice quality is so limited that they are put on a market where practically they are without competition. Choice cattle are now selling as high as at any time during the year, but their number is small. On the Chicago market of Sept. 21 the cattle receipts are reported at 18,400. Of this number, 17 head were good enough to bring $5.85 per 100 pounds. Only 16 head brought $5.70, and only 295 others commanded over $5.50. It is needless to say that these cattle were ripened for market at a cost far below most of the fed cattle that sold for much less. The difference lay mostly in the quality at the very beginning. Those that commanded the highest price were of a beef breed, early maturers, of a type that not only takes on more flesh in proportion to the feed consumed than is possible to inferior animals, even with the most scientific feeding, but that developed largely in proportion to the entire carcass those parts that supply the choicest cuts to the butcher. The time will come, and it is not far off, when men of moderate means cannot afford to raise scrub cattle, even upon the range, for the discrimination against them continually grows stronger.

Purchasing Good Fowls.

This is the time of year to purchase fowls for next year's laying. It is the time of year when on every farm more or less stock will be sold off. It is true that on many farms the stock to be sold will be that least adapted to future operations, but there are always many exceptions. Here and there are farms where the surplus must be sold off whether that surplus be good or bad in quality. Among the marketable product will be found many very good birds that may be bought at a very reasonable price. Agree to pay so much per bird and if need be add a little to the price for the privilege of going through the flock and picking out the best birds. Very often excellent specimens may be obtained in that way. Pick out birds with good combs, bright eyes, clear mouths, and smooth legs. Be sure that no contagious disease prevails in the flock. This fall purchasing is economical and a help to both the buyer and seller. If a man really needs a bird to put with his laying flock, the money he pays for a healthy bird this fall will be a good investment. It never pays to wait for a bird to hatch and mature if we have use for her and the money with which to buy, for the reason that a fowl that is good for anything will have paid for herself before a half year has passed.

Stimulating Honesty.

The way to avoid leading farmers into temptation in the matter of watering milk is to use the Babcock test in buying milk. It is the only honest way, by which we mean that it is the only way in which every man will get his own. We venture the assertion with the utmost confidence that if the test was adopted and every man's test put in plain sight in the creamery where the farmers could see it, many of the cows in that creamery would at once see the necessity of furnishing milk richer in butter fat. The reason that would begin the reform is not that watering milk is universal, or even common, but because the farmer would so handle his cows in the way of feed, and particularly in the way of milking, as to put more butter fat into the milk. Freedom from excitement and proper care, we think, would at once put more butter fat into the milk.

No hen can be forced to lay eggs. Nature gives her a certain period of time during which the eggs are to be developed. It is not difficult to supply her with the needed elements for this purpose, and any surplus bestowed will only be wasted.

How to Get Strong

A system which has become run down by the trying weather of the past summer is not in a condition to meet the severe winter of this climate and will easily fall a prey to disease unless a proper tonic is used.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best medicine in the world for building up and strengthening an enervated system.

Do not confuse these pills with ordinary purgative pills. They do NOT act on the bowels, thereby further weakening the body. They build up the blood and strengthen the nerves.

Major A. C. Bishop, of 715 Third Ave., Detroit, Mich., is a well known civil engineer. He says: "When I had my last spell of sickness and came out of the hospital I was a sorry sight. I could not regain my strength, and could not walk over a block for several weeks. I noticed some articles in the newspapers regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which convinced me that they were worth trying and I bought two boxes. I did not take them for my complexion but for strength. After using them I felt better, and know they did me worlds of good. I am pleased to recommend them to invalids who need a tonic or to build up a shattered constitution."—Detroit Free Press.

Long-Lived German Celebrities.

It is interesting to recall the extraordinary longevity of the three founders of the German empire. William I. was ninety-one; Moltke was also ninety-one, and Bismarck was eighty-two. But, indeed, all the most illustrious Germans of the latter half of the century have been long-lived. Ranke was ninety-one; Curtius was seventy-two; Mommsen is eighty-one. The poet, Gleim, was seventy; Wagner was seventy; Liszt, seventy-five, and the present chancellor is seventy-seven.

Johnny Knew Lions.

Two little boys were playing at Noah's Ark, and were quarreling over the procession of the animals. It appears that John, who knew a bit about natural history, objected to the deer being put near the lions, as these would have eaten them. Graham, who knew the Bible, said it didn't matter how they went in, for they all got in, according to the Bible.

"Yes," objected John, "but I want the deer to walk in. If you put them in front of the lions, they'll run in."

I concluded to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and found that it was all any woman needs who suffers with painful monthly periods. It entirely cured me.—MRS. GEORGE WASS, 923 Bank St., Cincinnati, O.

For years I had suffered with painful menstruation every month. At the beginning of menstruation it was impossible for me to stand up for more than five minutes, I felt so miserable. One day a little book of Mrs. Pinkham's was thrown into my house, and I sat right down and read it. I then got some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I can heartily say that to-day I feel like a new woman; my monthly suffering is a thing of the past. I shall always praise the Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me.—MRS. MARGARET ANDERSON, 303 Lisbon St., Lewiston, Me.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of painful menstruation and backache. The pain in my back was dreadful, and the agony I suffered during menstruation nearly drove me wild.

Now this is all over, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine and advice.—MRS. CARRIE V. WILLIAMS, South Mills, N. C.

The great volume of testimony proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safe, sure and almost infallible remedy in cases of irregularity, suppressed, excessive or painful monthly periods.

"The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year."

VOLUME XVIII. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1898. NUMBER 17

PHILIPPINES MUST BE OURS

THIS WILL BE MADE CLEAR TO THE SPANIARDS.

Two Alternatives Will Be Submitted to the Commission, to Accept a Sum of Money and Cede and Evacuate the Philippines or Lose Them by Conquest, With Possibly Other Territorial Losses to Indemnify the United States for Additional Expense of Conquest—Arbitration Cannot Be Considered.

Paris, Nov. 22.—The Spanish peace commissioners have been notified that the United States commissioners will be ready to treat with them in joint session this afternoon. Unless the Spaniards have an adequate reason for further delay the two commissions will join in the most important meeting thus far held. The American commissioners, in a written communication, will declare that the third article of the protocol, regarding the Philippines, is capable of only one fair construction; that no arbitration is needed to elucidate its terms, and that the United States cannot admit any other power to figure here purely as a lexicologist. They will maintain that the two commissions are charged to determine whether Spain or the United States shall in future own the Philippines. This will be accompanied by the clear declaration that the United States will possess the Philippines. Following this declaration the American commissioners will lay before the Spaniards two alternatives. First, to accept a sum of money from the United States and to cede and evacuate the Philippines; second, to lose the Philippines to the United States by conquest with the possibility of other territorial losses to indemnify the United States for additional expense of conquest. This communication may not be formally designated but it will lose none of the conclusiveness indicated by that word. This will be so plain that the Spanish commissioners will scarcely haggle for money on the first alternative nor cherish any doubt of American action under the second should the first be declined. No one here, except the American commissioners, knows how much will be tendered Spain as the cheapest and most humane way of settling the difficulty.

The Cuban question may come up again to-day. The American commissioners had thought the discussion on that point finished, but the Spanish commissioners are reported to have declared last week that the mortgages imposed by Spain on the Cuban as well as the Philippine revenues must not be impaired or questioned. This would compel the American commissioners soon—and probably to-day—to determine whether Spain means to repudiate the plain compact of the protocol to relinquish sovereignty over the title of Cuba. Three weeks ago the Spanish commissioners accepted the Cuban article in the protocol without conditions, save that its embodiment in the treaty should depend only on an agreement here on all the articles in the protocol. Recently, however, Spain's representatives have said that the Cuban matter had been only temporarily passed, and was still in abeyance.

AN AGREEMENT REACHED.

So It Is Asserted in Political Circles at Madrid.

Madrid, Nov. 22.—In political circles it is asserted that an agreement has been reached between the peace commissioners in Paris. The government, it is semi-officially announced, intends to notify the Cuban holders that Spain will not pay the Cuban debt, which will not be mentioned in the peace treaty. The government considers itself completely freed from these entanglements which fall upon the nation exercising sovereignty and collecting taxes in Cuba.

Italian Church Dedicated.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 22.—San Francesco, the first Italian church erected in Detroit, was dedicated yesterday. The occasion was rendered the more notable by the presence of Archbishop Martinelli, apostolic delegate from Rome to the United States, who performed the ceremony of blessing the new edifice, and also solemnized high mass and afterward preached a sermon in Italian. Bishop Foley and several of the clergy of the diocese participated in the services within and without the church.

Two Men Killed.

New York, Nov. 22.—G. W. Rogers of Camden, employed as a conductor on the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania road, and H. Gue, a baggagemaster, were killed in Rahway, N. J. They had completed their run for the day and were walking to the depot to take a train for home when run down by the Chicago limited.

Eminent Scientist Dead.

London, Nov. 22.—Sir George Smith Baden-Powell, the eminent political economist and authority on colonial affairs, member of parliament since 1885, is dead, aged fifty-one years.

Two Ladies Seriously Injured.

Baltimore, Nov. 22. — Misses Alice Clendennin and Lilian Rawlins, young society ladies of this city, were seriously injured in a driving accident. The horse became unmanageable and ran the carriage against a tree.

Wreck on the Big Four.

Alton, Ill., Nov. 22.—Eight persons were injured in a wreck on the Big Four railroad. The train was a special and was derailed by a cow at the Wood river bridge, three miles east of here.

DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP.

An Attempt Will be Made to Save the Maria Teresa.

Santiago, Cuba, Nov. 22. — The tug Chapman, of the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking company, has sailed for Cat island with all available apparatus for raising the wrecked cruiser Maria Teresa. The captain will report to Mr. Hobson and the officers of the United States navy at Cat island. The officers of the Chapman believe that it is imprudent to attempt floating the Teresa until the autumnal storms are past. In obedience to orders of the department the signal corps has begun active work in the construction of the government telegraph from here to Manzanillo over the road which Gen. Escoro, with 3,500 men, made a notable march of 170 miles in ten days last July. Thirty-five men are engaged in the work, carrying provisions for two months. The line to Guantanamo will be finished for service next week, another corps of men has been ordered by Gen. Wood to begin at once the construction of the line to Holguin and Gibara in order that all detached Americans shall be connected with the department. The course of the line to these places will be seventy-five miles directly across the island through a wild, uncultivated region.

Are Bad Indians.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 22. — Indian Agent Nickerson, of the Shoshone reservation, has received a telegram from the commissioner of Indian affairs notifying him Indians are illegally killing game and setting fire to forests in the Teton mountains of Wyoming. Capt. Nickerson has gone to Fort Washakie to investigate. The mischief is probably being done by the Bannock Indians.

Quiet at Pana.

Pana, Ill., Nov. 22.—No outbreak occurred between the negroes and striking miners, but the continued free use of firearms keeps up the excitement. The women and children living near the Springdale and Flatham mines were removed yesterday to other parts of the city. Maj. W. P. Butler has taken command of the militia and says he has instructions from Gov. Tanner that will enable him to prevent trouble.

Foundered at Sea.

London, Nov. 22.—A report entirely unconfirmed has been in circulation that the steamship Ville de Coblenz, of the North German Lloyd line, had foundered at sea with all on board.

Attempted Suicide.

Havana, Nov. 22.—T. Axhurst, agent for the Pan-American Express company, of Brooklyn, attempted suicide by cutting his throat in the Hotel Inglaterra. His condition is serious.

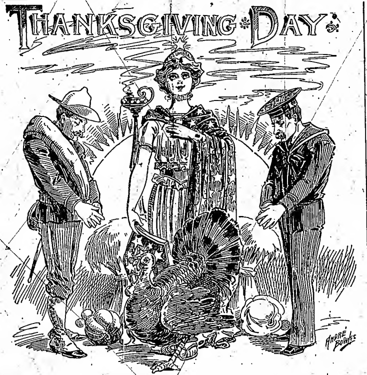
Killed by a Negro.

Cleveland, Nov. 22.—John Stefanicin was shot and killed and John Federico mortally wounded by Sam Carr, a colored man from North Carolina. Carr was drunk and a quarrel was precipitated with the above result.



Our Thanksgiving.

By Helen Chaffee.

We'd thought on this Thanksgivin' Day
To eat our punkin pie
With dear old mother at the farm,
As in the days gone by.

But greater Power than we had willed
That mother shouldn't stay,
An' then we couldn't bear the farm,
When she had slipped away.

So brother John, he sent me word
Ter visit him a spell,
An' eat in style Thanksgivin' Day
Up at his big hotel.

Well, sech a bill o' fare as that
I never see afore,
With all the things I ever eat,
An' several dozen more.

I labored hard to do my part
At talk an' etiquette;
Though John was hardened to this world,
Sometimes his eyes wuz wet.

I knew that though his purse could buy
The costliest kind of dish,
For mother's rore Thanksgivin' treat
He often felt a wish.

An' when I left him for the night,
I couldn't help but say,
"It ain't the food ner yit the style
That makes Thanksgivin' Day."

The Children's Thanksgiving

"We are the first," whispered Nellie, as she seated herself near the reading desk.

"How queer Sunday school looks when it is empty," said her sister Ruth, climbing up by her side.

A scuffling step sounded in the aisle.

"I know who that is," said Nellie, softly. "That is Annie Ridley. Her shoes are so old."

"Yes," said Ruth, peeping over the back of the bench. "Her shoes are all in holes, and her dress is patched, and——"

"Hush!" whispered Nellie.

Annie Ridley passed by without turning her head, sat down on the very end of the opposite bench, covered her shoes with her dress, and frowned.

"Is she cross?" asked Ruth.

"Hush!" said Nellie.

One by one the other scholars arrived, and as each prettily dressed girl came in Annie Ridley frowned at her and turned her head away. No one sat close to her—the children seemed rather to prefer to be crowded than to do so. At last one girl came to Nellie and said:

"Move up, please."

Nellie tried to move, but there was no room.

"Why don't you go over there?" said Ruth, pointing to the vacant seat by Annie.

"She is so ragged," replied the girl. "I don't like to."

"She is clean," said Ruth. "You may have my seat. I will go and sit by her. May I, Nellie?"

"Yes," she said, after a moment, "but you must be good."

"I am always good in Sunday school," replied the little one, and crossing the space between the benches she said to Annie:

"Please may I sit here?"

"You may if you want to," replied Annie, rather crossly.

All the scholars looked at each other and smiled. Her sister blushed.

"She is so small," she said to her neighbor.

Then the teacher entered, and Annie and Ruth were forgotten.

When the scholars stood up to sing, Ruth offered one side of her hymnbook to Annie, who took hold of the cover with the tip end of her fingers and sang from it.

"How nice you sing," whispered Ruth. "I wish I could sing so."

Annie smiled.

"You are too little yet," she said, and moved closer. Then when the singing was over she added: "You are the nicest girl in the school.

But Ruth did not answer, for just then a gentleman began to speak, and she knew that she must pay attention. So she listened and he told them the stories of Thanksgiving day and ended by saying: "No one is too poor or too small to be of use."

"He don't know everybody," whispered Annie. "He don't know us." Then she added suddenly: "Say, what is Thanksgiving for, anyhow?"

"Mamma said that long ago, when the people first came to America to live, they were so glad when the grain and pumpkins and potatoes were put away safe in the barn for the winter that they appointed one day to go to church and give thanks."

"Oh," said Annie, "but suppose they had no barn and no pumpkins and things. Then what?"

"We have no barn," replied Ruth, "but mamma buys the pumpkin and turkey at the store."

"My mother never does," said Annie.

"Why?" asked Ruth.

"Because she can't," answered Annie.

"Don't you have any Thanksgiving dinner then?" asked Ruth.

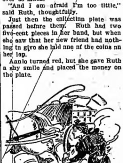
Annie shook her head.

"No," she said, "we don't often have bread enough, so you see I could not do anything for any one if I wanted to ever so much."

"And I am afraid I'm too little," said Ruth, thoughtfully.

Just then the collection plate was passed before them. Ruth had two five-cent pieces in her hand, but when she saw that her new friend had nothing to give she laid one of the coins on her lap.

Annie turned red, but she gave Ruth a shy smile and placed the money on the plate.



WAS PULLED TO THE PAVEMENT.

"You see you are not too little," she whispered.

"That was nothing," replied Ruth.

When it was time to go home she looked around to say good-by to Annie, but the child had slipped away.

Ruth was thinking so hard of poor little Annie that when Nellie dropped her hand and turned to speak to another girl she forgot to wait and started to cross the street alone, and half way across she tripped and fell. Before she could struggle to her feet a horse came swiftly around the corner. She had no time to be frightened, however, for the next moment her hand was seized and she was pulled back to the pavement.

It was little Annie Ridley, who had seen the accident, and ran back to help her.

"There," she said; "now wait for your sister."

She was darting away when Ruth caught her hand.

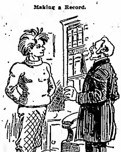
"You thought you could not do anything for any one," she said, "but you have saved me from being hurt. Mamma will be so glad."

"That was nothing," said Annie, and hurried away.

Of course when Ruth got home she told her mother all about Annie, and you may be sure Annie had a splendid Thanksgiving dinner that year, for Ruth's mother was so grateful to the little girl that she felt as though she could not do enough for her.

The next time Annie Ridley came to Sunday school she was dressed as nicely as any little girl need be, and her face wore a very pleasant expression instead of a frown.

Making a Record.



Reverend Party—"Young man, do you realize what you have to be thankful for this day"

Browny Footballist—"Sure, pop. I sent three fellers to the hospital today who belonged to the other team."

A Thanksgiving Discussion.

"What use are my riches," I grumbled,
"When there's never a sweetheart to share?"
With my watch fob I dallied and fumbled,
As we two sat alone on the stair.
The old folks still lingered o'er dinner,
While the youngsters played hide-and-go-seek.
Dolly said: "I'm afraid you're a sinner,
For you ought to be thankful and meek."

"To be thankful and meek were a folly
When singleness hangs like a pall,
And you don't know how lonely 'tis, Dolly,
To live in a bachelor's hall.
Why, I've turned on the dog in a passion,
Because the poor brute couldn't speak!
And here you go on in this fashion—
I ought to be thankful and meek!"

So we argued, and I had the pleasure
Of gazing down into her eyes,
Of taking her fairy waist's measure
Despite her reproving surprise;
Till at last I grew stronger and bolder,
While Dolly no longer demurred;
For as her dear head touched my shoulder—
"Now, will you be thankful?" she purred.

THE DYNASTY MAY CHANGE

EXTRAORDINARY RUMOR COMES FROM MADRID.

Queen Regent Likely to Retire to Austria With Her Son and Be Succeeded on the Throne by Don Carlos—Change to Take Place After the Treaty of Peace Is Signed—Plan Favored by the Emperor of Austria—Clergy and Military Said to Favor the Change—Aguinaldo and the Filipino Leaders Want Liberty or Death.

London, Nov. 22.—A curious report in regard to Spain's future government is current in diplomatic circles, which, from its source, is entitled to weight. It is that there will be a change of dynasty; but a peaceful change. The queen regent is said to be convinced of the hopelessness of her son ever reigning, and has, upon the advice of the emperor of Austria, decided, soon after the peace treaty is signed at Paris, and every one now regards this as only a question of days, to quit Spain with her family and Don Carlos will be proclaimed king. Everything is reported to be already arranged, and the army and clergy are alleged to be Eager for the Change.

According to the programme Don Carlos, so soon as things are running smoothly, will abdicate in favor of his son, Don Jaime. There is much agitation among the Filipino representatives in Europe over the Philippine situation. Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo, who has been in Paris watching the proceedings of the peace commissions, started for Washington yesterday. It is learned that on Wednesday last he called a meeting of all the Filipinos in Paris and London to meet him in Paris, when a committee was formed with the object of doing everything possible to induce France to recognize the so-called Filipino republic. A telegram was sent to Aguinaldo asking for instructions, and the following reply is said to have been received:

Liberty or Death.

"Insist upon absolute independence. Otherwise fight to the death. We are all united and the government is progressing smoothly. All the independent tribes of the mountains are submitting to Aguinaldo and the chiefs are bringing presents of gold."

The statements made by Gen. Wesley Merritt in reply to the appeal of the Filipino junta of Hongkong to the American people have caused indignation among the Filipinos. They are specially incensed at the suggestion that they would loot and at the idea of being governed as a colony. The Filipinos of Paris are sending a dispatch to President McKinley protesting against the assertions made.

HARVARD WINS FROM YALE.

A Great Game Yesterday, Resulting in a Score of 17 to 0.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 22.—Harvard defeated Yale by 17 to 0, winning a glorious football victory in a clean, fast game, abounding in brilliant plays. The Harvard eleven showed themselves masters of the game, excelling in every department and playing football well nigh marvelous under such miserable weather conditions. Every point was made by straightforward, open tactics, and no fluke or luck contributed in any way to the scoring. Harvard's great speed of play, power and concentration of attack, superior kicking and splendid physical condition won the game for her easily. The Yale players fought with stolid pluck. At the end they rallied grandly, out of sheer desperation, and finished strong.

TERRIBLE FIRE RAGING.

Ozark Mountains the Scene of a Terrible Conflagration.

Macomb, Mo., Nov. 22.—The largest and most destructive conflagration that has ever swept over the Ozark mountains since 1884 is now circumscribing this town for miles and miles north of and parallel with the Memphis railroad. The autumn leafy foliage has rapidly fallen since frost and are supposed to have been fired from a spark from a freight engine. A scope of country thirteen miles long is in flames; miles of fences, orchards, plantations, farms and dry pasture fields, stocked with cattle and other animals and many settlers' homes lie directly in the line of the ravaging monster. Whole neighborhoods are advancing to the scene but find themselves totally unable to check the flames. This town will probably be destroyed.

INHUMAN WRETCHES.

No Punishment Too Severe to Administer to These Men

River Junction, Fla., Nov. 22.—Three unknown white men went to the home of Andrew Shackleford, a farmer living about twenty miles north of here, and demanded food from his wife. She was alone with her three little children, and offered bread, saying it was all she had. They demanded meat. She became frightened and fled to the woods. The tramps then set fire to the house, roasting the little ones to death.

Engine Blew Up.

Lima, Ohio, Nov. 22.—A freight locomotive on the Chicago & Erie road exploded near here, killing the fireman and probably fatally injuring the engineer, conductor and a brakeman. About twenty-five cars were wrecked.

More Sugar

San Francisco, Nov. 22. — Five new sugar companies have been incorporated in the Hawaiian islands, and within two years from now the output of raw sugar will be increased considerably.

REGIMENT UNDER ARREST.

Sixth Virginia Negro Regiment Causes Much Trouble.

Macon, Ga., Nov. 22.—The Sixth Virginia negro regiment, that caused so much trouble at Knoxville, is under arrest in camp at Macon, all of their arms and ammunition having been taken from them. They are guarded by a battalion of the Tenth immunes, also negroes. About midnight last night about eighty of the Sixth broke through the lines at camp and started to town with the avowed purpose of killing the white provost guards, each man being armed with a rifle and a belt full of cartridges. Information concerning the action of the negroes was sent to provost headquarters and Gen. Wilson at once ordered Col. Gaillard, of the Third engineers, out to arrest the negroes. The Third went double-quick to the camp of the Sixth and found them rioting and disorderly. Further trouble is feared when the Sixth is released from the guard house.

CUBANS FRIENDLY.

Ovation for American Generals at a Society Function.

Havana, Nov. 22.—The first Cuban society function held since the close of the war took place in the yacht club building at Marianao beach in the form of a concert, the proceeds of which were to be a hospital fund. Society, which is now reforming its lines in Havana, turned out in full force, or at least that portion of it which is not intensely pro-Spanish in sentiment. Not less than fifteen hundred persons were present, many ladies for the first time in years discarding mourning. Over the yacht building the American and Cuban flags flew side by side. The commission and army were represented by Generals Butler and Green. Their appearance was the signal for a demonstration which proved that the report that Cubans are unfriendly to the Americans is anything but true.

KILLED BY FILIPINOS

Sergt. Price, of the Thirteenth Minnesota, Dead at Manila.

Manila, Nov. 22.—Three Filipino natives Friday night hired a carriage and afterward engaged in a dispute with the driver regarding the fare. Some members of the American military police attempted to arrest the natives, but the latter resisted, and Sergt. Price, of the Minnesota regiment, was stabbed and killed and three other American soldiers, Maher, Montgomery and Hoyt, were wounded. Maher shot one native dead. The others were arrested.

Quinine a Necessity

Washington, Nov. 22.—The treasury department has recommended to the secretary of war that quinine be admitted into Cuba and Porto Rico free of duty. Under the Spanish law the duty on quinine was about $13 per pound. The war department undoubtedly will concur in the treasury recommendation.

Explosion in Paris

Paris, Nov. 22.—A terrific explosion occurred in the Cafe de Champeaux, underneath the offices of the Havas agency. A woman was killed outright and eight other persons were seriously injured. It is thought that the explosion was due to ignited gas, but there are rumors of an anarchist plot.

More Space Alloted

Paris, Nov. 22. — Prof. Benjamin D. Woodward, assistant commissioner general of the exposition of 1900, has received the official figures showing that the United States have been allotted 200,700 feet of ground space in the exposition. The original concessions were of only 147,000 feet.

Yellow Fever in Cuba.

Washington, Nov. 22. — Dr. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, has arrived here as the member of a committee of the American Public Health association to confer with the president upon the plans to continue the investigation into the cause of yellow fever in Cuba.

Lawlessness in Havana

Havana, Nov. 22.—The police reports show an alarming increase of crime in this city, and the local papers report twenty to thirty hold-ups in broad daylight daily. Organized gangs of thugs and footpads terrorize the neighborhood in the outskirts of town.

Better Treatment for Dreyfus.

Paris, Nov. 22.—The government, according to the Temps, has ordered a modification of the prison treatment of Former Capt. Alfred Dreyfus. He is to be allowed to promenade and exercise six hours a day over an area of eight acres.

Ex-King Milan in Danger.

London, Nov. 22. — A special from Bucharest says two attempts have been made recently upon the life of ex-King Milan of Servia. The first was on a train, which was attacked by peasants with stones and pistols. Later a man entered Milan's bedroom, but was arrested before he could attack the ex-king.

Arrested at the Prison Gates.

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—Allan T. Alford, aged twenty-one years, was arrested at the gates of San Quentin prison just as he had gained his liberty from the prison, where he was serving a two years' term for forgery from Los Angeles.

Rear-End Collision.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 22.—A fast passenger on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton crashed into the rear end of a freight near here. Two trainmen and one passenger were injured. The engineer and fireman escaped by jumping.

For Breach of Promise.

Pittsburg, Nov. 22.—Anton Lutz, a prominent and wealthy brewer of this city has been sued for breach of promise by Ruth De Haan, the damages being placed at $100,000. The plaintiff is a widow and resides in Chicago.

Mill Burned.

Roseau, Minn., Nov. 22. — Sjoberg Bros.' new frame flouring mill at Badger, Roseau county, was destroyed by fire. Loss fully $2,000; no insurance. The mill was just ready for the machinery. Incendiarism.

THE CRYSTAL HOUR.

Amethyst, crimson and beryl,
A splendor of infinite sea,
In fathomless floods of beauty and peril
From the deeps of eternity.

With stately reverberant motion
And the breakers' whish and din,
The ceaseless anthem of turbulent ocean,
The surf comes rolling in.

While dim in the distance hover
The sea birds, a white winged fleet,
And exhausted waves, their ecstasy over,
Make ripple marks at our feet.

Soothed is the flush and the fever
Of earthly passion and power,
And the rested heart shall treasure forever
The touch of this crystal hour.

BREAD OF THE NATIONS.

How the Staff of Life Is Made Among Various Peoples.

It is a curious and interesting study to compare the various materials which serve the different nations of the world as the basis of their bread. In this country, where good bread, made from spring and fall wheat flour, is within reach of all, rarely a thought is given to the fact that, after all, the inhabitants of only a small portion of the earth's surface enjoy such food. In the remoter part of Sweden the poor make and bake their rye bread twice a year and store the loaves away, so that eventually they are as hard as bricks.

Farther north still bread is made from barley and oats. In Lapland oats, with the inner bark of the pine, are used. The two together, well ground and mixed, are made into large, flat cakes, cooked in a pan over a fire. In dreary Kamchatka pine or birch bark by itself, well macerated, pounded and baked, frequently constitutes the whole of the native bread food. The Icelander scrapes the "Iceland moss" off the rocks and grinds it into flour, which serves both for bread and for puddings.

In some parts of Siberia, China and other eastern countries a fairly palatable bread is made from buckwheat. In parts of Italy chestnuts are cooked, ground into meal and used for making bread. Durra, a variety of the millet, is much used in the countries of India, Egypt, Arabia and Asia Minor for making bread. Rice bread is the staple food of the Chinese, Japanese and a large portion of the inhabitants of India.

In Persia the bread is made from rice, flour and milk; it is called "lawash." The Persian oven is built in the ground, about the size of a barrel. The sides are smooth mason work. The fire is built at the bottom and kept burning until the walls or sides of the oven are thoroughly heated. Enough dough in form a sheet about one foot wide and about two feet long is thrown on the bench and rolled until about as thin as sole leather, then it is taken up and tossed and rolled from one arm to the other and flung on the board and slapped on the side of the oven. It takes only a few moments to bake and when baked it is spread out to cool. This bread is cheap (1 cent a sheet); it is sweet and nourishing.

A specimen of the "hunger bread" from Armenia is made of clover seed, flax or linseed meal, mixed with edible grass. In the Molucca islands, the starchy pith of the sago palm furnishes a white, floury meal. This is made up into flat, oblong loaves, which are baked in curious little ovens, each being divided into oblong cells to receive the loaves.

Bread is also made of roots in some parts of Africa and South America. It is made from manioc tubers. These roots are a deadly poison if eaten in the raw state, but make a good food if properly prepared. To prepare it for bread the roots are soaked for several days in water, thus washing out the poison. The fibers are picked out, dried and ground into flour. This is mixed with milk, if obtainable; if not, water is used. The dough is formed into little round loaves and baked in hot ashes or dried in the sun.—Sanitary Record.

Cost of Elephants.

It is somewhat interesting to compare the weights carried by elephants in the tin producing districts of the Malay peninsula with those used in the long journeys and mountainous country of the Lao states. In the peninsula the distances are seldom more than at most three or four days' march, and the elephant is expected to carry as much as 900 or 1,000 pounds, besides his mahout and howdah. The latter is often a mere brace of panniers slung together so as to rest one on each side of the backbone and covered sometimes with a light barrel roof of bark. A good tusker carrying 6½ hundredweight will fetch about £56, and a female which can bear eight hundredweight is worth about £45.

In the Lao states, where journeys of ten days or three weeks are frequent, the average weight hardly exceeds 300 pounds, or one-third of what is usual in the peninsula. The prices in various parts of the country vary considerably. When we were on the Me Kawng and in Muang Nan in 1893, a good tusker could be had for £32 and a female for £24. At Chieng Mai, where good teak hauling elephants are in great demand, a tusker may fetch £150 and a female anything from £50 to £100, according to her strength and ability.—Geographical Journal.

Consistent.

They tell a story to the effect that when the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals proposed to establish a branch in a leading city of Spain the municipal body courteously accepted the proposal and offered to hold a grand bullfight at once to furnish the funds.—Troy Times.

As early as 1612 the French began to advertise in a paper called the Petites Affiches, and ten years later the first bona fide attempt at printing a newspaper was made in London. Among the very earliest mercantile advertisements to appear in England was one advertising the sale of tea. It appeared in The Mercurius Politicus.

WHEN OLD AGE COMES

IT DEPENDS NOT UPON YEARS, BUT UPON VITAL FORCE.

The Greatest Enemy to Long Life Is Self Indulgence — Why People of Advanced Age Should Eat Sparingly and Drink More Freely.

Some men are 20 years younger physically and mentally than others are at the same age. It is self evident that old age does not begin at any set time, so far as the divisions of time divide the periods of life, but that it has to do with that subtle agent known as the vital force, an acquaintance with which enables the analytical mind to become proficient in prognosis by weighing in the balance the vitality on the one side with the pathology on the other.

The indication of old age may be noticed by ocular inspection. The figure stoops, the walk is less elastic, the rounded figure gives place to the spare habit of body, the wrinkle of time mounts the cheek, while the frost of many winters mantles the brow. The typical healthy person who attains old age is spare of body, and old age emphasizes this fact by causing a paucity of adipose tissue. So the wrinkle of time, after all, is kindly in nature.

Physiologically we notice that a diminution of the physical energy is accompanied by a corresponding diminution of the power to eliminate waste material from the body. Elasticity and strength give place to hardness and brittleness of nearly all the tissues of the body. The general health may be good, because there is a harmonious balance between the action of the nervous system and the circulatory system.

However, the former is less responsive to external stimulation, and the latter is less vigorous in old age. The vital processes conducted by the circulation, respiration and metabolic changes in the tissues are less active. There are diminished adaptability of the whole system to changes in the environment and less ability to meet the requirements of emergencies, such as sudden demands of muscular and mental strain.

The senile conditions and diseases are numerous and obvious—in the first place, weakened digestion and assimilation. The weakened vigor of the circulation and glandular system necessarily weakens the power of eliminating the excrementitious substances, which gives rise to pernicious nutrition, and that in turn is the cause of the tendency to develop malignant or benign growths in different parts of the body in old age.

The strong tendency to overeat and underdrink, together with the natural decline of functional power, gives rise to a condition of lithemia, which is the prime cause of the majority of deaths in old age. In the healthy state that great glandular furnace and chemical laboratory, the liver, is capable of transforming an excess of nitrogenous matter, which may result from metabolism of tissue or exist in the food consumed, into the highly soluble excrementitious substance known as urea. This excrement is eliminated from the blood mainly by the kidneys and to a much less extent by the skin.

Now, in old age, with the functional power and natural vitality on the wane, together with the strong tendency to overtax this function of the liver, we find this waste is not converted into urea, but into uric or lithic acid, a comparatively insoluble excrementitious and toxic substance, which if it appears in the blood in sufficient quantity and is long enough continued in circulation through the urinary tubules sets up irritation and inflammation, which inevitably impair the function of the renal epithelium, and we find this poisonous substance is not eliminated from the system, but accumulates in the blood.

This explains why old people are almost universally troubled with disease of the liver, kidneys, bladder and prostate gland. The unstable circulation, atheromatous changes and brittleness of the walls of the blood vessels, with the tendency to overtax the digestive apparatus, are the cause of many old people going to "that bourn from which no traveler returns" by the apoplectic route.

Hereditary diseases naturally manifest themselves when the vitality is below a certain level, so we are not surprised to find certain dyscrasia and latent tendencies manifesting themselves at this period of life, when the natural vitality is waning. The diseases most frequently found to be the cause of dissolution among the aged are pneumonia, diseases of the liver and urinary organs, consumption, cancer, apoplexy and gangrene.

The enemy to longevity, the author continues, is self indulgence. People who have reached an advanced age may prolong their lives and greatly add to the comfort of their declining years by diminishing the quantity of food ingested, thereby avoiding too large a residue of waste matter either in the intestinal canal or in the form of excrementitious matter in the blood.—Journal of American Medical Association.

Well Fed Fighters.

Says the London Chronicle: "Admiral Dewey's interruption of the battle of Manila bay to give his crews the opportunity of breaking their fast recalls our own 'glorious 1st of June,' when Earl Howe, before he gave the French such a hammering off Ushant, hove to for an hour before attacking to permit of his men fortifying themselves for the coming fight with a good meal—a pause which caused much conjecture in the minds of the astonished French. It has ever been the Anglo-Saxon way to fight, if possible, on a full stomach. Wellington once said that if ever he wanted an Irish or a Scotch regiment to reach a particular point by a certain hour all he had to do was to promise the former a drink on getting to its destination, the latter its pay, but that the corresponding bait to an English battalion was a good dinner of roast beef."

STUMP PENCILS MASCOTS.

Members of Gotham's Stock Exchange Superstitious About Lead Sticks.

"Talking about hoodoos and mascots," said a member of the Stock Exchange, "the boys on the floor of the exchange are as superstitious as a lot of sailors. If you don't believe it, you look at the lead pencils they are using the next time you are in the building.

"You won't find a man using a long lead pencil. Why? Because a long pencil is a 'hoodoo' of the worst kind. They always cut a new pencil in half before they sharpen it. Some of these pencils acquire the reputation of being lucky.

"Less than a week ago I came down without my pencil, which, by the way, is a lucky one—every memorandum made with that pencil results in a profit for me—and I borrowed one from a friend on the floor. He handed me a stump about an inch long and said, 'You can use that; it's a lucky pencil.'

"Sure enough, I made two deals in the morning, and each netted me a handsome profit.

"I was about to make a memorandum of some stock I had bought when my friend approached and said:

" 'Here, take this pencil and let me have mine again. I've lost on every deal since I loaned it to you.'

"Sure enough, I lost on that deal, and the luck went back to the owner of the pencil.

"When you get hold of a lucky pencil, you want to hang on to it.

"Some of the boys have little lucky pencils not more than an inch long, and they guard them as they would their lives.

"If you, through carelessness or accident, cause them to break the lead point they lose whatever regard they have for you and forever afterward regard you as inimical. Some of them wouldn't take $5 for a little piece of pencil worth considerably less than a cent."—New York Press.

STING OF THE BEE.

Poisonous Properties That Lurk In the Honey Maker.

The chemical and toxic properties of the poison of the honeybee have been a subject for long study by a German scientist, Dr. Joseph Zanger. During his investigation Dr. Zanger employed 25,000 bees. He found that the fresh poison is clear, like water, of an acid reaction, bitter taste and of a fine aromatic odor.

On evaporating and drying at a temperature of 100 degrees centigrade (212 degrees F.) a gummy residue is left. It is soluble in water; with alcohol it forms an emulsionlike mixture. The aromatic odor is due to a volatile substance, which disappears on evaporation and is not poisonous. The poisonous constituent is not destroyed by short boiling nor by drying and heating the residue to 212 degrees F. nor by the diluted acids or alkalis.

Dr. Zanger has proved the existence of formic acid, but he has also proved that that is not the poisonous principle. The latter is an organic base, soluble, with difficulty, in water, but kept in solution by an acid. On the healthy skin neither the bee poison nor a 2 per cent solution of the poisonous principle has any effect, but they act as powerful irritants on the mucous membranes.

His tests made on rabbits and other animals show that when the poison is brought in contact with the eye there follow lachrymation, hyperemia, chemosis and croupous membrane or conjunctiva. The general condition is also affected; the animals become melancholy, take no food, but are very thirsty, and the urine shows small amounts of albumen.—Philadelphia Record.

A Louisville Slander.

Not long ago there was put in at the Louisville tele[illegible] hange a switch board run enti[illegible] ttery, so that the amount of cal[illegible] definitely indicated by expenditure of force. The chart showed correct business conditions up to 10 a. m., and then there came a most unaccountable drop. The electrician was bothered. There must be a leakage, a weakness, somewhere. Again and again the same remarkable and instantaneous drop showed on the chart; and the perplexed telephone engineer went from Chicago to Louisville to investigate.

He was with a group of anxious managers and directors waiting for the significant hour to approach, when suddenly some one looked at his watch and called, "Gentlemen, we are losing time," whereupon one and all arose and passed to the nearest buffet. That was crowded, and they tried another, only to find it also thronged. Then the electrician looked at the hour. It was just past 10 o'clock, and a daily scene was being enacted. All Louisville was out taking a drink.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

Circumstances are still much in the habit of altering cases. It is said that a Yorkshire socialist was explaining to a friend the principles of his belief, and that he made the statement at the outset that all possessions should be shared equally.

"If you had two horses," said the friend, "would you give me one?"

"Of course," said the socialist.

"And if you had two cows, would you do the same?"

"Of course I should."

"Well, suppose now," said the friend slowly, "that you had two pigs, would you give me one of them?"

"Eh, tha's gettin ower near home," said the other slyly. "Tha knows I've gut two pigs."—Youth's Companion.

Judge Ira B. Mills retires from the railroad and warehouse commission, Jan. 1st. He is a republican, and the board now consists of two republicans and one democrat, Gen. Becker. Mr. Lind will doubtless appoint a democrat or populist to succeed Judge Mills. A sentiment is growing in favor of the appointment of P. M. Ringdal of Crookston on the board. Ringdal's specialty in the senate was railroad legislation and indeed, it is whispered that his nomination for congress was in part a clever scheme of the railroads to get him out of the legislature. His appointment would please the farming population hugely. It would doubtless mean the retirement of A. C. Clausen as grain inspector. This seems to be a general demand among wheat growers. Among the farmers the wheat inspection matter and the binding twine question were the most important issues of the campaign, and made many votes for Lind.—Minneapolis Times.

THE TRADE JOURNAL.

An Enlargement and a Great Premium Offer.

Since H. P. Hall purchased the St. Paul Trade Journal it has been rapidly forging to the front, both in increase of subscriptions and in advertising patronage. Its success has been so marked that it was given a material enlargement on the 11th inst, by the addition of a column to the page, the standard number of at least 31 pages being maintained and often times more. It gives much entertaining reading matter in this space, as well as valuable business information and market quotations and is a publication the business men of the Northwest cannot afford to do without. The Trade Journal is issued weekly at the subscription price of one dollar per year, and as an incentive for subscriptions Mr. Hall offers, for a limited period, to send The Trade Journal for one year and the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a volume containing 1,231 pages and 80,000 words, for one dollar. The dictionary will be sent express charges prepaid so that the total cost for fifty-two copies of The Trade Journal and a standard unabridged dictionary will be one dollar.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Now is the proper time to pay the printer. Please remember this as we have use of money once in a while too—and this is supposed to be harvest time with us. Up to date our crop has almost been a total failure.

—The SPECTATOR is the official paper of the village and county. Now is the time to subscribe. $1.00 per year if paid in advance—otherwise $1.50.

The Royal Neighbors dance has been postponed on account of the death of Mr. Fred Eikhoff who was a member of the order.

The new Drug Store have just received an elegant stock of holiday goods which will be displayed in a few days. Make your selection now.

Rev. H. Logan will preach in the M. E. church on Sunday Nov. 27th at 11 a. m. Subject: "A christian's place in the world. Everybody is invited.

The family of Mr. A. H. Weagant arrived from Bemidji Monday and are now nicely located in one of the new houses on the west side of the depot.

Monday was what might be termed the first winter day and it came upon us with a vengeance. We hope all our readers are prepared and in good warm winter quarters.

Chas. Rapp had the misfortune to loose his diamond stud last Sunday while at Thief River Falls. It is only a few months ago that he lost the diamond set from his ring.

The thermometer registered 17 degrees below zero yesterday morning and the English sparrows were warbling—perhaps someone will rise and remark—indication of fine weather.

Mr. Overpeck, adjuster for the St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. was here yesterday enroute to Red Lake Falls where he goes on business connected with the late fire at that place.

Daniel Patterson invested in a pair of Clydesdale horses last week that weigh over thirty-two hundred pounds. They were bought for the purpose of hauling the Standard Oil tank to the different towns in this county.

It is reported that Sam Dalnard has purchased half interest in the Paradis place.

Mrs. G. H. Jay of Great Falls, Mont. who has been visiting with her sister Mrs. A. R. Jones of this city for the past three weeks will leave for home on Friday.

Fred Eikhoff is building a carpenter shop next to the city hall and will soon be in shape to do all kinds of cabinet and carpenter work. He is a first-class workman and everything he does, he does it right.

There was nothing perticularly wrong with the covers of the Crookston Times Thanksgiving number—everything was there from the turkey to the foot ball player and even down to the band of Pilligers' Indians.

The St. Paul Globe gives timely advice and says:—"Boys, the season is approaching when you can go out and become an angel with your skates on. If you want to Spend Christmas at home, stay off the ice another month."

Michall Fricker, the feed mill man is now a residence of St. Hilaire moving his family down from Thief River Falls last week, it being the first opportunity to get a vacant house for many months. We welcome the family in our midst.

Messrs. Montague and Kirsch have leased the Crookston Opera House for another two years. They are successful managers and that can only be accomplished by giving the public good attractions—and that has been done.

Chas. E. Lord came back Saturday with an honorable discharge and will again make St. Hilaire his future home. Mr. Lord joined Co. "L" last spring and has been a faithful soldier up to the time of mustering out the 14th Minn. which occured last Friday.

Sheriff Norland was in the village yesterday for the purpose of taking widows Bossard and Baxter with children to their home at Eagle Bend, Todd county. They have been residents of the village for the past three months. They solicited aid from Red Lake county which was granted.

From all accounts things look a little suspicious over election returns in the second ward in Red Lake Falls. Henry Norland was elected by three majority and that ward turned the tables by giving Sampson one majority the next day—they say the ballot box was not sealed. If this mistake happened in some of the rural districts it might look different in the eyes of many.

Tie a string about a yard long to a common door key and take the string in the right hand and holding it so the key will clear the floor four or five inches. If you hold the string steady enough, the key will begin to swing back and forth in a straight line. Let another person take your left hand in his and the motion of the key will change from a pendulumlike swing to a circular swing. If a third person will place his hand on the second person the key will stop. Try it and explain if you can.—Ex.

The Imperial Drug Co. has still a few eight day clocks left which will be sold cheap to make room for new goods. Every clock guaranteed for one year.

John Dean, of Thief River Falls aged 40 years died last Friday of quick consumption which he contracted while in Alaska during the gold excitement last spring. Being a member of Young Pine Lodge, that body took charge of the funeral which was held Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. An invitation was extended to St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147 and the following members from this village were present at the funeral services: Messrs. Markham Rapp, Hoff, Nolan, Patterson, Penno, Rosenberg, Soli, Jones, Sorsoleil, Steene Gjersvold, Parker, Hall, Paradis, Johnson, Oldne, Strawbridge, Dalaard and Lecousinier.

Thomas Oldne was the happiest man in town last Friday morning and it was all on account of his son Oney saving his residence from the firey fiend. It happened in this way as near as they could figure it out. A lamp was left burning in a hall-way which is usually the case when Mr. Oldne is away from home and at this night he happened to be attending lodge. It must have exploded as Oney heard a sharp noise and a little while after smoke filled the room where he was lying in bed. He got up and looked around the house only to see flames creeping along the wall, and being of a cool disposition grabbed a quilt and commenced to smother the flames at the same time calling to his assistance his mother who in turn used a mattress and between the two had the fire extinguished in a short time.

The SPECTATOR is a cash in advance paper, and if you don't want it, just pay up and stop it. A man that wont pay his board and paper bill is too small to live.

Red Lake Falls was scorched last Thursday evening to the extent of over half a block. They are talking of putting in water works. The losses are:—J. M. Bray, house and saloon stock, loss $400 on stock, $800 on building, $400 insurance; Aug. Riechel & Sons, $2,000; Dr. J. Lemieux, residence and two storerooms, loss $3,000 insurance $1,500; A. E. Garceau, loss on building and stock, $3,000, insurance, $1,800; A. F. Hibner, drug store, loss, $1,900. insurance, $1,200; P. E. Floidnd, loss $1,000, no insurance; Lemieux Brothers stock of general merchandise $8,000, insurance $2,600; Horowitz Brothers, loss $3,000 on dry goods and clothing. W. A. Schrieter's drug stock was damaged $200.

The SPECTATOR will take cord wood on subscription—a good way for some to settle their accounts, and others can come around and saw the same and we will give them credit for same.

Sudden Death.

It is our sad duty to chronicle a death in our midst, that of Fred Eikhoff, who died yesterday afternoon of heart disease while working in the rear of his business establishment splitting wood. Mr. Eikhoff had been in his usual good health and only Tuesday morning he remarked that he wished this cold weather would let up so he could get his carpenter shop finished. Mr Eikhoff was a member in good standing of the St. Hilaire Camp of Modern Woodman and that body will take charge and make arrangements for the funeral which will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad hour of bereavement. John and Christ Eikhoff of Grand Forks and Crookston respectively are expected up to-day to attend the funeral of their brother Fred.

The Scandinavian Ladies' Quartette Concert Company.

The above company will appear in St. Hilaire Friday evening Nov. 25th at the M. E. church. Don't miss this rare treat, it is the guaranteed musical attraction of the season. What the press of the Northwest say about the Co:

The blending of their fresh voices was indeed very sweet and the shading in their quartette work was perfect.—Minneapolis Times.

Every piece on the program was good and the young ladies are all Artists in their special lines.—Fertile Journal.

The quartette work was grand, to say nothing of the numerous solos, and was by far the superior of any entertainment in this line that we have had the good fortune of listening to for a long time.—Blue Earth City Register.

There is great sweetness in the voices of the quartette and their vocal efforts are deserving of the public's warmest support and praise.—Crookston Tribune

Dentistry.

Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at St. Hilaire December 7th and 8th. Parties wishing first-class dental work done will do well to call on Dr. Thomas early and make dates. Remember the dates. All work fully warranted.

To Prevent Kicking.

A grave annoyance is the presence of a kicking cow. It is often easier to milk fine docile animals than one which has the kicking habit. The following suggestion for a prevention measure is made by the American Cultivator, and may prove worth trying:

"If a ring is put in the cow's nose and her head is fastened up so that she cannot get it down, she cannot kick. Each vicious kick is accompanied with a lowering of the head, as if to hook. When the cow goes to lower her head she finds that the ring in her nose hurts her and at once will make her desist. It is a very simple method, and has always proved effectual when tried."

Winter Care of the Calf

A great deal of the profit of weaning calves, whether grown by hand or nursed by their dams, will depend very much on the kind of care they receive between this time and the 10th of May, says Wallace's Farmer. We do not care how good their breeding may be or how well they may be fed as yearlings or finished for the market, they will not realize their full promise and possibilities unless they are properly cared for the first winter. We noticed in our recent range over the prairies of Texas on the gulf coast that the pigs from the razor-backs, semi-wild hogs of that region, were quite respectable so long as they were sucking the dam. We noticed also that the calves on the range were quite respectible in form and size before weaning time, and only after weaning did either pigs or calves take on their roughness of form which characterizes the first as a razor-back and the second as a long-horned Texan. It is the mistakes of the first winter that are serious in handling any kind of young stock, for nature is engaged in laying the foundation, and shapes and molds the frames in accordance with the environment of food or shelter, shrinking it and roughening it under a hard environment in order that life may be preserved at all hazards; in other words, stunts it in order that it may pass through life with less food.

The Best Cough Remedy on Earth.

Political Plums.

The patronage that John Lind will have to dispose of when he assumes the cares of office includes many good official positions. Among them are the following:

Food and dairy commissioner, assistant commissioners, secretary, chemist butter expert and seven inspectors.

Superintendent of public instruction, assistant superintendent, clerk, and stenographer.

Public examiner of banks, four assistants and two clerks.

Adjutant general, an assistant adjutant general, stenographer and military storekeeper.

State librarian and assistant custodian of the statehouse and necessary janitors, watchmen, engineers, etc.

Two members of the state normal school board, two of the corrections and charities, a trustee of the St. Peter hospital for the insane, a member of the state public school board, a member of the state training school board, a member of the state prison board, two members of the soldiers' home board, three of the state board of health, three of the board of medical examiners and two members of the state dental board.

Six game and fish wardens on January 1st, an executive agent and 100 deputies.

Insurance commissioner, deputy, clerk and stenographer.

Five inspectors for the surveyor in general and five inspectors of steam vessels.

A member of the state railroad and warehouse commission, to succeed Judge Ira B. Mills. But the warehouse commission names its own chief grain inspector.

Oil inspector, with a very rich "graft."

The governor's official household numbers his private secretary, executive clerk, stenographer and doorkeeper. The private secretoryship will of course go to some personal friend of the governor.

It is said that Col. Bobleter, Gov. Lind's warm personal friend, will likely be the probable successor of Bank Examiner Kenyon and Chairman L. A. Rosing of the democratic state central committee, the successor of Judge Ira B. Mills, of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

It is confidently asserted that Alex. McKinnon of Crookston will surely be remembered by Mr. Lind with whom he has made two campaigns, with something good.

Watches Clocks and Jewelery.

I will carry a full line of watches, clocks and jewlery hereafter at Johnson's drug store. Anything you want that we do not carry in stock we will order for you at ten per cent above the wholesale prices and by doing this you will save money by dealing at home. Watches left for repairs will be sent down on first train and returned the next day. I shall continue to be at Johnson's drug store the 10th 11th and 12th of each month. Eyes examined free.

Creeping Consumption

Do not think for a single moment that consumption will ever strike you a sudden blow. It does not come that way.

It creeps its way along.

First, you think it is a little cold; nothing but a little hacking cough; then a little loss in weight; then a harder cough; then the fever and the night sweats.

The suddenness comes when you have a hemorrhage.

Better stop the disease while it is yet creeping.

You can do it with

A Bridge of Coffins.

When the British forces were marching to Pekin in 1860, after the capture of the Taku forts, one of the rivers became so swollen with the heavy rains that it was rendered almost impassable. While in this quandary a bright idea suddenly struck one of our officers. Being well aware that the Chinese generally order their coffins years in advance and keep them on the premises, and, also, that they are perfectly air-tight, he consulted with his brother officers, with the result that instructions were given to search all the houses of the village and collect every coffin. With the aid of a few empty casks the soldiers constructed a pontoon bridge of coffins sufficiently strong to bear the artillery, and the river was thus passed in safety.

A Paper Mansion.

A large paper house with sixteen rooms has been erected by a Russian gentleman upon his country estate at Savinewka, in Podolia. The house was constructed in New York by an American engineer, and cost 80,000 roubles. Its architect declares that it will last longer than a stone building. To make the triumph of paper still more emphatic, the proprietor has resolved that the whole of the furniture shall be made of the same material.

An Insinuation Resented.

"Did I understand you to say there was a possibility of our using irregular methods in that county?" inquired Senator Sorghum.

"I may have said something of the kind," answered the voter.

"Well, it's downright libel. I'd have you to understand, sir, that we're so sure of that county that we don't have to use irregular methods."—Washington Star.

SMOKELESS POWDER

In the recent war thoroughly demonstrated its immense superiority over the ordinary black powders. For sporting purposes it is as far in advance of black powder as electricity is of candles. The highest grade Smokeless Powder is that manufactured by the Laflin & Rand Powder Co. One of its great advantages over other powders is in its absolute uniformity as shown in the accompanying cut. There is no smoke whatever from this powder and changes of climate do not affect it, as it can be soaked in water for 24 hours without in any way impairing its efficiency. Forty grains of this powder will do more work than 80 grains of black powder and it does not foul the barrel. The L. & R. Powder Co. is giving free a number of shells to every dealer for distribution to their customers in order to introduce it to the public. Ask your dealer for them and insist on getting the genuine Laflin & Rand Smokeless. Try it once and you will use no other. THE LAFLIN & RAND POWDER CO., Chicago, Ill., have issued a very handsome illustrated catalogue containing a full description of the Laflin & Rand Smokeless Powder which will be mailed free to any reader of this paper. Send for it to-day. Mention this paper when writing.

AN OBJECT LESSON.

THE FAKIR ONLY WANTED A PIECE OF SIDEWALK.

Art That Pointed a Moral—To This Day the Thick-Skinned Proprietor Is Wondering Why That Crowd Looked at Him So Hard.

From Chicago News: "There being no fair 'uns present," began the fakir in the preliminary canter of his tongue, "it ain't necessary for me to say 'Ladies and gents.' I just want your attention for a moment, gents; just one minute. I have here a piece of everyday chalk and I want to show you what a chunk of chalk can do. You can't forge no blank check with it no more than I can. But I can draw some quick pictures with it on the sidewalk if you watch me with one eye and keep the other on the cop."

By this time the crowd surrounded the fakir five or six deep, says the New York Mail and Express, and the saloonkeeper in front of whose shop the gathering anchored, to use a West street expression, came out to the gangway of his deserted saloon and shouted:

"Clear out, you! I've got no water to waste cleaning up your mess."

And some of the crowd began to move, but were held back by the remark of the cruising artist:

"That's all right, shipmate. I'm an old tar and has had many a cargo of grog alongshore. I'll knock off if you howl, but I promise to swab off your deck if you lets me fire ahead."

Without waiting for the permission the stranded fakir stooped over and made a long mark on the sidewalk with the chalk, standing in the gutter as he did so. "He's a nasty shark," he remarked in confidence to his audience. "Now, gents, I'll draw a picture of my host, the boss of the tavern." And he did, quickly and well. There was the bloated owner, with his great beam and soiled white apron. There was the open door, leading to the ill-smelling bar and the beer sign on the wall outside, showing a two-masted schooner sailing up the East river under the Brooklyn bridge, with an immense glass of foaming lager resting on the deck between the fore and main masts. The crowd had swelled to such proportions now that all gangway on the sidewalk was cut off, and the proprietor could not see what the fakir was drawing, not even between the legs of the big crowd.

"Now," resumed the wielder of the chalk, as he and the crowd shifted their berths to a cleaner stretch of sidewalk near by—"now, I'll draw you a picture of a school lad."

There he was, after a half a dozen or perhaps more strokes of the chalk. A lad fair to look upon! Long, curly hair, a sweet, open face, neat boots and a trim rig. A bundle of books under his arm, and the reflection of innocent sunshine in his face. A few more dashes of the chalk, with a change of moorings, and it was seen that the figure of the saloonkeeper on the sidewalk was offering the lad a glass of the same foaming lager which the schooner with all sheets lifted was rapidly carrying up stream.

"That's the schoolboy," announced the fakir. "Just one more, gents, and I'm off."

Another shift to a clean piece of sidewalk, a hasty dash of the chalk and the figure of a health-shattered, ragged, unkempt thing loomed up on the sidewalk. A bottle of rum showed up from one of the tattered pockets, the head was hatless and the feet were partly concealed by a miserable pair of shoes that were torn and cut in a dozen places. Again the chalk flashed on the sidewalk, and it was seen that the saloonkeeper was driving the emaciated creature from his door.

"That's the schoolboy again," said the artist, pointing at the miserable wretch on the sidewalk. "That's the schoolboy, but his books and brains is gone, and so is his manhood. Don't be afraid to contribute, gents. This ain't no temperance lecture, nor it ain't no treat for me unless you pony up."

But it was both. The sidewalk is clean now, and to his dying day the thick-skinned saloonkeeper may never be able to understand why that crowd looked at him so hard as it moved away.

"I wouldn't mind," said he to a crony that night, "but that fellow promised to clean off the sidewalk and he didn't keep his word. Do you think he was making fun of me when he drew them pictures?"

"Blamed if I know," said the bleary-eyed man in front of the bar. "Give us another drink and don't bother me with your troubles. I have some of my own."

And he had.

Do You Want a Job?

Here is a rare opportunity. A New York newspaper the other morning published the following among its want advertisements: "Wanted—Public executioner for South American state; compensation, $3,000 per annum; state qualifications and inclose photograph." Almost any enterprising American ought to be able to fill the bill. To be "lord high executioner" in South America may not be as great a snap as it was in the Japanese kingdom of Titipu, but $3,000 salary in a country where living is cheap should not be sneezed at by the most inveterate Yankee office hunter.

When Stanley Faced Death in Africa

Writing of his most thrilling experiences, Henry M. Stanley tells of the narrow escape of himself and expedition during one of his early exploration trips in Africa. The party was attacked by natives, and Mr. Stanley asserts that "had those ferociously stupid natives been under the sway of one man, our caravan would never more have been heard of; but unity of action could not be expected from so many savages, led by scores of village elders. They were all equally animated by lust of murder and greed, but they were not all equally brave."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Pa's Experience.

"Say, pa," queried Willie, the other day, while preparing his geography lesson, "how many motions has the earth?"

"I don't know, Willie," replied the fond parent, as he bound a towel wet with ice-cold water about his throbbing brow, "but they're numerous, quite numerous."—Chicago News.

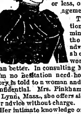
CONSULTING A WOMAN.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Inspires Confidence and Hope.

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman.

She puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful ill.



Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office where she has undergone a critical examination with an impression, more or less, of discouragement.

This condition of the mind destroys the effect of advice; and she grows worse rather than better. In consulting Mrs. Pinkham no hesitation need be felt, the story is told to a woman and is wholly confidential. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., she offers sick women her advice without charge.

Her intimate knowledge of women's troubles makes her letter of advice a wellspring of hope, and her wide experience and skill point the way to health.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for seven years, and no doctor knew what was the matter with me. I had spells which would last for two days or more. I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken seven bottles of it, and am entirely cured."—Mrs. John Foreman, 26 N. Woodberry Ave., Baltimore, Md.

Slip Shod Horse Breeding.

Judge a farmer by the team he drives says the Western Agriculturist. If he drives scrub horses and mules, his farming is done on the scrub plan and he will raise scrub colts, because he will breed scrub mares to the cheapest stallion, with no regard to improvement; only the color must suit his taste, but he cares nothing for size and quality that go to make up the market requirements; he cares nothing for the market—he does not breed to suit the market, but to suit himself, and never has a good horse to sell. An exchange says one who is not a plug farmer should be ashamed of a plug team. Let him raise his own horses and do it to some purpose. He will be silly to breed his large mares to anything short of a pure bred draft stallion. Horses of a good class will do far more work, and the rearing of them will cost no more than will that of poor ones. Owners of good stallions are reporting larger business, and this betokens a healthy condition in the horse breeding industry; and if we will only bear in mind that good horses are the kind wanted, we shall never again have a large surplus on hand, one year after another, but little to do but eating off their heads. It is a pretty heavy drain on a farmer to carry several head of idle horses through a long season. There is no way to figure profit out of them. Sell them, and save the figuring and the oats.

Two good brood mares will bring their owners $400 yearly, at a cost of $50 for service fees, and will do the work of the farm at the same time. While a five dollar fee may bring a $75 horse, for his $25 he can have an animal worth $200. Get no offspring of an unsound or tricky animal. Never act upon the theory that a mare which is good for nothing else is good for breeding purposes. The fluctuations in the prices of horses is almost wholly with those of low grade. There is a certainty that when breeding to a good animal, the progeny will sell well four or five years hence.

Some Hog Talk.

The story is told of a summer boarder who spent the season with a worthy couple in Nova Scotia, writes G. L. Gabrilson in Farm Stock and Home. The report does not disclose that they were regular farmers, but at all events they kept a pig which was cared for in the ordinary manner. The summer boarder's vacation came to an end and he returned to his relinquished duties. Yet the pig must have stayed, for two years later, when the self same summer boarder again became a guest he found the same pig in the pen. And when expressing surprise at its not having been butchered long ago was met with the query:

"If we killed the pig what would we do with the swill?"

Now, with the majority of farmers hogs are not kept for any such purpose, but to be an active source of revenue. And it must be confessed that it is difficult to decide whether the cow or the hog be given first place as a moneymaker on the farms of our middle northwest. None of our domestic animals are more difficult to care for properly than the hog, and it often becomes a nuisance accordingly; while if given a fair opportunity is the tidiest and most cleanly of them all. Put a pig into a new, dry pen; wet the floor in one corner and that spot becomes the water-closet thereafter, provided the attendant does his duty. Little pigs instinctively avoid fouling their nests, so that experience teaches us that swine need not annoy the senses as they too frequently do.

Salicylic Acid in Milk.—Dr. Henry Leffman of Philadelphia a prominent chemist of that city, recently stated that many diseases of infants, which occur during the summer months, may be induced by the use of milk, and artificial foods which contain salicylic acid. He stated that the drug had an enormous and increasing sale, and that several forms are being put upon the market. Speaking of the artificial form used by brewers, in the preparation of bottled beer, he thought it poisonous, and that its sale should be prohibited by law. In Trenton, N. J., recently, salicylic acid in milk caused the death of several children.—Medical Times.

Shrinkage in Cheese Exports.—Since May 1st, New York and Montreal, the two great cheese exporting markets of this continent, have exported 384,000 less boxes of cheese than they did a year ago, which is a shrinkage of more than 25 per cent. The exporters, in view of this fact, are busy with the query: Is this falling off in exports due to a loss of consumption on the other side, or an increase on this side, or a decrease in production? Under either supposition it would seem as if the English market must soon rise.—Heard's Dairyman.

Worrying the Cow.—A rough, quick tempered man should never be tolerated around the cow stable. The cow loves quietude. Any disturbance which excites her lessens if it does not stop the secretion and flow of milk. It is very easy for an employe, by kicking and beating a cow just before or while he is milking, to lessen her milk flow by one-half. This is called "holding up" the milk. It is really a prevention of milk secretion, and the milk thus lost does not come down at any subsequent milking.

AN AFFAIR OF THE NATION

It has been said of Americans that they are "a nation of dyspeptics" and it is true that few are entirely free from disorders of the digestive tract, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Stomach and Bowel trouble, or Constipation.

The treatment of these diseases with cathartic medicines too often aggravates the trouble.

THE LOGICAL TREATMENT is the use of a remedy that will build up the system, thereby enabling the various organs to act as Nature intended they should. Such a remedy is found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Here is the proof.

In Detroit there are few soldiers more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. His home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was a bookkeeper with the wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, and he says: "I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work. I have tried many treatments and remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend induced me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and after taking a few doses I found much relief and after using several boxes I was cured. I know these pills will cure dyspepsia of its worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."—Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

Hanging in Chains.

The ghastly practice known as "hanging in chains," which was carried out with all its attendant brutalities as late in the present century as the year 1834, will be recalled to mind this afternoon, when a complete set of gibbet-irons, formerly kept in Boston jail, Lincolnshire, will be sold in a well known auction room in Covent Garden. In the older county maps it was customary to denote the exact spots upon which these horrible instruments of torture were erected, which, in the year above mentioned, were finally abolished by act of parliament.—London Daily News.

Nasty Speeches.

An old cleric once said to a young man who had published some volumes which had been very successful: "Your popularity is quite gone." There was no call earthly to say such a thing, even if it had been true. And, in fact, it was quite the reverse. But the aged cleric wished it had been true. Thus, Brougham, when some of Lord Campbell's latter biographies sold wonderfully, explained to that judge and author that "people had to make up their sets."—Longman's Magazine.

SEVERE STORM IN THE EAST

HEAVY SNOW FALL ACCOMPANIED BY HIGH WINDS.

New York Wrapped in the Embrace of the Storm King—Worst Blizzard in Several Years—Railroad Traffic Badly Demoralized—Telegraph and Telephone Service Seriously Interrupted—Much Damage to Shipping—Pennsylvania Suffers Severely—New England Finds It a Record-Breaker—Several Deaths Reported.

New York, Nov. 29.—When the people of New York awoke yesterday morning they found the blizzard which raged when they retired was still in progress. The storm which began with a soft sleet on Saturday afternoon increased greatly as the day wore on with heavy snowfall, the wind blowing a gale at midnight. There was a slight abatement of the wind in the morning, but the snow still fell and drifted high and the temperature dropped rapidly. At 10 o'clock there was a breaking away in the west and finally the storm ceased altogether. The wind blew at the rate of fifty-five to sixty miles an hour during the height of the storm. Snow fell throughout New York state. The fall in New York city, the weather bureau reports, was about ten inches; Philadelphia, nine inches; Boston, six inches; Portland, Me., four inches; Albany, a little over an inch. The lowest temperatures reported were: New York, 25; Albany, 18. With the brightening of the skies in this city came an increase in the velocity of the wind, and the loose dry snow was sent swirling and eddying everywhere. Nearly a foot of snow had fallen, but in places it had drifted to four or five feet. Suburban traffic was blocked for several hours in the morning, and after that trains ran at long intervals. All trains were delayed. The terrific blow of Saturday night did much damage to the small shipping in New York harbor. It is reported that several tug boats belonging to the Kingston Towing company, together with a large number of canal boats, were sunk up the river by the force of the gale. The shores of the Hudson are littered with wreckage. A number of casualties were reported, including several deaths from exposure.

In Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—The blizzard, which came out of the west, reached this city at 11 o'clock Saturday morning and raged furiously until 1 o'clock yesterday morning. As unexpected as it was violent, it wrought great havoc not only here, but through the entire state. In those fourteen hours the snow fall reached a depth of over nine inches and the wind a velocity of 45 miles an hour. In this city traffic of every kind, as well as wire communication, was crippled. The suburban lines were brought to a complete standstill, with the roads piled high with drifted snow. Dispatches from interior towns tell of like conditions. In the mountain regions of Scranton and Wilkesbarre the greatest damage was to telegraph wires, but the delay to steam traffic was inconsiderable. The gale was especially severe around Delaware capes. The schooner William M. Wilson, from Philadelphia for Norfolk with a cargo of coal, sprung aleak four miles south of Metekim life saving station. Her signals were promptly answered and the guards took off her crew of six men. The schooner is anchored a mile and a half off shore and is likely to sink.

Traffic Demoralized.

Boston, Nov. 29.—A record-breaking November blizzard swept over the greater portion of New England and completely demoralized traffic of every description and well nigh paralyzed telegraph and telephone communication, while the northeast gale, coming on a high course of tides drove the sea far beyond its usual limits and made a mark along shore, exceeded only by the memorable hurricane of 1851. While the storm was heaviest in the southeastern part of New England, the whole district was affected, and experienced a snow fall of from eight to twenty-four inches. Fortunately the storm was heralded sufficiently in advance by the weather bureau to detain most of the coastwise shipping in safe harbors, but the warning was entirely unheeded and ignored by those on shore with the result that nearly every one, especially the railroads and electric companies, were caught napping, and suffered accordingly. There was not a railroad in New England that was not more or less tied up by the heavy fall of snow. Only the barest facts have been received from the coast towns, but even those reports gave the gravest fears as to the safety of what little shipping may have been off Cape God during the past two or three days. It may be several days before a complete list of the disasters can be made known. A dozen or more coasting vessels were driven ashore in Boston harbor and the great ocean steamer Ohio was torn from her moorings and driven high and dry on Spectacle island. Schooners and coal barges with two anchors out and every reason to expect a safe weathering of the gale, were dragged from their moorings and hurled against pier heads, dashed on islands and rocks or sunk outright.

Reaching Out.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 29.—The report is received that the Great Northern railway will bridge Frazer river at New Westminster and run a line to Vancouver, connecting with the Westminster Southern, a part of the Hill system. The engineers of the company are now in the city.

Burned at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 29.—The plant of the Des Moines Brick company was destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000; insurance, $37,000.

SPAIN WILL KNOCK UNDER.

American Terms Will be Accepted Under Protest.

Paris, Nov. 29. — The Spanish commissioners will present the reply of their government at the joint session of the peace commission to-day. It is not known for a certainty what this reply will be, but all officials in a position to speak with accuracy are convinced that Spain will accept, under protest, the American offer of $20,000,000 for the Philippines. Senor Abruzzi said last night that he was sure there will be no break in the peace negotiations. Marquis de Comillas, head of various Philippine interests, said that Spain had nothing to do but to yield. "Nothing that we have done here," said the marquis, "has made any impression upon the minds of the American commissioners. From the very first their intention was to take the Philippines and they have never wavered."

There is no truth in the report cabled here from Washington that in the last American memorandum a demand for the Sulu group had been added to the previous demands. The original demand was upon territory within lines longitudinally and latitudinally defined. It will exclude the so-called Sulu group. There has been no change since the first demand, and, according to the statement of one of the American commissioners, there will be no modification of it.

IN A FEW DAYS.

The Treaty of Peace Will Be Signed According to Judge Day.

Washington, Nov. 29. — Throughout the peace negotiations which are still pending in Paris the president has expressed confidence that a treaty satisfactory to the United States would be drafted and signed. From time to time assurances of substantial progress toward that end have been received from the American commissioners. Yesterday advices were received by the president from Mr. Day, of the commission, reiterating the assurances he had previously given the president of the early and successful conclusion of the work of the commission. Judge Day, it is understood, states positively that the Spanish commissioners will formally accept, perhaps to-day, the terms of the United States, and that a treaty drawn along the lines of the agreement reached will be drawn and signed in a few days.

Spain's Wisest Policy.

London, Nov. 29. — The Paris correspondent of the Times says: "It may be regarded that Spain will accept the peace conditions and sign the treaty, perhaps even without a protest." The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: "The cabinet has concluded that the wisest policy is to adopt the American terms, leaving to the Spanish commissioners full power to secure the best possible indemnity, and to place on record, if the American commissioners will permit, a protest against the American interpretation of the protocol as affecting the Philippines and the whole peace negotiations generally. The decision of the cabinet is approved in political and financial circles.

WILL RESIST ANNEXATION.

Filipinos Will Fight If Anything More Than a Protectorate Is Attempted.

London, Nov. 29.—The London office of a Philippine company has received a letter from its agent at Manila, dated Oct. 18, in which the agent says:

"The rebels are prepared already to resist annexation. I am in the confidence of their chiefs and I assure you they are quite prepared to retire to the hills if more than a protectorate is attempted. I hope it will not come to warlike proceedings, for it would be a very protracted affair. The Americans would not find the rebels as easy as the Spaniards did, for they formerly had only 400 rifles, while they now have 80,000 rifles and eighty cannon, including several Maxims. Americans are not allowed to pass the rebel lines without passports. A party of German officers who attempted to do so without passports were mistaken for Americans and were refused permission. When it was discovered that they were German officers they were permitted to proceed."

The manager of this Philippine company, who has spent years in the Philippines, does not attach any importance to the foregoing plans. He says the Americans could quickly subdue the natives. He says the Americans have recognized the importance and influence of Aguinaldo throughout.

WOULD SELL MORE ISLANDS.

Spain May Dispose of Her Other Possessions in Oceanica.

Madrid, Nov. 29. — There is under consideration a plan for the selling of all the remaining Spanish islands in Oceanica. This will be formulated soon after the ratification of peace. It is considered by those who advocate this course that in view of the great demand for coaling stations in the far East by all nations, good prices could be obtained for property of trifling value under Spanish regime. This colonial liquidation would include the Marianos and the Carolines. It is said that Spain might possibly part with the Canaries.

Santiago, Cuba, Nov. 29.—Gen. Wood has appointed a chief justice and two associate justices of the supreme court. The chief justice will receive $3,500 per annum and the associate justices $3,000 per annum. The men appointed are well known Cubans who have been connected with the bar of Santiago for years. Their appointment apparently gives satisfaction to all classes of Cubans.

Killed by the Cars.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 29.—A Northwestern passenger train struck Miss Rico Staggmeyer yesterday while on her way to work in the La Crosse Rubber mills and she was instantly killed. She was twenty years old.

The Negroes Lynched.

Meridian, Miss., Nov. 29. — Reports have reached here that three negroes were lynched four miles west of here. They had attempted to kill a white man. It is said that other lynchings are likely to follow.

SIX PERSONS WERE KILLED

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT TO A RIVER STEAMER.

Part of a Boiler on a River Steamer Near Stockton, Cal., Blows Up With Terrible Force, Killing Five and Dangerously Wounding Eleven Persons—A Large Number Were More or Less Seriously Hurt—Some Were Virtually Roasted Alive by the Escaping Steam—Cause of the Explosion Not Known.

Stockton, Cal., Nov. 29. — The most disastrous accident in the history of Stockton occurred near Fourteen-Mile slough, when a part of one of the boilers of the river steamer T. C. Walker was blown out, killing six and dangerously wounding eleven persons, while probably fifteen or twenty were more or less badly hurt. The T. C. Walker is owned by the California Navigation and Improvement company and ran between San Francisco and Stockton. The majority of the passengers were in bed when the explosion occurred and were awakened by the report, which was as loud as a cannon's roar. People rushed from their rooms in their night clothes and found the whole forward portion of the steamer's upper works blown away. The electric lights had been put out and the escaping steam enveloped the front portion of the boat till it was impossible to see how much of the boat had been carried away. The screams of the men who were locked in their rooms near the pilot house were heartrending. Capt. John Tulan had been against the door of the state room and was so seriously injured that he could not move. The door could not be forced open, as he was jammed up against it. One of the employes of the boat secured an ax and cut the upper part of the room away and finally removed him, but not until he was virtually roasted alive. When pulled out the flesh dropped from his limbs in large pieces, and although he was suffering excruciatingly he bore it bravely and not a groan escaped him as he was taken out of the steam. Watson Henry, the chief engineer, and his wife were in their room near the pilot house when the explosion occurred. Mrs. Henry was blown through the roof. The flooring was blown upward and she was hurled with great violence a distance of twenty feet toward the bow of the boat. She was horribly crushed by the fury of the explosion and also badly scalded with escaping steam, and survived only a few hours. Mr. Henry was terribly scalded and died shortly after being brought to the city. Mr. Blunt was instantly killed. He was standing on the lower deck as he intended making a landing a short distance above the place where the explosion occurred. Jerry Daly, the fireman, was in the firehold of the boat when the explosion occurred.

The Escaping Steam

completely enveloped him, scarcely a portion of his body escaping the scorching vapor. He died at the receiving hospital. Underneath the lower deck, where the deck hands slept, groans and screams were terrible, for the unfortunate imprisoned men were receiving the full force of the steam as it came from the boilers. Eight of them were almost roasted alive. Those who were able made their way to the deck as best they could, while the more seriously injured were unable to get out. Arms and faces of those near the main entrance were frightfully scalded. Dominici, who was on the lower deck, was blown into the water and had to swim ashore after his back was horribly scalded. About an hour after the explosion the passenger steamer Dauntless, coming from San Francisco, hove in sight. She rendered immediate assistance and all the wounded and uninjured were taken aboard. What caused the explosion will probably never be known.

HE KEPT HIS WORD.

The President of a Failed Philadelphia Bank Pays the Depositors Dollar for Dollar.

Philadelphia, Nov. 28.—Thomas W. Barlow, receiver of the People's bank, has notified the depositors of the institution that the remaining 10 per cent due them would be paid on and after Dec. 5, 1898. This payment will close every uncontested claim against the bank, including the deposits of the city and state. The bank closed its doors on March 25, after the cashier, John S. Hopkins, had committed suicide. When the bank closed its doors the liabilities were about $1,500,000, while the assets were less than $1,000,000. At the time of the suspension President McManus pledged himself to pay the depositors dollar for dollar, and the announcement of Receiver Barlow shows that he has kept his word.

Lenox Club Will Investigate.

New York, Nov. 29.—The board of directors of the Lenox club have decided to investigate the various charges growing out of the Corbett-Sharkey fight. A meeting for that purpose has been called for to-day. Corbett and Sharkey, their managers and seconds, have been invited to attend. The inquiry will be open to the press.

Declared a Draw.

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—Eddie Connolly of St. John's, N. B., made George Kirwin, the "mystery," of Chicago, fight the battle of his life before the Commercial club. At the end of twenty rounds Referee Hurst declared the contest a draw. The decision was received with satisfaction.

Attempted Husband Poisoning.

New York, Nov. 29—Mme. Bianchini has been arrested on the charge of attempting to poison her husband, the popular scenic artist.

SHE'S AFLOAT.

Successful Launching of the Battleship Wisconsin.

San Francisco, Nov. 29. — Saturday at the Union Iron works another of the marine fighting machines was added to the already large fleet of Pacific war vessels. The vessel which slid from the ways was the battleship Wisconsin, the largest of the vessels built for the United States government by the Union Iron works. The launching of the big vessel was effected without a hitch and she now rests calmly on the waters of the bay. For an hour before the plunge a large force of workmen tore away chock after chock which supported the vessel, and they finished their task almost to the minute of the prescribed time for the launching, leaving only one chock to restrain the monster, and this was the support that little Miss Lucille Gage, daughter of the governor-elect of the state, had been assigned to remove by means of a guillotine and the inevitable electric button. At a given signal the little miss pressed the button and the crash of breaking timbers announced to the thousands of anxious spectators that the vessel was about to leave the ways. Slowly the iron monster moved toward the bay, and all eyes turned to watch Miss Elizabeth Stephenson break the bottle of champagne upon the bow of the vessel. Just as the mass of iron and steel touched the water the fair christener raised the ribbon-bedecked bottle and let it split on the nose of the vessel. The roar of applause which greeted the final act was almost deafening. The vessel gathered momentum as she proceeded to the water, and after leaving the ways floated calmly along until brought to a stop in the basin where the work of completing her will go on.

HOBSON GIVES IN.

The Maria Teresa Is a Hopeless Wreck and It Is Impracticable to Raise the Colon.

Washington, Nov. 29. — Constructor Hobson has arrived here from Norfolk and came direct to the navy department. He has just returned from his trip on the Vulcan to Cat Island, the scene of the casting away of the Maria Teresa. He brought with him the report of Capt. McCalla, who was in charge of the expedition sent on the Vulcan to endeavor to save the vessel. The report is merely an elaboration of the history of the journey and its results already contained in the telegraphic report to the department and which touches upon the condition of the Teresa, makes the wreck appear even more hopeless than Capt. McCalla's telegram, and this statement was strongly reinforced by Constructor Hobson's verbal report to Acting Secretary Allen. Capt. McCalla resumes his duties as captain of the Norfolk navy yard. Constructor Hobson goes to Annapolis to take up the direction of his course in naval architecture. He was desirous of returning to Santiago and endeavoring to raise the Colon, but the department had made other arrangements that made this impracticable.

Operations Closed.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 29.—The sawmill of the Diamond Match company closed operations, the shut-down being necessitated by the freezing over of the Fox river. The season's cut was 20,000,000 feet. Of 300 men employed, nearly all will be retained during the winter in the company's yards.

MINNESOTA NEWS

THEY MAKE A COMPACT.

Vinegar Manufacturers of the State Hold a Conference.

Five of the leading vinegar manufactures of the state had a conference with Commissioner Lawrence, representing the state dairy department, as a consequence of which it is intimated drastic measures will be employed against manufacturers and dealers in illicit vinegar in the next thirty days. The firms represented were the New Ulm Vinegar and Pickle Company, the Northwestern Vinegar company, St. Paul; H. F. Spink, St. Paul; M. A. Gedney, St. Paul and Minneapolis. They have a combined output of over 40,000 barrels of vinegar yearly, or more than 1,600,000 gallons a year.

In reply to questions by Mr. Lawrence they said their trade had increased vastly in amount and in proportion to the business of the state in the eight years that the vinegar laws have been in force; they indorsed the laws on the whole as they stood, and had no suggestions for amendments; would co-operate with the department in pushing their inforcement, and that a St. Louis manufacturer of bogus vinegar that used to control the market had been substantially driven out of the state.

Mr. Gedney incidentally told Mr. Lawrence that the consumption of vinegar in cities was twice as much per head as in the country.

There is said to be a guerrilla business done by some firms in illicit vinegar, and with the league between the big dealers the department hopes to break it up. These firms say that they are entirely satisfied with the standards and will help to sustain them.

JONES IS COMING AGAIN.

He Will Make an Investigation of the Leech Lake War.

William A. Jones, commissioner of Indian affairs, contemplates another trip to the Leech Lake Indian reservation with a view to investigate further the causes that led to the recent battle at Sugar point. The commissioner will be accompanied by Bishop Whipple, who has been in Washington for some time presenting the Indian side of the situation. Peter Sutherland, an old trader among Indians, has prepared a statement for Bishop Whipple, which gives the Indian side of the matter. Commissioner Jones is expected this week. Platt B. Walker, Sr., of Minneapolis will accompany the commissioner and the bishop to Walker to aid in the investigation of affairs. G. H. Beaulieu, who champions the cause of the Chippewa Indians, says the intended visit of Commissioner Jones and Bishop Whipple is opportune, as it will serve to quiet the turbulent elements.

Sons of Hermann at Moorhead.

The grand officers of the Sons of Hermann installed Bardenia Lodge No. 57 of Moorhead recently. The new lodge has a charter membership of forty-six, and the following are the first officers: A. C. Kuhfeld, past president; George A. Gross, president; Charles Eidel, vice president; Henry Schmidt, financial secretary, and William Diemert, treasurer. There was a public installation of the officers at Fraternity hall. The grand officers who installed the new lodge were: F. C. Neumeier of Stillwater, past grand president, and William Foelsen of St. Paul, grand president, and Herman Grikler of Minneapolis. The grand officers were assisted by a delegation from Franz Siegel Lodge No. 42 of Breckinridge. Following the public installation came a pleasant surprise, when Grand President Foelsen presented to President Gross, on behalf of Theodore A. Koerner Lodge No. 16 of St. Paul, a handsome jewel of the order. The jewel is from Mr. Gross' mother lodge, of which Grand President Foelsen is also a member. Several prominent German residents of Barnesville were in the city, and they expect soon to institute a lodge of the order in that city.

Death of a Pioneer.

Mrs. Katherine Benson, one of the early Minnesota settlers, died at her home in South St. Paul. She came to this state forty-five years ago, and up to 1893 lived in Lake City, where her husband was in business. He retired from active life at the time they moved to South St. Paul. Her only brother was Daniel Hickey, proprietor of the Hickey House, who died two years ago. Besides her husband, Mrs. Benson is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. Kay, who resides in South St. Paul. She was seventy-six years old.

ROSARY BEADS.

They Were In Use Among the Hindoos Before the Era of Buddha.

The prevailing idea in regard to a rosary is that it belongs solely to followers of the Catholic religion. But take away the cross that is hanging to the beads and we find that one must turn to the dim, mysterious east for the origin of the rosary, for it is among the temples of India, China and Japan that the first sign of the practice is to be found. Ancient pictures of the Hindoo gods depict them with chaplets of beads in their hands, and it is believed that this method of keeping count of their many prayers was in use among the Hindoos before the era of Buddha, or at least B. C. 500.

The use of the rosary seems especially suited to an eastern clime and to the repose of an oriental mind. The Buddhists are fond of using very smooth beads of glass, polished jade or coral, and it has been thought that the smooth, cool beads gliding through their fingers as they murmur the holy name for thousands of times help them to arrive at that state of holy abstraction from earthly things which is so much prized among the followers of Buddha.

The favorite Japanese rosaries are made of polished wood, crystal, onyx and chased silver, and the Japanese Buddhists repeat in endless devotion "Nama Amida Butzu" ("Save us, Buddha"), while their Chinese brothers have the blessed name "O-Mi-to-fu" forever on their lips. A rosary of very great size was recently brought from a temple in Kioto, Japan. The largest bead is about six inches in diameter, and the rosary entire is about 24 feet long. The huge beads are of dark brown polished wood. They are hollow and have each a figure of a god inside the little shrine, which can be seen through a lattice of brass work.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FALSIFIED HER AGE.

A Court Trial That Disclosed a Queer Phase of Russian Society.

Even in Russia, it seems, despotism does not go the length of forcing a woman to tell her age or of punishing her for stating it inaccurately. A certain Princess Engalytcheff was recently tried at Moscow and sentenced to lifelong interment in the province of Olonetz for embezzling 140,000 rubles. After the proceeding in court had come to an end and after the noble lady had retired to the country for her somewhat prolonged rest from urban gayeties and temptations a too careful official discovered that among the papers in the case was the princess' certificate of baptism, and that she had changed the date of it from 1847 to 1867. Instantly this grave crime was brought to the notice of the authorities, and the convicted embezzler was summoned to meet the charge of falsifying an official document. Then a curious fact was disclosed, and a surprising amount of light was thrown on Russian society.

The Prince Engalytcheff, who was cited as a witness by the prosecutor, said that whether his bride was 20 years older or younger than her certified age was a matter of absolute indifference to him. All he could say was that he received the sum of 8,000 rubles for giving the lady his name, that immediately after the marriage ceremony he procured for her a separate passport, and that since then he has known nothing more of his wife or her private affairs. The jury gallantly declined to convict the accused princess on the "trivial charge about a woman's age," and she was sent back to her provincial exile.

Princes evidently come cheap in Russia, and this is perhaps the most interesting bit of news in the whole story.—New York Times.

A Disastrous Ending.

Two Detroit merchants were sitting on adjacent stools and taking a 15 cent lunch, when one asked the other if he consulted his wife in his business affairs.

"Can't do it," was the response. "I've tried it a dozen times a month for years, but it always winds up just about as it did yesterday. I asked her if she thought she could discuss a little matter of business calmly and dispassionately. She said she could, but had never known me to be able to do so. I complimented her sarcastically on her 'angelic' temper, and she at once accused me of being angry. I told her that I was regarded among men as having a very equable disposition and that my employees called me Old Suavity. She called attention to the fact that her pet dog, that weighs about a pound, was called Danger. Then I told her straight from the shoulder that I declined to be made angry by her taunts and odious comparisons, but served pointed notice that I was going to have the respect due the head of the house. She laughed cheerily and declared that I was entirely too touchy."

"But what about the business conference?"

"Oh, I slammed the door and left."—Detroit Free Press.

Ice Broke the Spell.

There is a curious little tale about Captain Bagot, M. P. for South Westmoreland, which cannot fail to interest those superstitiously inclined. It is said that, some generations ago, a witch cursed Levens Hall, the seat of Captain Bagot, and said that there would be no direct male heir to the estate as long as the Kent—the river which runs through the grounds—flowed. Such has indeed been the case, until in 1895, when, owing to the severe frost, the Kent was, for a time, entirely frozen up, and a few months afterward Mrs. Bagot presented her husband with a little boy.—London Graphic.

A TRYING NAVAL JOB.

WHAT IT MEANS TO PUT A WARSHIP IN COMMISSION.

The Enormous Amount of Work That Must Be Performed and the Ceremonies That Are Observed Before the Pennant and the Stars and Stripes Are Hoisted.

In times of peace as well as when war's dark clouds gloom the nation you are liable to read in the newspapers an announcement to the effect that one of the vessels of the navy is going "into commission." It is not a very impressive phrase, but the full meaning of the term is something of which few have any adequate conception. To put a modern warship into commission involves an enormous amount of work, which can be fully appreciated only by one who has observed the process from beginning to end.

When a vessel of the navy is laid up in reserve, "in ordinary," as it is called, it is far from an attractive object and could hardly be recognized as the same ship when in thorough trim, with crew aboard. The ship is anchored at a convenient navy yard; the stores are sent ashore, her engines and guns covered with oil and an antirust paint; her decks are allowed to become dirty, her sides dull and stained from rusty chains. Thus she lies perhaps for months, and then an order comes from the secretary of the navy, through the chief of the bureau of navigation, directing the commanding officer of the yard to get her ready for sea.

The first thing to be done is to bring as many men as possible from the receiving ship, which lies hard by, and these, with the force of the yard, under the direction of whatever officers are available, begin at once to put things to rights and remove the accumulated dust and dirt from the different parts of the equipment; the engineer's force goes at once to the engines and boiler rooms; the antirust paint is removed from the engines; new packing is put in the valves and joints; the pumps are tested, the rust and dirt knocked from interiors of fire boxes, and boiler tubes and grate bars renewed.

Outwardly everything is now in fair condition, but this is only the beginning. It remains to get up steam in some of the boilers, turn over the engines to see if they are in proper trim, start the dynamos, test the electric lights and the pilothouse, signals, turn on the searchlights, start the fans, work the steering gear and steering engines, set the hoisting machinery in motion and put the boat cranes in operation. Every engine, boiler, pipe, wire, tube, rivet, bolt, nut and plate is carefully inspected, and if found unserviceable from any cause repaired.

Next the equipment storehouse is visited, and a full allowance of beef, pork, beans, potatoes, coffee, sugar, salt, flour, meal, clothing, shoes, hammocks, blankets, paint, tobacco—in short, the whole miscellaneous assortment of the commissary department, is placed on board. The paymaster of the ship is responsible for every article received, and a strict account is kept of each. Then the galley, or cooking stove, has to be examined to see whether it is complete in all its findings. The outfit of a galley usually consists of two copper kettles of 30 gallons each, a 60 gallon kettle, with cast iron jacket and copper hinged covers, two steamers for vegetables, each with a capacity of 32 gallons; two sets of saucepans, a fine set of tools for lifting and firing and the ordinary cooking implements.

The line officers look after the condition of the guns, the rigging, the boats, the cables, the anchors, the flags and signals, the charts, the nautical instruments and other parts of the ship's equipment. What this means can only be appreciated by one who has actually undertaken the task. A volume might be written in regard to the signals alone.

When all this work has been done, the ship is ready to go into commission, and up to this time everything has been under control of the commandant of the yard, so that when the captain of the ship arrives and reports himself to the yard commander little remains for him to attend to. In the meantime men have been brought together to constitute the crew.

Sometimes they are enlisted particularly for the ship which is about to go into service, at other times they are withdrawn from other ships which have just been put out of commission. The crew and marines report aboard with bags and hammocks; the captain orders the crew to be drawn up on the spar deck promptly at noon upon the day on which the ship is to be put formally in commission, reads to them his orders from the secretary of the navy detailing him to the command, hoists the commission pennant to the main truck and the stars and stripes to the gaff or staff at the stern, and all is ready.

The ship is now in commission.—San Francisco Call.

Greek and Latin.

M. Jules Lemaitre condemned the study of Greek and Latin the other day at the Paris Sorbonne. He declared that the national mind had been formed not by the literature of the Greeks and Romans, except in an indirect way, but by the Scriptures first and afterward by the great French writers. M. Lemaitre further declared that he regretted having studied Greek and Latin 12 years, whereas he is ignorant of English, which is spoken by half the world, and only knows German in a pitiful manner.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. DISGUSTED FISHERMEN.

It Made Them Ill to See an Old Time Angler Catch Trout.

One day a Boston party, on a fishing trip to Moosehead, came across one of the old school fishermen. He was up off the mouth of Tomhegan stream and was fishing out of a lumberman's batteau. It developed later that he was the cook for a crew of river drivers. On the bank nearest hand stood the cookee, or his helper. The cook had thrown about a peck of table refuse into the lake in order to "toll" the fish, and over that lure he was having great luck. His pole was of the jib boom variety, and when a fish bit he would derrick it over his head into the bushes where the cookee was stationed.

The Boston men from their canoes watched operations with all the disgust of the true sportsmen.

"Got enough for supper yet?" shouted the fisherman over his shoulder as he set another great trout flumping into the bushes.

"No; better catch six or eight more," shrilled back the cookee.

"Say, how many fish do you two fellows usually eat for supper?" shouted a Boston man who didn't understand the situation.

"When you've cooked for 22 river drivers as long as I have," yelled the cook, derricking another fish, "you'll know more about empty nail kegs."

Hardly was this enigmatic utterance out when there came a tug at his line that was nothing short of tremendous. He twitched. The fish didn't come. He braced, set his jaws and pried. His line only sawed the hissing water.

"Play him! Play him!" screamed the excited sportsmen from the city.

"Play your grandmother!" bellowed the cook. "I ain't here to play. I'm here to fish." And as he spoke he boosted over his head a 15 pound laker. Any man in the Boston crowd would have given $10 to have played him an hour at the end of an eight ounce rod. 'Twas too much for their nerves. They came away.—Lewiston Journal.

VOLUNTEERS OF HAVANA.

How They Were Won With a Pocket Handkerchief Promise.

In 1868, when the revolution of ten years in Cuba began, no volunteers existed in Havana worthy of being called such. There was only one old regiment, and when Governor General Lersundi, then of the island, tried to complete this regiment he found the task difficult of accomplishment on account of the prevailing unwillingness to enlist. But just at this time, most providentially for the relief of the dilemma, some unknown hand covered the walls of Matanzas, near Havana, with huge posters promising each Spaniard his passage home and the privilege of carrying away with him whatever his pocket handkerchief could contain in the event of his enlistment.

The effect of this stimulus to the flagging pulse of the public was electrical, and the enrollment of 60,000 men followed within 48 hours. The volunteers thus came into existence with their chiefs in the majority. But the ruined merchants of the city of Havana soon found out and objected to the newly risen power. This opposition increased upon the arrival in Cuba of the new governor general, Dulce, who came in 1869 as representative of the revolutionary government in Spain. He was a man of good faith, empowered by the government to grant Cuba all the reform she coveted and that had lately been offered. He would undoubtedly have put a term to the revolution, averting all the ruin and devastation which followed. But such an easy and magnanimous course did not suit that class which faced inevitable financial ruin as a consequence of such a policy.—San Francisco Chronicle.

African Skins.

Between 1850 and 1875 it is certain that some millions of blesbok, wildebeest and springbok must have been destroyed in the Transvaal and Orange Free State. The slaughter was so prodigious and the variety of wild animals so great in these wild regions of South Africa that the result made a sensible difference in the leather industry of Europe. The markets were filled with skins which, when tanned, gave leather of a quality and excellence never known before, but the origin of which, as the material was still sold under old names, purchasers never suspected. Hides of the zebra and quagga arrived in tens of thousands, and good as horsehide is for the uppers of first class boots, these were even better. Smart Englishmen for years wore boots the uppers of which were made of zebra and quagga skin or from the hides of elands, oryx and gemsbok disguised under the names of "calf" or patent leathers.—London Spectator.

Evading the Issue.

"Mr. Addemup," said Mr. Spotcash severely, to the bookkeeper, "I have spoken to you before of your careless manner of smoking in the office. You threw a lighted match in the wastebasket a little while ago and it set a lot of papers on fire. Such work as that might start a big blaze some day."

"It was heedless," replied the bookkeeper. "I will see that the office boy keeps that wastebasket emptied hereafter."—Chicago Tribune.

The defeat of Judge Ives, of Crookston, was as unfortunate as it was unexpected. Contrary to the general belief at the time of his election Frank Ives became a good, fearless, upright judge, and the people in his district praised him. But in the wave which swept everything into the republican hopper, Judge Ives went with the rest, and his defeat as that of Judge Canty proves that the people never stand by those who stand by them. It is the old, old story.—Fergus Falls Globe.

Annual Almanac and monthly paper, Word and Works, are now known from sea to sea. We are pleased to call the attention of our readers to the Almanac for 1899, now ready. It is a splendidly printed and illustrated book of 116 pages and the storm forecasts and diagrams and astronomical and scientific matter are superior to anything that has ever been seen before in a 25 cent book. His monthly journal, Word and Works, is one of the best literary, home and scientific magazines in the country besides containing his monthly storm forecasts with explanations. The subscription price of Word and Works is $1.00 per year and a copy of the Hicks Almanac is sent as a premium to every yearly subscriber. Single copies of Word and Works, 10 cents. Price of Almanac alone, 25 cents. Send your order to Word and Works Pub. Co., 2201 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

THE TRADE JOURNAL.

An Enlargement and a Great Premium Offer.

Since H. P. Hall purchased the St. Paul Trade Journal it has been rapidly forging to the front, both in increase of subscriptions and in advertising patronage. Its success has been so marked that it was given a material enlargement on the 19th inst, by the addition of a column to the page, the standard number of at least 8 pages being maintained and often times more. It gives much entertaining reading matter in this space, as well as valuable business information and market quotations and is a publication the business men of the Northwest cannot afford to do without. The Trade Journal is issued weekly at the subscription price of one dollar per year, and as an incentive for subscriptions Mr. Hall offers, for a limited period, to send The Trade Journal for one year and the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a volume containing 1,281 pages and 80,000 words, for one dollar. The dictionary will be sent express charges prepaid so that the total cost for fifty-two copies of The Trade Journal and a standard unabridged dictionary will be one dollar.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Editor Cook of the Polk County Journal died at Hot Springs Ark., last Wednesday night where he had gone to be treated for rheumatism. Many of the old timers will mourn his death as he was the first to establish a paper this side of Moorhead and the Journal was precious as gold for many years in this neck of the woods.

Owing to the fine weather to-day a great deal of wheat is being marketed.

Thanksgiving Day was generally observed as a holiday in St. Hilaire and most all business places closed. Visiting neighbors and partaking of turkey was general and the day was spent in various ways. In the evening a dance was given in the dining room at the Hotel Markham and the large crowd present enjoyed themselves to their hearts content.

There is a growing inclination on the part of the republican press to refer to the various appointive state officers as "the public trough," "swill pail," "pap" and the like. "The patronage at the disposal of the governor," is the respectful phrase these papers have used until recently. It is not until a pig gets outside of the pigpen in which he grew up that he realizes he is and always has been a pig.—Wheelocks Weekly.

The Imperial Drug Co. has ordered a large stock of wall paper which will be in at a later date.

An exchange says a gentleman invited some friends to dinner, and as the colored servant entered the room he accidentally dropped a platter which held a turkey. "My friends," said the gentleman in a most impressive tone, "never in my life have I witnessed an event so fraught with disaster to the various nations of the globe. In this calamity we see the downfall of Turkey, the unsettling of Greece, the destruction of China, and the humiliation of Africa."

The SPECTATOR received a letter from Geo. Rushton, one of the St. Hilaire boys who joined Co. "L" 14th Minn. Regiment stating he was to leave Lexington Ky. Nov. 25th for a three months stay in Cuba. Mr. Rushton is Acting Hospital Steward of the Hospital Corps, U. S. Army and goes to Cuba for the purpose of superintending the construction of hospitals, etc., for the accommodation of troops about to occupy camps. He sends his best regards to his friends here, especially to comrades who enlisted at Crookston when he did.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Fred Eikhoff wishes to tender her sincere thanks to the many kind friends who assisted after the death and at funeral of her husband. And to the fraternal orders—the Royal Neighbors and Modern Woodmen who extended aid.

The Imperial Drug Co. has still a few eight day clocks left which will be sold cheap to make room for new goods. Every clock guaranteed for one year.

No. 1 Death in St. Hilaire Camp.

St. Hilaire Camp No. 3650, M. W. A. was called upon for the first time to officiate at the death of a neighbor, Fred Eikhoff, who departed this life Tuesday Nov. 22nd, 1898. Mr. Eikhoff had always been an ardent member of the order and aside from that was a true gentleman held in high esteem by his social and business associates who turned out en masse to pay their last sad tributes to a departed neighbor and friend. The members of the Woodmen and the Royal Neighbors formed in line of procession at their hall and marched in a body to the family residence and from there to the church where Rev. Mr. Logan preached a very touching and impressive funeral sermon After the services Deputy Head Consul Case read the Woodmen funeral rites. The remains were then viewed by the sorrowing Neighbors and friends. When leaving the church the orders again formed in line of procession and despite the weather and unfortionable condition of the roads marched in a body to the cemetry, followed by a long concourse of friends. At the grave the remainder of the M. W. A. rites were read when the remains were laid to rest.

Mr. Eikhoff was born in Germany 46 years ago and first came to St. Hilaire 1883, starting a furniture store. Disposing of that business later and working at the trade of carpenter and cabinet maker, drifted west to Washington again returning and establishing in the hardware business.

Three years ago he married Mrs. Elizabeth Sargent who survives him.

Broiled Ham.

One who has never tried it cannot imagine how much more dainty broiled ham is if it has first been broiled. Cut nice slices from cold ham, and broil them just long enough to have them thoroughly hot and a little browned; serve at once on a hot platter for breakfast some morning, and see if all do not pronounce them delicious.

Sic Semper Tyranus.

Editor Jorris C. Norby of the Norman County Herald in closing an article on the State Senator question closed with the old quotation. "Sic Semper Tyranus."

Brutus used these terms first when he stabbed Ceasar in the back. Wilkes Booth said the same thing when he shot Abraham Lincoln.

Jorris C Norby who wished the nomination, but did not get it, but did succeed in defeating the nominee, again uses the old quotation "Sic Semper Tyranus"—Thus always to tyrants—Aye and traitors too.

A young couple had just become engaged and had talked over the arrangements for the wedding, and he was about to depart when she suddenly said: "Oh, I forgot to tell you one thing!" "What is that, dearest," asked the young man. "I ought to have told you before that I am a somnambulist," she said. "Oh, that don't make any difference," he answered; "I am a Presbyterian. I will go with you one time and you can go with me the next." —Sam Jones.

A Good Idea.

In spite of all the efforts that have been made to educate the people to the use of the Australian ballot system there were thousands of votes lost on Tuesday by men who thought they knew how to vote. It is estimated that the number of ballots thrown out in Marion county alone will reach 1,500, or an average of over six to the precinct Most of these were on account of distinguishing marks, though in some cases the voter did not intend his marking to distinguish his ballot, but simply did not know that he must make a cross to indicate his vote instead of a circle or a square or some other sign. In other cases there were evident intentions to mark the ballot for future use which the voter would presumably have avoided if he had known that it meant the loss of his vote. It is difficult to imagine what can be done to get the voters fully instructed on this subject. —Greenfield Herald.

The state might print several million ballots and distribute them in all parts of the country and have practice elections held—allowing the voter to write his name on the ballot he cast. Thus it could be known, who was ignorant and who was not. In the course of ten or twenty years some voters could become expert in the intelligent use of the ballot.—Jasper (Ind.) Herald.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Take Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, the best cough remedy on earth. 25 and 50 cts. For sale by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

An exchange tells the following story about the meanest man on record: He sold his son-in-law one-half of a cow and then refused to divide the milk maintaining that he sold the front half. He also required that his son-in-law provide all feed consumed and compelled him to carry water to the beast three times a day. Recently the cow hooked the old man and he is suing the son-in-law for damages.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

The Best Cough Remedy on Earth.

Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, Consumption Cure, cures a cold in 24 hours if taken in time and does not stop a cough in ONE MINUTE by paralyzing the throat, but it cures the disease and leaves the throat and lungs healthy and strong. 25 and 50 cts. For sale by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

December Ladies' Home Journal.

The Christmas Ladies Home Journal surpasses all expectations in the variety of its literary contents, in the interest excellence of its pictorial features, and in the wide range of articles aimed to solve the problems incidental to the holidays. There is a notable contribution on "The First Christmas Present," telling of the gift of the Magi to the Christ Child, and another recalling "Washington's Christmas at Valley Forge." Edward W. Emerson takes one back to "When Louisa Alcott was a Girl," and gives some delightful glimpses of her girlhood, her home and her daily life. F. Hopkinson Smith's new story, "A Kentucky Cindrella," will afford the Journal's readers great pleasure. It is much in the same vein as, but infinitely sweeter than, "Colonel Carter of Cartersville." Other fiction features are "Old Pegs" and the continuation of "The Girls of Camp Arcady," "The Minister of Carthage" and "The Jamesons in the Country." As usual Edward Bok's editorial page is filled with seasonable suggestions, and makes a special plea for the remembrance of those who are alone at Christmas.

W. L. Taylor's illustration, "Minnehaha and Hiawatha"—the first of a series of "The People of Longfellow"—worthily occupies the opening page. Other pictorial pages show "Mary Anderson in her English Home," "Where Christmas Means so Much" "The Creator of 'Ben Hur' at Home," "In Some Pretty Rooms of Girls," "Christmas in the Church" and "Christmas in the Sunday-School." "Christmas Dainties on the Chafing-Dish" is the theme of Mrs. S. T. Rorer's article on cooking. "Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning," the Journal's prize Christmas anthem, is the musical feature of the December Journal, which is excellent from every point of view. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar per year; ten cents per copy.

1056 Miles with Election Returns.

We enjoyed an hour's conversation Tuesday afternoon with Wm. Zipple, of Lake of the Woods, in which he related his experience of getting to his county seat with the election returns from his precinct. Mr. Zipple lives in Beltrami county and Bemidji is his county seat. On election day his section of the country was treated to a genuine snow storm and he being one of the judges of election, walked ten miles to the polling place. After the votes were canvassed he was the chosen one to carry the ballots to the county seat. Wednesday morning he took the steamer Edna Bridges for Rat Portage and when but a few miles out from Rat Portage the boat got stranded in the ice and sprung a leak, filling to the deck in a short time. Mr. Zipple took his place at the pumps with the crew but after five hours of hard work they were forced to give it up, having gained no headway whatever. Another boat coming along he took that into Rat Portage and from there proceeding by train to Bemidji. He says the boys over there used him royally and why shouldn't they? When a man carries eleven votes 1056 miles, which, when canvassed, gave the Republican candidate for county attorney a majority of two votes when before they came in he was nine votes behind, he ought to receive "the best in the house" and Mr. Zipple says he has no kick coming at all.

The county attorney elect is W. F. Street. Mr. Zipple left for home Wednesday morning and will arrive there to-day, making an absence from home of ten days and the round trip covered 1056 miles.—Roseau Region.

Talmage Speaks of Home.

Home! If things go right there, they go right everywhere; if things go wrong there, they go wrong everywhere. The door sill of the dwelling house is the foundation of church and state. A man never gets higher than his own garret or lower than his own cellar. Domestic life overarches and undergirdles all other life. The highest house of congress is the domestic circle; the rocking chair in the nursery is higher than a throne. George Washington commanded the forces of the United States, but Mary Washington commanded George. Chrysostom's mother made his pen for him. If a man should start out and run seventy years in a straight line, he could not get out from under the shadow of his own mantel piece. I therefore talk to you about a matter of infinite and eternal moment when I speak of your home.—Rev T. D. Talmage.

Watches Clocks and Jewelry.

I will carry a full line of watches, clocks and jewlery hereafter at Johnson's drug store. Anything you want that we do not carry in stock we will order for you at ten per cent above the wholesale prices and by doing this you will save money by dealing at home. Watches left for repairs will be sent down on first train and returned the next day. I shall continue to be at Johnson's drug store the 10th 11th and 12th of each month. Eyes examined free.

Half Sick Half Well

Many persons have their good day and their bad day. Others are about half sick all the time. They have headache, backache, and are restless and nervous. Food does not taste good, and the digestion is poor; the skin is dry and sallow and disfigured with pimples or eruptions; sleep brings no rest and work is a burden.

What is the cause of all this?
Impure blood.
And the remedy?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It clears out the channels through which poisons are carried from the body. When all impurities are removed from the blood nature takes right hold and completes the cure.

If there is constipation, take Ayer's Pills. They awaken the drowsy action of the liver; they cure biliousness.

Vow.

In her heart love and duty strove for the mastery, and duty won.

"No man shall wed me," she exclaimed, with suffused eyes and quivering lips, "who does not promise me that if he is ever president of the United States he will use his influence to have battleships christened with water."

Rigorous Swiss School Laws.

If a child in Switzerland does not attend school on a particular day the parent gets a notice from the public authority that he is fined so many francs; the second day the fine is increased, and by the third day the amount has become a serious one. In case of sickness the pupil is excused; but if there is any suspicion of shamming a doctor is sent. If the suspicion proves to be well founded the parent is required to pay the cost of the doctor's visit.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS

is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. A Comprehension of Providence.

A country parson went to see a humble parishioner, says a writer in Longman's Magazine, and, if possible, to comfort him some little under heavy trouble which had befallen. The pastor found the homely old man in the desolate cottage alone. He said many things and said we must learn to take all affliction humbly, as appointed to us by Providence.

"Yes," said the good old man, who was imperfectly instructed in theology, "that's right enough, that is; but, somehow, that there old providence have been after me all along, but I reckon there's one above as'll put a stopper on he if he go too far."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle.

Short and to the Point.

A few years ago, in one of the southern towns of New York State, a man died who had not lived a very good life. His family insisted that a sermon be preached at the funeral, however, and all due respect paid to the dead man's memory. No minister in town would officiate, as all were seemingly engaged. However, a retired elder, rich and kind-hearted, agreed to attend. The house was filled with neighbors, all rough and mostly ignorant. A short prayer was offered and a hymn sung. Then the elder, folding his hands in front of him, began: "My friends, if this man was a bad man, I have said too much; if a good man, I have said enough. Let us pray."—Truth.

Real Superiority.

It is the first duty of every woman to recognize the mutual bond of universal womanhood. Let her ask herself whether she would like to hear herself or her sister spoken of as a shop girl or a factory girl or a servant girl, if necessity had compelled her for a time to be employed in any one of the ways indicated. If she would shrink from it a little, then she is a little inhuman when she puts her unknown human sisters who are so compelled, into a class by themselves, feeling herself to be somewhat their superior. She is really the superior person who has accepted her work, and is doing it faithfully, (whatever it is. This designating others by their casual employment prevents one from making real distinctions, from knowing persons as persons. A false standard is set up in the minds of those who classify and of those who are classified.

"And what is your name?" the new teacher said
To the dear little boy who stood at the head
Of the very big class she was going to teach,
With a winning smile to all and to each.

"Dewey's my name," said the dear little lad,
Who looked as if he could never be bad.
"A beautiful name," the new teacher said;
"With it you are sure to be always ahead!"

"The class in geography," then she said,
"May rise to recite." From her book she read:
"The lesson's about the Philippine Isles,
'Tis far from here by ten thousand miles.

To that little boy who stood at the head,
"Go to the blackboard and draw for me

Sprang to their feet with one single accord,
And rushed right over to that blackboard?

TARANTULA SHEDS ITS SKIN.

Insect Increases in Size Each Time She Molts.

From the Country Gentleman: An event of more than ordinary interest occurred in my office yesterday noon. A large female tarantula shed its skin for the second time since it has been in captivity. Those familiar with insects, spiders and related creatures are aware that they are incased by a hard, unyielding integument. Increase of size is permissible only when the old skin is shed and one that has been newly formed beneath expands to the requisite degree. This is a process constantly occurring in nature, and ever excites interest in the beholder. When a large spider three inches long throws off the old integument it is a thrilling sight. In the present case the tarantula had evidently been feeling unwell for some days, a condition frequently preceding this process among insects, and yesterday morning she was found lying on her back and apparently dead, but moved a little upon being disturbed. She lay thus until about 12:15, when the rustling her movements made excited attention. The old skin had then ruptured around the thorax in such a manner that the top could be removed entire, and through this opening the giant spider was literally working out of her old skin. This was accomplished by the aid of her eight legs and the two leg-like palpi. At the end of an hour the change had been effected. The spider lay upon her back, beside the perfect skin, resting from the severe exertion.

This tarantula was unusually large before she molted, and is now of still greater size. She came, north in a bunch of bananas about two and a half years ago, and until last January was the pet of Dr. J. M. Bigelow. While under his care one skin was shed and is now in my possession. An idea of the increase in size attendant upon molting may be gained by comparing the dimensions of the dorsal piece of the skin shed about the latter part of 1896, when under the care of Dr. Bigelow, and the one shed yesterday. The first measures one inch and the second one measures one and a quarter inches. Therefore, the present dorsal piece will probably be proportionately larger when fully expanded.

She Couldn't Miss the Chance.

Mrs. Drayton—Ah, well, it has always been my dearest wish to grow old gracefully. Mrs. Winston—Is that so, dear? I'm awfully sorry for you. Mrs. Drayton—You are sorry for me? Why? Mrs. Winston—Because your dearest wish has been to grow old gracefully. Of course you'll never have a chance to try it over and make use of the practice you've had.

Llamas as Freight Carriers.

Llamas are the chief freight carriers in Central Peru. The usual load for an animal is about 100 pounds. If you put upon his back more than he can easily carry he quietly kneels and will not budge until the load is reduced.

OUR UNCROWNED RULERS.

Give the children roasted apples to eat frequently and as many oranges as they want.

How long should a child remain in a bath? This must, of course, depend upon circumstances; the time must be varied according to the age of the child. For the first four or five weeks of an infant's life it should not be kept in beyond three or four minutes, and the duration must be gradually prolonged as the child grows older until it extends to a quarter of an hour, a period which may be allowed after it has attained the age of 3 years.

When the baby pokes an inquiring finger into the fire or tumbles against a hot steam radiator a quick way to relieve his shrieks is to cover the burned surface with baking powder till a preparation of equal parts of linseed oil and lime water can be applied and covered with soft cloths. If the burn is slight covering with the white of an egg or pure lard will relieve the agony. Burns caused by lime or lye or an alkali of any sort should be treated by vinegar or lemon juice; burns caused by acid should be treated with water and moist earth.

There are households in which the children are scarcely permitted to speak above their breath. This is not at all right. In the home there should be freedom of speech. Children should be encouraged to express, in a modest way, their opinions before their parents and to come to them for advice and counsel in all their difficulties and dilemmas. If this course is pursued they will not be likely to take any serious steps in after life without either consulting the old folk at home or applying the home standard of propriety to whatever enterprise they may have in view.

LATE NEW THINGS.

Stamps and envelope flaps can be easily moistened by an Oregonian's invention, which slips on the finger like a thimble, the end holding a piece of sponge or other absorbent material to be dipped in a water cup and transfer the moisture to the gummed surface.

Why does the joke we think of just before going to sleep depart never to return?

AN AFFAIR OF THE NATION

It has been said of Americans that they are "a nation of dyspeptics" and it is true that few are entirely free from disorders of the digestive tract, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Stomach and Bowel trouble, or Constipation. The treatment of these diseases with cathartic medicines too often aggravates the trouble.

THE LOGICAL TREATMENT

is the use of a remedy that will build up the system, thereby enabling the various organs to act as Nature intended they should. Such a remedy is found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Here is the proof.

In Detroit there are few soldiers more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. D. His home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was a bookkeeper with the wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, and he says: "I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work. I have tried many treatments and remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend induced me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and after taking a few doses I found much relief and after using several boxes I was cured. I know these pills will cure dyspepsia of its worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."—Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

Origin of the Cocktail.

It is asserted that a certain Col. Carter, not of Cartersville, but of Culpeper Court House, Va., belongs the honor of inventing the cocktail, and this is how it all happened: Near Culpepper Court House there used to stand an old inn, built to imitate the famous roadhouses of England, and bearing the storied sign of "Cock and Bottle." The former word in the old vernacular, stood for the tap. The point is that the man who got the last drink and the muddy portion of the tap, was said to have received the "cocktail." Col. Carter was once subjected to this indignity, and threw the stuff upon the floor. "Heahaftah," he said, "I'll drink cocktails of ma own concoction, sah." And, starting to "clean out the shop," he dashed together bitters, sugar, bits of lemon peel and Holland gin. Great oaks from little acorns grow, and this was the genesis of the cocktail.

At the Telephone.

"Hello! Give me one thousand and sixty-six."

"What?"

"Ten hundred and sixty-six."

"I can't understand you."

"One, naught, six, six."

"I don't get it. Try again."

"One. Got that?"

"Yes."

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, naught. Naught—naught! Got the naught?"

"Yes."

"One, two, three, four, five, six. Got the six?"

"Yes."

"One, two, three, four, five, six, again. Got the six again?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's what I want."

"Oh, you want one, owe, double six? Why didn't you say so?"—Chicago Tribune.

His Brain Bell.

"You know," said the man who writes things for a living, "there's a bell rings on the typewriter when you get to the end of the line, to warn the operator that the end has been reached and he must stop and take a fresh start. I have no bell in my brain, but I have something there that tells me with no less certainty when I have done my stint, and it is time for me to stop for the day. And I sometimes wonder if the gentle reader doesn't think that my brain bell ought to ring earlier."—New York Sun.

Ideas and Postage Stamps.

Ideas, persistence and postage stamps, one woman told the members of the New York Federated Women's Clubs, point the road to success in literature for her sex. Practical words, these, and deserving of remembrance by those who repine because their genius is not recognized by editors. Persistence and postage stamps are valuable aids, but the speaker did well to stipulate for "ideas" to begin with.

Without Anything Feminine.

There is only one territory of any size—and never has been but one—occupied by any considerable population from which woman is entirely excluded. Yet such a place exists today, and has existed for centuries. As far back as history reaches, to all females it has been forbidden ground. This country without women is situated on a bold plateau between the old peninsula of Acte, in the Grecian archipelago and the mainland. Here, in the midst of cultivated fields and extensive woodlands, dwells a monastic federation of Greek Christians, with twenty-three convents and numbering more than 7,000 souls. Not one of the monasteries dates from a later time than the twelfth century. A few soldiers guard the borders of the land, and no woman is allowed to cross the frontier. Nor is this all; the rule is extended to every female creature, and from time immemorial no cow, mare, hen, duck or goose has been permitted to enter this territory.—Exchange.

Johnny's Mistake.

Mother—Now, Johnny and Tom, Mr. Black is coming to dinner today, and I want you both to behave very nicely.

Johnny—Mr. Black, mother? Is that him with the queer eye?

Mother (anxiously)—Yes. But, whatever you do, don't make any allusion to it, for he is very sensitive. Now, don't forget.

Both boys—All right, mother; we'll be on our very best.

(Dinner Table)—Mr. Blank has addressed Johnny several times and received no answer, until his mother interposes with:

"Johnny, how can you be so rude? Don't you hear Mr. Blank speaking to you?"

Johnny—Oh, were you speaking to me, sir? I thought you was looking at our Teddy?—Spare Moments.

New Cure for Nervousness.

A new cure for nervousness has been suggested to American sufferers from this indefinable but terrible malady, and by a Chinese student of national and racial characteristics. The man who has formulated the new nerve specific says that he believes its adoption will cure the worst case of nervous headache. He believes the entire absence of nervousness which characterizes the Mongolian race to result simply from the centuries of practice which his countrymen have given to the simple cure.

And this is the cure:

"Always wear soft-soled shoes, and you will never be conscious of possessing nerves," says the savant from the Flowery Kingdom.

Danger in Potassium.

A singular accident has been reported from a chemical factory, where a workman's clothes became saturated with dust from the grinding of chlorate of potassium. A spark from the workman's pipe fell on the clothes when the entire suit flashed into flame producing fatal results.

5 DROPS (TRADE MARK.)

Cured Nervous Prostration, Rheumatism, Catarrh and Stomach Trouble.

MOTHER AND 3 DAUGHTERS CURED BY "5 DROPS."

Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., Chicago, July 25, '98.
I think "5 DROPS" is the best medicine in the world; it has done me so much good. Before using "5 DROPS" I could hardly lie in bed long enough to go to sleep. I would have to get up and walk around, or sit up in bed. I don't know what was the matter with me, but I was suffering all through me and my body was so tender that part of the time I could hardly lie on the softest bed. As it has benefitted me so much I have recommended it to my neighbors. Three of my daughters have sent to you for "5 DROPS," also two of my lady friends. One of my daughters was suffering terribly with her stomach, and was all bloated up until she weighed 174 pounds, but after she took "5 DROPS" her weight came down to 146 pounds—her normal weight—and she is all right again. She thinks there never was such medicine made. I myself think it is splendid.
MRS. M. A. MATTINGLY, Colbran, Col.

Mr. Ira Sargent, Dunbar (Neb.), also writes under date July 25, '98, that he is cured of Rheumatism, Stomach Trouble and Catarrh. "I want to write you in regard to my case of STOMACH TROUBLE and RHEUMATISM. I commenced one year ago to take '5 DROPS' and I can tell you to-day that though I am 75 YEARS OLD and past I feel like a new person. I don't want to be without '5 DROPS.' '5 DROPS' has the praise of being the best medicine on the market. It has cured a bad case of CATARRH here and has another almost cured. Please accept my thanks for the favors I have received at your hands.
IRA SARGENT."

If you have not sufficient confidence, after reading these letters to send for three large bottles for $2.50 which will surely cure you, then send for a $1.00 bottle, which contains enough medicine to more than satisfy you of its wonderful curative properties. Prepaid by mail or express. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, La Grippe, Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis, and kindred diseases.

"5 DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottle (300 doses) $1.00, prepaid by mail or express; three bottles $2.50. Sold only by us and our agents. AGENTS APPOINTED IN NEW TERRITORY. WRITE TO-DAY.

PITH OF THE NEWS

DIGEST OF THE NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

A Comprehensive Review of the Important Happenings of the Past Week Culled From the Telegraph Reports—The Notable Events at Home and Abroad That Have Attracted Attention.

From Washington.

The secretary of state received a cable message from United States Consul Gibbs at Tamatave, Madagascar, saying that the bubonic plague had broken out at that place.

Secretary Alger has approved the regulations for the army transport service prepared by the Ludlow board. By these regulations an army transport service is organized as a special branch of the quartermaster general. The service will be conducted by its own officers. New York and San Francisco are the home ports.

The Uintah Ute Indian delegation, which has been in Washington in conference with Secretary Bliss over reservation matters, have left for their homes. They had a talk with the Indian commissioner and he assured them of the government's intention to protect their best interests. They were anxious to carry back with them their new gilsonite land lease with the secretary's approval, but went away feeling satisfied of the favorable action of the department.

Personal.

Dr. Lyman Abbott has resigned the pastorate of the Plymouth church at Brooklyn.

William B. Smallridge, who died a few days ago at Glenville, Gilmer county, W. Va., carried a bullet for thirty-seven years.

Miss Frankie Hull, aged seven years, whose home is in Grand Rapids, Mich., recently made the journey from Grand Rapids to San Francisco unattended.

The contest over the election of an Episcopal bishop of Iowa results in the election of Rev. Dr. Theodore N. Morrison of Chicago.

Arthur Sturgis Hardy, leader of the Liberal party in Ontario, who has been premier of the province since Sir Oliver Mowat resigned the position, in June, 1896, has been given to understand that he can be made a knight at the coming new year.

Rev. Dr. Thomas Hall will not succeed his father, the late Rev. Dr. John Hall, as pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, for he has accepted the chair of Christian ethics in the Union Theological seminary, which was vacated by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs.

Accidental Happenings.

Lucy Wells, eighty-five years old, was sitting by an open grate at Indianapolis, Ind., when her clothing caught fire and she burned to death.

A child of J. H. Liard, a Kirkwood, Ill., grocer, got hold of a package of currency containing $5,000 and burned it.

Wilson Klinger, from near Joliet, Ill., a graduate student in pedagogy at Cornell university, drowned in Fall creek, just above the Cornell hydraulic observatory.

Milton Majors, city clerk at Willshire, Ohio, was instantly killed by a Clover Leaf train. He was sixty years old, an old soldier and prominent citizen.

Levi Turpin, aged twenty-one, a farmer, and Mrs. Tomes, aged twenty-three, a widow, were killed while driving across the Illinois Central tracks at Mackinaw River, Ill.

Matt Drinkwater, employed at the plate glass factory at Kokomo, Ind., met a horrible fate. He was inside a large boiler cleaning the tubes, when a fellow workman turned the steam into the boiler, thinking Drinkwater was out. He was literally cooked.

At the opening of a new college at Perosa-Argentina, near Turin, the great hall collapsed, carrying down the assembly in the ruins. Three bishops were injured, one of whom has since died. It is feared that many persons have been killed or seriously hurt.

Crimes and Criminals.

An Iowa farmer compelled his daughter to write his will, and then killed her and himself.

Four prisoners in the Eureka Springs, Ark., jail broke out, attended an all-night dance, and returned to the jail in the morning.

At Lansing, Mich., Christian Witt, in a fit of jealous rage, attempted to kill his wife, and afterwards cut his own throat with a razor.

James Dawes, Marcus O'Neil and Benjamin Boon were all killed at Dallas, Texas in a quarrel over the cutting of a button from an overcoat.

John Snearley, alias Graham, of Chicago, has been taken to the penitentiary at Chester for swindling an Illinois legislator out of $1,500 by the gold brick trick.

Nick Moore, an unruly prisoner at Wichita, Kas., when put in a dark cell, mutilated the lock so that it cannot be opened, and he is confined without food or water.

Mrs. W. H. Miles, aged nineteen, an actress playing in the Gaiety theater at Scranton, Pa., attempted to commit suicide by taking laudanum and opening a gas jet in her room.

Disappointed with his business prospects and fearful of the future, Frank Rhorer, sixty-eight years old, a New York salesman, shot his wife, Freda, and then turned the pistol on himself.

A man giving his name as Charles Walker and claiming to reside at Quebec, has been arrested at Lyons for attempting to snatch a wallet containing 111,600 francs from a bank messenger.

Fred Oland, eleven years old, was indicted by the grand jury at Muncie, Ind., for the murder of Andrew Badenmiller, five years old, whose body was found in a gravel pit two weeks ago.

In a dispute over a partition fence at Ozark, Mo., the quarrel led to a general duel, and as a result, Steve Bilyeu, his sons, Otis and Peter, are dead, and John Taber, Bilyeu's son-in-law, is seriously wounded.

John Hancock, who has just been taken to San Quentin city to serve a ten years' sentence for burglary, has confessed that he and Winifred Myers murdered Dr. Engelke and Pete Edmiston on the desert in South Nevada over a year ago.

Foreign.

The anti-anarchist conference has opened at Rome. All European nations are represented.

A plan is being considered in Spain to sell all the remaining islands in Oceanica for coaling stations.

The British steamer Eualine spoke the Southern Cross, bearing the Borchgrevink antarctic expedition, on Nov. 20. All well.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Daily Mail says it is reported that Carlists have smuggled 12,000 Mausers across the frontier.

Frank Knaak of New York has been arrested at Berlin on a charge of lese majeste. He denies the charge, but the United States embassy is unable to secure his release on bail.

The Picquart excitement is growing at Paris. The signatures to the popular protest against Gen. Zurlinden's action are up in the thousands and include many of the most distinguished names in France.

At an American Thanksgiving dinner in Berlin Maj. Gen. Fred Wheaton, U. S. A., retired, said he hoped congress now realized that the United States needed an army commensurate with her size.

The Campana Trans-Atlantica has chartered the steamers Hapsburg and Werra, belonging to the North German Lloyd Steamship company, and will use them for the repatriation of the Spanish troops in Cuba in December.

Another massacre in Armenia is reported.

According to Consul General Gowdy at Paris there are no laws or regulations which prohibit the importation of live hogs into France from the United States, but the importation of live cattle, such as bulls, cows or steers, from the latter country, is absolutely prohibited.

Otherwise.

William C. Graham, a Keokuk, Iowa, millionaire, is dead, aged ninety.

It is understood that all but two of the tin plate mills of the country will join the new trust.

Clarence Forbes, a brother of Champion Harry, is coming to the front in the 105-pound class.

The Chicago clubs are trying to arrange a match between Tommy White and Henry Lyons, the colored lightweight.

The American ship Edward O'Brien will be the first ship of the sugar fleet to be put on between Honolulu and New York.

George Jenkins, who, prior to March last was a builder in New York, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

Charles E. Wright of Centralia, Ill., who deserted his wife two years ago, returned to find her married to another man.

Tax-Collector Samuel L. Findley of San Luis Obispo county, California, is a defaulter and a fugitive from justice. The amount of the embezzlement is not definitely known.

H. Maitland Kersey, formerly of the White Star line, sailed for Europe on the Lucania with a $50,000 gold nugget from the Klondike. It will be exhibited in the Union Bank, London.

Katherine Frinkt, who claims to be a German princess, is puzzling the Wichita, Kas., police. She wears fine clothing but is without money. It is believed she is a fake.

Frank Phiscator who, within the last two years, is credited with having made over $3,000,000 in the Klondike, was married to Nellie Boyd, at the Hotel Whitcomb at St. Joseph, Mich.

The controller of the currency has appointed Arthur J. Shaw receiver of the Citizens' National Bank of Spokane Falls, Wash., vice R. M. Strickland, resigned.

A receiver has been appointed for the Chelsea Paper Manufacturing company of Norwich, Conn., whose capital is $200,000; liabilities, $75,000; nominal assets, $275,000.

The general manager of the Grand Trunk railway system says there is no truth in the story that they have made arrangements with Dr. Seward Webb for a lease of that part of their system between Messina and Howick.

A buffalo bull escaped from a stock car in St. Louis and charged an approaching switch engine without being seriously injured. Then he defied the Missouri Pacific express and was killed.

Mike Donovan defeated Ed Sheppard in five rounds at Rochester. It was a hard fight and full of leads and swings.

Louis Pfaul, an express driver of Dayton, Ohio, made a bet with a friend that he could drink a quart of whisky. Pfaul drank the whisky and won the bet, but he died.

The energetic action of Oscar S. Strauss, United States minister to Turkey, has obtained a concession which the united powers had been for eighteen months vainly endeavoring to secure, namely, the granting of traveling permits to foreigners in the interior of Asia Minor. The immediate incentive to the action of Mr. Strauss was the porte's refusal of permits to American missionaries.

Lovers of the Rhine, whose banks for too long have been a favorite hunting ground of the advertiser, will be glad to hear that the people of Bonn, even at this time of day, are taking steps to save some of the river's beauty from further disfigurement. Like many other movements of a similar kind, however, the action is too late to be really effective. The growing trade south of Germany, with its factories and its steamers, has combined with the advertising Goth to strip the Rhine of her beauty.—London Globe.

OPENS UP FOR BUSINESS

CLOSING SESSION OF THE FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The War and the Fruits of American Victory Carry in Their Wake Many Problems Which the National Legislators Must Solve—The Session Expiring by Limitation on March 4 Precludes the Possibility of Much Being Accomplished Beyond the Passage of Regular Money Budgets—Intense Interest in the Message.

Washington, Dec. 6. — The curtain rang up to-day at noon upon the closing session of the fifty-fifth congress. The war and the fruits of the American victory carry in their wake many problems which the national legislators must solve. But though many questions may press for solution the brief space covered by this session, which expires by limitation March 4, precludes the probability of much being accomplished beyond the passage of the regular money budgets, the legislation for the increase of the regular army, which the administration deems necessary to meet the obligations imposed upon the country by the results of the war, and probably the enactment of a law to give a permanent territorial government to the Hawaiian islands. This covers all the important legislation which the congressional leaders expect to see enacted at this session. It is almost the unanimous sentiment of the members that no attempt should be made to legislate concerning the possessions acquired through at this session. There are earnest advocates of the Nicaraguan canal, who will strive to secure its passage now, and they may possibly be successful, but neither it nor any one of the others, like the pooling bill, anti-scalpers bill, etc., which have strong friends, will be allowed to interfere with the bills, the passage of which have been deemed absolutely necessary to prevent an extra session. The leaders at both ends of the capitol have put their heads together and the work of the session is to be entered upon with the idea of avoiding an extra session. With this purpose in view the appropriation bills are to be given the road at both ends of the capitol and pressed through with all possible haste. Two subcommittees of the appropriation committee of the house have been at work for a week. The deficiency bill to meet the extraordinary expenses of the army and navy during the six months from Jan. 1, 1899, to July 1, to the full committee, and the regular District of Columbia appropriation bill will be ready by the end of the week. It is necessary that the former should become a law before the holiday recess, which this year is to be shorter than usual, and Chairman Cannon hopes to see it through the houses and into the senate before the end of the present week. The Democrats of the house have not disclosed their position, but it is not believed they will seek to obstruct an appropriation bill necessary for the maintenance of the army now in the field. Should there be a disposition to open up and prolong a debate upon the conduct of the war upon this bill, it is safe to assume that the committee on rules will be involved to bring in an order of closed debate. Intense interest is manifested in the president's message on account of the great importance of the many questions it will have to deal with, and no presidential message in years, it is safe to say, has been listened to with the eagerness and interest with which the reading of President McKinley's message will be heard.

Is Ready to Submit

WITHIN A WEEK

Will the Treaty of Peace Be Signed. Church Wrecked by Fire.

Paris, Dec. 6.—The United States and Spanish peace commissioners held private sessions yesterday. Afterward representatives of both sides predicted confidently that the treaty would be signed within a week unless unforeseen complications arise. The American commissioners say there is no foundation for the reports circulated in the United States and cabled back that President McKinley has forwarded to the American commissioners instructions to insist unyieldingly upon a coaling base in the Carolines and that the Spaniards are endeavoring to renew their opposition to the cession of the Philippines. Both commissions recognize the latter question as settled.

SHOT BY THUGS.

Burglars Murder a Man Who Detected Them at Work in His House.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 6. — M. F. Corcoran, ex-postmaster at Duryea, a small village in Luzerne county, was shot and killed by burglars in his saloon, which adjoined his residence. His housekeeper was gagged and bound and the safe blown open. There is no clue.

Church Wrecked by Fire.

New York, Dec. 6.—Fire wrecked the end of St. Agnes Catholic church on Fifty-third street, near Third avenue, destroying valuable altars, paintings and a new organ. Loss, $100,000.

Col. Bryan on Duty.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 6.—Col. William J. Bryan, of the Third Nebraska regiment, has returned to Savannah after a thirty days' sick leave. He was met at the depot by his regiment and escorted to the camp.

Found Carlist Rifles.

Bilboa, Spain, Dec. 6. — The local papers report the discovery here of 896 rifles carefully secluded underground. A number of Carlists have been arrested on charges of being connected therewith.

ALL HANDS WERE LOST.

Disaster Overtakes the Crew of a Schooner.

New York, Dec. 6.—The Nova Scotian schooner Walleda has arrived from Gonaives and reports that during the height of the hurricane on Nov. 28 in lat. 36.22, long. 72.30, she sighted a dismantled schooner of about 700 tons, flying signals of distress. It was nearly dark at the time and her crew could be seen on the decks gesticulating frantically for assistance. The Walleda bore down on the schooner and got close under her lee. They shouted that the vessel was sinking and asked to be taken off. Capt. Kemp told them his boats were useless. They replied they would come to the Walleda in their own boats. During this time the Walleda lay to, but she was drifting to leeward, then went back on the opposite tack, and after several tacks managed to cross the bow of the schooner again, and drifted to a leeward position. The Walleda hailed again and got no answer. In the meantime another three-masted schooner came to her assistance and assumed a position to the windward of the wreck. Both of them stood by until daylight. When morning broke the wreck was seen to be deserted and the boats gone. It is supposed the unfortunate men had attempted to launch their boats during the night, which capsized and all hands were lost.

CREW LOST.

British Steamer Londonian Found on Her Beam's End and Deserted.

Liverpool, Dec. 6—The British steamer Arthur, Capt. Hendrick, has arrived here and reports that she sighted the British steamer Londonian on Nov. 29 in lat. 45 n., long. 16 w., on her beam's end on her starboard side, with decks and hatches submerged. All her boats were gone except a small one, and there was no sign of life about her. A strong northwest gale was blowing at the time, and the vessel was apparently fast settling by the head. The Londonian sailed from Boston Nov. 15 for London, in command of Capt. Lee.

Seventy Miles an Hour.

Pittsburg, Dec. 6—A new fast record run was established by a Cleveland special over the Fort Wayne railroad route of the Pennsylvania road. The special which runs daily between Cleveland and Pittsburg, a distance of 140 miles, between three and one-half hours, covered the eighty-two miles between Alliance and Pittsburg, in one hour and a half, making two stops. The entire run was at a mile a minute gait, and over some portions of the route a speed of seventy miles an hour was maintained.

Pronounced Yellow Fever.

New York, Dec. 6. — The British steamer Laughton, which has arrived from Cay Frances, near Caibarien, Cuba, and anchored in quarantine, reported the death of one of the mates, who was buried off Cay Frances. There had also been several other cases of fever on the voyage. The health officer declares that the disease was yellow fever. The Laughton will be detained at quarantine for a thorough disinfection.

Bibles for Porto Rico.

New York, Dec. 6.—Rev. A. J. McKim, agent for the American Bible society, has sailed for Porto Rico with a thousand copies of the Bible and portions thereof for distribution among the inhabitants of that island. Mr. McKim's visit to Porto Rico will be the first that has been made for the purpose of introducing the Protestant Bible among the people there.

New Police Force for Havana.

New York, Dec. 6.—Former Chief of Police John W. McCullagh, the present state superintendent of elections, will sail for Cuba next week to organize the police force of the city of Havana. He has been commissioned for this duty by President McKinley at the instance of Maj. Gen. Greene, who is in command of the American forces at Havana.

Mrs. Magowan Probably in Canada.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Magowan have given their case here another sensational turn by getting out of town, taking with them Mrs. Magowan's child, Edith Beryl Barnes, whose abduction from Cleveland Nov. 14 was the opening act of the present case. It is believed the Magowans are in Canada.

Iglesias Goes to Paris.

Washington, Dec. 6.—President Iglesias of Costa Rica left yesterday for New York city, where he will remain until Saturday before sailing for Paris. He was accompanied by his suite and Col. Carter, of the army, the personal representative of the president.

Season's Lumber Shipments.

Ashland, Wis., Dec. 6. — Lumber shipments by water has closed with a total of 161,403,000 feet from Ashland. Most of this was shipped to Lake Erie ports. Last year's shipments were 120,000,000, and the previous highest year was 154,000,000 in 1895.

The Helena at Gibraltar.

Gibraltar, Dec. 6.—The United States gunboat Helena, Commander W. S. Swinburne, which left Bermuda Nov. 10 for Manila, has arrived here and is coaling. The Helena is on the way to join the United States squadron under Admiral Dewey at Manila.

Becomes Ambassador.

Mexico City, Dec. 6.—Mexico makes a new departure in accrediting the Hon. Matias Romero, for a long time minister at Washington, as ambassador. It is rumored that Gen. Clayton will be made ambassador here on the part of the United States.

Killed a Reporter.

Galveston, Tex., Dec. 6.—E. S. Easley, who killed F. B. Blythe, a Tribune reporter, on Nov. 11 for the publication of an objectionable article, has been admitted to bail in the sum of $7,500 in habeas corpus proceedings.

Nicaragua Independent Again.

Managua, Nic., Dec. 6.—The government of Nicaragua, as a result of the collapse of the republic of Central America, has established a decree declaring Nicaragua to be an independent sovereign state.

WASHINGTON CHAT.

Secretary Alger has denied the reports that immediately upon the signing of the peace treaty the volunteer regiments will be mustered out of the service. It is stated at the department that while the ratification of the treaty will, of course, result in the ultimate mustering out of the volunteer troops, this action will not be taken until congress has materially increased the regular army, and Secretary Alger will recommend, in his forthcoming report, that the regulars be increased to 100,000 men.

The reports referred to brought up the question as to what disposition was to be made of the Fifteenth Minnesota regiment, now under orders for embarkation to Cuba. It can be stated that at this time no change has been contemplated in the orders of the Fifteenth Minnesota. In his forthcoming report, which will be made public, probably, this week, Secretary Alger will make a recommendation of much general interest, which, if adopted, will obviate the necessity of American soldiers in Cuba. The secretary recommends that the native military force on the island be enlisted under the American flag, to be used as an adjunct to our army or as local constabulary. It is stated by army officers who took part in the campaign in Cuba, that with little training the native military force can be made of much value to the United States, and, in case a large number of troops are required to be removed from the island, a native military force will remain to preserve order.

In commenting upon the receipts of the revenue from the operations of the pure food law, which amounted to $1,437 in October, Mr. Tawney said that this showing for the fourth month of the operations of the law were very gratifying. It is also pointed out that receipts from the law during the winter months will be much larger, as there is a much larger demand at this season of the year for pancake flour, buckwheat and other similar products, which are required to pay a stamp tax under the statute.

An official of the postoffice department says that the rural free delivery service will be established at several points in Minnesota about Dec. 1. Reports have been received from inspectors recommending the establishment of the rural free delivery in unsettled portions of the state, and plans are now being made to carry this into effect. The official added that the service would not be further extended in the Dakotas. This system of delivering mail in sparsely-settled communities has been very satisfactory during the year, and an increased appropriation will be asked for next year.

It has been said that protests are being filed at the war department against the government drafting nurses in Minnesota for service in the Philippines exclusively from the ranks of the Red Cross society. Col. Alden, of the surgeon general's office, says that the rumors are unfounded, and that if there is any friction regarding the matter it had not been called to the attention of the department. He added that nurses were not to be taken exclusively from the Red Cross, but will be enlisted wherever obtainable.

The secretary of the interior has approved for patent to the Northern Pacific Railroad company 2,765 acres of land in the Fargo land district. Secretary Bliss denies the motion for review in the case of Leslie A. Simpson vs. John H. Murphy's heirs, involving lands in the Bismarck land district.

MENACED BY REBELS.

The Insurgents Have Doubled Their Attacks on Iloilo.

Madrid, Dec. 6.—The government has not reached a full decision regarding the Philippine debt, but the official gazette publishes an announcement that the drawing for the redemption of the Cuban bonds will occur on Dec. 10. The speculation in the Cuban and Philippine debts on the bourse has seriously displeased the cabinet. The rise in those securities is attributed to the report that the government will devote the indemnity received from the United States to the colonial indebtedness, regarding which no decisive steps have been taken by the ministers. An official dispatch from the governor of the Visayas, Philippine islands, says that the insurgents have doubled their attacks upon Iloilo. The advices say: The rebels have their guns trained on the city and fire on our troops nightly. Our troops maintain a spirited fire and have killed a number of the enemy.

THE LIMIT OF THE LAW.

Southall Sentenced to Stillwater for a Term of Ten Years.

St. Paul, Dec. 6.—James H. Southall, recently found guilty of securing money under false pretense, or more particularly selling time checks that falsely represented work on government improvements, received the maximum sentence for such offense, ten years at hard labor in the state penitentiary at Stillwater. Mr. Southall made no comment on the sentence before leaving the court room other than to say he was not guilty of the offense charged.

Rescued the Crew.

Gloucester, Dec. 6. — The schooner Pryeon, Capt. Catliff, arrived from the Bermudas with the crew of the barge Robert Porter, rescued two days after the barge parted from the steamer Aragon, which was towing her with two other barges to New York.

An Actress Arrested.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 6. — Adele Le Clair, a New York actress, was arrested here to await the arrival of a warrant from New York charging her with the larceny of $230 from Joseph Drown. She demanded a hearing and as no warrant had arrived she was ordered released.

Gift to a College.

New York, Dec. 6.—The will of the late Charles P. Wilder, of Wellesley Hill, bequeaths $102,000 to Mount Holyoke college.

RESULT IN BLOODSHED.

Would an Attempt to Arrest Indians.

St. Paul, Dec. 6. — Ed L. Warren, deputy United States marshal, who went through the battle of Leech Lake with the troops, and who is familiar with all the Indians in the northern part of the state, having lived among the Chippewas for several years, said to a reporter that there was little question that any attempt to arrest an Indian on either the Leech Lake or White Earth reservations would result in bloodshed. The least provocation would start a war and it would take many troops to suppress an uprising. "The Indians are ugly and insolent," he said. "They claim that they won a victory from the soldiers at Sugar Point and they are ready to try conclusions with them again. There is no chance for an officer to go on either of the reservations and make an arrest. The Indians laugh at the officers and say that they will never be arrested. They say that they have whipped the forces of the United States and that they can whip all that can be sent against them. As far as an officer is concerned he is of no more use on the reservation than a yellow dog."

Indians Disappear.

Park Rapids, Minn., Dec. 6. — Fourteen of the White Earth Indians have been encamped on a small lake about fifteen miles north of here and have been killing considerable game contrary to law. Friday Game Warden Stephens of Detroit, in company with D. W. Clason of this place, went out and attempted to arrest them. The Indians resisted, refused to be arrested, drove the men out of the camp and threatened to scalp them if they came back. Stephens and Clason came at once to Park Rapids, swore out warrants and placed them in the hands of Sheriff Rombough. Acting upon orders from Warden Fullerton of St. Paul a posse of twenty-five men was organized and went up after the reds. The sheriff and some of the men have returned and report that no Indians can be found. Stephens and others are still out. Warden Fullerton has arrived from St. Paul and is awaiting the arrival of Stephens. He says if the culprits can be identified he will go to the reservation and take them. Trouble may result.

THAYER GETS TWENTY YEARS.

The Full Limit Is Given Him, but an Appeal Will Be Taken.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 6.—Justice has been meted out in the case of Link Thayer, the first of the six men to be tried on the charge of holding up the Great Northern flyer on Nov. 10. The prisoner was brought into court Saturday morning to receive sentence. His attorney, C. C. Houpt, moved for a new trial. The motion was denied. The prisoner then stood up to receive sentence. Judge Searle gave the prisoner the full limit, twenty years, in state prison at Stillwater. The case will be appealed to the supreme court, but meantime the prisoner will be taken to Stillwater.

Child Badly Burned.

Plainfield, Wis., Dec. 6.—One of the most painful accidents in many years occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dupke, on the Hubbell farm in this township. Their little six-months old babe was seated in a high chair by a hot stove and the chair tipped over, throwing the child on the stove, literally roasting its cheek. One of its hands was burned to a crisp.

MINNESOTA NEWS

TO BE ABANDONED.

Further Hearing in the Iron Ore Rate Case.

The state railroad commission has decided to abandon the big ore-rate case.

After taking testimony at Duluth, Cleveland, Ohio, Chicago and St. Paul, filling 250 type-written pages, the commission concludes that the state has no interest in the proceedings. This action is taken because the original complainants, Messrs. John G. Brown of Duluth, and Dr. Conan of West Superior, declare that they cannot afford to stand the expense of further investigating the rates charged by the Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern.

Attorney G. M. Nelson, representing the Vermillion Iron company, one of the interested parties, on Monday requested a continuance of the case until he had communicated with the company whether to intervene and continue the case. It is now decided that the Vermillion company's interests would be protected, and consented to a discontinuance of the hearing.

The Carnegie interests, which have been identified with the Oliver mine in that district, inform the commission that they do not care to have the case continued, so that, practically, all of the interested parties have withdrawn from the prosecution. This move on the part of the Carnegie interests, is taken to indicate that they have either received a satisfactory concession from the roads in the iron district, or that they will themselves put in a new railway for carrying ore from their mines the coming spring.

STATE'S CASH BOX.

Revenue Fund Turns a Corner Without an Overdraft.

The state has $872,000 in the treasury at the close of the month, of which $103,000 is in the general fund, $383,000 in the permanent school fund and the rest in special funds. The treasurer has a right to go into the pocket where the state keeps its roll to meet a temporary deficit in the change pocket, which is the revenue fund, and such an overdraft would have been made if the state prison had not turned in $125,000 the other day. Money for the October settlements will be coming in now, so that there will be no shortage, but a lot of money when the legislature meets.

Following is the condition of the funds.

WHITE EARTH COUNCIL

Indians Complain of the Dead and Down Timber Business.

White Earth, Minn.—A large council, comprising many chiefs and head men of the reservation, was held in the agency office. The meeting was presided over by Special Agent Schwartz, of the government land office, and Inspector J. E. Jenkins, of the Indian office. The main question at issue was the cutting of dead and down timber, and other matters relative thereto. Two of the speakers were vehement in their statements and denunciations regarding the manner in which the work has hitherto been conducted, especially in the diminished reservation, and stated that the greater portion of timber cut last season was green timber. Special Agents Parks and Schwartz, of the land office, have practically completed their investigation, and will report to Washington exhaustively on the cutting of down and dead timber and the pine land question in general. Inspector Jenkins will have a council with the Indians early next week, for the purpose of listening to their complaints or any suggestions the men wish to make relative to the affairs of the reservation.

PRISON RECEIPTS

Large Earnings From the Binding Twine Industry.

The Stillwater prison turned in $125,000 recently to the state treasury, on account. Last month it resulted $71,454. This is a considerable increase over the earnings last year, and shows a big balance in favor of the prison over the drafts from the treasury for maintenance.

The binding twine that is sold in the summer and at harvest time is all collectible in October or Nov. 1, and that accounts for receipts for close on to $200,000 in the last thirty days. The current earnings from month to month vary from $1,000 to $13,000, and average about $3,000. According to Warden Wolfer's figures, the prison was self-supporting last year, and returned to the state $60,000 above its cost of support. This year, on the same basis, it is likely to make a showing much better.

Eccentric Man's Suicide.

Adrian, Minn.—A citizen returning from the country went to the Coleman house barn for his team, and there discovered the body of Herbert Gerady, an eccentric German, hanging by the neck. Gerady had not even made use of anything to step off from, so as to leave himself hanging free from the floor, but had stood on the floor, tied the rope, then picked up his feet and strangled. He has often been heard to threaten to kill himself. He leaves a wife and children and a brother here, but he has not lived with his family for several months.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 7, 1898.

Incorrigible.

A poor little street Arab was brought into a hospital by the police. He had been run over by an omnibus and was badly injured. The chaplain was sent for, as it was thought improbable that the boy would live many hours. With little tact the chaplain began the interview thus: "My boy, the doctors think you are very much hurt. Have you been a good little boy?"

Boy (much bored)—You git aont!

Chaplain (shocked)—But I am afraid you are not a good little boy, and you know you may perhaps be going to die.

Boy (anxious to end the interview)—Well, tain't none o' your business anyow. Wot's me death got to do with you? Are you got a pal in the coffin line?

It is pleasant to be able to relate that the boy finally recovered.

Now and then the doctor is believed to be almost omniscient. A patient in a military hospital was constantly getting into hot water because he smuggled food into the wards. One morning his medical officer was about to examine his throat with a laryngoscope. Seeing the little mirror all ready for use the man's chum whispered an anxious warning from the adjoining bed. "I say, Bill, you'd best 'ave a care. 'E might appen to see wot yer 'nd for supper lawst noight."—Cornhill Magazine.

Could Sleep at Will.

A friend of the late Dr William Pepper of Philadelphia tells how he could go to sleep at will. "Will you excuse me, Mrs. ——?" he would say sometimes. "I could talk with you much more satisfactorily if I had a few minutes' nap. Jane, make Mrs. —— comfortable and wake me in ten minutes."

Outside the office would be crowded with people waiting to see him—about the Philadelphia museums, the University of Pennsylvania, the public libraries, or about their health, but he would go into his own room behind the office, would stretch out on the lounge, throw a rug over his knees and closing his eyes would be asleep at once. Ten minutes later he would be roused by his servant and would at once resume his conversation with the patient at the point at which it had been dropped. He would sleep in his carriage as he was driven from one appointment to another. He would sleep in a train, in a strange parlor or library, in private or in public, absolutely indifferent to comment.

School Holidays in France.

Two hundred and six holidays in the year, as against 159 school days! That's the record of public instruction in France. To begin with, there is the regular midsummer holiday, which covers a period of 64 days. That's pretty good for a starter. Then there are the Sundays. They are holidays of course, everywhere, but they count an additional 52 days. Then ten days are allowed for the proper celebration of Christmas and New Year's. To be thoroughly observant of the great feast of Eastertide 15 days are given. Thursdays are holidays, and that means 52 more days of no labor. All Saints' comes in for three days' holiday, St. Charlemagne two days, Shrove Tuesday and Ash Wednesday two days, Whitsuntide three days, and three days to make merry when the national fete in July rolls round. The rest of the year the children are supposed to study.—Philadelphia Ledger.

World's Largest Workhouse.

The largest workhouse in the world is at Liverpool, where the workhouse has accommodation for no fewer than 5,000 inmates. It is not, however, often filled, as only half of its many dormitories are occupied by the permanent pauper residents. There are occasions, such as a labor strike, if long continued, which cause it to fill up rapidly, and then it proves none too big for the requirements of the union. Liverpool has a large number of poor, but it is specially munificent in its charities. Of these the chief are the Bluecoat hospital, maintaining and educating 350 children; the Orphan asylum, the Seamen's Orphan asylum in Newsham park, containing about 400 boys and an equal number of girls; schools for the blind and the deaf and dumb, industrial schools, and a number of hospitals.—London Tit-Bits.

School Laws in Switzerland.

If a child in Switzerland does not attend school on a particular day, the parent gets a notice from the public authority that he is fined so many francs. The second day the fine is increased, and by the third day the amount becomes a serious one. In case of sickness the pupil is excused, but if there be any suspicion of shamming a doctor is sent. If the suspicion proves to be well founded, the parent is required to pay the cost of the doctor's visit.

The Bend in the Road.

I don't count death anything. It's the main traveled road. Death is not the end of the road; it's only a bend around which people pass out of our sight. Death is only an incident. Man is a hard thing to kill. He can't be killed. A drop of water cannot be destroyed. When energy goes from here, it persists elsewhere.—Myron W. Reed.

Financially Weak.

"Madam, you've already overdrawn your account."

"What's that?"

"You haven't any more money in the bank."

"The idea! A fine bank, I think, to be out of money because of the little I've drawn! Well, I'll go somewhere else."—Chicago Record.

Historic.

"I suppose," said the frequently disappointed politician, "that I may refer to my latest experience as 'a historic defeat.'"

"Yes," answered the somewhat satirical friend, "in the sense that history repeats itself."—Washington Star.

Vienna.

Here we have a proud, imperial city, rather disdainful of trade, aristocratic and cosy going, conscious of a long past, its rulers still animated with the conviction that they are the successors of Charlemagne and Otto, looking on Berlin as parvenu, on London as merely commercial, on Paris as half crazy. Excepting in the domain of music, Vienna is not a home of art and culture, but it is a center of dignity and grace and a certain calm air of superiority, which, however, does not offend. It is content to look on while other places explore and write and toil and push and strain; it stands on its rank; it can never forget its 16 quarterings and its claims to high estate.

Vienna is most interesting perhaps as the meeting place between east and west, where the fine gentleman rubs shoulders in the afternoon lounge along the Graben with the Bosnian peasant. The guardian of Europe's ancient order, the center of a great and most interesting empire, the city of leisure and of a pride so lofty that it does not know itself to be pride at all, Vienna is both a charming city and an important political center, as she will continue to be, no matter what is the fate of the Austrian empire.—London Spectator.

M. de Fontenelle's Bright Speeches.

M. —— said of a young fellow who did not see that a lady was in love with him: "You are very young. You can only read large print."

A preacher said: "When Pere Bourdalone preached at Rouen, he caused a great deal of disorder. The workmen left their shops, the doctors their patients, etc. I preached there the following year and set everything right."

A lady 90 years of age said to M. de Fontenelle, who was 95, "Death has forgotten us." "Hush!" replied Fontenelle, patting his finger on his lips.

A conceited dolt interrupted a conversation by, "I have an idea." A wit remarked, "Astonishing!"

A courtier said, "After the death of his majesty there's nothing one can't believe."

M. de Fontenelle, then in his ninety-seventh year, having just paid Mme. Helvetius a thousand pretty compliments, passed her on his way to the table, without seeming to notice her. "See," said Mme. Helvetius, "what account I should take of your gallantry. You went by without looking at me." "Madame," said the old gentleman, "if I had looked at you I should not have passed by you."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Desperate.

"I want a horse and trap for a funeral. Can you let me have them?" inquired the young man in the loud check suit of the cautious liveryman, whose stock occupies the same place in his affections that a wife and family should.

"Well, if you're careful," replied the cautious liveryman slowly.

The turnout was at last ready, and, while the young man in the loud check suit was arranging himself in his seat the proprietor patted the horse, an especial favorite, tried the buckles of the harness, shook the shafts and performed all the usual ceremonies due upon such an occasion. Then, as he handed up the reins, he said absentmindedly:

"He's very willing and quick. Be careful not to drive too fast."

The young man regarded him in surprise for a moment, and then asseverated:

"Well, I'm going to keep up with the funeral if it kills him!"—London Answers.

A Bridle to Her.

Polk Miller of Richmond is known as a raconteur of plantation life in the south before the war. One story told by Mr. Miller will well bear repetition. An old darky named Absalom was the favorite attendant of a widower acquaintance of Miller, and as rumor had it that the widower intended taking unto himself a second wife Miller asked Absalom if it were true. Absalom scratched his woolly pate for a moment and replied that he reckoned it was.

"Well," said Miller, "will he take a bridal tour?"

This somewhat puzzled Absalom for an instant; then an inspiration struck him, and he said, "I dunno 'bout a bridle, sah, but when de ole missus was 'live he used to taik a paddle to her; so maybe he taik a bridle to do new one!"—Exchange.

Got Her Snap Shots.

As President McKinley entered the station at Omaha the other day the crowd lined up as usual upon two sides of a passage that was roped off and protected by the police. Half way across the platform a woman with a kodak dodged the guard and sprang out before Mr McKinley. The chief of police, who led the procession, ordered her away, but the president interfered and took off his hat so that she might get a better view of his face. Backing rapidly a few feet in advance, she got several good snap shots and then disappeared.

He Won Her.

"I learn," she said reproachfully, "that you were devoted to no fewer than five girls before you finally proposed to me. How do I know that you didn't make desperate love to all of them?"

"I did," he replied promptly.

"You did!" she exclaimed.

"Certainly," he returned. "You don't suppose for a minute I would be foolhardy enough to try for such a prize as you are without practicing a little at first, do you?"—Chicago Post.

Alaska's Sky Pillar.

The newly discovered peak in Alaska, which is said to be taller than Mount St. Elias, is away over on the American side of the boundary line and is thus indisputably ours. It will be somewhat rough on Elias to lose his long reputed pre-eminence, but as the great landmark of the international boundary line he may yet get some consolation.—New York Tribune.

The Army and Navy.

The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. A Tough Contract.

"Well, Caleb," said Captain W. of Massachusetts years ago, "what will you ask a day to saw wood for me? I've got several cords that I want sawed in two for the fireplace."

"I should charge you about half a dollar a day if I had a saw," replied Caleb, "but I ain't got none, captain, so I don't see how I can accommodate you."

"If that's all that's lacking, I guess we can manage it," said the captain. "I've got a prime new one, keen as a brier, and I'll let it to you reasonable. How would ninepence (12½ cents) a cord do for the use of it?"

"I reckon that's a fair price, captain. I'll be over in the mornin."

Bright and early that next July morning Caleb was at work, and he kept at it so faithfully that he finished before sunset, when he went to the house to settle.

"Let's see," said the captain, "you were to have half a dollar a day. We'll call it a day, although it ain't sundown yet. That's 50 cents for you, and you were to pay me ninepence a cord for the use of the saw. There were three cords and a half in the pile. That makes 43¾ cents due me. Somehow, Caleb, you don't have very much coming to you."

"How unfortnit," said Caleb, after scratching his head dubiously for half a minute, and then looking up quickly, as if a new light had broken in upon his mind—"how unfortnit that you didn't have half a cord more, for then we'd 'a' come out just square!"—Success.

Musical Family.

When Audubon was traveling in Labrador, he came, one day, upon a house where the friendly inhabitants made much of him and his companions and where the good wife asked him if he played on any instrument.

"I, myself," she said, "am extraordinarily fond of music and have an instrument which has been sent away for repairs. We miss it greatly, for we can all play on it, and when we are tired the servants use it for us."

"You must be a very musical family," said the naturalist. "What sort of an instrument is it?"

She was perplexed.

"Gentlemen," said she, "my instrument is large, longer than broad and stands on four legs like a table. At one end is a crooked hand, by turning which, fast or slow, I do assure you we make most excellent music."

"A hand organ!"

She smiled delightedly.

"Ah, that's it!" said she. "It is a hand organ, but for the life of me I could not recollect the name."—Youth's Companion.

Impromptu Justices.

The St. James Budget tells the following somewhat unbelievable story gleaned from the columns of the London Times:

Herr Wolff, special correspondent of The Tageblatt, having an idle day somewhere between Kiao Chou and Tsingtau, went out in quest of adventures with his dog, Schuster, and his clerk. Arriving at a courthouse, he found a mandarin preparing to try 13 Chinese, charged with murdering German missionaries. Waving a piece of paper, which he declared was his warrant, he promptly took the highest seat, ordered "Herr von Schuster" to take the next in dignity to his right, placed his clerk on his left, waved aside the bewildered mandarin, who doubtless thought that this was the "mailed fist" in person, and called for the prisoners, whom, without hearing evidence, he promptly acquitted. He then rode off, followed by Herr von Schuster and the clerk, declaring that the order of the day was at an end.

Stranger Than Fiction.

The limits of probability have lately been puzzling a London police magistrate. The origin of his perplexity, as given by the Illustrated London News, is this:

A young domestic servant tried to cash one or two forged checks and was arrested in the attempt. She said "a gentleman" gave them to her—a "Mr. Gilbert," whose whereabouts nobody could trace. That story has been told too often to impress a jury—no juryman likes to be made a laughing stock—but before a verdict of "guilty" could be given a man fell down dead in the streets. He was recognized as "the gentleman" by the accused woman, and, sure enough, in his pocket were found other forged checks similar to those she had attempted to put into circulation. Even Mr. Lane, Q. C., may be persuaded that truth really is stranger than fiction.

Benefit of Peerage.

Every one may not know what the term "benefit of peerage" implies. A peer can demand a private audience of the sovereign to represent his views on matters of public welfare. For treason or felony he can demand to be tried by his peers. He cannot be outlawed in any civil action, nor can he be arrested unless for an indictable offense, and he is exempt from serving on juries. He may sit with his hat on in courts of justice, and should he be liable to the last penalty of the law he can demand a silken cord instead of a hempen rope.

Practical Remedy.

Caller (with manuscript)—Then you can't use the poem? May I ask what ails it?

Editor—Well, it lacks what might be called the true poetic fire.

Caller—Couldn't that be—ah—imparted to it some way?

Editor—Well, you might try sticking it in the stove.—Chicago Tribune.

Country girls in Spain seldom wear hats or bonnets of any kind. It was in Spain, by the way, that the custom of a bride wearing orange blossoms in her hair originated.

A snake does not climb a tree or brush by coiling around it, but by holding on with its scales. A snake on a pane of glass is almost helpless.

THE TRADE JOURNAL.

An Enlargement and a Great Premium Offer.

Since H. P. Hall purchased the St. Paul Trade Journal it has been rapidly forging to the front, both in increase of subscriptions and in advertising patronage. Its success has been so marked that it was given a material enlargement on the 13th inst, by the addition of a column to the page, the standard number of at least 8 pages being maintained and often times more. It gives much entertaining reading matter in this space, as well as valuable business information and market quotations and is a publication the business men of the Northwest cannot afford to do without. The Trade Journal is issued weekly at the subscription price of one dollar per year, and as an incentive for subscriptions Mr. Hall offers, for a limited period, to send The Trade Journal for one year and the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a volume containing 1,281 pages and 80,000 words, for one dollar. The dictionary will be sent express charges prepaid so that the total cost for fifty-two copies of The Trade Journal and a standard unabridged dictionary will be one dollar.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Messrs. Hanson, Richardson, Johnson, Langseth and six other Woodmen of Thief River Falls visited the St. Hilaire Camp last evening. A good time was planned but the candidate "gigged" and the goat was allowed to remain in the stall.

A party of young people to the number of ten, under the supervision of D. Collins who acted as guide drove to Black River last evening for the purpose of surprising Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Sandberg. It was a success and everybody had a real pleasant time.

We have one man on our list that has been taking the SPECTATOR for about three years—asked us to change his address twice—now the postmaster sends us a card. "Refuses to take it out." What should be done in a case of this kind? What would you do?

An exchange says that recently a schoolmarm in the backwoods district was teaching a spelling class. When the word "husband" was put on the blackboard none of the children could pronounce it, and in order to help them out the teacher asked: "What would I have if I should get married?" The answer was prompt, but not what she expected, and she blushed such a brilliant red that the sunlight paled.

One great point in favor of newspaper advertising is that the papers are carried home and preserved for sometime, going into the homes of the readers and being looked over by all the members of the family; they are exchanged with neighbors and it makes the rounds of the whole community. The advertisements in a good paper work, not for a passing moment, but for days, and weeks and months, and they reach the most intelligent class in every community. Nothing can take the place of newspaper advertising.

The new Drug Store have just received an elegant stock of holiday goods which will be displayed in a few days. Make your selection now.

Now that sleighing is good, we hope the farmers that agreed to pay their subscriptions in wood will please haul it in soon as we are in need of it now. Please remember this.

The Imperial Drug Co. has still a few eight day clocks left which will be sold cheap to make room for new goods. Every clock guaranteed for one year.

Thomson correspondence in Grand Forks Herald. "Mr. Ed Bell spent Thanksgiving at St. Hilaire, Minn. Five days passed and still Mr. Bell did not come back. His many friends had almost despaired of ever seeing him again when at last he returned as hale and hearty as ever. Mr. Bell reports a very pleasent time, but says he lost twelve ounces in weight. Now, most authorities on physiology agree that the weight of a man's heart is on the average about twelve ounces. Strange coincidence."

There are some curious facts about our calendar. No century can begin on Wednesday, Friday, or Sunday. The same calendar can be used every twenty years. October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April and July; September as December, February, March and November begin on the same day. May, June and August always begin on different days from each other, and every other month in the year. The first and last days of the year are always the same. These rules do not apply to leap year, when comparison is made between day before and after February 29th.—Ex.

Scene of The First Christmas Where the Wise Men Were Guided by a Mysterious Star.

"The place is Bethlehem, but the holy Family are no longer at the inn, in which there is no room for them," writes Rev. Amory H. Bradford, D. D. in the December Ladies' Home Journal, of "The First Christmas Present." "They are now in a house and by themselves. The dwellings of the poorer classes of that land and time were of primitive simplicity. The walls were of stone, often without cement or plaster; the roofs were of boughs or poles laid side by side and covered with mud and straw; the floors were of earth. They contained few rooms, if, indeed, there were more than one, and no windows such as are to be found in modern houses. The best of these buildings were hardly more sumptuous than the dugouts of the American prairies or the crofters' cottages of Scottland and Skye, but because of the dryness of the climate they were not uncomfortable. Neither walls nor floors were damp. Jesus and Mary were in such a house, and were as well provided for as most other peasant people of their time and their means.

"The stranger who appeared in the streets of that little town were wise men from the East. They were guided by a mysterious star. They sought one who was 'born King of the Jews.' When they found him, in true Oriental fashion they first bowed their heads to the ground in salutation, and then presented to Him gold, frankincense and myrrh. The phrase 'wise men,' or Magi indicates that they came from Persia or Arabia; that probably they were followers of Zoroaster, and therefore that they were fireworshipers. This is all that the Gospels teach us, either directly or by inference, concerning them."

The Imperial Drug Co. has ordered a large stock of wall paper which will be in at a later date.

Dentistry.

Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at St. Hilaire December 7th and 8th. Parties wishing first-class dental work done will do well to call on Dr. Thomas early and make dates. Remember the dates. All work fully warranted.

He Was Too Explicit.

Red Lake County has one honest man at least. The certificate of expenditures incurred by Mr. Sampson who was elected by one vote over Henry Norland to serve as sheriff, stamps him as being the man. The document shows up every cent of the money spent by Mr. Sampson while among his constituents and includes such items as the amounts spent in the various saloons, while on his circuits of the towns, the saloons being listed separately. His fidelity to detail may be the ground of a contest, as the law doesn't recognize treating as legitimate election expenses.—Crookston Times.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Buttermilk as a Medicine

Long experience has demonstrated buttermilk to be an agent of superior digestibility. It is indeed, a true peptone; that is milk already partially digested, the coagulation of the coagulable portion being loose, flaky and not of that firm, indigestiable nature which is the result of the action of the gastric juice upon sweet milk. It is a decided laxative, a fact which must be borne in mind in the treatment of typhoid fever, and which may be turned to advantage in the treatment of habitual constipation. It is a diuretic and may be used to advantage in some kidney troubles. It resembles koumiss in its nature and, with the exception of that article, it is the most refreshing and digestible of the products of milk. It is unvaluable in the treatment of diabetes, either exclusively or alternating with skim milk. In cases of gastric ulcer and cancer of the stomach, it is the only food that can be retained.—Elgin Dairy Report.

—The SPECTATOR is the official paper of the village and county. Now is the time to subscribe. $1.00 per year if paid in advance—otherwise $1.50.

The Best Cough Remedy on Earth.

Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, Consumption Cure, cures a cold in 24 hours if taken in time and does not stop a cough in ONE MINUTE by paralyzing the throat, but it cures the disease and leaves the throat and lungs healthy and strong. 25 and 50 cts. For sale by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

From Farm, Stock and Home.

Palm leaf fans are suggested when reading Australian exchanges: for it is now midsummer there.

The poorest beef costs the most to produce, and the same is true of wheat that brings the lowest price.

When sacrificing the good brood sow or motherly cow we are sacrificing her posterity down to the thousandth generation.

Dairying need not imply abandoning wheat, but more wheat on less acres. Both bread and butter should be produced on the farm.

Farmers' institutes are now about ready to start; be there when the curtain rises; you can't afford to lose any of the performance.

The season is now here when notes will be given to some fakir, and a few days after letters will come to F. S. & H. asking if the notes will have to be paid!

One of the strange things of the time is a farmer so busy hauling 50 cent wheat that he hadn't time to vote against a system that makes that priced wheat when natural conditions make for twice the price!

There are going to be some changes made in state departments in Minnesota, and a whole lot of victims of bogus hail insurance companies are expecting that one of the first changes will be in the insurance department.

Three fatal cases of typhoid fever in one family led to an examination of the premises to find the cause; it was found in the contaminated water of a well, by seepage from an old privey and drainage from an adjacent manure pile! Moral—but it does not need to be written.

—The Crookston College building is now complete and is modern and up to date. The Institution is one of the best in the northwest. It is cheap, thorough and practical. By writing Malin & Sathre a catalogue containing full information will be sent to any address.

Washington Letter

From our Regular Correspondent.

By putting in a vigorous protest Senator Jones, of Ark., succeeded in getting the War Department to change the orders assigning the Twenty-fifth Infantry (negroes) to garrison duty at Fort Logan H. Root, near Little Rock, and having a white regiment, the Twelfth Infantry, ordered there instead.

Mr. McKinley has made it plain to Senators and Representatives who have called upon him since Spain agreed to our terms for the surrender of the Philippines to us that he has not made up his mind what he ought to do with the Philippines and will not do so until we have had them under military control long enough to get the information necessary to form an intelligent opinion. That sort of talk has strengthened the chances of the treaty of peace for ratification at this session of Congress, as it coincides with the opinion of three fourths of the senators regardless of party. The opinion is practically unanimous that the taking of the islands away from Spain was the right thing to do, but there the unanimity ends. What sort of a government will follow our military rule of the islands nobody can say at this time. It will depend largely upon public sentiment in this country, and that will be governed by circumstances.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Sweet Potato Biscuit.

Boil, peel and mash one quart of potatoes. Rub them into one quart of sifted flour and one teaspoonful of salt. Work in next one teacup of lard, then add enough sweet milk to make a moderately stiff dough. Roll out to a quarter of an inch thick, cut into cakes and bake in a quick oven. Sprinkle sugar over the top is to many palates an improvement.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of the village council Monday Dec. 5th 1898

—All members present except Dahl.

Meeting called to order by Pres. Ives.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

On motion the following bills were allowed:

By Way of Advice.

"My son," said the Turkey Cock to the Little Gobbler at his side as the Football Player went by, "take that young man as your model. When he begins to train, do you the same, and, perhaps by the time Thanksgiving Day comes you will get your muscles so hard and our weight so fine that you will be a winner in the game in which our family is so often the loser."—Harper's Bazar.

They Are Reliable.

The American Farmer is sincere in what it says and whenever it endorses an article, be it machinery, proprietary medicine, or a man individually, we want our readers to believe that what we say we have good reason to understand is true. For a year or more there have been endorsements of the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, of 167 Dearborn street, Chicago, by this paper. People have written us to know if this company is responsible, and if its remarkable remedies, for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, catarrh, kidney troubles, etc., really had merit. We have therefore been at extra pains to investigate, and once again we add emphasis to our former endorsement of that company. There may be isolated cases here and there which, probably through neglect in following directions, or from exposure or some unexplainable reason, the wonderful Five Drops remedy does not do the work. But it is a case where the exception proves the rule. Mr. Swanson is a gentleman of character and personal integrity, and, we believe, would no more attempt to deceive the public than the writer of this article. They still offer to send a sample bottle of "5 Drops" for 25c or a large bottle, 300 doses, for $1, prepaid by mail or express. Address as above.

Mortifying.

"The case against you is perfectly clear," said the judge. "You stole a package out of an express wagon. It was found in your possession. On being opened it was found to contain campaign circulars. The sentence of the court is that you be confined in the county jail sixty days."

"Your honor," protested the prisoner, "considerin' the value of the goods, can't you make it one day for stealin' and fifty-nine days fur bein' a durn fool?"—Chicago Tribune.

SOME WAYS OF LOVE.

Mr. Singleton—Falling in love is nonsense. It doesn't follow that a fellow won't do it, all the same. I was very near doing it myself, once upon a time. She had a way of looking down when you were talking to her and of looking up when she wasn't looking down. Ah! different girls have different lines. Hers was the domesticated. "You really must try this salad, Mr. Singleton," her mother would say; "Louise made it." Or, "Do have another piece of Louisa's pie; the dear girl will be so disappointed if you do not appreciate her cooking."

As for Louisa's pastry—well, it needed no pressing. If I had started the courting business seriously and gone there every evening I should have become a confirmed dyspeptic, so irresistible were its attractions. Unfortunately we are so constructed that we like everything that is not good for us, and I——. But I am digressing. Also, Louisa was singularly accomplished at sewing. Putting on a couple of buttons was nothing to her, I found. You may smile! Perhaps you haven't tried sewing on buttons? I have and I know the difficulties.

What with the cooking and the sewing and the looking up and the looking down, it was nearly a case with me. I got to going there three times a week and was thinking of an excuse for making it four, when an aunt fell ill and Louisa's mother went away to nurse her. The night after her departure I went to supper as usual. There was no oil in the salad, the pie wasn't half done and the pie crust—ugh!—I can't bear to think of it! Then the truth dawned upon me. Louisa's pastry was made by Louisa's mother.

The shock—and the pastry—so upset me that I didn't call for several days. Then I rallied. At any rate, Louisa could sew, I reflected. You see, I wanted some excuse to marry her, so I went there again. She greeted me with a reproachful coolness. "I thought at any rate you would come round for your shirt," she said; "I have sewn the buttons on the collar."

"Oh, Louisa!" I began—I was about to take her in my arms—when my eyes lighted on the button. It was black; it was made of metal! it was ten times too large! It was, in short, the kind that my tailor uses for—er—other garments! So I escaped. It was providential. But sometimes I think—you see, she had a very nice way of looking up—and down.

The Rev. John Shy (communicated)—

AFTER GRACE.

A curate once courted a nice little miss,
Grace by name, and by nature a sinner;
He never dared ask for "Just one little kiss,"
P'rops he thought by his preaching to win her!
His most passionate speech, when they sat down together,
Was "A very fine day," or "Most singular weather!"

"Ah, me! He is vowed unto silence," she cried;
"'Tis my mission to make him abjure it;
Pa must ask him to dinner; I'll sit by his side,
And I really should think I could cure it!"

So he came, and they all tried their hardest to make Him really at home; to insure it,
He was seated by Grace, and, his silence to break,
Said her father (who couldn't endure it)—
Forgetting the "blessing"—"Now what will you take?"
"I should like to say—Grace——" said the curate!

Miss Flossie Smiles—Ma says it will be time enough for me to think of love-making when I'm two or three years older and wear my dresses quite long. I don't contradict her—ma is so stupid about such things, you know; but I can't help laughing. Why, it was only the other day that she was saying that, if you want to do anything well, you must start practicing it when you are young. And that's just what Fred Marchant says—the impudent fellow! He used to be awfully shy, but he isn't now; at least, not with me. It's very tiresome of him, because I don't like boys to be so silly. I should be dreadfully angry with him if he wasn't—I mean if he didn't—well, he's rather nice, you know!

I LOOKED UP, AND——

He's a great big fellow, at the same school with my brothers. You can't help noticing him if you go to any of their sports. He's always making fifties or kicking goals or winning races or something. You wouldn't think he was afraid of a lion to see him then. But when he came to my house, he used to sit and blush and twiddle his cap, just because of me! It made me cross! Of course I didn't care about him or want him to take any notice of me, really; only it seemed so stupid. Besides, people might have fancied that he thought I wasn't nice. I knew he didn't think that, because he used to stare at me so when he thought I wasn't looking.

All the same, I couldn't get him to say much more than "yes" or "no" to me, till one evening he came round to show the mater and pater a little bronze figure he had won at some sports—such a dear little pug, with a saucy little face that seemed to scowl and laugh both at once.

"Oh!" I cried, "isn't he lovely! I am so fond of dogs!"

"Do you really like him, Miss Flossie?" he said, eagerly. "I don't want it. We've got such a lot at home. Do keep it, please."

He put it right in my hands; and when ma said, "Certainly not!" in her most emphatic tones, he only laughed and took up his cap and ran away. Ma said that the pater would be sure to make me send it back; but he didn't—only pinched my ear and said something about "beginning in early days!"

After that, of course, I felt I must be nice to Fred; but he was so aggravatingly shy that I didn't know how to thank him. But a few evenings later, when I had been playing tennis with him and the boys—they were awfully tiresome coming home, and at last they ran away from me. Fred didn't go with them, so we walked home together. He kept looking round him uneasily, and I was afraid that in a minute he would follow. However, I told him I was afraid to go through the lane alone, and then he said he would come with me.

"You needn't unless you like, you know," I told him. "I don't want to bother you."

"Oh, no!" he said. "I—er—you—er—I should like to."

"That's a story," I said.

"No, it isn't." He stuck his hands in his pockets and had another look round. Boys are so funny!

"Won't you be frightened?" I asked.

"No-o." He fidgeted with his racquet. "I don't think I'm frightened of many things."

"Oh, but you are!" He looked surprised.

"What sort of things?"

"Poor, harmless little things," I said, demurely, "that wouldn't hurt a fly." He looked at me doubtfully.

"How do you know I'm frightened?"

"Because you blush."

"You mean I'm shy with girls, don't you?" I couldn't help laughing. It sounded so comical.

"Oh, dear, no," I said. Then I laughed again.

"Perhaps," he suggested, "it's a good job I'm shy. If I weren't you might think me too bold."

"Oh, no, I shouldn't!" I looked up at him just to make him blush as usual, you know: and if he didn't suddenly stoop down, just as I looked up, and——

Of course, I hadn't the least idea that he would do such a thing! I should have been ever so cross with him, only—well, he had given me that dear little pug, don't you see!—St. Paul's.

STRANGE SEARCH BY POLICE.

Sleuthing Paris Not for a Criminal, but an Honest Man.

At the present moment the police of Paris are engaged on rather an unusual task. They are in search of an honest man, not like the Greek philosopher of old, in a skeptical spirit, but for the very reason that he has furnished striking evidence of his integrity. As a matter of fact, when this interesting individual shall be found he is to be provided with a post in the service of the prefecture. It is a touching story, which reflects the utmost credit on all concerned. Recently Mme. Blanc, the wife of the prefect of police, discovered on her return from a visit to Passy that she had lost her purse, containing nearly 200 francs, and ascertained to her satisfaction on the following morning that it had been brought by a stranger to the office of the local commissary. The lady made kind inquiries about this person and on investigation showed that he had been living in a small hotel in the neighborhood, but that a few hours before he came across the money he had been obliged to leave the house, as all his funds had been exhausted. The poor fellow had been reduced to the utmost destitution, but he had manfully resisted the temptation, if, indeed, it occurred to him at all to appropriate the purse and its contents, which he had conveyed absolutely intact to the office. When she learnt that this honest man was wandering about homeless and without the wherewithal to buy even a morsel of bread Mme. Blanc was deeply moved, and she not only lost no time in asking her husband to institute an active search for him, but begged the prefect to keep one of the places at his disposal for Louis Dubourg, and she added: "As soon as he is found let him have the 184 francs. The money would burn my fingers if I took it back under such conditions." So it has come about that instead of being eagerly on the lookout for someone who has come into collision with the law its agents are searching high and low for the perpetrator of a meritorious act. So far their efforts have not been crowned with success, but it is to be hoped that kind-hearted Mme. Blanc will not be kept long in suspense.

South American Pickpockets.

Practice makes perfect even in wrong-doing and in the use of what seem to be very awkward means. A writer in the Boston Transcript says: The Gauchos, or dwellers, on the extensive plains of Buenos Ayres, are marvelously dexterous with both hands and feet. Many of them have acquired, through long practice, such skill in using their toes instead of fingers that they can fling the lasso and even pick pockets with them. Some time ago a Frenchman, who was fishing in one of the rivers of Buenos Ayres, was warned to be on his guard against the light fingered natives. He forthwith kept a vigilant watch upon his companions, but, nevertheless, one day when his attention was closely riveted on his float, a wily Gaucho drew near and delicately inserting his foot, extracted the Frenchman's books and other valuable from his pocket.

The Vervain Plant.

The plant known as vervain, which is not distinguished for its beauty, and which grows now-a-days utterly disregarded, was so sacred to the Druids that they only gathered it for their divinations when the great dog-star arose, in order that neither sun nor moon should see the deed.

All Put On.

"I hate to see a man sailing under false colors that way." "What way?" "The way Kidder is. Why, he's in mourning for his mother-in-law."

The French language, it appears, is better adapted to the purpose of the telephone than the English. It is stated that the large number of sibilant or hissing syllables in English renders it a less easy and accurate means of communication.

Bacterial Rot of Cabbage.

Newspaper bulletin No. 69 of the Indiana experiment station says: Within the past few years a bacterial disease of the cabbage has become so prevalent in certain cabbage-growing localities as to occasion very serious losses to those engaged in the business.

Although it has been said to occur in Indiana, it has not come to the attention of the station until recently.

Several fields in the vicinity of Lafayette affected with this bacterial disease, have been examined by the writer the present season. In one of these fields, containing over 20,000 plants, which were attacked early in the season, not a single marketable head was obtained. In other fields, judging from a cursory examination, from 10 to 50 per cent of the heads were affected.

In view of these facts, it has been thought best to send out a note of warning in regard to the disease, in order that such precautionary measures as are deemed most valuable may be at once employed in keeping it in check. Fortunately the life history of the disease has been quite thoroughly studied of late, and the result of the investigations, together with other valuable information, may be found in Bulletin No. 65, of the Wisconsin experiment station, and Farmers' Bulletin No. 68, of the U. S. department of agriculture. The latter bulletin is sent free on application to the secretary of agriculture.

The conclusions of these investigators, although working independently, are essentially the same. Both are agreed that the only hope of successfully combating the disease is in the careful observance of several precautionary measures.

Symptoms of Disease.—A dwarfing or one-sided growth of the heads, or in case of an early attack, the entire absence of any heads. Occasionally the heads rot and fall off.

In the leaves the symptoms usually begin at the margins and consist of a yellowing of all the affected parts, except the veins, which become decidedly brown or black.

Infection.—The bacterial germ is conveyed to the leaves of the plant by wind or insects, and in most cases gains an entrance to the tissues of the plant through the edges of the leaf.

Precautionary Measures.—As there is no remedy known, preventive measures must be relied on in combating the disease. These measures are as follows:

Avoid planting in land on which infected plants have been grown. Several years may be necessary to rid the land of the germs.

Do not use manure, containing decayed cabbage leaves, or stalks either in the seed bed or field.

Wet land should be avoided, as it favors the development of the disease.

Keep the plants as free from insects as possible.

Remove and destroy all diseased plants or portions of the plant, as soon as diseased condition is noticed.

If any of the readers of this article have been troubled with the disease, they will confer a favor by reporting the same to the Indiana experiment station at Lafayette.

—William Stuart, Assistant Botanist.

Big Yields of Corn.

Some weeks ago we mentioned the fact that at the Illinois State Fair there were six entries of corn for the award for greatest acre yield. The yields, as reported, were as follows:

W. F. Schnopp, 180 bushels 63 pounds.

Samuel D. Maddock, 74 bushels 65 pounds.

Albert Brown, 84 bushels 10 pounds.

John H. Powers, 176 bushels 40 pounds.

F. D. Nunes, 145 bushels 22 pounds.

C. W. McMurray, 126 bushels 10 pounds.

This shows what it is possible to do on land properly manured and properly cared for. The previous year there were many other entries, but none that came up to the high-water mark of this year. It is a pity that more entries were not made. It would seem that hundreds of farmers might compete in this class. It would be a good thing for the agriculture of Illinois if more money were devoted to this part of the fair.

Good Layers.

A writer in Farm Poultry this month publishes the record of a Light Brahma pullet born July 10, 1897. She began to lay on Jan. 14, and her record to Oct. 10, 1898, was as follows: January 12, February 19, March 30, April 25, May 28, June 24, July 29, August 23, September 20, October (10 days) 8, making a total of 218 eggs. The Farmers' Review regards this as a remarkable performance, but one to be believed. It only shows the possibilities of building up laying strains in almost any of the breeds. This hen should be kept for the purposes of breeding. Not all of her eggs would produce chicks of such fecundity as their mother, but some of them probably would.

Sell the Harness, Too.—Whenever a horse is sold, the harness in which it has been used to working ought always to go with the bargain. No two harnesses were ever made to fit alike and especially where the pressure comes on the shoulder or neck in drawing. The skin under the old harness has been gradually toughened by pressure on one spot, but with the new harness the pressure is shifted, it may be only an inch or two, but it comes where the skin is tender and will quickly break when exposed to the collar. If the whole harness cannot go, be at least sure to secure the collar with any new horse purchased, so that the animal can work without being tortured. The collar once used for one horse ought never be used for another.—Ex.

Hogs Fed on Horses.—A foreigner farming near Delphi, Ind., a veritable ghoul, has been indicted, by the state board of health for feeding hogs on dead horses. He found the hogs would fatten for a time on the offal and dead horses, so he bought up all the old cheap horses he could find to feed to his hogs and managed to sell them off before they died of hog cholera or disease. The state board of health say the hogs so fattened are dangerous to use as food. Any farmer should be indicted who will feed dead animals to his hogs, and it is sure to develop hog cholera.—Ex.

They found Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder strongest in leavening power, perfect in purity, and of uniform excellence.

Expert and Able to Speak Intelligently.

Expert Stephen Little, who has just returned from an extended trip over the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western systems, says: "No one who has not recently examined these properties has any idea of their value and infinite progress. The service on the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western is unexcelled. There is nothing in the East to compare, much less to equal it, and it towers monumentally over any other transportation in any part of the world. The train service of these three corporations is superb. Until recently the Pennsylvania Limited, out of New York to Chicago, was believed to be ideal, but so thorough is the service of the Chicago Great Western, with the buffet cars, with their bull heads, stained glass windows, and through electrical equipment, that the Pennsylvania people have ordered their renowned 'Chicago Limited' into the shops that it may be rebuilt, or rather, modernized, after the cars that are in service on the Chicago Great Western. I think the future of this property is very great. The earnings are away ahead of what they were a year ago and the outlook is brighter."

Probably Accepted Her Invitation.

M'KINLEY TO CONGRESS

SYNOPSIS OF THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Incidents Leading up to the War With Spain are Briefly Reviewed—The Declaration of War and the Preparations, Naval and Military, for the Great Conflict, are Touched Upon—Then Comes a Review of the Stirring Events of the War and the Triumph of American Arms—Promise of the Early Conclusion of a Treaty of Peace—Importance of Nicaragua Canal—Gratifying Treasury Conditions.

Washington, Dec. 6.—President McKinley's second annual message submitted to congress yesterday, contains about twenty thousand words. Following is a brief synopsis—including some direct excerpts of the more important features—of the message:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"Notwithstanding the added burdens rendered necessary by the war, our people rejoice in a very satisfactory and steadily increasing degree of prosperity, evidenced by the largest volume of business ever recorded. Manufacture has been productive, agricultural pursuits have yielded abundant returns, labor in all fields of industry is better rewarded, revenue legislation passed by the present congress has increased the treasury's receipts to the amount estimated by its authors; the finances of the government have been successfully administered and its credit advanced to the first rank, while its currency has been maintained at the world's highest standard. Military service under a common flag and for a righteous cause has strengthened the national spirit and served to cement more closely than ever the fraternal bonds between every section of the country."

In reviewing the controversy which led up to the war with Spain, the president takes up the thread of narrative where it terminated in his last annual message. He concluded: "It was honestly due to our friendly relations with Spain that she should be given a reasonable chance to realize her expectations of reform to which she had become irrevocably committed."

It became evident, however, that the proposed plans were barren of good results. No tangible relief was afforded the reconcentrados, among whom the rate of mortality frightfully increased; the proffered expedient of zones of cultivation proved illusory, and it was apparent that nothing save the physical exhaustion of Spain or the Cubans and the practical ruin of the island of Cuba could result from the struggle then in progress.

At this critical juncture the destruction of the battleship "Maine" occurred. Concerning it, the president says:

"It is a striking evidence of the poise and sturdy good sense distinguishing our national character, that this unlooked-for blow, falling upon a generous people, already deeply touched by preceding events in Cuba, did not move them to an instant, desperate resolve to tolerate no longer the existence of a condition of danger and disorder at our doors that made possible such a deed, by whomsoever wrought."

Resuming the war narrative, the president directs attention to the measures, including the $50,000,000 appropriation for national defense, taken to place the country on a war footing and adds: "It is sufficient to say that the outbreak of war, when it did come, found our nation not unprepared to meet the conflict."

Reference is made to the apprehension of coming strife by the Continental powers, voiced in the address to the president through their ambassadors and envoys, and to the president's reply thereto. Still animated, however, by the hope of a peaceful solution of the difficulty, and obeying the dictates of duty, the president relaxed no effort to bring about a speedy ending of the Cuban struggle. Negotiations with the Madrid government proved futile so far as practical results were concerned, and when the president presented the question to congress, saying: "In the name of humanity, in the name of civilization, in behalf of endangered American interests, which give us the right and duty to speak, and to act, the war in Cuba must stop."

The Declaration of War.

The result of this statement of the case was the adoption of the memorable joint resolution by congress declaring the purpose of the United States to intervene between the Spanish and Cubans. Following swiftly upon the enactment of the resolution came the severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries, the proclamation of a blockade of Cuban ports, the calling for volunteers and the formal declaration of the existence of a state of war. All other governments were immediately notified of the existence of war, and such proclaimed neutrality. "It is not among the least gratifying incidents of the struggle, that the obligations of neutrality were impartially discharged by all, often under most delicate and difficult circumstances."

The president reviews at length the work of preparation for war, referring particularly to the enlistment of the volunteers; to the material increase of the navy in both men and ships and to the precautionary measures taken for the protection of the seaboard coast and the cities.

"The aggregate number of mines placed was 1535 in the principal harbors, from Maine to California."

Referring to "the difficult and important character" of the work performed by the signal corps, the president says:

"This service was invaluable to the executive in directing the operations of the army and navy. With a total force of over 1,300 the loss was by disease, in camp and field, officers and men included, only five."

As to the authorized loan of $200,000,000, which was taken entirely by small bidders the president says:

"This was a most encouraging and significant result, showing the vast resources of the nation and the determination of the people to uphold their country's honor."

Taking up chronologically the events of the war, the president reviews them carefully. The first encounter was the shelling of Matanzas, on April 27. This was followed by an engagement which was "destined to mark a memorable epoch in maritime warfare." This was Commodore Dewey's wonderful victory at Manila, on May 1. "The effect of this remarkable victory," says the president, "upon the spirit of our people and upon the fortunes of the war, was instant. A prestige of invincibility thereby attached to our arms, which continued throughout the struggle."

The president says that "only reluctance to cause needless loss of life and property prevented the early storming and capture of the city (Manila), and therewith the absolute military occupancy of the whole Philippines group."

Following the memorable trip of the battleship Oregon from San Francisco to Key West and the bombardment of San Juan and the forts of Santiago, to which special reference is made, the president says:

"The next act in the war thrilled not alone the hearts of our countrymen, but the world by its exceptional heroism. On the night of June 3 Lieut. Hobson, aided by seven volunteers, blocked the outlet from Santiago harbor by sinking the collier Merrimac in the channel, under a fierce fire from the shore batteries, escaping with their lives as by a miracle, but falling into the hands of the Spaniards. It is a most gratifying incident of the war that the bravery of this little band of heroes was cordially appreciated by the Spanish admiral."

The Santiago Campaign.

The campaign of Santiago, resulting in the investment and the capture of that city, is referred to as a brilliant achievement. A brief review is then presented of the decisive naval combat of the war on July 3, resulting in the complete destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet. Concerning it the president says:

"Where all so conspicuously distinguished themselves, from the commanders to the gunners and the unnamed heroes in the boiler rooms, each and all contributing toward the achievement of this astounding victory, for which neither ancient nor modern history affords a parallel in the completeness of the event and the marvelous disproportion of casualties it would be invidious to single out any one for special honor."

In this connection the president says: "Nor can we be unmindful of the achievements of our builders, mechanics, and artisans for their part in the construction of our war ships."

As to the success gained by the arms of the United States in Cuba, the president says that the earnest and lasting gratitude of the nation is unsparing. "Nor should we alone remember the gallantry of the living; the dead claim our tears, and our losses by battle and disease must cloud any exultation at the result and teach us the awful cost of war, however righteous the cause or signal the victory."

The total casualties in killed and wounded in the army during the war with Spain were: Officers killed, 23; enlisted men killed, 257; total, 280. Officers wounded, 113; enlisted men wounded, 1,464; total, 1,577. Of the navy: Killed, 17; wounded, 67; died as result of wounds, 1; invalided from service, 6; total, 91.

"It will be observed that while our navy was engaged in two great battles and in numerous perilous undertakings in blockade and bombardment, and more than 50,000 of our troops were transported to distant lands and were engaged in assault and siege and battle and many skirmishes in unfamiliar territory, we lost in both arms of the service a total of 1,668 killed and wounded, and in the entire campaign, by land and sea, we did not lose a gun or a flag or a transport or a ship, and with the exception of the crew of the Merrimac, not a soldier or sailor was taken prisoner."

The president bears testimony and pays fitting tribute "to the patriotism and devotion of that large portion of our army, which, although eager to be ordered to the post of greatest exposure, fortunately was not required outside of the United States." They did their whole duty and earned the gratitude of the nation. The president then says:

"In tracing these events we are constantly reminded of our obligations to the Divine Master for his watchful care over us, and his safe guidance, for which the nation makes reverent acknowledgment and offers humble prayer for the continuance of his favors."

The peace negotiations which followed soon after the capitulation of Santiago, and the preparation and signing of the protocol are discussed at length. Referring to the work of the peace commission in Paris the president says:

"These negotiations have made hopeful progress, so that I trust soon to be able to lay a definite treaty before the senate, with a review of the steps leading to its signature."

Our New Possessions.

"I do not discuss at this time the government or tenure of the new possessions which will come to us as the result of the war with Spain. Such discussion will be appropriate after the treaty of peace shall be ratified. In the meantime and until the congress has legislated otherwise, it will be my duty to continue the military governments which have existed since our occupation, and give to the people security in life and property, and encouragement under a just and beneficent rule.

"As soon as we are in possession of Cuba and have pacified the island it will be necessary to give aid and direction to its people to form a government for themselves. This should be undertaken at the earliest moment consistent with safety, and assured success. It is important that our relations with this people should be of the most friendly character, and our commercial relations close and reciprocal. It should be our duty to assist in every proper way to build up the waste places of the island, encourage the industry of the people and assist them to form a government which shall be free and independent, thus realizing the best aspirations of the Cuban people.

"Spanish rule must be replaced by a just, benevolent and humane government, created by the people of Cuba, capable of performing all international obligations and which shall encourage thrift, industry and prosperity, and promote peace and good will among all of the inhabitants, whatever may have been their relations in the past. Neither revenge nor passion should have a place in the new government. Until there is complete tranquillity in the island and a stable government erected, military occupation will be continued."

The president says that with the one instance of the interruption of intercourse with Spain, the relations of the United States with the family of nations during the past year has been characterized by cordiality. Concerning negotiations with the Argentina government with a view to removing differences in cable rate charges imposed against messages passing from and to the United States, the president expresses his sincere hope of an international agreement whereby interchange of messages over connecting lines may be regulated on a fair basis of uniformity, and adds:

"It would be strange were the nations not in time brought to realize that modern civilization, which owes so much of its progress to the annihilation of time by the electrical force demands that this all important means of communication be a heritage of peoples, to be administered and regulated in their common behalf."

Referring to the killing and wounding of striking miners in Luzerne county, Pa., which aroused the solicitude of the Austro-Hungarian government, many of the miners being subjects of that government, the president expects to reach a harmonious understanding on the subject with Austro-Hungary.

The hope is expressed that the restrictions imposed by Belgium on the importation of American cattle will at an early day be relaxed, so as to admit live American cattle under proper regulations.

The president expects that the Nicaragua canal commission will shortly be able to report finally.

"I have not hesitated to express my convictions," says the president, "that considerations of expediency and international policy as between the several governments interested in the construction and control of an interoceanic canal by this route require the maintenance of the status quo until the canal company shall have reported and the United States congress shall have had the opportunity to pass finally upon the whole matter."

The president regards, in view of our newly acquired interests in the Pacific ocean, the construction of such a maritime highway as now more than ever indispensable.

Interests in the Orient.

Concerning the extraordinary events transpiring in the Chinese empire, the president says that our position among nations gives the equitable claim to consideration and friendly treatment in this regard, and that it will be his aim to subserve our large interests in the Orient by all means appropriate to the constant policy of our government.

Reference is made to several claims of citizens of the United States pending against other nations, and to the settlement of other claims during the past year.

After reviewing the work of the Paris exposition commissioner, the president recommends that an appropriation for the exhibit of the United States at the Paris exposition be increased to $1,000,000.

Our relations with Great Britain have continued on the most friendly footing, and the president says it would give him especial satisfaction if he should be authorized to communicate to congress a favorable conclusion of the pending negotiations with Great Britain in respect to the dominion of Canada.

The president reports that the Hawaiian commission has fulfilled its mission, and that its report will be laid before congress at an early day.

"It is believed that the commission's recommendations will have the earnest consideration due to the magnitude of the responsibility resting upon you to give such shape to the relationship of these mid-Pacific lands to our home Union as will benefit both in the highest degree."

Referring to the proposal of the czar of Russia for a general reduction of the great military establishment, the president says: "His majesty was at once informed of the cordial sympathy of this government with the principle involved in his exalted proposal, and of the readiness of the country to take part in the conference."

The president says that the newly accredited envoy of the United States to the Ottoman porte carries instructions looking to the disposal of matters in controversy with Turkey for a number of years.

Alluding to the financial affairs of the country, the president says in part:

"The secretary of the treasury reports that the receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1898, including $64,751,223 received from sale of Pacific railroads amounted to $405,321,335 and its expenditures to $443,368,582.

"It is estimated upon the basis of present revenue laws that the receipts of the government for the year ending June 30, 1899, will be $577,874,647 and its expenditures $689,874,647, resulting in a deficiency of $112,000,000.

Currency Legislation.

"In my judgment, the present condition of the treasury amply justifies the immediate enactment of the legislation recommended one year ago, under which a portion of the gold holdings should be placed in a trust fund from which greenbacks should be redeemed upon presentation, but when once redeemed should not thereafter be paid out except for gold.

"It is not to be inferred that other legislation relating to our currency is not required; on the contrary, there is an obvious demand for it."

The president says that in view of the recent acquisition of territory by the United States, there should be established regular and frequent steamship communication, under the American flag with the newly acquired islands.

In view, also, of the increased importance of the proposed formation of a commission of sanitary experts to investigate the yellow fever problem, owing to the military occupation of Cuba, the president recommends that congress should provide for such commission.

The recommendation made by the secretary of war for the increase of the regular military establishment has the president's unqualified approval. He says that it is his purpose to muster out the entire volunteer army as soon as congress shall provide for the increase of the regular establishment. He recommends the erection of a building for the department of justice, and suggests also the advisability of making proper provision for the supreme court. He earnestly approves of the recommendations of Secretary Long for the increase of the navy and recommends also that the grades of admiral and vice admiral be temporarily revived to be filled by officers who have especially distinguished themselves in the war with Spain. The president earnestly urges early legislation for the taking of the twelfth census and legislation providing for the education of the 30,000 white children in the Indian territory.

BEARS AS SLY AS FOXES.

They Throw Lumps of Ice at Walruses to Stun and Capture Them.

London Telegraph: In his native home the polar bear does not often meet with small boys anxious to treat him to buns and other dainties. The consequence is that Bruin has to devise many curious ways of securing his food, and none are more strange and interesting than that related by two trustworthy travelers in Greenland, that country of strange sights.

They have known the polar bear to take a stone or a huge lump of ice in his fore paws and from a favorable height, as a cliff or a precipitous ice hill, to hurl the missile down upon the head of a walrus—an enormous brute, often twice the size of a bear—and so stun him that Bruin could rush in and complete the destruction at his leisure, thus securing a month's rations.

The most useful food of the ice bear, as the Germans very appropriately call this beast, is the common seal of the arctic regions. The latter is the warIest animal of the north, and both Eskimo and polar bear need their best strategy to catch it.

In the summer time, when the snow is off the ice of the ocean shore and islets, the seals can be plainly seen as black dots on the ice, probably asleep, but always near their holes, which lead down through the thick ice to the water below, and into which they can throw themselves by the least movement. Bruin, seeing one afar, walks up as near as he deems safe, and then begins crawling on his wary prey.

The seal, if the weather be sunny and pleasant, takes short naps, relieved by shorter moments when it is scanning the vicinity for signs of an enemy's approach. During these times the bear is very quiet and as still as death itself, with eyes apparently closed, though really a corner of each is kept open, and in this way he hopes the seal will take him for a heap of snow, an appearance which his coat readily helps him to assume.

During the naps he creeps forward with greater or less rapidity, according to his nearness to the seal and consequent fear of being heard or seen. When but ten or twelve yards away, and the seal is in the depths of a good nap, the bear rushes upon him, and with a single blow of his powerful paw knocks the smaller brute senseless and so far away from the hole that he cannot escape by that way, even if the blow received is not immediately fatal.

In winter time the ice is covered with snow, and this is hollowed out by the seal into a snow house, covering the hole in the ice and connecting at the top of the dome with an aperture about the size of a shilling, called the blow hole, for it is through this that the seal breathes when he is in want of fresh air.

Here the bear watches for many a long hour, if necessary, and when the snorts of the seal are heard he crushes in the fragile dome of the snow house with his paw, impaling the seal on his curved claws, and proceeds to practically demonstrate how polar bears can subsist in an arctic winter.

About Five Creameries.

How much butter would Mr. King be likely to want to handle?

"If I could get the product of about five creameries like that—"

It was Mr. Lawrence's turn to be astonished. If a creamery that made into high grade butter the cream from 40,000 pounds of milk every day, was out of the ordinary to an Eastern man, the firm that handled five times that was rather large for a Western man. Mr. King explained, and his project is the beginning of an important development in Minnesota's commerce.

His firm does a large export business, shipping direct to Liverpool for the London and other English markets. They have bought in Vermont and Massachusetts and to some extent in central New York, but they have not been able to get a satisfactory volume of uniformly high-grade butter.

When he saw the Omaha awards, Minnesota first, four times running, and not a poor exhibit anywhere, he made up his mind to investigate the Minnesota market. What he learned from Mr. Lawrence confirmed his impression that there were great possibilities in this trade and the one thing he needed to know further was the scale on which the butter is made. It does not seem that there is such a large output anywhere else of this uniform high-grade.

There is a market in England for this butter that is practically unlimited, and the transportation and refrigerating problems are long ago solved.

Mr. King has gone to look about the state, beginning with Meeker county, and expects to contract for the product of five large creameries before he leaves.

Parisian Provincialism.

Boston Transcript: The provincialism of Paris always amuses Chicagoans on their travels. The Chicago Mr. Ferd Peck, our fair commissioner, refused to bundle his family out of the sleeping car on its early morning arrival in Paris from Switzerland. His claim that he and his had a right to sleep at a terminal station until a proper time to get up astonished the village-minded Paris railway officials. They switched the car to a side-track, and let the Pecks sleep until they got ready to get up at 8 o'clock. All Paris thinks this is very funny and very American. But the funniest thing of all escapes them entirely. They think Mr. Peck wouldn't mind because he couldn't understand French.

Football Lost a College $5,000.

Buffalo Express: Miss Anna M. Sackett of Waukesha, Wis., has revoked the legacy of $5,000 to Carroll college, in that town, because the trustees permit the students to play football. She did this after witnessing a game. There seems to be a chance for some institution to make $5,000 now by prohibiting every sport more severe than tag.

DEATH TAKES GEN. GARCIA

DISTINGUISHED CUBAN WARRIOR PASSES AWAY.

Pneumonia, Brought on by the Sudden Change From the Warm Climate of Cuba to the Wintry Weather of New York and Washington, the Cause of Death—In His Dying Moments His Thoughts Were for His Beloved Country and Its People Whom He Served So Well—Unconscious Most of the Time Preceding Dissolution.

Washington, Dec. 13. — Gen. Calixto Garcia, the distinguished Cuban warrior and veteran head of the commission elected by the Cuban assembly to visit this country, died here yesterday morning shortly after 10 o'clock at the Hotel Raleigh, where the commission has its headquarters. The sudden change from the warm climate of Cuba with the hardships he had there endured to the wintry weather of New York and Washington is responsible for the pneumonia which resulted in his demise. He contracted a slight cold in New York, which did not assume an alarming stage until the early part of last week. On Tuesday night Gen. Garcia, in company with the other members of the commission, attended a dinner given in his honor by Gen. Miles, and it was a result of the exposure that night which culminated in his death. During the twelve hours or more

Preceding Dissolution

Gen. Garcia was unconscious most of the time. At intervals he recognized one or more of those about him. In his dying moments, as all through his busy and active life, his thoughts were for his beloved country and its people, and amongst his last words were irrational murmurings in which he gave orders to his officers on his staff for the battle which he supposed was to occur to-morrow, and in which he understood there were only 400 Spaniards to combat. Just before he died he embraced his son. Rev. Father Magee, of St. Patrick's church, was called in during the day and was with Gen. Garcia until the end, administering the last rites of the Catholic church. Other members of the commission and Mr. Rubens, their counsel in this country, were also in the bed chamber when the end came. The remains were immediately and were placed on a bier in the room in which he died. A large Cuban flag served as a covering, and the head rested on one of smaller dimensions. The face and bust were left exposed to public view. The features had a remarkably life-like appearance and gave no indication of the suffering which the deceased had borne. Just above the head rested a magnificent floral piece of red and white roses and cross-palms tied with a pure white ribbon. By direction of Maj. Gen. Miles, a detachment of soldiers from battery F, Sixth artillery, at the barracks here under command of Lieut. Cox, was detailed as a body guard for the remains. After Gen. Garcia's death steps were taken to notify the government officials here and also the executive committee of the Cuban assembly, which has its headquarters at Marianao, Cuba. Secretary Jose Villalon, of the commission sent a telegram of notification to Mendez Capot, the president of the Cuban assembly, who is now in Havana.

Prepared for Burial

Letters of condolence were received from President McKinley, Secretary of State Hay, Gen. Miles, Senator Foraker and others. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

PERUVIAN POVERTY.

President Wants to Know How to Get Along Without Money.

Lima, Peru, Dec. 13. — President Perola has presented a recent message to congress expressing the difficulties encountered by the government, which is without means, to meet the deficit, notwithstanding the increase in imports and the excess duties on spirits and tobacco. It is impossible, therefore, that matters should be satisfactory. The administration asks congress to point out a line of conduct to save the situation.

SEVERE PUNISHMENT.

Empress Dowager of China Takes Vigorous Action.

London, Dec. 13.—The Peking correspondent of the Daily Mail says: An imperial rescript, just issued, sentences to death a Chinese literateur who wrote threatening letters to a foreign missionary in Kiang-si, and conferred high Chinese honors on the missionary for his tact and forbearance in the matter. The edict astonished the Chinese and the action of the empress dowager is likely to have a salutary effect.

A New Railroad.

Mason City, Iowa, Dec. 13.—Lincoln township has voted tax for the proposed Iowa, Minnesota & Northwestern railroad. This line is to run from Blue Earth, Minn., with a southern terminus not yet made public. It goes through Lake Mills, Fertile, Mason City and Coldwater. Every township has voted aid and considerable grading has been done. Sixty miles of road will be completed by July next.

Theater Property Transferred.

New York, Dec. 13.—Announcement is officially made that negotiations have been completed for the transfer of the Olympia theater property to H. B. and H. L. Sire for a sum considerably over $1,000,000.

Representing War Vessels.

New York, Dec 13—The work of painting the war vessels in the Brooklyn navy yard white, the usual color in times of peace, has been begun. The work will also proceed at Hampton Roads.

OF INTEREST TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

Inasmuch as the World's Fair and the Iowa and Minnesota State Boards of Health, condemned baking powders containing alum it will be of use to our readers to have an official list of some of the powders in order that they may be able to distinguish between them and the pure and wholesome cream of tartar article. This is not an easy matter, as none of the alum compounds is labeled as such, but all masquerade as "pure," "best in the world," "none so good," etc. Our space will not permit of a complete list and we give the powders most generally sold in this section, which are known to contain alum:

INSURGENTS SUFFER DEFEAT.

Driven Back From Iloilo by Spaniards.

Manila, Dec. 13.—According to unofficial advices received from Iloilo, capital of the island of Panay, in the Visayas group, the insurgents attacked Iloilo on the night of Dec. 1 and captured all the Spanish trenches except one. They then notified Gen. Rios to remove the women and children and threatened to renew the attack the following night. When these advices left Iloilo Gen. Rios was expecting reinforcements and field guns, and the plan was for the Spanish gunboats to shell the town if the insurgents effected an entrance. The foreign residents were greatly alarmed, and all merchantmen had been ordered outside the harbor in order to allow the gunboats to operate. Meanwhile the Spanish authorities have been advised that the Tulisano troops are looting, in disobedience to orders, and cannot be restrained. On the other hand the Spanish transport Isla de Luzon reports that the insurgents around Iloilo were repulsed with great slaughter on Dec. 6 while attempting to storm the last intrenchment. According to this statement 500 insurgents were killed by the machine guns.

Treasure for Cuba.

New York, Dec. 13. — The sum of $500,000 was drawn from the subtreasury for shipment to Cuba on the steamship Concho. Maj. G. R. Smith, paymaster, and a detachment from the Thirteenth infantry, accompany the treasure to Cuba.

The Pope's Policy.

Rome, Dec. 13. — The pope has decided that the Spanish policy of the Vatican shall be anti-Carlist and not neutral.

Steamer Sank.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 13. — The steamer Wyoming, of the Lackawanna line, is sunk in eighteen feet of water off Peshtigo, having been cut through by the ice. She was run into shoal water before she sank.

Red Wing, Minn., Dec. 13.—A young man was arrested here for passing a forged check. The check was for $48, made payable to Martin Emerson and signed by Graves & Vinton Co., a St. Paul firm.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

TREATY OF PEACE CONCLUDED AND SIGNED.

Concluding Ceremony of the Peace Negotiations at Paris a Scene of Much Solemnity, Commingled With American Gratification and Spanish Chagrin—Senor Montero Rios the Object of Much Sympathy—Scene Well Worthy the Brush of the Historic Painter—Opposing Commissioners Part With Handshakes and Assurances of Personal Esteem.

Paris, Dec. 13—The treaty of peace was signed at 8:45 Saturday evening. The document was prepared by Secretary Moore on behalf of the American commission, and by Senor Villa Urrutia for Spain, on account of the continued illness of Secretary Ojeda, of the Spanish commission. Each copy contains the English and Spanish texts of the treaty in parallel columns. The wording had been approved previously by the commissioners without a joint meeting, so there was no controversy on this subject. The signing of the treaty would have afforded a subject for a great historical painting. The group gathered about the table in the stately chamber of the foreign office, was impressive in itself, while the fact that the sense of the momentousness of the issues which the act decided was deeply felt by all the participants, gave an impressive and solemn tone to the scene. Around the great mahogany table sat the ten of an old and a young nation. Ranged (standing) behind them were numerous attaches of the American commission. The jets from the crystal chandelier above the heads of these present magnified the brilliant green and scarlet of the upholstering in their gaudiness. There was theatrical contrast between the clothed actors and the scenery. To the Americans it was a happy ending of the epilogue of war; for the Spaniards it was plainly a bitter tragedy, none the less painful because long foreseen. They sat silently as though almost crushed, and none could withhold sympathy from Senor Rios, the president of the Spanish commission, who, coming from his bed, was bundled in a great overcoat, though logs were burning in the fireplace near by. The spirits of the two bodies were symbolized by the clothes worn by the members of the commission, for the Americans were attired in evening dress for the dinner given them immediately after the meeting by the Duc de Loubat, and the Spaniards wore black frock coats. Mr. Arthur Ferguson read first the English and after that the Spanish version of the treaty.

Signatures Attached.

This finished, two copies were passed around the table, the commissioners signing them in the order of their rank: William R. Day, Senator Cushman K. Davis, Senator William P. Frye, Whitelaw Reid and Senator George Gray; Senor Montero Rios, Senor Aberzuza, Senor Garnica, Senor Villaurutia and Gen. Cerero y Saens, each commission signing its opponent's treaty. Both were tied with the Spanish and American colors. When the seals were prepared to be affixed, attendants were sent scurrying for ribbons of the French tri-color, with which the document was sealed as a compliment to the French hosts of the commission. Many officials interestedly watched every detail of the proceedings. The last seal being impressed, the commissioners rose, and without formality, each member shook the hands of all his antagonists and exchanged assurances of sincere personal esteem.

CUBANS SALUTE IT.

The United States' Flag Unfurled Over the Mariano City Hall.

Havana, Dec. 13.—The United States flag was unfurled over the Mariano city hall by Capt. Young, commanding the battalion of engineers at Playa de Moriano. A detachment of engineers drawn up in the square presented arms and the Americans and municipal officers present stood with bared heads during the ceremony. A crowd of townspeople which had gathered, greeted the raising of the flag with cries of "Viva Americanos." The Spanish troops withdrew on Thursday, and for two days the Marquis de Cervera, late military commander of the department, was the sole Spanish authority in the town and surrounding district, which embraces 5,000 persons, but perfect order was maintained during the interim.

River and Harbor Improvements.

Washington, Dec. 13. — The house committee on rivers and harbors had a meeting and discussed preliminaries of the hearings which are to be given members who desire appropriations for rivers and harbors. The committee desires to have all the hearings completed before the holidays.

Diseased Cattle.

Washington, Dec. 13. — Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has received information through the state department that foot-and-mouth disease, one of the most feared of animal maladies, is raging in the province of Hainut, Belgium.

Ohio Has a Claim.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 13.—The claim of Ohio against the United States for expenses of Ohio volunteers under the first call is $272,395, and under the second, $85,904, a total of $358,595. Col. Tolford, state claim agent, will go to Washington to collect the claim.

Shoe Company Fails.

Boston, Dec. 13.—The New England Shoe and Leather association has announced the assignment of the Nudge Shoe company. The liabilities are estimated at $125,000.

AMERICANS WILL PAY.

For the Repatriation of Spanish Troops From All the Colonies.

Paris, Dec. 13.—The American peace commissioners rested yesterday after their long series of conferences and almost daily sessions with the Spaniards, the intensity of which they hardly realized until it was over. Warm personal friendships and mutual regards have arisen between the two commissions as the result of their extended controversy at close quarters. Several members of the two commissions yesterday exchanged calls. The American commissioners unofficially informed the Spaniards that they would be glad to have the two commissions dine together. The reply was, like the invitation, conveyed diplomatically through a third party, and was that the Spaniards would be most pleased but feared that it would be inadvisable because it might be misconstrued at Madrid, where already much feeling existed against the Spanish commissioners. Several members of the United States commission were inclined at first to publish the text of the treaty, but Senator Frye made a strong plea for the observance of courtesy toward the United States commissioners, and his arguments prevailed. Further details, however, have been learned as to the wording of the treaty, which provides that Cuba is to be relinquished and that Porto Rico and the Philippines are to be ceded. The Americans are to pay for the repatriation of the Spanish troops from all the colonies. The Spaniards are to return all prisoners held by them. They are to retain possession of all military stores and munitions of war in the Philippines and of such ships as have not been captured. The commercial treaties between the two nations which the war ruptured are to be renewed at the convenience of the two nations. The protocol makes nearly 600 typewritten pages.

MASSACHUSETTS INJURED.

Battleship Strikes An Obstruction Tearing Open Three Compartments.

Washington, Dec. 13.—A telegram received at the navy department from New York says that the battleship Massachusetts soon after leaving the New York navy yard for Hampton Roads struck an obstruction near Governor's Island and three of her compartments were torn open. She was taken back to the navy yard at once and has been placed in dock to ascertain the extent of her injuries. Her commander is Capt. Nicol Ludlow. The constructors are of the opinion that the accident was not very severe or extensive. They believe the punctures in the bottom were confined to the outer skin and did not penetrate the inner double bottom. Otherwise, they reason, the ship could not have made the dry dock before sinking. The accident recalls several others of a similar character in the vicinity which have given rise to the grim naval joke that there is a floating rock adrift there lying in wait for men-of-war.

On further examination it was found that the damage wrought was considerably greater than was at first suspected, and it is believed fully ninety days will be required to put the vessel in condition to go to sea, even if she is not seriously hurt.

WILL QUIT.

Col. Bryan's Resignation Has or Will Be Forwarded.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 13.—Col. W. J. Bryan, colonel of the Third Nebraska regiment, has either forwarded his resignation to Washington or is about to do so. Of this there seems to be no doubt: Saturday he called on Gen. Lee, commander of the Seventh corps, and Gen. Keifer, commander of the First division of the corps of which Col. Bryan's regiment is a part, and is understood to have announced his intention of quitting the service. Neither of the commanding generals would discuss the matter and referred to Col. Bryan as the proper source to get any news of. Col. Bryan would neither deny nor confirm the rumor, but stated that when the time came he would prepare a written statement and give it to the press so that there would be no possibility of any misstatement of his position.

GEN. MERRITT COMING BACK.

Will Probably Resume Control of the Department of the East.

Washington, Dec. 13. — Gen. Wesley Merritt recently notified the war department that he probably would sail yesterday from Havre by one of the French liners. His return will be of special interest at this time, owing to his service in command of the first expedition to the Philippines, and later as governor general of the island, and also from the fact that he will be the first of those prominently identified with work of the peace commission at Paris to reach here. No decision has been reached as to Gen. Merritt's future command, but he probably will resume control of the department of the East, with headquarters at New York, now temporarily held by Gen. Shafter.

GEN. LEE SAILS FOR CUBA.

He Will Remain Outside of Havana Until Jan. 1.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 13.—Gen. Lee and staff sailed for Cuba yesterday afternoon on the transport Panama. Crowds of people lined the wharves as the transport passed down the river. As the tug boats cut lose the siren taken from the Spanish cruiser Almirante Oquendo after the battle of Santiago and now on the tug Cumbria, screeched the Panama a parting salute. Gen. Lee will remain outside of Havana until Jan. 1, when he will enter the city.

Remains of Columbus.

Havana, Dec. 13.— The remains of Columbus will be conveyed with military and sacerdotal ceremony to-day from the cathedral to the Conde de Venadito and the cruiser will sail for Cadiz, convoyed by two gunboats.

Four Men Injured.

Pendleton, Or., Dec. 13.—A rear-end collision occurred on the O. R. & N. main line, seventeen miles west of here between the west-bound fast mail and a freight. Four persons were injured.

The Mystery of the Razor.

It is a matter of common experience that a razor left for awhile unused becomes blunt. A writer in Chambers' Journal says that rust caused by the moisture in the atmosphere is quite enough to account for this. Shearers, for instance, who have to use particularly sharp instruments, never set their shears till just before using. What is not so generally known is that a razor which will not cut will become sharper sometimes by being left aside for some time. The only explanation of this is that the electrical properties of the metal in the edge become changed.

A "wire edge" is commonly put on a tool by amateurs. The steel turns and folds back on itself. It is owing to the edge being made too long and thin, or the metal being too soft. The only cure for a wire edge is to break off the bent portion and grind and set again.

"A knife that cuts butter when it is hot" (and under no other circumstances) we sometimes meet with. We have been going into the reasons of things, and the reason of this is easily explained. Heat expands metal, and in proportion to the amount of metal which is heated. There is more metal in the breadth of a blade than in its thickness, and the former, therefore, is expanded immensely more than the latter. In other words, the edgelike shape is lengthened, and the tool becomes "sharp."

The Fall of Just Pride.

One day soon after the Mulberry Bend park was laid out in the Italian quarter of New York the man who had had more to do with the good work than any one else was passing there. As he strode happily along, thinking of the tenements that used to stand there, the fresh, clean earth attracted him and he walked out upon it. Stamping joyously about, he exclaimed:

"Fine, fine! They have planted the seed and soon the green grass will spring up under the warm sunshine. It is my proudest"—

Just then a park policeman who had slipped up behind him landed two vigorous whacks on the good man's back.

"Git off'n th' grass, ye looney old crank!" he said. "Be off wid ye, quick now, an don't let me ketch ye 'round here ag'in or I'll run ye in. See? G'wan, now."

The philanthropist had leaped wildly to the walk and his fist doubled up with anger, but a second thought, that the "sparrow cop" was right, caused his hand to relax, and the maker of the park "moved on," sore but wise as ever.—New York Times.

Sandy and the Mare.

A Scottish paper tells a story of Sandy Mo——, a Forfarshire farmer who had been spending an hour or two in the evening with a friend a couple of miles away. It was a moonlight night, and Sandy, after partaking freely of his friend's hospitality, was riding quietly home across the sheep pastures on his "guid auld mare," when they came to an open ditch, which his mare refused to cross.

"Hoot awa, Maggie," said the rider, "this winna dae. Ye maun jist gang ower."

He turned back aboot a hundred yards, wheeled roond and gave the mare a touch of his whip. On she went at a brisk canter, but as they reached the edge of the ditch she stopped dead and shot Sandy clean over to the other side.

Gathering himself up, Sandy looked his mare straight in the face and said:

"Vera weel pitched indeed, ma lass. Bit hoo are ye goin to get ower yersel', eh?"

The Lady of the House.

"The lady of the house," once esteemed a highly polite and conciliatory form of address, is now, said a city dweller, "ancient and obsolete with those who pursue business by modern methods. In advance practice the custom is now to address the lady of the house by name, a method vastly more impressive and one susceptible of varied application. Thus an establishment with which we already have relations sends out a new circular, and this is left at the door by a man who says not 'for the lady of the house,' but 'the So-and-so sends this to Mrs. Blank.' This beats 'the lady of the house' out of sight and marks the refinement of modern methods of doing things."—New York Sun.

Some Sharp Sayings of Bismarck.

Bismarck had the frankness to say that he looked upon the comédies of Dumas the younger, and indeed on most French plays of the lighter sort, as grossly corrupting to the public morals. "Panem et circenses," smiled De Morny. "Panem et saturnalia," muttered Bismarck.

"Prince Bismarck is respectfully requested," wrote the American, "to cable a few words in reference to the following question: What benefit will be derived in your grace's opinion from international expositions?"

On the margin of this the prince simply wrote in pencil, "None."—"Bismarck's Table Talk," by C. Lowe.

Weary's Sacred Promise.

"No, madam, I cannot split the wood to which you so indelicately refer. It would be a violation of a sacred promise I made to ma aged mother."

"Nonsense! What kind of a promise?"

"We have the poker habit in our family, ma'am, and I promised mother I'd never touch a chip in any form."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tobacco was discovered in Santo Domingo in 1496, in Yucatan by the Spaniards in 1520. It was introduced into France in 1560, and into England in 1583.

Nearly 1,200,000 pounds of colors are used by the United States government annually for printing paper money, revenue and postage stamps.

Out of the enormous number of women in Constantinople not more than 5,000 can read or write.

"Detectives."

There are probably not less than a score of men walking about New Orleans today who are decorated under their lapels with large tin stars bearing the cabalistic word "detective." They are patrons of the various private agencies of the north that advertise for "shrewd men as operatives in all parts of the country," and supply the tin star and a beautifully lithographed "certificate" for the trifling sum of $5. The wearers of their insignia labor under the hallucination, as a rule, that they are vested with some special right to collar their fellow men. The same agencies do a land office business in wigs, false beards and other disguises which the amateur sleuth believes firmly are part of the necessary equipment of the profession.

Now and then one of these deluded individuals, who are to be found in all large cities, gets himself into trouble by attempting to make an arrest; but, as a rule, the mania is harmless and its victims confine themselves to prowling through side streets and looking mysterious. They find great joy also in posing in boarding house circles and hearing folks say in awed undertones, "Do you know Mr. So-and-so is a detective?" It is one of the queerest of all queer phases of city life.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Both Are Married.

The ordinary paragrapher in referring to a marriage nearly always says that Mr. John Smith or Mr. James Brown was married to Miss Nellie Green or Miss Fanny White. It would lead one to think that the man only was married, while the fact is both were married. The woman is as much married as the man. The man was not simply married to the woman. The woman and the man were married, and the announcement should be that Mr. So-and-so and Miss So-and-so were married. Rev. Dr. Sunderland wrote a series of articles on this subject some years ago which were published in this city. He laid down the general principle that he did not marry the man to the woman, but that he married the man and the woman, and married one just as much as he did the other. He discountenanced the issuing of wedding cards by parents that their daughter was married to any particular person, and said he did not want to perform any marriage ceremony in which any such announcement was made.—Washington Star.

Peabody and the Boatman.

Many years ago John Bright and George Peabody, the philanthropist, were fishing in a little Irish stream. Late in the evening, after a hard day's work, the party arrived at the landing stage, and Bright, accosting the inevitable policeman on the bank, said:

"What is the proper price to pay these boatmen, constable?"

He replied, "Seven shillings and sixpence, yer honner, but some gintlemen give them 10 shillings."

Bright, turning to his companion, said, "I have no change, Peabody; have you three half crowns?"

The millionaire produced the coins and gave them to one of the boatmen.

"Is that all ye're giving me?" asked the latter.

"That's all," said Peabody.

Holding the coins in the open palm of his hand, and slowly scratching his head with the other, the boatman said:

"And they call yu Paybody, don't they? Well, I call ya Paynobody."—New York Tribune.

Nauseous Doses.

Nauseous medicines nowadays possess none of the terrors that many of us remember when "powders" were given in jam and castor oil in hot milk, as pharmacists have invented no end of ways of giving the nastiest drugs without any flavor at all.

Castor oil, cod liver oil and things of that disagreeable kind are made up in little flexible capsules, which slip down the throat like a strawberry.

These capsules are also made in two parts, so that any one can buy them empty and put the powder or other drug in himself, sealing them and then swallowing them without knowing that the drug has a taste. Then there is the round wafer paper, in which can be inclosed any kind of bolus, pill or powder and which, when moistened, can be swallowed with ease.—New York World.

A Clever Witness.

In a recent county court case in which a man sued another for balance of wages the defendant called a witness.

Witness—I beg pardon, your honor. Before I give my evidence I want my expenses.

Judge (to defendant)—Pay him 7s. 6d.

The defendant having done so, the judge said, "Now that you have had your expenses, what do you know of the case?"

Witness—Nothing at all, your honor.—London Tit-Bits.

Cautious Tennyson.

A clergyman is quoted by Sir M. E. Grant Duff in his memoirs as authority for the story that on the occasion of Hallam's going down to Richmond to be godfather to Tennyson's eldest boy the historian asked, "What is to be the child's name?" "Hallam," answered the poet. "I don't like surnames for Christian names," said the other. "Why not call him Alfred?" "What if he were to turn out a fool?" was the reply.

George IV's Wit.

Mrs. Byrne, in her "Social Hours With Celebrities," tells this anecdote of George IV's wit: "I remember one of the Rev. Mr. Wagner's stories concerned some nobleman who had enjoyed an unenviable reputation for asininity. It had been suggested to the king to confer on him an order of the Thistle, which had become vacant. 'Give the Thistle to ——!' exclaimed the king. 'Why, he'd eat it!' "

The Age of an Oyster.

It is just as easy to tell the age of an oyster by looking at its shell as it is to ascertain the age of a horse by examining its teeth, or a tree by inspecting the circles revealed by the ax or saw when it is laid low. When the oyster is 6 months old, it is as big as a dime; when 1 year old, it will cover a silver half dollar, and when 2 years old, will be about the circumference of a silver dollar.

The oyster, unlike the crab, is not obliged to seek new quarters or build a new house every time he grows appreciably. The extensions that he puts on his house are clearly marked by a well defined ridge.

Oysters are esteemed to be at their best when between 4 and 5 years of age, and the planters endeavor to protect the beds for that length of time. Conscientious oyster men—that is, men who are not inclined to kill the goose that lays the golden egg—always return to the bed oysters that are too young, but in case a patriarch is brought up, over whose shell the tides of from 8 to 12 winters and summers have ebbed and flowed, he is sent to market, where he is put at the bottom of the heap and sold with his younger and more luscious companions.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Ethical Process.

Mr. Huxley says ingeniously (speaking of societies of animals) that the ethical process "is, strictly speaking, part of the cosmic process, just as the 'governor' in a steam engine is part of the mechanism of the engine." But we know how the governor got into the engine; we don't know how or why early men introduced the ethical process. "It was their nature to," and the ignorant, superstitious blacks say that a god, Baiame, gave them this law. Yet in some ways morality does seem to pay, practically, though not when carried to an extreme. The universe, like the traveling tutor, seems to whisper to its pupils:

Practice, youths, a little virtue,
Just as much as will not hurt you.

This is ordinary morality. Go much farther, and you are a saint. The Isle of Saints has ever been the most distressful country. Whither in the world are these reflections hurrying us? I have no idea beyond an ineradicable conviction that the ethical process, plus some "governor" not yet invented, will win in the long run, and that we must back it with our best exertions.—Andrew Lang in Longman's Magazine.

Neither Did the King.

It is told of King Frederick VI of Denmark that while traveling through Jutland one day he entered a village school and found the children lively and intelligent and quite ready to answer his questions.

"Well, youngsters," he said, "what are the names of the greatest kings of Denmark?"

With one accord they cried out, "Canute the Great, Waldemar and Christian V!"

Just then a little girl, to whom the schoolmaster had whispered something, stood up and raised her hand.

"Do you know another?" asked the king.

"Yes—Frederick VI."

"What great act did he perform?"

The girl hung her head and stammered out, "I don't know."

"Be comforted, my child," said the king. "I don't know either."

Why Do We Yawn?

There can be little doubt that one of the objects of yawning is the exercise of muscles which have been for a long time quiescent, and the acceleration of the blood and lymph flow which has in consequence of this quiescence become sluggish; hence its frequency after one has remained for some time in the same position—for example, when waking in the morning.

Co-operating with this cause is sleepiness and the shallow breathing which it entails. This factor, as well as muscle quiescence, is apt to attend the sense of boredom which one experiences in listening to a dull sermon; hence it is that the bored individual is apt to yawn. As in the case of sighing, the deep breath which accompanies the act of yawning compensates for the shallow breathing which is so apt to excite it.—New York Herald.

Strangely Worded.

"Some of the applications for relief sent to the local committees by sufferers from bush fires are strangely worded," says the Melbourne Argus. "Here is an extract from one by a widow: 'I have in family four dairy cows, two pigs, a horse and three children, all these being by my first husband, and two goats in full milk and a baby by my second husband. All of the animals was lost in the fire.' "

Our "Holy City."

One of the serious things told in Mark Twain's "Along the Equator" is that formerly all that people in India knew of the United States was the name of George Washington. Now they know also the name "Chicago, the holy city," where the congress of religions was held in 1893.—Boston Transcript.

THE TRADE JOURNAL.

An Enlargement and a Great Premium Offer.

Since H. P. Hall purchased the St. Paul Trade Journal it has been rapidly forging to the front, both in increase of subscriptions and in advertising patronage. Its success has been so marked that it was given a material enlargement on the 10th inst, by the addition of a column to the page, the standard number of at least 24 pages being maintained and often times more. It gives much entertaining reading matter in this space, as well as valuable business information and market quotations and is a publication the business men of the Northwest cannot afford to do without. The Trade Journal is issued weekly at the subscription price of one dollar per year, and as an incentive for subscriptions Mr. Hall offers, for a limited period, to send The Trade Journal for one year and the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a volume containing 1,281 pages and 80,000 words, for one dollar. The dictionary will be sent express charges prepaid so that the total cost for fifty-two copies of The Trade Journal and a standard unabridged dictionary will be one dollar.—St. Paul Dispatch.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give Farm, Stock and Home one year, and the St. Hilaire Spectator for $1.25.

Chas. E. Lord, who has been visiting in the village since being mustered out of the services a corporal in Co. "L" 14th Minn., Regiment returned to his former home at Grand Rapids, Wis., last Saturday.

The defeat of Supreme Judges Canty and Mitchell—who decided the Steenerson case against Jim Hill—is a disgrace to the state of Minnesota—where Jim's money was allowed to win against the people.—Fargo Forum.

The traveling fraternity as well regular borders have nothing to say but praise the Hotel Markham. And why not. Steam heat and all modern conveniences in this northern latitude? Well there is nothing like it.

A Kansas man has discovered that brandy can be made from wet elm saw dust, and a discouraged prohibitionist asks what chances the good cause will have when a man can go forth with a rip saw and get drunk on a fence rail.

It is rumored that after the holidays Crookston will support a K. of P. lodge. Crookston is a pretty good town but she falls short of being up-to-date without a Knights of Pythias organization. St. Hilaire is anxious to furnish a few brave boys.

If you have a valuable dog it would be advisable to tie him up as poison has been set out for the purpose of killing wolves. As is generally the case it kills valuable dogs and the worthless kind and wolves escape—even in cases after eating the bait.

Some people think that every item in a local paper should be of interest to them. To such probably an item about the weather is senseless, but persons living in remote parts of the country, who take a local paper, are interested in knowing how hot or cold it is here.

Rumors were current last week to the effect that one Smith of Minneapolis had bought out the Wheeler addition for the purpose of erecting a saw mill with the same sawing capacity as the one we have here now. We give it as we got it—take it for what it is worth.

It takes a long time to get news up this line especially when appertaining to the Great Northern. The fact of the matter is that Jim Hill bought No. 31, the engine used on this branch from T. M. Roberts Supply House. This settles the matter—bought the toy at a bargain counter for a Christmas gift.

The Red Lake County Courier came out with an announcement last week to the effect that there was a change in ownership. Frank Jeffers and Chas. E. Boughton buying out the interest of E. W. West, the founder of the publication. We extend our greetings to Bros. Jeffers & Boughton.

A bachelor once asked a married man who had an excellent wife where he found her. The reply was: "At home with her mother and not on the streets." Of course girls have business on the streets at times; but they should have as little of that kind as possible. Men who make good husbands in looking for good wives go to the house and not the streets.—Ex.

The Imperial Drug Co. has still a few eight day clocks left which will be sold cheap to make room for new goods. Every clock guaranteed for one year.

Surprised.

Another surprise was sprung on the Odd Fellows while in session last Thursday evening. The ladies of the town are held accountable for they did the inviting of friends who are in the habit of "tripping the light fantastic toe" as was found out afterwards and in a case of this kind they were entitled to the floor. The party assembled at nine o'clock, but sorry to say they were not admitted as the guard could not recognize the raps and reported so on down the line. However, lodge was closed in due form and the doors were thrown open and guests welcomed. Dancing and games were indulged in and a right royal good time was had by everybody. A light repast was served at 11:30 and again dancing continued up to 2:00 o'clock a. m. There was one noticeable fact, and that was about half of the Odd Fellows made themselves conspicious by their absence for about an hour in order to change dress for the occasion. This last mention being about the only objection to surprise parties especially when a nice lot of girls swoop down on you and all give you the laugh for having old clothes and felt shoes at a gathering of this kind.

Prof. Theo. Pull will be here next Monday and Tuesday Dec. 19th and 20th and give a superb entertainment, eclipsing anything ever attempted in the world of hypnotism. He does everything advertised. Admission 25 cents, reserved seats 35 cents. Seats on sale as usual place.

The new Drug Store have just received an elegant stock of holiday goods which will be displayed in a few days. Make your selection now.

Thanks to W. A. Potter manager of the Minnesota Type Foundry for the beautiful 1899 calendar. It is a little the finest we have ever seen, being surmounted with a photographic reproduction of the members of the Minnesota Editors association at a summer outing at White Fish Bay, Wis. Manager Potter is always an up-to-date fellow, so we can't expect nothing less.

"Boys," says the matrimonial editor of the Great Bend Democrat, "you think that you are in love? Have you a sort of an itching around the heart that cannot be scratched? A kind of thirst that soda phosphates will not quench; a consuming hanker when you come near her that causes your fingers to twich, your hair to curl, your mouth to water and your eyes to put on that yearning look so noticeable in a calf trying to get to its mother. If you have these symptoms and have not taken any preventative, then you are surely in love."

Prof. Theo. Pull the great German Hypnotist and Mind Reader will be here next Monday and Tuesday. Go and see him.

A telegram was received Saturday afternoon announcing the death of Mr. John M. Stranahan of McCook Nebraska, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Stranahan of this city. The facts of the case were not stated but it is presumed that it was caused by a railroad wreck as Mr. Stranahan was serving in the capacity as a brakeman on a passenger train between McCook, Neb., and Denver, Colo. The sad news cast a gloom over the village when the word was passed around as he was a general favorite while a resident here. He leaves a wife, being married less than a month ago, to mourn his loss.

—The Crookston College building is now complete and is modern and up to date. The Institution is one of the best in the northwest. It is cheap, thorough and practical. By writing Malm & Sathre a catalogue containing full information will be sent to any address.

For Manila.

A train passed through this city on Friday morning last which attracted a great deal of attention and comment. It consisted of fifteen cars loaded with beer, bound for Manila, P. I. Each car was decorated with flags and bunting and Dewey's picture was on each side of every car. The trains running time was forty miles an hour. What a time those soldier boys will have, introducing their beverage to the Filipinos.—Texas Citizen.

A valuable white and black bird dog came to my place on or about November 15th. Owner can have same by calling on Wm. Lonsdale and pay charges. 28.

Here is a list of a few of the attractions that will hold down the boards at the Crookston Opera House:

Nothing is more fitting than that a carnival association that is to push that character of celebration in Minneapolis should be headed by a lumberman. Thomas H. Shevlin has been made chairman of the board of governors of the new Minneapolis Carnival association.—Minneapolis Lumberman.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Subscribers, as a rule, expect to find all the news in the home paper, and if an item which they know of does not appear, they marvel thereat; but editors are not necessarily mind-readers. We quote the following from the Lincoln County Clarion: "If you have an item of news you want published bring it in. Don't be backward. We want it and will appreciate your kindness. We try to gather all the news, but in most cases have to reply on what is told us by parties other than those interested. Thus it is easy to skip an item, which you might tell us about. Do not be offended if an item does not appear, when you have not reported it. If you report it you may be sure that it will appear."

The Imperial Drug Co. has ordered a large stock of wall paper which will be in at a later date.

Kissed the Shells for Luck.

Much has been written about the action of the men in the fleet during the battle at Santiago. One story of the acts on of the Brooklyn's crew was told the other day that illustrates the way the men below decks work during battle

In the ammunition-room of the Brooklyn they were stripped to the buff. There must be nothing in the magazine that is liable to cause friction and a spark. The men could hear the shots of the Spaniards, and knew when the ship was struck. They could hear the roar of their own guns, but could not see anything.

When the six inch guns were working at their hottest and the men were passing shells to the hoist, there was a slight pause. Then the shells came on deck regular again.

When the engagement was ended and the stark-naked gang came on deck to see the Cristobal Colon's finish somebody asked: "What was that wait about?"

"Oh, those Indians,' said Leo," a petty officer. "After they had greased the nose of the shell somebody said everybody must kiss it for luck, and we did. That caused the wait of a half a minute. After that they kissed every shell.

After the first few shots no shell left that room in the fight without the gang hugging it, telling it to go out and do its work. The crowd talked to the shells as if they were human.

It was: "Go up and do them!" "Get up there, old six-inch, and plug a hole in her! Remember the Maine!"

The six-inch shells of the Brooklyn did great work. The boys believe it was the send-off they got in the ammunition room that helped to do it.

The Best Cough Remedy on Earth.

Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, Consumption Cure, cures a cold in 24 hours if taken in time and does not stop a cough in ONE MINUTE by paralyzing the throat, but it cures the disease and leaves the throat and lungs healthy and strong. 25 and 50 cts. For sale by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

Increasing the Dose.

The dose is growing larger. Two years ago the legal thieves were almost afraid to issue even a small batch of bonds. They feared the people would not stand it. They knew it was an imposition, and unnecessary, fraudulent proceeding and expected a great roar, but they ventured a $50,000,000 issue. The people roared. When that wore off they tried another fifty million batch and the roar was weaker. Then we had to swallow the sixty-two million steal, and now they venture a $100,000,000 purse. The people are getting used to it, and in a short time will be expected to submit to a $200,000,000 yoke, and then $500,000,000 and so on, until the billion program is completed. Well, who blames the money power? The people are oysters and go on voting for it.—Iowa Tribune.

Watches Clocks and Jewelery.

I will carry a full line of wathes, clocks and jewlery hereafter at Johnson's drug store. Anything you want that we do not carry in stock we will order for you at ten per cent above the wholesale prices and by doing this you will save money by dealing at home. Watches left for repairs will be sent down on first train and returned the next day. I shall continue to be at Johnson's drug store the 10th 11th and 12th of each month. Eyes examined free.

WESTERN CANADA PRAIRIES.

Future Welfare of the Continent Lies in Their Fertile Fields.

The rapid progress that is being made in the settlement of the fertile prairies of Western Canada is leading to the investigation of its resources by those interested in having provision made for those living in the crowded east, for those who have been struggling for years on impoverished farms, for the renter who is unable any longer to bear up under the strain imposed by the landlord, and for the farmer who, unable to purchase farms for his sons in his own neighborhood, has to look around for lower priced lands. The investigation shows that it is impossible to meet these conditions successfully outside of Western Canada. Already millions of bushels of wheat are being grown there each year, while as many as 50,000 head of cattle were shipped out this year. A representative of The Germania, Milwaukee, one of the leading German papers in the United States, recently made a trip through Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, where lie the free government lands of Western Canada, and in a future issue will appear extracts from flattering letters contributed to the Germania and other papers by their special correspondents. As an inducement for immigrants to make their homes in Canada, the Canadian government offers 160 acres of land free of cost to any settler.

For further information apply to Canadian Government Agent, Department Interior, Ottawa, Canada, or residents of Minnesota address Ben Davies, 154 East Third St., St. Paul, and residents of Wisconsin address T. D. Currie, Stevens Point, Wis.

RUSSIA IS OUR FRIEND

NO CHANCE FOR A RUMPUS OVER PHILIPPINES.

Our Purposes in the Far East Will Be Supported by Russia, While England Looks On—Unable to Create a Misunderstanding.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean: A few days ago Lord Salisbury, speaking for England, referred to the United States as a mighty force in international politics. He intimated that while this new power in the Pacific might be antagonized by continental Europe, it would have the friendship and support of Great Britain. A day or two later Count Cassini, Russian Ambassador to the United States, speaking for his government, declared that Russia is and always has been the friend of the United States, and will never enter into an alliance against this country. So far as the Philippines are concerned, he declared that Russia is opposed to the restoration of the islands to Spain, and would prefer the sovereignty of the United States to that of any European power.

This utterance is even more authoritative, explicit and significant than that of Lord Salisbury. (Russia's star of empire is in the ascendant. She does not need our aid and does not seek it. England's power in the world is waning. She is beset on all sides by enemies and looks to the republic against which she conspired in 1860-5. Salisbury's words may be summed up as a bluff to Europe that England and the United States stand together. Russia knows it is a bluff and instructs its minister to call it.) Had he not been instructed to speak Count Cassini would not have spoken at all. As he spoke in such positive terms it may be taken for granted that the Russian government, moved by Lord Salisbury's declaration and by the intended visit of the German Emperor to Spain, saw the necessity of officially re-enunciating Russia's historic friendship for the United States. In doing this Count Cassini emphasized the point that at no time had the continental powers of Europe contemplated intervention in the war with Spain, and that English friendship toward the United States was no more marked than that of Russia. This declaration is made in answer to the statement that England's attitude during the war had prevented intervention.

As the Inter Ocean has pointed out time and again, Russia has been for two generations our strongest and most consistent friend in Europe. When France, under Napoleon III., plotted against us with England's knowledge and encouragement, Russia prevented intervention and made a most significant naval demonstration in American waters. Instead of conspiring against us in the Pacific, she held out a welcoming hand and encouraged us to further ventures by the transfer of Alaska. With this traditional friendship of the strongest land power in Europe unimpaired, and with the new-found friendship of England, the greatest sea power in the world, the United States is absolutely unhampered in carrying out its programme in the Philippines or in the Pacific.

Lord Salisbury's speech was a notification to Europe of England's purpose, just as Count Cassini's interview was a notification of Russia's purpose. In the face of these declarations it matters not what the German Emperor may do, nor what the Paris papers may urge. The independent action of the United States in the Philippines is guaranteed. There will be no interference by any European power. This much is assured by the attitude of Russia and England.

Above and beyond all, the declaration of Russia removes the last vestige of an excuse for even a temporary Anglo-American combination, toward which the action of the German Emperor threatened to impel us. Our influence in the Pacific, our control of the Nicaragua canal, our entrance untrammeled into the markets of China, all depend on our maintenance of friendly relations with both the great Asiatic powers, Russia and England. An alliance with one would make an enemy of the other. The friendship of both will make us independent of all other European influence. Our power in war and our resoluteness in standing by our rights have earned for us the admiration and the support of our old friend Russia and our new friend England. It should be the aim of American diplomacy to perpetuate a relationship so conducive to American interests.

England the Great Money Lender.

A statistician estimates that England has $550,000,000 invested in land and mortgage in countries abroad. She lends to foreign countries and municipalities an average of $200,000,000 annually. She finances railways in India, Canada, the United States, Australia, South Africa and South America, her investments of this class aggregating $2,100,000,000. English capital is invested in this country in water and gas companies, cattle and horse raising, breweries, flour mills, street railways, iron manufacturing and mining. In investments other than government loans and railroads it is estimated that the enormous sum of $9,250,000,000 of English money has been lent outside of the "tight little island."

Territory as Yet Unexplored.

Throughout the entire world there are about 20,000,000 square miles of unexplored territory. In Africa there are 6,500,000 square miles; arctic regions, 3,600,000; antarctic regions, 6,300,000; America, 2,000,000; Australia, 2,000,000; Asia, 200,000, and various islands, 900,000.

BRAVE PIONEER WOMEN.

How They Brought Water to a Besieged Force in Kentucky.

It is told that at the siege of Bryant's station, near Lexington, Ky., the women were called upon for an unusual display of courage. It was in the days of Indian warfare. The garrison was supplied with water from a spring at some distance from the fort, and near this spring a considerable force of Indians had been placed in ambush. Another party, in full view from the fort, had been ordered to open fire at a given time, with the hope of enticing the besieged to an engagement outside the walls, giving the ambushed force an opportunity for storming one of the gates. The experienced men in the garrison felt satisfied that Indians were concealed near the spring, but were sure they would not show themselves until the firing had begun on the opposite side of the fort. The need of water was urgent, and, seeing but one way to get it, the men summoned all the women. Explaining to them the circumstances in which they were placed and the improbability that any injury would be offered them until firing had begun on the other side of the fort, they begged them to go in a body to the spring and bring up each a bucketful of water. Some of the women, as was natural, had no relish for the undertaking, and asked why the men could not bring water as well as themselves, observing that they were not bullet-proof and that the Indians made no distinction between male and female scalps. To this it was answered that the women were in the habit of bringing water every morning to the fort, and that if the Indians saw them engaged as usual it would induce them to think their ambuscade undiscovered, and that they would not unmask themselves for the sake of firing at a few women when they hoped, by remaining concealed a few moments longer, to obtain complete possession of the fort. That if the men should go down to the spring the Indians would immediately suspect that something was wrong, would despair of succeeding by ambuscade and would instantly rush upon them, follow them into the fort or shoot them down at the spring. The decision was soon made. A few of the boldest women declared their readiness to go, and, the younger and more timid rallying in the rear of these veterans, they all marched to the spring within point-blank shot of 500 Indian warriors. Some of the girls betrayed symptoms of terror, but the married women in general moved with a steadiness and composure that completely deceived the Indians. Not a shot was fired, the women were permitted to fill their buckets, and, though their steps became quicker and quicker on their return, degenerating into a rather unmilitary celerity, yet not more than one-fifth of the water was spilled and the garrison was supplied.

An Awkward Position.

"Bingerly fell off the street car yesterday." "Of course, he'll sue the road?" "He can't very well." "Why not?" "He's courting the daughter of the president."

SCIENTIFIC JOTS.

In a new guard rail for street cars short bars are pivoted on every other post in pairs, to be raised and lowered by rods attached to a series of cranks carried by a rod at the top of the car.

A new grip for bicycle-handlebars is formed of a flat strip of spring steel curved into a spiral and wound around the end of the bar, with a sliding collar to be fastened by a screw after the spring is wound up to the right tension.

A Californian has designed a boiler, which cleans itself of all impurities in the water, the feed pipe being curved after it enters the boiler to cause the water to revolve, the dirt gradually falling into a funnel in the bottom, to be drawn off through a faucet.

Razors can be quickly sharpened by a new device formed of a circular piece of flexible material, having a fine grinding powder on its face, the sharpener being folded over the back of the razor so that the grinding surface acts on the blade as it slides back and forth.

Two Englishmen have patented a lock bottle, which will prevent the theft of the contents, a metallic casing surrounding the neck of the bottle, with a sliding yoke at the top, which covers the cork or engages a glass stopper, the yoke being released by turning a bolt with a key.

To prevent elevators from dropping in case the cable breaks, a curved steel bar is attached to the under side of the carriage, carrying blocks at the ends to grip the ways in which the cage slides, the blocks being normally held out of contact by levers connected with the cable.

A combined mud guard and bicycle support recently placed on the market is formed of two rods hinged to the frame under the saddle to carry a curved plate resting on the rear wheel to scrape the tire, the rods being dropped down on either side to support the wheel when standing.

VARIETIES OF ASBESTOS.

Mountain paper is blue asbestos.

Mountain leather is a very light, thin and flexible asbestos.

Mountain cork is an asbestos light enough to float on water.

Amanthus is a kind of asbestos in which the fibers are so exceedingly long, flexible and elastic that they may have been woven into cloth.

Mountain wood is an asbestos which extremely resembles wood. This and most of the other varieties are found in nearly all parts of the globe.

Common asbestos has fibers much less flexible; it is heavier than amanthus, a dull green in color, sometimes pearly in luster and oily to the touch.

There is probably no product of inorganic nature about which there is so much popular mystery and misconception as asbestos. It is vaguely understood that the principal claim of this remarkable product is that it cannot be consumed by fire. There are, however, no fewer than six varieties of asbestos, each of which possesses qualities peculiar to itself.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

To Grow Watercress.

The cultivated cresses are larger and superior in flavor to those grown wild, and the market for the improved sort is good, writes W. E. Farmer in American Cultivator. Wherever there is a good swamp with a fresh water brook flowing through it on the farm, watercresses should be cultivated as a side crop, and if the markets are near by quite a little income can be made from the crop. The method of culture is simple, although it requires considerable initial labor to start the beds. The swamp should first be cleared of the trees and bushes as much as possible, and then be cut up into ditches running parallel to each other and at right angles. Each ditch should be about four feet wide and two feet deep. A space between the ditches should be left on either side large enough for a man to pass along to gather the crop. Cross ditches should intersect these parallel ones about every 20 feet. All of the ditches should start from the head of the brook, and the fall in them should be very slight, so that the water will flow away very slowly. If one end of the swamp is much lower than another the depth of the ditches should vary just enough so that the water will be kept distributed evenly through them. Everything depends upon having the water under control. If the swamp is low on one side the mud from the ditches should be thrown up to form an embankment. At the lowest point a dam should be constructed to let off the water when needed. In the spring and fall the water will collect too rapidly, and it will be necessary to drain off considerable of the surplus and a good dam will then fully pay for itself. When the ditches are all ready the cresses should be planted in the bottom of them by securing cuttings from old beds. The cuttings can often be taken from the wild cresses in some neighboring swamp. They will improve in flavor and quality under their new conditions. They can also be raised from seeds, and the seeds are sown broadcast into the ditches. The cuttings are pushed into the muddy bottom about a foot apart each way. They will in a season spread all over the bottom and form a complete mass of green. In the winter and early spring the plants are harvested for the market. In doing this care must be taken not to destroy the plants, but simply to cut off the edible part and leave the root growing. The harvester should take a bunch in the left hand, and then with a sharp knife cut off the stalks about four inches down. The plants should not be pulled. The cresses are packed usually in half-peck baskets, which in turn are packed in crates. In winter these baskets sometimes sell as high as $1 apiece. This is the most profitable time to gather the cresses for market.

Experiments With Oats.

The Alabama Experiment Station has been making some experiments with oats, and gives the following summary of the results:

Among a number of varieties of oats tested none was found superior in yield to the common Red Rust Proof oat.

Varieties which produced moderate yields of grains and relatively large amounts of tall fine straw were Myer's Turf and Hatchett's Black. These and related varieties are hardy, and are valuable for grazing and for forage.

In three different experiments Red Rust Proof oats sown in November yielded 7.9, 11.8, and 9.7 bushels per acre more than the same kind of seed sown from February 9 to March 1. The average increase in these three experiments due to fall sowing was 9.8 bushels.

The period between October 1 and November 15 is suggested as the best time for sowing the bulk of the crop of Red Rust Proof oats in central Alabama.

A comparison of cotton seed and cotton seed meal applied both in fall and spring was rendered inconclusive by reason of unfavorable weather.

Cowpea vines, plowed under, increased the yield of oats sown in February to the extent of 10.4 bushels per acre. The yield of fall-sown oats on land where cowpea vines had been plowed under (after 11 bushels of peas per acre had been picked) was 28.6 bushels per acre against 7.1 bushels on a plot previously abandoned to weeds and crab grass, a gain of 21.5 bushels of oats.

The plat on which only the roots and stubble of cowpea vines were plowed under yielded 34.4 bushels of oats per acre, against 9.7 bushels where German millet stubble had been plowed under, an increase of 24.7 bushels of oats per acre. Considering yield of peas and of hay and yield of the succeeding oat crop, it was more profitable to cut cowpeas for hay than to pick the peas and plow under the vines.

Nitrate of soda applied as a top dressing on both fall-sown and spring-sown oats, was most profitable when applied not later than the last of March, or at least 55 days before the grain was mature.

Eighty pounds of nitrate of soda per acre afforded a profit when applied in March. In one experiment this amount of nitrate of soda afforded a yield of 29.3 bushels of oats per acre, while 160 lbs. of nitrate of soda per acre resulted in a yield of 34.1 bushels. This was an increase over the plat receiving no nitrate of soda of 12.9 bushels with the smaller quantity of fertilizer and 17.7 bushels with the larger amount; there was a greater profit on the investment when 80 pounds was employed.

On soil well supplied with vegetable matter, plots receiving 660 lbs. of slaked lime per acre at time of planting yielded more than plots not limed. But slaked lime applied as a top dressing in March on oats growing on sandy land deficient in vegetable matter failed to increase the yield.

In a co-operative fertilizer experiment conducted near Auburn with oats sown in February, drought caused the crop to fail on all plots. The greatest resistance to drought and the largest yields were obtained on the plots receiving kainit.

Soaking seed oats for 10 to 15 minutes in water kept at a temperature of 130 to 135 degrees Fahrenheit effectually prevented smut here. This is a standard, cheap and effective method of preventing smut, and the saving resulting from this treatment of seed oats is usually 5 to 20 per cent.

Culture of Nuts.

This class of trees has been neglected, writes Samuel Miller in Colman's Rural World. The time will come when men will regret the use of the ax in many instances. From this time no walnut tree or hickory tree that bears a fair nut will be cut down when clearing my land. There is no difficulty in growing them from the seed. Simply follow nature to a large extent. The walnut falls to the ground, the hull remains soft on the ground, and if the least bit of soil covers the nut it will sprout the following spring. To make speed in establishing a forest of nut trees, the seed should be put in the ground where the tree is to remain. Cover walnuts two inches, hickory one, acorn one. The latter usually sends a root down into the earth in the fall and in the spring starts up a shoot. I have seen them sprout on the ground in wet weather. How long a walnut will remain dry and still grow, I cannot say, but I have had hickory nuts that were put away in a drawer for three years, when put in the ground in the fall sprout the next spring. Persimmon seeds should not become quite dry, and should be put in the ground in the fall. It is gratifying to learn from so many to whom I sent seed of this fruit that they have them growing. Pecans, hazel nuts and chestnuts, treat the same as hickory nuts.

Speculations in Cattle Feeding.

A Chicago paper publishes the following:

Chicago bankers are commenting on the unusual amounts of cattle paper now being offered in the local market and the low rates prevailing in this rapidly expanding class of loans. Whereas a year ago the paper purchased by local institutions averaged about 5 per cent, the offerings are now chiefly at 4@4½ per cent, or practically commercial paper rates, and the banks which look upon the industry favorably are investing freely. It is safe to say that the number of Chicago banks in this branch of the market is growing, for in quarters where distrust was expressed a year ago there now is an apparent conservative interest. It is the estimate of well-informed bankers that the Chicago holdings of cattle paper this fall are greater than at any previous corresponding season.

Special interest has been aroused this week by an article in a prominent eastern financial paper, written by the president of a Kansas national bank, in which the dangers of disaster to the industry from reckless speculation are pointed out. The writer says:

"One of the worst features of the present cattle boom that presages ultimate disastrous results is that too many of the daring operators now in the saddle are so fearfully in debt that they must realize that they have nothing to lose and all to make if anything is made. I know personally a few instances where men have now sums of $10,000 and even double that amount from commission houses, who two years ago could not borrow of their home bank even $100 without security and did not expect to float their single name for a single dollar, because it would not command it. As an instance of how easily money goes out in large blocks these days in cattle loans I will cite the circumstance of a young man who approached me on a loan of $30 per head on a string of 300 of Indian territory cattle. He wanted $9,000, and had not feed enough to provide for the cattle. I declined this opportunity to put our bank in the cattle business, and told the daring young Napoleon of an operator to go to Kansas City for his money. He did and got it from a commission company, and this chattel now appears upon our county records. The effect of such reckless loaning is not far off and the home banker, I predict, in another year will have the local field more to himself than for the last two years.

"I have a circular from one of the great panhandle ranches offering 17,000 steer calves for sale. This is a signal of warning when the calves are advertised. It means the present crop of calves will bring more money as calves than if allowed to grow older. It heralds a coming drop of prices or a great dread and fear of its coming and can mean nothing else. A law passed a year ago last winter by the Texas legislature permitting lands forfeited to the state to be re-appraised and sold for $1 per acre, has given new impetus to the ranch business, and production will be pushed. High prices will stimulate increased production and all the sooner hasten the sure coming decline."

Warning Against Preservatives.

E. O. Grosvenor, dairy and food commissioner of Michigan, sends out the following:

We desire to caution dairymen and dealers in milk against the use in their products of the so-called preservatives now upon the market. Many of these mixtures are decidedly dangerous, and the steady absorption of the same, especially by invalids and children, who are generally large consumers of milk, is likely to produce serious if not fatal effects. Aside from the directly injurious character of some of these preservatives, they all tend to retard fermentation, thus at least indirectly preventing digestion. Science has demonstrated that the value of all food depends very much upon the readiness with which it is assimilated in the process of digestion and scientific authorities agree that whatever prevents decomposition delays digestion. There are legitimate methods of preservation which do not involve the use of noxious drugs and the department will prosecute dealers in milk found using these deleterious mixtures.

Outlook for Strawberry Trade.—Strawberry growers that we have conversed with are in good spirits. They are confident that we are on the threshold of an era of prosperity. The results of the war, the acquisition of new territory, and the opening of new channels of trade will break the long stagnation, unlock capital, give an impetus to business in every form, and among many other things most devoutly to be wished, create a much better market for fruit by making the denizens of the great cities and others more able to buy and eat it. Growers who have weathered the past five years in any shape should now have pretty fair sailing.—Strawberry Specialist.

The Cornfed Philosopher.

"Trifles," said the Cornfed Philosopher, "the well known to make the greater sum of woman's happiness, which is doubtless the reason why a woman is generally so happy with a trifling man."—Indianapolis Journal.

Railroad Trains to Run Slower.

Railroad officials claim that it is very expensive to run their express trains, and are talking about reducing the speed. It is likewise expensive to the health to struggle and compete in business affairs as men do nowadays. The whole system gives out. For restoring strength Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the proper remedy.

Animals and Their Toilet.

Cats, large and small, make the most careful toilet of any class of animals, excepting some of the opossums. The lions and tigers wash themselves in exactly the same manner as the cat, wetting the dark, india-rubber-like ball of the forefoot and inner toe and passing it over the face and behind the ears. The foot is thus at the same time a sponge and brush, and the rough tongue combs the rest of the body. Hares also use their feet to wash their faces, and the hare's foot is so suitable for a brush that it is used to apply the "paint" to the face for the stage.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BUSY DAY FOR THE PRESIDENT

HOSPITABLE SOUTHERNERS GIVE HIM NO REST.

Most of the Presidential Party Attend Divine Services in the Different Churches—The Day Filled With Interest and Activity—The President Delivers a College for Colored People and Delivers an Address—Secretary Alger and Gen. Shafter Visited the Camps, Making a Close Inspection—The President Also Visited the Camps.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 20. — Notwithstanding yesterday was supposed to be a day of rest with the presidential party, it was, as a matter of fact, filled with interest and activity. The day was an ideal one. Though they had eat late at the banquet the night before—it was 2 o'clock when Gen. Wheeler delivered his delightful peroration to "Woman" — the president and accompanying members of his cabinet rose to breakfast at about the usual hour, and later they separated to attend divine service. President McKinley attended the Wesley Monument Methodist church. Mrs. McKinley did not accompany him. She is suffering from a slight cold and remained at the hotel. Her indisposition, however, does not amount to real illness, and in the afternoon she was able to take a carriage ride about the city. The president was met at the door of the church by leading members of the congregation, who escorted him to the pew reserved for him. As he entered the congregation arose and remained standing until he had taken his seat. The sermon was by Rev. J. A. Thompson, D. D. There was no reference to the distinguished presence during the service beyond an invocation by the preacher for divine guidance of the president during the crisis which now

Confronted the Country.

Secretary Alger and Gen. Shafter attended the First Presbyterian church, and after the service held a levee in the aisle, many persons crowding around them to shake hands and bid them welcome. Gen. Joseph Wheeler and Secretary Wilson worshiped at the First Baptist. After the service they shook hands with several hundred persons. Secretary Long attended St. John's Episcopal church and Secretary Smith the Independent Presbyterian. They also were greeted by many members of the congregations. After dinner the president visited the Georgia State, Agricultural and Mechanic college, colored, where he delivered an address. The route to the college took the president through the camp of the Seventh army corps, and, going and coming, he stopped at the camp for a brief inspection and to speak words of appreciation and encouragement to the men. Secretary Alger and Gen. Shafter also visited the camps. Secretary Alger paid more attention to the camp than any other member of the party. He went through several of the regimental villages, from headquarters to kitchens, and made a critical examination. He also visited the hospital of the first division where he spoke kindly to the sick men and into their wants and how they were supplied. After his trip he expressed himself as very much gratified with the camp and the work of the hospital corps. Postmaster General Smith, Gen. Shafter and the newspaper correspondents with the presidential party were the guests of the officers of the Third battalion, Third Georgia regiment, at the camp during the afternoon. An oyster dinner was served. Postmaster General Smith made a short address, during the course of which he paid a high tribute to the press for its integrity. Gen Shafter made an impromptu, conversational talk to the men assembled, which was full of suggestiveness, and at once placed the general in touch with all of his hearers. After the dinner the party made an inspection of the camps. Without exception the visitors pronounced the arrangements excellent. The members of the visiting party spent the evening in the parlors of the hotel until the time came for them to depart for Macon, for which place their train left at midnight. On the way to the depot the president was greeted with hearty cheers, as, indeed, he has been every time he has come in sight during his visit here.

Made Inquiries

WHO WOULDN'T BE A HERO?

Lieut. Robson Gets Kissed by 163 Young Ladies.

Chicago, Dec. 20. — Lieut. Hobson was heavily bombarded by a fleet of kissing girls at the Auditorium last night, but as no distress signal was hoisted after the engagement it is not believed that he was seriously injured. Lieut. Hobson lectured on "The Sinking of the Merrimac," under the auspices of the Chicago Press club, and after the lecture the members of the audience pressed forward for an impromptu reception. There was much handshaking and applause, but more interesting than either were the 163 kisses given the hero by as many girls. The lieutenant met the attack bravely and even seemed to encourage it. He goes from here to Kansas City, Denver and San Francisco, and will sail for Havana Dec. 24 on the City of Peking.

Extra Pay for Volunteers.

Washington, Dec. 20. — Representative Hull, chairman of the house committee on military affairs, introduced a bill giving two months' additional pay to volunteer troops recently serving abroad and one month to those serving at home.

Released From the Ice.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 20.—Aided by a northwest wind and the mild weather most of the imprisoned steamers at the mouth of the Detroit river have been released by the tugs.

MORE TROUBLE FOR SPAIN.

Sagasta's Cabinet Will go Out of Business.

Madrid, Dec. 20. — Senor Montero Rios and the other members of the Spanish peace commission reached Madrid late Saturday evening. They were met by Senor Gamazo, leader of the dissenting Liberals, and by many other politicians and high officials. Their arrival was not attended with special incident. Sunday evening the queen regent received Senor Rios in audience. The newspapers assert that Saturday's council of ministers agreed that the cabinet should not appear again before parliament, and it is believed Senor Sagasta will submit the resignation of the cabinet to the queen regent after the council to-day.

El Liberal, in a very outspoken article, declares that both the Liberal and Conservative parties must disappear, "as they represent the annihilation of Spanish prestige abroad; the failure of the country's finances and the loss of the colonial empire." A national government, the paper asserts, is now in process of formation. El Globo says that Senor Sagasta, the premier, withdrew from the cabinet council yesterday as he was slightly indisposed. The editor of a Carlist paper published in this city has been arrested at Leon, capital of the Northern province of that name, while in the course of a tour through that part of the kingdom. Important documents were found on his person.

WITH IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY,

Grand Duke Nicholas Unveils a Monument to Russian Soldiers.

Constantinople, Dec. 20. — The Russian Grand Duke Nicholas, who arrived here Friday, unveiled yesterday at Glatnaa, near San Stefano, where, on March 3, 1879, was signed the treaty of peace that terminated the Russo-Turkish war, a monument to the Russian soldiers who fell in that conflict. The unveiling was accompanied with much ceremony and a military parade at which representatives of all the Balkan states were present. Earlier in the day a requiem was held at the Russian chapel there in memory of the dead. The Turkish newspapers are excessively irritated at the ceremonies, which recall great disasters to the Turkish arms. At the reception at the palace the grand duke handed the sultan the czar's autograph letter and informed his majesty that Emperor Nicholas had delegated him to draw closer the ties of friendship binding the two countries. Decorations and presents were exchanged.

SENTENCE TOO SEVERE.

Prominent Citizens Interest Themselves in the Case of Moore.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 20.—Prominent citizens have interested themselves in behalf of Moore, the Maine artilleryman who was the other day sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or sixty days on the chain gang by Judge Norwood for attempting, on the streets, to hug the wife of a prominent citizen. A petition to the governor for pardon is being circulated, and it is being signed not only by leading men, but by society women as well. Moore was hilariously intoxicated at the time of his offense. He has borne an excellent reputation in his command. Considering the high characters of the signers of the petition it is probable the pardon will be promptly granted. Moore is now in the chain gang, where he has been for two weeks. The petitioners say they think his degradation and punishment have been ample.

FOR WIFE MURDER.

An Austrian Is Under Arrest at Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Michael Emil Rollinger, a native of Austria, is under arrest charged with the murder of his wife. The charred body of Mrs. Rollinger was found in a clothes closet of her home, and her death was at first supposed to be the result of an accident. The police now claim to have sufficient evidence to prove that Rollinger strangled his wife, poured kerosene over the body and set fire to it. Mrs. Rollinger owned some property in Austria and also carried $500 life insurance. Lately the couple had not been living happily and the woman had declared her intention to apply for a divorce.

LEE CHEERED.

The People of Havana Glad to See the General Back.

New York, Dec. 20.—A special from Havana says: Gen. Lee came to town from camp for the first time since the war and had breakfast at his hotel, the Inglaterre. He went to the table he always used to occupy and took his accustomed seat near a window. Residents of Havana, recognizing him, cheered lustily as his familiar figure was seen from the street. The Spanish troops will not be able to evacuate Havana by Christmas, as was expected. Although the soldiers have been withdrawn from the suburbs already the city will be held until the last moment agreed on by the commissions.

YOUTHFUL FELONS.

Two Boys Go to Prison for the Crime of Manslaughter.

Chillicothe, Ohio, Dec. 20.—Two mere boys, Elmer and George Butler, aged, respectively, 10 and 13, were found guilty of manslaughter and will serve a term in the penitentiary for the murder of Daisy Browser, a young girl. The crime was a heinous one, and in the trial it was proven that the girl had been shot down from ambush for no cause whatever. The defense made an attempt to prove that insanity ran in the Butler family, but the jury could not be convinced. The jury was out fifteen and one-half hours.

Increase the Navy.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The secretary of the navy has recommended an increase of the navy up to 22,250 enlisted men and boys, and this item will appear in the naval appropriation bill when finally reported.

Gen. Sheridan's Command.

Washington, Dec. 20.—By direction of the president Brig. Gen. M. V. Sheridan, United States volunteers, has been assigned to temporary command of the department of the lakes, relieving Brig. Gen. Bacon.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS
TOYS
TOYS

THE CHRIST-CHILD.

THIS world has whirled on in its way
For nineteen hundred years,
Since Bethlehem's babe, who came in Love,
Wept over us His tears.

Still swings above the golden star
That on that night stood still Above the humble village inn,
By the Judaean rill.

And wise men seek the path today
The crowned Magi found—
The mother heart of womanhood
Makes that, Earth's holy ground.

The singing angels hover now
Above the manger, there.
When God's light shone upon His brow,
The Prince of Peace so fair!

The wondrous story, never old,
Thrills on the wakened heart,
Who led us to His Heavenly Fold,
Who walked from men apart.

Awake, today, in spirit strain,
The song that never dies!
Find out that glittering star again,
The scales dropped from our eyes!

For God's dear love is potent now
As when His reign began;
The chanting of the seraph band
Shames restless heart of man.

Here, in our midst, the Heavenly Dove
Seeks an eternal rest;
Descending from His throne above
To hide within each breast.

Wake! Better Natures, sleeping long!
Cast off the thralls of sin!
List to the choiring angels' song
And let the White Dove in!

Mute by the graves of vanished hates,
Greet all in love today!
Lift up your brows with hearts elate,
And meet Him on our way!

—Richard Henry Savage.

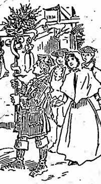
The Christmas Tree.

WHERE did the Christmas tree originate? This is a question that doubtless would puzzle most people to answer. It came to us from England, and it is pretty well settled that it was taken there from Germany, for the custom of setting up a tree hung with gifts at Yule-tide was by no means universal in Britain until after the marriage of Queen Victoria to a German prince.

But prior to this there was a sort of Christmas tree in England. The "Wassail bob," a bunch of holly or other evergreens on a pole, decked with ribbons and hung with oranges and apples, and sometimes bearing a pair of dolls, was carried about in Yorkshire at Christmas nearly a century ago. And until 1830 the "besant" was escorted by a procession with music at Shaftesbury—it being a tree-shaped framework covered with ribbons, flowers and peacock feathers, on which were hung jewels, coins and other articles of value, loaned by the local gentry. Hutchins' history of Dorset states in 1803 that the decorations of this "besant," or "byzant," or "bezon," as it was variously called, were sometimes worth as much as £1,500.

These and kindred customs prevailing in the England of a century ago are generally regarded by archaeologists as survivals of tree worship, which seems to have existed everywhere.

Germany probably received the tree from Scandinavia, where the ancient legend tells of "Yggdrasil," the ash, which binds together heaven, earth and hell; its branches spreading over the whole world, and reaching above the sky; its roots running in three directions, one to the Asa gods in heaven, one to the Frost giants, and the third to the under-world.



"THE WASSAIL BOB."

In the far East, Japanese sacred books, written a dozen centuries ago, relate how the gods pulled up by the roots on the mountain Kager the Saka tree, on the branches of which they hung jewels, a mirror and blue and white peace offerings to the shining goddess of the heavens.

The Hindoo Parijata and Kalpavriksha yielded all the objects of the desires of gods and mortals, and so, too, did the Iranian Harvisptokhm, "the tree of all the seeds."

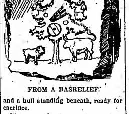
At cremation ceremonies in Buddhist Siam a framework representing a tree, to which are tied limes and nutshells containing money and lottery tickets, occupies a prominent place, and after the rites these "fruits," which are called "karsphrak," are scrambled for by the crowd.

In Upper India the scavenger caste carry in processions, in honor of their god Zahir, a bamboo framework decked with bright colored cloths and peacock feathers, and hung with fans and bunches of cocoa nuts.

Lucian described trees covered with ornaments and sacred attributes which were brought each year to be burnt as offerings to the goddess Atergatis at Hierapolis of Syria; and he told also of great trees, loaded with goats, sheep, garments and gold and silver objects which were burned before the Syro-Phoenician gods.

Conventional, or "made-up" trees are pictured on Babylonian cylinders, and one of the bilingual hymns translated by Prof. Sayce describes how the "Place of the Tree" (of which these pictured trees were undoubtedly symbols) is the central spot of the earth, while its fruits—obviously the stars—are of brilliant crystal and reach into the liquid vast."

The pine of Cybele and Attis is still to be seen on the ancient bas reliefs, hung with bells, a reed flute, a wheel and other objects, and there are sacred birds among the branches and a ram and a bull standing beneath, ready for sacrifice.



FROM A BASRELIEF.

Pictures and other votive objects were attached to the laurel of Apollo.

Summing up all the evidence, it certainly seems that the Christmas tree hung with gifts has descended to us from the times when decorated trees laden with offerings were worshiped as representatives of the abstract "Universe tree," whose trunk was the cosmic axis, whose roots were in the under-world, and whose branches, lifted aloft into the skies, bore up the heavenly hosts.

The custom of decorating the churches with greenery at Christmas had its origin in a pagan ceremony. The great feast of Saturn was held in December, when the worshipers hung the temple with such green things as they could find; and the Christians adopted the same method to celebrate the birth of the Savior, giving it an emblematic turn by referring to the "righteous branch," and justifying it from Isaiah 55: 13—"The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir tree, the pine tree and the box together to beautify the place of my sanctuary."

The holly, or holy tree, is called Christ's thorn in Germany and Scandinavia, from its use in church decorations and its putting forth its berries at Christmas time.

THE YULE LOG.

Christmas day in the primitive church was always observed as the Sabbath day, and, like that preceded by an Eve, or Vigil. Hence our present Christmas Eve. On the night of this Eve, people were wont to light up candles of an uncommon size, called Christmas candles, and lay a log of wood upon the fire, called a Yule log or Christmas block, to illuminate the house, and, as it were, to turn night into day. This custom is still kept up in the north of England. The size of these logs of wood, which were in fact great trees, may be imagined from the fact that in the time of the civil wars of the last century, Capt. Hosier burnt the house of Mr. Barker of Haghmond Abbey, near Shrewsbury, by setting fire to the Yule log. At the bringing in of the Yule log at Christmas Eve in the ancient castle of England, the great hall of the castle was profusely decorated with ivy and holly berries. As soon as the log was lighted the Christmas festivities began. The servants were then given a general holiday and did not go to bed at all, but rambled about, until the church bells called them to prayer at 12 o'clock. The word Yule signifies Christmas, which was called in the Latin or Western church the Feast of Lights, because they used many lights or candles at its celebration in honor of Christ, the Light of all Lights.

CINCINNATI RUNS ON A ROCK

CRUISER MEETS WITH AN ACCIDENT AT SANTIAGO.

While Leaving Port She Ran Full Speed Upon a Rock, Which Was Clearly Defined in the Charts but Not Buoyed—She Does Not Appear to Be Seriously Damaged—The Collier Southery and the Mayflower Have Been Trying to Pull Her Off, but Their Attempts Have Been So Far Unsuccessful.

Santiago, Cuba, Dec. 20.—While the United States cruiser Cincinnati was leaving port about sunset yesterday she ran full-speed upon a rock, clearly defined in the charts but not buoyed. Last September Gen. Wood, seeing that the absence of a buoy there might lead to some accident, anchored a small one, the first one ever placed there, but the Bessie, on entering the harbor one night carried it away, and since then there has been no buoy to mark the place. The Cincinnati was apparently not seriously damaged, for she is not making water. For the past twenty-four hours the collier Southery and the Mayflower have been engaged in an effort to pull her off. Thus far they have been unsuccessful, but it is hoped they will have better luck at high-tide. The principal risk now is of tearing a hole in the cruiser's bottom while pulling her off. Capt. Chester, the cruiser's commander, insists that the land marks are in the wrong place and have not been altered in any way since the American occupation. Pilots are not compulsory on entrance of warships, but the Santiago harbor is difficult and the warships should take one.

RIOT IN HAVANA.

One Man Is Killed and Several Wounded.

Havana, Dec. 20. — A riot occurred at Cerro, a suburb of Havana. A number of shots were fired. One man is reported to have been killed and five wounded. The residents of Cerro, supposing that the Spaniards had officially vacated the suburbs, raised Cuban and American flags over a number of buildings. Crackers were fired and speeches made on the street corners, and these rejoicings on the part of the Cubans led to the riot. Capt. Gen. Castellanos has issued orders for the seizure of printing outfits and the editions of certain clandestine Cuban publications which circulate in the city, and which tend to provoke trouble and cause disorders.

NEARING THE END.

The Canadian High Joint Commission Has About Completed Its Labors.

Washington, Dec. 20. — When the Canadian joint high commission adjourned it was understood that the meeting here on Monday would be the last before the return of the dominion officials to Canada. The date for reassembling the commission in Washington, it is said, will be definitely set at Monday's meeting for Jan. 5, and that in less than two weeks thereafter whatever measures may be agreed upon will be drafted in treaty form and ready for signature.

GEN. WOOD'S PROMOTION.

Gives Great Satisfaction at Santiago—Event Celebrated.

Santiago, Dec. 20. — The news that the United States senate had confirmed the nomination of Gen. Wood as major general was received with great satisfaction here. Gen. Wood was at Morro inspecting the fortifications and got his first intimation by the Punta Gorda battery firing a major general's salute. The church bells rang, the civil band played martial airs, and in the clubs and cafes were receptions and toasts to the military governor.

GEN. BROOKE IS ILL.

His Departure for Cuba May Be Delayed.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 20.—Maj. Gen. Brooke, who was appointed as military governor of Cuba, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon. He had a conference with the president and Secretary Alger. After the conference Gen. Alger said Gen Brooke was on his way to Havana. Gen. Brooke is suffering from a severe cold. His fever is high and he will probably not leave for a week.

BUT TWO THIS WEEK.

Gen. Otis Cables the Mortality Record at Manila Since Dec. 10.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Gen. Otis has cabled the war department as follows: "Following deaths since last report, Dec. 10; G. C. Larson, corporal A, Utah artillery, typhoid fever; James Healy, private, I, Eighteenth infantry, cerebral hemorrhage, result of a fall; accident."

MUST BE ORDERLY.

Gen. Castellanos Takes Effective Measures in Havana.

Havana, Dec. 20.—Gen. Castellanos, resolved that order shall be strictly maintained, has mobilized some of the troops and the disorder has been suppressed. American officers are much pleased with the Spaniards' promptness in meeting the crisis.

Second Attempt Successful.

Neillsville, Wis., Dec. 20.—Carl Shute committed suicide by shooting himself. He attempted to destroy his life the previous evening by taking a dose of rat poison mixed with alcohol, but failed. Domestic difficulties.

Marvelous Gold Strike.

Winnipeg, Dec. 20.—Rat Portage is wild over a marvelous strike made in the Mikado gold mine. The ore fills a slope forty feet high and two and one-third feet wide and is worth from $25,000 to $35,000 a ton.

MOVING A BRIDGE.

Remarkable Feat of Engineering on the Northwestern.

Milwaukee, Dec. 20. — A remarkable feat of bridge moving was accomplished yesterday by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company, under direction of J. S. Robinson, division superintendent of engineers of that road. The bridge was single track draw weighing 251 tons, and was moved a distance of twenty-five feet to a new foundation in the quick time of 2:45. The structure was floated on two scows, one on either side of the center, which were sunk with 90,000 gallons of water. With the scows in proper position, the water was pumped out and the bridge gradually lifted from its foundation and towed to its new resting place by two tugs. The bridge had rendered service since 1880 and is still in good condition, being removed to make way for a double-track structure of the latest pattern.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

Michael Andre Convicted of Murdering Lyman E. Moody.

Watertown, S. D., Dec. 20.—The jury in the case of Michael Andre, charged with the murder of Lyman E. Moody, brought in a verdict of guilty and fixed the penalty at life in the penitentiary at hard labor. The crime was one of the most cold-blooded ever committed in this state. The evidence shows that Andre went to the house of Moody on the night of Aug. 26 last and shot Moody, then returned to his house, which was about 150 feet away, secured a can of oil, went back, saturated the body with oil and then set the house on fire. The house was burned and the body cremated. This was done in presence of Andre's wife and Louis Montroy.

A CLEVER RUSSIAN.

He Found a Method of Beating His Persian Creditor.

In Persia, when a creditor fails to get his money in any other way, he appears in the debtor's house and sits down. Then he does not move away till the delinquent pays up. He enters the debtor's sleeping apartments, if possible, and has his meals brought in. A few years ago a Persian held an unsatisfied claim against the British government, and he presented himself before the British minister one day and camped out in his private office. The minister did not see the joke, and sent for a policeman. That made a lot of noise and trouble, and the Russian representative in Teheran evidently learned a lesson from it, for he managed a case of the same kind much differently.

The Persian who demanded money from the Russian (Count Kolomeisow) was a holy man, a dervish, and when he sat down in the Russian's anteroom to wait till the latter paid his disputed claim Count Kolomeisow knew that he could not get rid of him without much fuss and explanation. It is against the laws, or at least the custom, which is just as firm, to touch a creditor who takes this means of collecting money so the count could not throw him out. He thought over the matter, and one morning he sent for a lot of masons. Then he ordered them to build a wall around the dervish, who was sitting in the middle of the room. The dervish watched them placidly at first, but when the wall grew and it became apparent that it would be completed soon he jumped over it, ran away and has not been seen since. They say that the count is the first man in Teheran who has beaten a creditor of this kind without recourse to the police.—New York Press.

DEEP SEA WATER.

At One Thousand Fathoms Its Pressure Is a Ton to the Square Inch.

When marine life began to command notice, the question of the depth to which life could extend divided scientific thought into warring camps. About 1840, it was generally believed that the bathymetrical limit was about 300 fathoms, and some strange ideas were current as to the physical condition of water when under a pressure such as a depth of two miles would produce. It was thought that skeletons of drowned men, or even heavy cannon and the "wedges of gold" that popular imagination places in the sea, floated at certain levels, beneath which is water so compressed as to be impenetrable. In fact water is almost incompressible, and the weight of a cubic inch of it at the depth of a mile is very little more than at the surface, but it was assumed that no living being could survive a pressure which at 1,000 fathoms is about a ton to the square inch.

We ourselves live under a pressure of about 15 pounds per inch, and are unaware of it. Indeed we sometimes waken on a morning when the barometer has risen, say, half an inch during the night, and consequently find ourselves sustaining an increased pressure of several tons not only without suffering, but with a positive feeling of buoyancy and good spirits. On the other hand, if the tremendous pressure under which we live be relieved as by a surgical "cup," severe injury may follow. Aeronauts suffer from this cause, and marine animals dredged from great depth often reach the surface in a most lamentable condition, with eyes protruding and viscera distended.—Dr. C. M. Blackford, Jr., in North American Review.

Not Reassuring.

That an answer may be cheerful and yet far from reassuring is once more proved out of the mouth of a young Irishman.

He was acting as guide to a party of Americans who, in the course of a day's excursion during their visit to Ireland, were wandering over a picturesque, deserted castle.

"It seems very unsafe," said one of the party, as they groped and stumbled along a dark passage. "These floors are loose, I know."

"Yes," said another timid person, "and I wish I could see the blue sky above me. This seems like a dungeon, not a ruin!"

"Is it the blue sky ye'd be seein, miss?" said the voice of the guide, some feet in advance. "Why, may the saints preserve ye for an innocent! It's the roof, an nowt else, that kapes the walls together, miss!"—Youth's Companion.

He Could Get Them.

When he was a Harvard student, the late Sherman Hoar became famous as a maker of epigrams. One evening he had been indulging in his usual style of conversation in the rooms of Professor D., a man after his own heart, but too apt to interlard his lectures with apparently original witticisms taken, after the manner of Moliere, wherever he found them. When Hoar and a fellow student had left the academic presence, the latter enthusiastically, cried: "By Jove, Sherman, how do you manage it? I wish I could remember all the bright things you said just now."

"Go to D.'s lecture tomorrow and take notes," said Hoar. "You'll get them then."—Exchange.

Poison Parts of Snakes.

All poisonous serpents have movable fangs, which are found in the upper jaw, and when not in use close up like the blade of a penknife.

At the base of every poison fang there are numerous germs of others, and the fang, if broken or lost, is replaced in a few weeks by the growth of another.

Three things, too much and three too little are pernicious to man—to speak much and know little, to spend much and have little, to presume much and be worth little.—Cervantes.

THE TOBACCO HABIT.

HAVE YOU GOT IT, AND DO YOU WANT TO LOSE IT?

A Chicago Specialist Says That a Sure Cure For "My Lady Nicotine" Can Be Found in the Plentiful Use of the Humble Peanut.

However fantastic my particular method of dealing with the tobacco habit may seem on paper it will effect a cure if faithfully carried out. In the first place, be sure that your patient really desires to break off the habit of using tobacco. In the second place, remember that your patient will react according to the impression your manner makes upon his mind. If you speak lightly of your method of treating him, he will hold that method in small esteem. Therefore, speak impressively, and if he smiles at your modus operandi frown him into a decent humility.

Suggestion alone is not sufficient to hold the average tobacco user, and you will therefore add a material medicine in the shape of—peanuts! Yes, my friend, ridiculous as the idea seems, there lies in the vulgar peanut a charm to sap the power of "My Lady Nicotine" and free the fettered slave.

In all drug habits there are two conditions to combat—physical and mental, or physiological and psychological. I use peanuts to offset the physical craving and suggestion to calm the mind.

What is the condition of the user of tobacco if the weed is withdrawn? It is important to understand this, because there is but a slight variation in one dozen cases from the average.

The condition is one of mental unrest, some physical sensations and nervousness. The withdrawal of tobacco acts as a withdrawal of a powerful nerve tonic, because this weed, used first as a nerve sedative, becomes by force of usage a nerve stimulant. Let us take the mental condition first under consideration. I do not try to put a tobacco user to sleep, because it is an unnecessary performance, but give him positive suggestions while he is sitting opposite me to the following effect:

That it will be easy to break him of the habit.

That he will not suffer, despite the fact that he has tried to break off previously, but has failed on account of the discomfort ensuing.

That he is not a hero or a being to be pitied or sympathized with, because he will not be called upon to display any heroic qualities of endurance.

That if he follows directions he will not suffer from nervousness or "sinkings" at the pit of the stomach.

That he will begin at once to gain in weight, that his memory will be sharper and more tenacious, and that his digestive organs will regain tone, that his nerves will be as steel, his muscles as iron and his complexion will lose the muddy hue which mars its comeliness.

That the habit is uncleanly—in fact, degrading—and that its gratification entails a gross waste of money. What right has he to literally burn his income when his wife is compelled to wear a gown that is out of date?

Thus, then, do I prepare the patient's mind for the lightness of the task before him, laying special stress upon the fact that he will at no time consider himself an object of compassion or self pity, for if he believe himself to be performing a deed of no small heroism he will suffer agonies, whereas if his abnegation is ignored and taken as a matter of course he will react accordingly.

Now, as to the physical symptoms, they will be but slight if the above preparation of the mind is properly done and will show themselves in occasional pains about the region of the heart, sinking at the pit of the stomach, a lassitude, weak and accelerated pulse and muscular twitchings. Nervousness, jumping at a sudden noise and irritability of temper will be in evidence, but will be greatly modified by suggestion.

Prescribe peanuts, to be eaten slowly, constantly and continually. He must be occupied. Busy him therefore with peanuts. He would, if left alone, think tobacco. He must, on the contrary, think peanuts. Has he a loathing for peanuts? All the better. He will learn to love them for their nutritious qualities and intrinsic flavor. Does his stomach rebel on the second or third day? Has he biliousness or colic? It is still well, because no man when bilious desires tobacco.

Observe that you are supplying him with material for his digestive organs to work upon, and that his jaws are not idle. There is no vacuum, and there will be under this regimen no sinking at the pit of the stomach. A feeling of fullness perhaps, a plethoric condition, a sense of satiety, but this is exactly what we desire to bring about. Keep the system busy and at work; keep the mind at rest.

Ah, my friends, how true it is that the mouse may gnaw the ropes that bind the lion! Even the plebeian peanut may be the means of restoring harmony to an afflicted household. I have known this humble agent, taken according to directions, stretch strong men upon beds of sickness from which they rose in the course of a day or two clean of heart and purged of the craving for tobacco. I have known of others whose stomachs were not upset and who went their way rejoicing and waxed fat speedily.

I have never known of a failure if the above directions were carried out. The tobacco habit is not worthy to be classed as a drug habit.—Sydney Flower, LL. D., in New York Herald.

Had to Tell Some One.

"If you'd been half an hour later," she said, "I don't know what I should have done."

"What's happened?" he asked.

"Why Mrs Gadding, next door, has been in here with such an extraordinary tale, which she made me promise I would never breathe to a living soul, that it has seemed as if I positively couldn't wait for you to come home to tell you about it."—Chicago Post.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. FEATHERED BAROMETERS.

Sailors Warned by Them of a Coming Storm.

While a British brig was gliding smoothly along before a good breeze in the south Pacific a flock of small birds about the size, shape and color of parrakeets settled down in the rigging and passed an hour or more of resting. The second mate was so anxious to find out the species to which the visiting strangers belonged that he tried to entrap a specimen, but the birds were too shy to be thus caught and too spry to be seized by the quick hands of the sailors. At the end of about an hour the birds took the brig's course and disappeared, but toward nightfall they came back and passed the night in the maintop.

The next morning the birds flew off again, and when they returned at noon the sailors scattered some food about the decks. By this time the birds had become so tame that they hopped about the decks, picking up the crumbs. That afternoon an astonishing thing happened. The flock came flying swiftly toward the brig. Every bird seemed to be piping as if pursued by some little invisible enemy on wings, and they at once huddled down behind the deckhouse. The superstitious sailors at once called the captain of the brig, who rubbed his eyes and looked at the barometer. A glance showed that something was wrong with the elements, and the brig was put in shape to outride a storm.

The storm came about 20 minutes after the birds had reached the vessel. For a few minutes the sky was like the waterless bottom of a lake—a vast arch of yellowish mud—and torrents of rain fell. Why it did not blow very hard no one knows, but on reaching port two days later the captain learned that a great tornado had swept across that part of the sea. The birds left the vessel on the morning after the storm and were not seen again.—Maryland Bulletin.

AN EYE TO THE FUTURE.

The Widower Made Plans For His Fourth Honeymoon.

Included in the wide membership of the Pacific Union club is a middle aged man whom everybody knows simply as the Widower. He has been so fortunate as to outlive three consorts without getting tired of any of them. His many bereavements have given him a sort of professional standing in the world of sorrow, and he is rather proud of his reputation for constant mourning.

The Widower, whose grief is interesting to ladies, is never ostentatious in his sighings. On the contrary, he cultivates an air of patient resignation, beautiful to behold. A peculiarity about his case is his habit of associating the memory of each dear, departed spouse with some spot or resort about the city or the suburban towns.

He was recently showing San Francisco and its environs to a friend from New York. Over in Berkeley, he remarked, sighingly:

"Here I once walked on flowers, for my Elizabeth was with me then."

Out in the park he was careful to indicate the exact spot where poor Katharine had sketched the landscape with her right hand while her left was clasped in his. At Sutro Heights he dropped a single tear, developed with great difficulty as he gazed on the beach, where, not so very long ago, he sat with his arm around his sainted Caroline.

"If I ever marry again," he remarked musingly, "I think I shall bring her here."—San Francisco News Letter.

Irish Pronunciation.

An amusing example of the Irishman's pronunciation occurs in a story told of the late Dr. Todd, the Irish archaeologist, who, although a great scholar, was not above perpetrating a practical joke. The London Spectator tells the story and says:

A very learned Englishman went to Dublin to examine some manuscripts in the library of Trinity college and was of course introduced to Dr. Todd, who one day in conversation told him that there was in Trinity college a curious instance of the survival of a habit dating from the time of the Danes, that at a certain hour of the afternoon—I think 6 o'clock—a porter went the round of the college ringing a bell and calling out in a loud voice, "The Dane's in the hall," when all the students rushed from their rooms to repel the invaders. So the learned but somewhat incredulous Englishman repaired to the college at 6 o'clock, and, sure enough, what Dr. Todd had told him came to pass, which he gravely related on his return to England. The summons of course referred to the dean.

His Feelings Were Hurt.

"I used to think these mother-in-law jokes were fiction," said a young man with a fancy vest and a receding chin, "but I guess they're justifiable."

"Has yours been cruel to you?"

"Yes. I told two or three of these stories about a man's being glad to be rid of his wife's mother, and she said that if I kept on talking in that manner she'd stop paying the house rent and the coal bill and the taxes, and that she'd take her furniture to fix up a home of her own. The idea of threatening a man in that way, in cold blood!"—Washington Star.

Two Extremes.

"My ambition," said a French writer, "is to condense a book into a chapter, a chapter into a paragraph, a paragraph into a phrase." A teacher in one of our colleges said of Richardson, "His ambition was to expand a phrase into a paragraph, a paragraph into a page, a page into a chapter and a chapter into a volume."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

THE TRADE JOURNAL.

An Enlargement and a Great Premium Offer.

Since H. P. Hall purchased the St. Paul Trade Journal it has been rapidly forging to the front, both in increase of subscriptions and in advertising patronage. Its success has been so marked that it was given a material enlargement on the 10th inst, by the addition of a column to the page, the standard number of at least 81 pages being maintained and often times more. It gives much entertaining reading matter in this space, as well as valuable business information and market quotations and is a publication the business men of the Northwest cannot afford to do without. The Trade Journal is issued weekly at the subscription price of one dollar per year, and as an incentive for subscriptions Mr. Hall offers, for a limited period, to send The Trade Journal for one year and the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a volume containing 1,231 pages and 80,000 words, for one dollar. The dictionary will be sent express charges prepaid so that the total cost for fifty-two copies of The Trade Journal and a standard unabridged dictionary will be one dollar.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Nels Lundstrom who inherited a small fortune by the death of an uncle living in the old country last spring, and who went over shortly after the death to make full settlement returned Monday. He is glad to get back saying the old country ways were too slow for him.

The treasury of the United States is overflowing with borrowed money. Cleveland borrowed $262,000,000; McKinley borrowed $200,000,000—making $462,000,000 borrowed within six years. The republican press point to the large treasury balance as evidence of prosperity. If a nation can borrow itself rich, why cannot an individual do the same? Verily, this is a new doctrine. —Silver Knight Watchman.

Prof. Theo. Pull the mind reader and hypnotist was here Monday and Tuesday and convinced every one in the audience, both evenings, that he could do everything he advertised. You can make up your mind that anyone who tells you he is a fake, were not present, therefore not accountable for what they say. To see a class of boys under the influence alone is worth the admission price.

The editor of a Kansas paper turned his lyre and got off the following: "The horrid news comes from Col. Norton's farm near Elsberry, Kansas, that a young man climed a corn stalk last Monday to see how the ears were getting along, and the corn is growing up faster than he can come down. Three men have undertaken to cut down the corn stalk, but owing to its rapid growth it is feared they will not succeed in time to prevent the young man's death from starvation. He is subsisting on raw corn and has already thrown down four bushels of cobs and it is now thought his supply is almost exhausted."

Sheep and Wolves.

I have kept a flock of about 50 sheep for the last 14 years, but the years 93, 94 and 95, the wolves got to be too much for me, so I reduced the flock to 10 choice Shropshire grades, that I have kept near the barn. Last summer we were not bothered with wolves, and began to take courage, and all of us decided to enlarge our flocks, but last week one of my neighbors found a sheep that had been killed. If wolves begin to appear again we will have to stop, for under no circumstances can we afford to raise sheep for wolves. I think the law allowing $15.00 bounty for a dead she wolf was a good one, for the wolves disappeared very fast under it. It is true it cost our county from $300 to $400 the first two years, but it would have been a question of only a year or two more and there would have been no wolves to kill, no bounty to pay, and sheep and sheep raisers would have been safe. As it is now we will probably let wolves alone until children will be unsafe, then have big bounties to pay again, and we will be out of sheep in the timbered country which is best adapted to them. If you have any influence with the State Sheep Breeders' Association, I hope you may be able to get it to take notice of the great humbug of protecting sheep by a high turriff and abolishing the bounty on wolves, the worst enemy of sheep, next to our humbug protectionist politician.—J. F. Zatterstorm, Isanti Co., Minn.

The Imperial Drug Co. has ordered a large stock of wall paper which will be in at a later date.

Senator Vest made a spirited attack on the evils of the present pension system, saying that the government had fallen into "a most iniquitous expenditure by its ill-advised legislation and thorough political influence," and was now acting as a sort of political accident insurance company. He declared that he did not wish to deprive a single honest applicant of his pension, but he did wish to have the abuse stopped. He said that although Illinois had furnished 65,000 more soldiers for the civil war than Indiana did that the pension payments in Indiana exceeded those in Illinois by $1,500,000 and charged that the reason was that Indiana is a pivotal state politically, and that it was a notorious fact that pensions had been granted to almost every applicant in districts that were close.

This will be the event of the season so don't fail to take it in. A ticket will only cost you 50 cents.

Said a citizen one day: We expect a local paper to say all the good things about us. It goes to help fill up the news colums and the news is what we buy the paper for. Very true, friend, says an exchange, your argument is all right and very convincing, but you never consider that the unpleasant things your local paper might say truthfully about you but didn't would sell ten copies to the complimentry item's one. We regret that human nature is built that way, but it is nevertheless, and the fellow making the local country newspaper in a little baliwick where everybody knows everybody else's business better than their own, finds more difficulty to determine what to leave out of the sheet than what to put in it. Thanks for the suggestion, you mean well but you don't know.'

Gottfried Adolph, one of the night millers in the O. K. Mill had the misfortune last Thursday evening about 9 o'clock to break both bones in his left arm below the elbow. He was trying to put a 3-inch belt on a small pully when his sleeve was caught in some way and his arm thrown against a timber in such a manner as to cause the break, one bone pushing through the flesh. The fracture was reduced by Dr. Grundy assisted by Dr. Francis, of St. Hilaire, and the patient is doing well.—Thief River Press.

Hot Weather Machine.

My wife's sewing machine has balked again and no amount of hot oil applications or monkey wrench adjusting will start it. During the summer months it persevered cheerfully in its work and seemed perfectly satisfied with its home, but now it drops stiches bigger than boys tracks on a clean floor. In trying to hem an apron which my wife is making for a Christmas present for my sister who lives at Fargo, this machine wrote a verse and a half of good poetry, drew a picture of a small boy getting out of bed at night, executed in tall cook book letters a receipt for taking the holes out of doughnuts, made a pie and filled the salt sellers, but it did nothing in the line of sewing or hemming. My sister will be disappointed in not getting the apron, but she will have to be satisfied with another years subscription to the Record, which she tells me she prizes highly—top shelf in the pantry. When a sewing machine acts like this it is time to fix it and a man who once spent a night in town where sewing machines were made came along with a repair sign on his back. He was called in; he accepted the call at the same time giving up an idea of leaving town on foot. He looked the sewing machine over for half an hour; then asked for a pan of warm water and some soap—he used the water to wash his hands in and either ate the soap or put it in his pocket. He applied one of his feet, which occupied a North Dakota snow excluder, to the pedal and paced around the track a few miles carefully listening for any signs of needle croup, which he understood was ground; his voice was steel hardened and his words acted as if they were glad to get away from him; in this voice he said the machine showed signs of over work and produced some apple seeds which he found in its thorax and some pieces of glass from its upper hopper; he thought the machine should be kept in a dark room and sold as soon as possible. He accepted some boarding house nourishments for his immediate use and hastened on leaving the sewing machine in doubt.—Hits and Mrs. in Grafton Record.

A FATAL JUMP.

The following taken from the McCook (Neb.) Republican will explain how John M. Stranahan in trying to avoid injury makes a fatal leap from the midnight flyer.

"The sudden death last Saturday Dec. 10th 1898, of John M. Stranahan cast a pall of sadness over the city. The circumstances were unusualy sad and pathetic, and touched the heart of everyone. He was popular among all classes. He had a wide acquaintance and his many friends here and elsewhere will learn of his fatality with sorrow.

The cause and manner in which he came to his death are briefly as follows:

He was a passenger brakeman on the Western division of the B. & M. running out of here. Friday night he went out on his run on No. 3, the west bound flyer. At Brush, Colorado, he and Conductor Willets were alone in the rear of combination coach No. 121 and as the hind truck of the coach struck the switch one of the front wheels burst, breaking in two. The train was running at a high rate of speed and the broken wheel striking on the rail made a terrible noise in the coach and jilted it badly. Conductor Willets jumped up and pulled the air cord to stop the train, but it did not seem to work and gave it a heavier pull when the cord broke. He then started for the coach behind. John followed him into the vestibule between the cars, opened the door and jumped. The conductor seeing his intention hastened to restrain him but did not reach him in time and saw him fall on the rail on the side track near the depot upon his head. The night was cold and frosty and the rails slippery and the train could not be stopped until it had run about half a mile. It was backed up and John was carried into a sleeper where an army surgeon, who was on the train, attended him until they arrived at Denver where he was taken to St. Luke's hospital. It was found his skull was crushed. He lingered unconscious until 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Dec. 10, 1898. Every care was given and every effort made to revive him but with no avail. His father-in-law, W. S. Perry was in Denver and was with him till his death, and brought his remains home that night, arriving here Sunday morning.

The deceased was insured in the Burlington Voluntary relief for $2,000. A singular coincidence in this matter was that on that Friday he had raised his class of insurance from the second to the third class and took out five additional death benefits, raising his insurance from $500 to $2,000 in case of death the papers leaving for the east only a couple of hours before he went out on his last and fatal run.

John Martin Stranahan was born at Cannon Falls, Minnesota, June 6th 1868. His parents moved to Galesburg, Iowa, when he was quite young, where he was raised and learned the watchmakers and jewelers' trade, later becoming an expert engraver. He then moved with his parents to St. Hilaire, Minnesota. He followed the jewelers' business for fifteen years during which time he ran a jewelry store in Watertown, South Dakota, but ill health compelled him to retire from business and he returned to his home. In the spring of 1895 he came here, thinking that the climate would benefit him, and worked for P. H. Sutton; he went to Tulinrido Colorado, in the spring of 1896, returning to work again for Mr. Sutton in October of the same year, and continuing with him until April of this year, when he entered the employ of the railroad company as a brakeman.

On November 16th just a month ago, he was united in marriage to Miss Mabel Perry and his happy honeymoon had not passed until he was called away, leaving a widow, father, mother, three sisters and four brothers, two of whom attended the funeral services.

The services were held at his late home, 701 Madison street, Tuesday afternoon under the auspices of McCook lodge K. of P. and were largely attended. Rev. W. J. Turner made a short address, referring to the deceased in a very touching manner, and the Congregational choir sang appropriate hymns. At the cemetery the body was interred according to the ritualistic services of the Knights of Pythias.

The heartfelt sympathy of the whole community is extended to the bereft widow and his family."

THE HOPE OF THE CONTINENT.

Western Canada the "Bread Basket of the Empire."

The attention directed to the wheat fields of western Canada during the past year has caused thousands of settlers from different parts of the United States to make their homes there during the past few months. They report that their experience corroborates what had been told them of that wonderful country, and they are sending back to their friends most favorable reports. During the past summer a number of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota editors visited western Canada, and the following extracts are from a very flattering letter written for the Germania of Milwaukee by its able contributor, Prof. Sheridan:

"The numerous elevators along the line, towering so far above the surrounding country that they may be seen for many miles distant, sufficiently indicate that the chief industry is the growing of wheat. At the village of Indian Head more than a million bushels of wheat were marketed last year. This was but a fraction of the amount of the same product marketed at the larger cities of Brandon and Regina. At Indian Head the representative of the Germania was told by a farmer that he was about to harvest his third crop of wheat from the farm upon one ploughing given it the fall of 1895, the crops of the current year and of last year having been sown upon the stubble of the preceding crop. This farmer expected a yield of not less than forty bushels to the acre. The farms are very large. The absence of hills and rocks contributes to making farming on a large scale an easy matter. There was an abundance of evidence that the country surrounding the cities named above is an extensive region of fertile lands, furnishing as great an opportunity for cattle-raising and dairying as for the growing of wheat."

"We were surprised to find here a rich growth of nearly every species of cultivable plant known in Wisconsin. Various species of trees were growing, showing that its soil and its climate are favorable to the growth of forests. The writer had never seen a more promising growth of wheat, oats, and garden vegetables than was observed here. The experimental farm of Wisconsin, located at Madison, produces nothing better."

"The people along the line of the railroad, however, assured us that we were still far distant from the northern limit of the wheat-growing belt, and that five hundred miles farther north wheat and other agricultural products were cultivated with success. The inhabitants do not depend solely upon the growing of wheat, but utilize vast acres in raising cattle. The growing grain and vegetables showed that a plentiful supply of rain had fallen during the current year."

"From this city (Calgary) our party was taken north 200 miles to Edmonton, a town of 5,000 people situated on the north Saskatchewan river. The country at this point is beautiful, presenting very much the appearance of many sections in central and southern Wisconsin. The people are engaged in mining for gold, and in raising wheat, potatoes and cattle; dairying is also followed. This valley seems to be favored with sufficient rainfall to produce a luxuriant growth of grain and vegetables. The soil is very fertile and timber is abundant. Fields of wheat were observed that promise a yield of forty bushels per acre. The many good farmhouses seen from the railway are evidence of the prosperity of the settlers. Edmonton is the terminus of the road and the place where the overland expeditions start from for the Yukon, it being about 800 miles from Dawson City."

"The members of the association made the acquaintance of the Canadians of the Northwest and learned something of the vast extent of their territory and of its great resources, which are destined to make it our most formidable commercial competitor in the world's markets for the sale of agricultural products. We learned that the Northwest Territory of Canada, instead of being a barren waste, as taught by our geographies of a quarter of a century ago, is capable of sustaining an empire of fifty millions of people."

Its Meaning.

"What is the significance of that inverted 'Y' I so often see when Chicago drapes itself for a holiday?"

"That's one of the city's emblems. It is a sort of allegorical representation of the Chicago river, with its two forks."

"Then that's why it's nearly always painted in black. I see."—Chicago Tribune.

Nearly all of the new freight equipment ordered by Receivers Cowen and Murray, of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, during the past few months, will be delivered by Jan. 15.

The orders consisted of 3,000 standard box cars from the Michigan Peninsular Car company; 1,000 box and 1,000 gondolas, from the Pullman company; 2,000 box cars from the Missouri Car and Foundry company; 1,000 steel coal cars of 100,000 pounds capacity, from the Scheen company, and 5 50-foot modern malt cars from the Pullman company.

Each of these cars is equipped with the Westinghouse air brake and M. C. B. automatic couplers.

One Exception.

"Certainly no gentleman would refuse to offer a lady his seat."

"Not if it's in the New York Stock Exchange. They cost $28,000 apiece."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PLAYING SANTA CLAUS

MOTHER, will Santa Claus bring me a sleigh tomorrow? I would rather have a sleigh than anything else in the world.

"When I passed Mr. Dunkirk's store last night it was full of sleighs," said Archie presently, "but they were all marked one dollar and a half, and I have only twenty five cent pieces in my bank."

"Bring me the bank," said his mother, opening her pocketbook.

In another moment Archie stood before his mother rattling the coins in the small tin box.

"If I give you ten more five-cent pieces," said his mother, smiling, "how much will you have then?"

"One hundred and fifty cents," cried Archie, laughing aloud. "May I go and buy the sleigh now?"

"Yes," said his mother, "but I want some of those lovely red berries I saw in the wood yesterday. They would look so nice among the evergreens. And besides, grandma and your aunts love them so."

"I'll bring you a lot," said Archie.

In a few moments he was running down the road toward Mr. Dunkirk's store.

As he passed a tiny cottage on the way a very small boy pushed open the window and shouted:

"Santa Claus is going to bring me a sleigh tonight."

"How do you know, Dick?" asked Archie.

"Ellen told me so," said Dick.

Archie had never seen the little fellow's face look so bright and happy. He knew that Dick lived alone with his sister, who, though only 15 years old, worked hard all day long in the big silk factory to support herself and her brother. And as Archie walked toward Mr. Dunkirk's store he thought a great deal of Dick's happy face.

Archie took a long time choosing his sleigh, so when his selection was made and he started off penniless but happy, dragging a wonderful red and green sleigh after him, it was almost dark.

As he turned a corner suddenly he ran against a girl standing in the road. It was Dick's sister, and she was crying.

"What is the matter?" asked Archie. "Why don't you go home?"

"I—I can't bear to see Dick. I promised him a sleigh and I spoiled a lot of silk today and have been dismissed from the works without my week's pay."

She gave one look at Archie's new sleigh and hid her face on the fence rail.

The tears were in Archie's eyes as he went on his way. When he reached the little cottage he stood still behind a great bush outside of the gate. Little Dick was still peeping out. Archie watched the eager face for several moments, then, when the child left the window, he stole softly through the little garden and up the rickety steps. Then, fastening the rope of his beautiful new sleigh to the door knob, he gave three loud raps and ran away.

He heard Dick open the door and shout:

"Oh! oh! oh! See what Santa Claus has brought me!"

Suddenly Archie remembered the berries he had promised to bring his mother.

"It is not dark yet," he said, "and I know just where to find them." He climbed the fence at the side of the road and went toward a thick clump of trees.

* * * *

It was eight o'clock on Christmas Eve and at Archie's house his mother stood at the door looking white and frightened. His father, with a lantern in his hand, stood in the road. Archie had not come home.

"I have been to Mr. Dunkirk's store," said Archie's father. "He left before dark. Now I will search the wood."

Some one shouted, "Hello! hello! hello!"

"There he is now!" cried Archie's mother. "I am so glad!" and she ran down the road toward the voice.

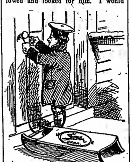
The first person they met was Ellen, pulling a beautiful new red and green sleigh over the smooth snow, and on it was little Dick, and Archie with his arms full of red berries.

"Oh, where have you been?" said his mother, as he ran to meet her.

"I went to the woods for some berries and my coat caught in a branch and I could not get it away. If it had not been for Ellen I might have been hanging there yet."

"How can I ever thank you?" said Archie's mother, turning to Ellen.

"I saw him go into the wood," replied Ellen, "after he put this beautiful sleigh on our doorstep for Dick. Then, when I heard he was lost, I followed and looked for him. I would have searched all night. I never can do enough for him. He is the dearest, best little fellow in the world," and, turning, she hurried away.



MADE TWO HAPPY.

The next morning when Archie rushed into the room where the Christmas tree stood loaded down with gifts, he found beneath it an express wagon, and on the wagon was a beautiful red and green sleigh, exactly like the one he had given to Dick.

Well, Archie was very happy that day, but he often thought of Ellen and poor little Dick, and when the odor of roasted turkey and mince pies crept through the house he wondered if they would have any Christmas dinner.

He asked his mother about it as she was brushing his hair. She only kissed him for reply, but in the dining-room, where all the family from far and near were assembled around the table heaped with all manner of good things, she said:

"Archie, come here and welcome your guests," and he found himself seated between a pretty young girl dressed in white and a very small boy in a new suit of clothes. It was Ellen and her brother Dick.

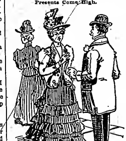
XMAS SUPERSTITIONS.

EVERYTHING gives way before the march of civilization, and the midnight superstition reels before the morning march of Christianized intelligence. For many years after the Christian era, superstition in all its forms was rampant, and among the various superstitions of the world, born in ignorance, those appertaining to Christmastide were by no means the fewest, and certainly not the least curious. Here are some references to Christmas superstitions and customs which should prove of interest at the present time:

The day comes in December, which month, it is generally believed, was consecrated to Saturn, or, as others think, was made sacred to Vesta. High festivals were held during this month by the northern natives in honor of the sun. The evergreens, with which houses were decked, are relics of the symbols by which our heathen ancestors exhibited their belief in the power of the sun to deck the earth anew with green, and to laden the trees with rich fruit. The mistletoe, exhibited at Christmas and the new year in almost every house in the old country, and of late years in many residences in our own land, is regarded as a semi-sacred thing that possesses charms and confers privileges on people possessed of it or who may come under the support from which it is suspended.

In the olden times the ancient Britons believed their gods were in the oaks. When the mistletoe berries were ripe the druids invited the people to a great feast, and the oldest druid, dressed in white, climbed up the trees where the mistletoe grew, and with a golden sickle cut it down, while the other druids sung and prayed. There are many and varying accounts of the mistletoe and of the strange, superstitious proceedings in gathering it. The mistletoe is supposed to be the golden bough which Aeneas made use of to introduce himself to the Elysian regions. It is often worn about the neck of children to prevent convulsions and pain when getting their teeth.

Presents Come High.



"Winnie got a diamond ring for her Christmas."

"How did she get it?"

"Hung up her stockings."

"Jack, of course? But how did Jack get it?"

"Hung up his watch."

CHRISTMAS CAROL.

Hark! those strains, so sweetly falling,
On that festal morn!
To our hearts are they recalling,
Christ, our King, was born.
He has come to give a blessing
To the poor, the sad;
He has come with kind caressing,
Making children glad.

Chorus:
Hark! those strains so sweetly falling,
On that festal morn;
To our heart they are recalling,
Christ, our King, was born.

Hie we to the lowly manger,
At the village inn;
Let us greet the wondrous stranger
Saving all from sin;
Let us bring a royal treasure,
Like the wise of old;
Love sincere and without measure,
Better far than gold.
Chorus.—Hark, etc.

What though wintry winds are blowing
Leaves from off the tree;
And no more the flocks are lowing,
On the upland lea;
Christ each little lamb is tending,
Folding it with care;
From the storms of life defending,
From its chilling air.
Chorus.—Hark, etc.

May those angels, at the dawning,
Singing in the sky,
Ever with a kindly warning
Bid the tempter fly.
When no more on earth is given
Joy like this today,
May such messengers of heaven
Bear our souls away.
Chorus.—Hark, etc.

New Light on Spraying.

At a recent farmers' convention Prof. Burrill of the University of Illinois gave to his hearers a piece of information that he said had not yet got into the books. It was relative to the first spraying of fruit and trees for fungous diseases. It has been believed that in the case of most of these pests the spores lived over on the twigs of the trees. It was advised to spray before the blossoms were open, for the purpose of killing these colonies of spores. Fruit raisers have been religiously carrying out instructions in this regard and the experiment stations have been sending out spraying calendars year by year in which the fruit raiser is advised to spray before the opening of the blossoms. But now it has been found that the theory of the spores living over on the twigs is erroneous. The spores live over on the leaves that fall to the ground and lie there till spring. With the first breath of spring these spores ripen sufficiently to float in the air, and as soon as the young leaf begins to expand they find a lodgment there and begin their life work. It is therefore useless to spray at the earliest time indicated in most of our books on spraying. This discovery will add much to the comfort of the orchardist, for it will decrease his times of spraying. It also adds greatly to his hopes, for if the spores live over on the dead leaves the proper way to get rid of them is to destroy the leaves. This may be done by clean cultivation, plowing under the leaves that escape the burning.

Beeswax.

A lady showed me her wax. From its appearance I judged that it had been boiled in water too much and then heated too hot. For those who keep bees in a small way, and have only a small quantity of wax, there is no better way than to put the scrapings of hives and sections in an all-metal sieve; set it over a pan of cold water, and put it in the oven of a cooking-stove, writes Mrs. L. Harrison in the "Bee Culture." As it melts it runs down into the water: and if the oven is very hot, change it to another pan of cold water. In this way light-colored wax is the result. I don't want the water in the pan to boil. If the first pan is removed, and the second should be forgotten, boil over and waste, the best wax would be in the first pan. Sometimes a third pan is used; and when the residue is dry I scrape it from the sieve into a paper, roll it up and keep it for kindling the fire. I never let bits of comb and scrapings accumulate; but when there is a convenient time I melt them up. When I remelt those cakes taken from the pans of water I put them into a pan placed over a kettle of boiling water, and, when melted, strain through cheese-cloth tied over a fruit-can that has had both ends removed. Set this in a basin, pour through and have the cake of one size. I sell three pounds for a dollar to those who sew corsets, manufacture overalls, etc.

Danish Butter Tests.

The Forsogslaboratorie in Copenhagen has issued lately a pamphlet of the Danish butter tests of last year. In these butter tests 683 dairies competed, and of this number 666 used the pasteurizing system; most of them pasteurized the cream, and only a very small number pasteurized the non-skimmed milk. It is to be observed that 17 dairies, which did not pasteurize either the cream or the non-skimmed milk, are to be found in the last group, and, furthermore, amongst the last-mentioned in the group. This gives a clear proof that it means a heavy loss to overlook the process of pasteurization. Of the above-mentioned 666 dairies which competed in the butter tests no less than 97 per cent used lactic acid ferment of the kind sold in the market, and it is very remarkable to see the difference in the quality of the butter, as these 97 per cent of dairies which used lactic acid ferment, together with pasteurization, produced a much finer butter than the half per cent who only pasteurized and did not use the lactic acid ferments.

Basswood and Bees.

Beekeepers will find it profitable to plan for and prepare bee pastures, says an exchange. Those who have had either the good fortune to be located where basswood or linden trees are plentiful or have the patience to await the development of this tree have found that they furnish an abundance of food for the bee to manufacture into honey. The tree is a beautiful one and may well be planted as an ornament. Small trees can be procured from the forest or from nurseries that handle forest trees, and planted in the fall in some desirable location for a grove. The larger ones are said to thrive better. The blossoms are small, of a light yellow color and rather pretty. The honey is secreted in the inner side of the thick, fleshy petals. When it is profuse it will sparkle like dewdrops, if a cluster of blossoms is held up to the sunlight. There has been recorded, where basswood trees were abundant, an instance of a single hive storing 43 pounds of honey in three days.

The Egg and Sex.

Periodically and frequently goes around the report that eggs wrinkled at the narrow ends produce cockerels, says the Country World. To the student of embryology this fallacy is at once apparent. For the first few days the chicken is sexual, and then to about the seventh day it is distinctly hermaphrodite and contains within itself the elements of both sexes. After this stage it verges in one direction, one set of organs developing and the other diminishing, according as to whether the germ is going to produce a male or a female. So that if the germ had a living conscience, it would not know at the sixth day which sex it would ultimately be.

New York's Milk Supply.—The amount of milk and cream delivered in Greater New York for the month of September, 1898, as compared with the same month for 1897:

1898, plain milk, 7,614,370 gallons; 1897, 7,121,350. Cream, 1898, 262,090; 1897, 221,700. Condensed milk, 1898, 74,360; 1897, 45,860. Daily average: 1898, 253,810 gallons plain milk, 8,740 cream, 2,480 condensed milk; 1897, 237,390 plain milk, 7,380 cream, 1,530 condensed milk. Price 1898, 2.45 cents; 1897, 2.25, both for whole month.—Ex.

THE WORLD'S IDEAL.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder combines all the elements of ideal excellence. It is highest in leavening power. It is free from the least taint of impurity. No trial can be too exhaustive, no test too exacting, for its admirable qualities.

Cake and biscuit made with it retain their moisture, and are extremely light, flaky and fine grained—not coarse and full of holes as when made with alum baking powders. Alum baking powder leaves a bitter taste in the bread or cake and food prepared with it dries up quickly.

The severest tests were imposed at the World's Columbian Exposition and the California Midwinter Fair, where Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder eclipsed all competitors. After full examination and competition it secured the highest honors and a special gold medal. These awards stamp it as

"THE FOREMOST BAKING POWDER IN ALL THE WORLD."

As a Preliminary.

"In choosing bridesmaids," said the young girl who was about to be married, reading from her favorite home paper, "one should take pains to select girls with gracefully-poised heads who walk well."

Just as her mother was about to commend this very excellent idea, the old gentleman gave a scornful snort and broke into the conversation.

"We'll have a cake-walk as a preliminary test," was all he said. But it was enough. They refused to speak to him for two days, at the expiration of which time they were in need of money.—Chicago Post.

WHEN CUBA CHANGES HANDS

PROGRAMME HAS BEEN FINALLY AGREED UPON.

Much Pomp and Ceremony Will Mark the Transition of Cuba From the Corrupt and Degrading Rule of Spain to the Free and Enlightened Government of the United States—Americans Will Salute the Spanish Flag, Then It Will Be Lowered and the American Flag Will Take Its Place, to Be in Turn Saluted by the Spaniards.

Havana, Dec. 24.—At a joint meeting of the United States and Spanish military commissioners the programme was finally agreed upon for the exchange of flags on Jan. 1 at noon. Just before noon the American war vessels will fire a salute of twenty-one guns in honor of the Spanish flag. Promptly at 12 o'clock the Spanish flags on the various public buildings of the city will be lowered and immediately after the Stars and Stripes will be hoisted over El Morro and the public buildings, while the Spanish artilleries of Cabanas fortress will salute the American flag with twenty-one guns, Spanish warships in the harbor participating in the salute. At the same hour the Spanish troops, if any then remain in the city, will be paraded in barracks and will render proper salutes to the American forces passing. Just before noon the American and Spanish commissiones, the Spanish captain general, and the in Cuba, Maj. Gen. John R. Brooke, if he arrives in time, otherwise, Maj. Gen. Lee, will assemble at the palace. The Spanish commissioners will then surrender the government to the United States commissioners, who will immediately transfer it to the American general commanding. After this the various American functionaries will remain awhile, to receive those who may wish to pay their respects to the incoming administration. It was agreed at the joint meeting that the Spanish soldiers remaining in Cuba after Jan. 1 should be considered as foreign troops in a friendly country, and to be accorded the privileges usually granted under international law. The quarters, buildings and grounds occupied by them are to be covered by the immunities of ex-territorialists and further negotiations will be entered into regarding the prevention of public disorder or disturbance consequent on their presence. Matanzas and Cienfuegos will doubtless be the only places where Spanish troops will remain after Jan. 1, and Cienfuegos will be evacuated last.

HONOR GEN. WOOD.

Santiago Citizens Testify to Their Appreciation of Their Governor.

Santiago, Cuba, Dec. 24. — Senor de Bacardi, the mayor of Santiago, accompanied by the city council, visited Gen. Leonard Wood, the military governor to present him with an old Spanish medal of honor of embossed gold with a chain and a parchment scroll containing the words: "To make one's self beloved of the people in difficult moments is the best of victories." The deputation requested Gen. Wood to forward a similar medal to President McKinley with a scroll containing the declaration: "A people never forgets its benefactors." Gen. Wood, replying in a few appropriate words of thanks, promised to forward the president's medal and scroll to Washington, assuring the mayor and councilmen that he was confident Mr. McKinley would be gratified to receive them.

SAGASTA'S ILLNESS.

Causes Much Anxiety and the Newspapers Express Sympathy.

Madrid, Dec. 24.—The condition of Senor Sagasta, the premier, now causes great anxiety. Six physicians were in consultation yesterday afternoon regarding his case and concurred that he is suffering from a bronchial pneumonia, with high temperature and an unfavorable absence of expectoration. The newspapers express great sympathy.

There is no doubt that his illness was aggravated by the strain of recent events. The queen regent twice during the day telephoned inquiries as to his condition and in the evening sent her own physician to attend him. The list of callers at the premier's residence includes all the foreign diplomats and a host of other distinguished persons.

Senor Groizard, minister of justice, is acting premier.

TWO EXPLOSIONS.

Send a Number of People to the Hospital for Repairs.

Muncie, Ind., Dec. 24.—An explosion of natural gas wrecked Henry Krull's grocery. William Dragoo, Mr. Krull and two boys, Arch Breese and Abel Mitchell, were badly burned.

An explosion of red hot cinders at the Indiana Iron works dangerously burned five persons. Albert Porter, colored, will die. Arthur Stubes was burned in the back and hurt in the face. His clothing was all burned off. Frank Chambers was burned on the face and body above the waist. Edward Hefferling was struck in the side of the head and a large gash was cut.

Sentenced to Death.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Robert Howard, colored, has been sentenced to death for the murder of Frank C. Metcalf on the night of Nov. 4. Metcalf was murdered for his money. Howard was convicted as an accessory.

AVOID ALUM BAKING POWDERS

Their Use Is Dangerous to Health.

The condemnation of alum as an unwholesome ingredient in baking powders by the Government authorities as well as by the Iowa and Minnesota State Boards of Health and physicians generally, has not deterred manufacturers of such powders from foisting them on the public. Following is a partial list of the condemned alum powders found in the stores in this section:

Calumet.
Atlas.
Bengal.
Cameo.
Chapman's.
Chicago Yeast.
Columbia.
Crown.
Delicatesse.
Eebo.
Globe.

It is safe to reject all brands sold with a prize. All powders sold at twenty-five cents or less a pound are sure to be made of alum. Dr. Wiley, the Government Chemist, in his official examination of baking powders at the World's Fair, threw out all "alum powders," classing them as unfit for human food.

But the World's Fair could approve as well as condemn. After the most elaborate tests it bestowed the highest award for purity, leavening power, keeping qualities and general excellence on Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

WOULD BE IMPRUDENT.

Liberal Leaders Oppose a Dissolution of the Cortes.

London, Dec. 24.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: Most of the liberal leaders whom Senor Sagasta has consulted strongly oppose a dissolution of the cortes on the ground that it would be imprudent to plunge the country into an electoral agitation under the existing conditions. Senor Rios and others urge that every effort be made to unite the Liberal party. Apparently Senor Gamazos' party of dissents is relenting and there are better hopes of a full reconciliation.

CARLIST AGITATION.

A Number of Arrests Made in the Northern Provinces.

Madrid, Dec. 24.—The Carlist agitation continues in several of the Northern provinces and a number of agitators have been arrested at Morella, province of Castellon de la Plana, owing to Carlist demonstrations. A Carlist has been arrested at Placencia, province of Caceres, for distributing arms. The report that Don Carlos has contracted for a loan in England is denied. It is explained that he tried to do so, but failed.

Illicit Stills Destroyed.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 24. — Badford, Va., reports the return from a raid of a posse of revenue officers on North Carolina moonshiners. Seven stills were destroyed and seven moonshiners captured.

SAGASTA SICK.

He Is Very Feverish and Spanish Securities Fall.

Madrid, Dec. 24.—The premier, Senor Sagasta, is worse. He is very feverish. His condition caused Spanish interior securities to fall from 56.25 to 55.30.

England Orders Warships.

London, Dec. 23. — The British admiralty, it is reported, has just ordered four warships of shipbuilders on the Clyde.

1899
A HAPPY NEW YEAR

"A GLASS DARKLY."

(Romance from a New Year's Sermon.)

OLIVE THOMPSON sat in her low uncushioned seat in the little country church, paying strict attention to the New Year's sermon. It was her habit to pay strict attention to the regular Sunday sermon, but this Sunday being New Year day she was very devoted in her attention. Her eyes never wandered from the face of the preacher, the face that had been her Sunday study for thirty years. She was five years old when she began the study. The face had never grown any older to her. There were the same little semi-circular wrinkles under the lobe of the ear nearest her, which she had always seen, and the devious creases above the eyes continued always of the same elevation, except that they had grown lowards, tending to the horizontal ripple above the nose, and deepening at that point.

The sermon, to the mind of Olive Thompson, was "more beautiful" on this particular day than had ever been before.

"Now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face," he said.

TAKE IT; IT IS GOOD.

"The mists of our present condition cloud our view; stormy days have sent dust and sleet against our windows until, for the dimness of our glass, we cannot see the sky."

Olive Thompson's eyes filled with tears. She remembered the "dust and sleet" of weary years. How the storm had breathed upon the windows of her soul, turning into frosted tablets what otherwise might have been avenues for sunlight.

"Take heart" the preacher went on, "spring days are coming when the windows will be open to the sky, and we shall see face to face what has always been, but which we could not see for looking through a glass darkly."

A few months later Olive Thompson stood making apple pies in the pantry. The pantry window was up and the song of birds came in. Also there came in the voice of Joseph, the hired man, who was coaxing the new calf to drink. "Take it," he was saying to the inexperienced animal; "it is good."

"Take it; it is good," Olive repeated to herself in the pantry.

"What is good?" asked the old wrinkled mother knitting in the warm kitchen.

"Why, everything, I suppose," Olive answered, still listening with one ear to what Joseph was saying.

"It doesn't seem good now, bossy; but it is good, take it."

"Olive," said her mother, "it is time to wash the windows. The frost is all off and they look dingy."

"I know it," Olive said, "I will do it tomorrow."

Olive Thompson obeyed her mother from a life-long habit, and from religious principle. Was she not her mother's child, and ought not children to obey their parents; old, wrinkled, feeble parents?

In the morning she took her pan of suds and the polishing cloth and stood in a chair to wash the windows. She would begin in the kitchen, she thought, and go clear around to the parlor. She tried to pull out the old fashioned spring of the upper sash, but it would not yield.

"Olive," said her mother, "Joseph had better help to wash the windows. He can stand on the ladder on the outside." "Joseph," she called at the door, "come in and pull the spring for Olive." And, "Joseph, polish the glass on the outside, it is too hard for Olive."

Joseph was obedient. He had been "the hired man" for five years. No one would have known he was the hired man except the two women. He might have been the old lady's son and Olive's brother, so kind and true had he always been to these two.

Olive stood on a chair on the inside and Joseph on the ladder outside. The features of each were dim through the glass, and the two scrubbed away with soap and polish. What was left of smoke and frost yielded to double persuasion, and Joseph called from the outside: "Is it clear, Olive?"

Olive, scrutinizing closely, called back, pointing to the upper corner, "Just a little more rubbing right there."

She did not notice that Joseph was looking into her eyes, and thinking to himself "how clear" they were.

He rubbed away at the filmy place, and then called again: "It isn't quite clear down in that corner."

Olive polished away on her side catching Joseph's eye full of a light that shot right through the obscurity and made her remember the text of the New Year sermon—"Now we see through a glass darkly."

Around the house went the two, Olive on the inside and Joseph on the outside, and only the last parlor window was left. The morning had sped away like a glint of sunshine from the pan of water to the chair. Olive had watched this broken bit of radiance, as it played on the ceiling above the table with the album and pictorial Bible on it. It was like a halo above the precious spot. She moved her chair up to the window with a little sigh. Joseph moved his ladder up to the same window on the opposite side.

"Let it down from the top, Olive," he said.

"I can't," Olive called back, "it sticks."

Joseph was on her side in a moment. His fingers just touched hers as they pulled on the spring together, and something which was not unlike a glint of sunshine passed through the two. The spring slipped back and Joseph was on the outside again. Joseph lowered the window to bring it within easy reach of the woman on the other side. Strange he hadn't thought of that before. Standing straight up, Olive on her chair and Joseph on his ladder, the two looked into each other's eyes. There was nothing on Joseph's side and nothing on Olive's side to dim their vision. It was all clear.

"IS IT CLEAR, OLIVE?"

"But now face to face," thought Olive.

The old mother passing by the parlor, smiled, and spoke not a word. From the kitchen she called: "Are the windows all clean, daughter?"

"All clean, mother," came the answer, and Olive Thompson recalled the words of the sermon, "Take heart; spring days are coming when the windows will be open to the sky; and we shall see face to face what has always been."

WINTER KING

When Autumn dies at last upon her throne
Amid the ruin of a regal state,
Boreas' clarion trumpets sound her fate,
And Winter knows the realm thenceforth his own;
Calling his minions in the Arctic zone
And making them through his own greatness great,
He journeys forth to his possessions straight;
The winds' wild music aye before him blown.
A lock of frost he fastens on the land,
And makes the air with keenest cold to sting;
The waters lie 'neath fetters from his hand;
And while his white snows toss and whirl and fling,
Robed royally and crowned for all command
He proudly cries, "Behold me: I am King!"

Christmas Eve.

By Mary N. Prescott.

Christmas eve the wide world over,
And Christmas chimes are sounding;
Christmas trees their buds discover,
With Christmas gifts abounding.

The moonbeams on the snow-drifts shed
Strike out a sudden splendor;
And all the heavenly fields are spread
With starlight bright, yet tender.

The window-panes are white with frost,
In tracery of flowers,
Bringing again the summers lost
To bloom through Christmas hours.
O, happy night, whose blessed days
Across the ages shine,
Lighting the darkness of our days
With promises divine!

Twelve Hundred Miles of Coral Reef.

The great barrier reef which fringes the coast of Australia north of Brisbane, in the direction of Torres straits, must always rank among the wonders of the world. For 1,200 miles the coral animalcules have raised a solid protection against the rage of the ocean swell at a distance varying from 20 to 150 miles from the shore, leaving a comparatively safe and calm inner passage, suitable for navigation by the largest steamers on their voyage north and east. Sundry channels penetrate the reef at intervals, and whole fleets of trading schooners are regularly engaged amid the intricate labyrinth of coral inlets.—London Standard.

AN ISLAND WE MUST HAVE

AND CAPT. TAUSSIG WILL RAISE THE FLAG.

The Commander of the Bennington Has Been Ordered to Take Possession of Wake Island in the Name of the United States Government—It Is Admirably Adapted for a Station for the Cable Which Will Connect the Philippines With Hawaii and the United States—No One Else Has a Better Claim to It.

Washington, Dec. 24. — The government has determined to hoist the flag over an island far out in the Pacific ocean, and orders were sent out to the commander of the Bennington, Capt. Taussig, to proceed at once to take possession in the name of the United States government, of Wake Island, lying in lat. 19 north, long. 166 east. It is distant about 2,000 miles from Nihau, the westernmost of the Hawaiian islands, and 1,300 miles east from Guam. It is almost in a direct line between these possessions of the United States, and is admirably adapted for use as a station for a Pacific cable to connect the Philippines with Hawaii and the United States. It is about three miles in length and incloses a lagoon of salt water. The average height of the island is eight feet above high tide. It is scarcely capable in itself of sustaining life, but it is expected that a cable station without difficulty by the erection of a condenser to supply fresh water. Some station in this locality is deemed to be absolutely necessary to the maintenance of a cable, and for that reason the American peace commissioners at Paris endeavored to secure one of the Caroline islands, but without success. Wake Island is said to be by right already American territory, for in 1841 Admiral Wilkes surveyed the place and asserted title to it. It is not inhabited, so far as is known at the present time, though in the past guano gatherers have temporarily lived on the island. The Bennington is now at Honolulu and the orders to her go out by steamer. After hoisting the flag on Wake Island she will proceed to Guam and make the survey of the island, which was ordered some time ago. She has already completed a survey of Pearl harbor, seven miles from Honolulu, which will form the government plans for the enlargement of the harbor there and construction of a channel connecting the northern part with the ocean.

Can Be Maintained

BANDITS ARE OPERATING.

Several Bands Giving Trouble Around Guantanamo.

Santiago, Cuba, Dec. 24.—Lieut. Col. Hay reports to Gen. Wood that several bands of banditti are operating in the neighborhood of Guantanamo.

He also asserts that Col. Francisco Valiant is arming the insurgents, and there may be trouble.

Evidently Lieut. Col. Hay is under a misapprehension, as Col. Valiant, who is chief of gendarmes, has not been in the neighborhood of Guantanamo for a month. Probably the fact that the gendarmerie have been armed has been reported to Col. Hay and this is the foundation of his error. As a matter of fact Col. Valiant was the first Cuban officer to urge his men to disarm, and his services as chief of gendarmerie are highly appreciated by Gen. Wood.

DOCTORING HER UP.

It Will Cost $40,000 to Fix The Massachusetts.

New York, Dec. 24.—Navy yard engineers went under the battleship Massachusetts in dry dock and measured her damaged plates. Workmen were there also, cutting out rivets. Repair work will proceed night and day next week. It is estimated it will cost about $40,000 to put the ship in order and that the work will take six weeks. The board of inquiry, of which Commodore Pickering is president, finished its work and forwarded the report to the secretary of the navy. None of the members would say anything about the findings, upon which will depend the decision of the secretary of the navy as to whether courtmartial will be ordered.

SERIOUS COLLISION.

Results in the Death of One Man and the Fatal Injury of Another.

New York, Dec. 24.—One man was instantly killed and another seriously, if not fatally, injured, in a collision which occurred off Liberty Island between the freight steamer Idaho and the tramp steamer Flower Gate. The dead man was William Smith and the injured man John Birch, both firemen on the Idaho. They were asleep at the time of the accident. Smith was nearly decapitated, one of the broken planks cutting his throat as he lay in his bunk. Birch had his collar bone on the right side tore out and may not recover.

Carlisle Sues a Cabman.

New York, Dec. 24.—John G. Carlisle appeared in police court as complainant against Richard Leake, a cab driver. He accused Leake of stealing a sealskin sack belonging to Mrs Carlisle valued at $300.

Pine Sale.

Washburn, Wis., Dec. 24. — D. M. Moxy concluded the sale of thirty-four forties of pine land near Siskiwit lake owned by J. M. Robinson and Laura Day, Minneapolis, to E. G. Filer of Manistee, Mich., for $45,000.

Accused of Forgery.

Hastings, Minn., Dec. 24. — Joseph Tylnm, a stranger, is charged with having forged three checks amounting to $26.22. He was arraigned and held to the grand jury in default of $1,000 bail.

CHRISTMAS AT MANILA.

Troops Get Mail From Home to Add to Their Cheer.

Manila, Dec. 24.—The United States cruiser Boston and the gunboat Petrel have arrived here from Chinese ports. The steamer Union, which has returned here from Iloilo with native and Spanish soldiers, has been refused a landing here.

Private Taylor, Company L, of the Nebraska regiment, who has been suffering from typhoid fever, is dead.

The steamer St. Paul has arrived here with the Christmas mail. The first American flag was raised over the Malate school house yesterday. It was sent by the University of Pennsylvania. The honor of raising the flag was accorded to Father McKinnon of California, in recognition of his services in reopening the schools. The native troops encamped in the suburbs are again causing anxiety. The attitude of an insurgent detachment at the Paduhan bridge on Wednesday was such that the California, Idaho and Washington regiments were concentrated in light marching order at short notice at Paco, but trouble was avoided.

CITIZENS ARE ANGRY.

Violence Threatened to the Jury Which Acquitted Rosser.

San Francisco, Dec. 24.—An attempt has been made to arouse the people of this city to violence as a result of the acquittal of Walter Rosser, the Tennessee soldier who killed Henry Hildebrand. Flaming posters bearing the following inscription were conspicuously displayed on bill boards: "Tar and feather for the twelve jurors who acquitted Murderer Rosser." Chief of Police Lees does not fear trouble, but says that he will make an effort to have Rosser indicted for the attempted murder of Willie Lynch, whom he fired at when he killed Hildebrand. If the indictment is returned, which seems hardly likely, Rosser will be extradited.

HOBSON RECEIVES.

The Kissing Merrimac Hero Arrives at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Dec. 24.—Lieut. R. P. Hobson arrived in this city and was driven at once to the Palace hotel, where he was given a public reception under the auspices of the Union League club. The great court yard of the building was crowded and hundreds of people were unable to gain admission. After the reception Lieut. Hobson was the guest of the Friday Night club at Native Sons' hall. After a cotillion and supper the hero of the Merrimac proceeded to the University club, which will be his home during his sojourn in this city.

COLLECTED IN OHIO.

Over Four Thousand Dollars for the Lafayette Monument Fund.

Columbus, Dec. 24. — The report of State School Commissioner Bonebrake of the collection of funds of the schools or pupils of Ohio for Lafayette monument fund has been filed with the governor. It shows that there are contributions from 849 schools in the state, the total being $4,397.41. He sent out 4,750 letters calling attention to the movement, and the total expense in this work was $221.88. He now has in bank, subject to the order of the treasurer of the fund, the sum of $4,275.53.

PURLOINER OF BOOKS.

Yale Divinity Student's Method of Obtaining a Library.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 24.—James P. Miller, a Yale divinity student and a three-years' graduate, was arrested for shoplifting. He was seen by the detectives to purloin three books in a book store, and by tracking the man they discovered that he was evidently a professional shoplifter. Five thousand volumes were discovered at his rooms and at his home. Two dealers have already identified 2,000 volumes. Miller wore a coat fitted with pockets such as professional thieves wear.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The Annual Report of the American Board.

Boston, Dec. 24.—The annual report of the American Board of Foreign Missions, just made public, shows the following receipts: Donations, $252,488; legacies, $187,729; donations for school fund, $7,312; donations for Micronesian navy, $2,076; donations for young missionary fund, $3,017; donations for debt of Sept. 1, 1897, $25,902; donations for mission work for women, $186,000; income of funds, $6,293; total, $671,717.

BAD TURK IS KILLED.

Aide-de-Camp of the Sultan Murdered and Many Will Approve Deed.

Constantinople, Dec. 24. — Ghani Bey, the sultan's aide-de-camp, was murdered by Hafuz Pasha in a quarrel which took place in a pastry cook's. Ghani Bey became notorious owing to his lawless proceeding in Epirus. He also inspired terror here in extorting money under threats of death. The officials of the foreign embassies have frequently demanded the punishment of Ghani Bey, but always unsuccessfully.

Must See to His Own Business.

London, Dec. 24.—The Washington government, according to a dispatch from Auckland, has instructed the United States consul at Samoa to act with the greatest vigilance and not to intrust his duties to his British and German colleagues. It now appears that the German agent has taken advantage of his colleagues, to land guns and munitions of war without their knowledge, and also to obtain important advantages for German firms.

Counterfeiter Brought Back.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 24.—P. Betlach, a counterfeiter from Wyckoff, who broke jail here a year ago, has been brought back from the Elizabeth Insane asylum at Washington by Marshal O'Connor. He will be held for trial next June.

A CITY NIGHT.

Come, let us forth and wander the rich, the murmuring night,
The sky blue dusk of summer trembles above the street,
On either side uprising glimmer houses pale,
But me the turbulent bubble and voice of crowds delight,
For me the wheels make music, the mingled cries are sweet.
Motion and laughter call: we hear, we will not fail.

For see, in secret vista, with soft, retiring stars,
With clustered suns, that stare upon the throng below,
With pendant dazzling moons, that cast a noonday white,
The full streets beckon, Come, for toil has burst his bars,
And idle eyes rejoice, and feet unhasting go
Oh, let us out and wander the gay and golden night.

—Lawrence Binyon in New York Tribune.

THE MYSTERY OF DREAMS.

What Can Flit Through a Man's Brain In One Minute.

It is very certain that the majority of dreams are only of momentary duration, though extended occasionally to the length of a minute

In proof of this Dr Sholz tells the following story from his experience. "After excessive bodily fatigue and a day of mental strain of a not disagreeable kind I betook myself to bed after I had wound my watch and placed it on the night table. Then I lay down beside a burning lamp Soon I found myself on the high sea on board a well known ship I was again young and stood on the lookout. I heard the roar of water, and golden clouds floated around me. How long I stood so I did not know, but it seemed a very long time.

"Then the scene changed. I was in the country, and my long lost parents came to greet me They sent me to church, where the loud organ sounded. I was delighted, but at the same time wondered to see my wife and children there. The priest mounted the pulpit and preached, but I could not understand what he said for the sound of the organ, which continued to play I took my son by the hand, and with him ascended the church tower, but again the scene changed. Instead of being near my son I stood near an early known but long dead officer I ought to explain that I was an army surgeon during the maneuvre I was wondering why the major should look so young, when quite close to my ears a cannon sounded.

"Terrified, I was hurrying off, when I woke up and noticed that the supposed cannon shot had its cause in the opening of the bedroom door, through some one entering It was as if I had lived through an eternity in my dream, but when I looked at my watch I saw that since I had fallen asleep not more than one minute had elapsed—a much shorter time than it takes to relate the occurrence." —St Louis Republic.

The Ghost in "Hamlet."

Not many years ago at the Queen's theater, Dublin, during one of the late T. C. King's engagements, "Hamlet" was being played to a densely crowded house. The actor portraying the part of the Ghost solaced himself during his long wait from the first to the third act by perusing the evening paper, using his spectacles in so doing. Being interested in some article (probably the "weights" for an important handicap), he delayed leaving the greenroom until the moment of hearing his cue, when, hastily snatching up his truncheon, he rushed upon the stage without his beard of "sable silvered" or removing his spectacles.

A titter greeted his appearance, but still the solemnity of the darkened stage and the fine acting of King as Hamlet prevented any great outburst until the Queen, replying to Hamlet's question, "Do you see nothing there?" answered, "Nothing at all. Yet all that is I see," when a voice from aloft exclaimed, "Lend her your specs, old boy," followed by another: "Hould your row Sure he's put them on to see to shave himself."—Cornhill Magazine.

A Lawyer's Retort.

The greater number of cases are tried before judges without juries, and the occupants of the bench are accustomed to resent an eloquent appeal as something in the nature of an insult to their mental powers.

"Do you think to soften my heart," sarcastically asked a well known chancery judge when a member of the equity bar, making a rare attempt at rhetoric, drew a pathetic picture of his client's wrongs.

"My lord," replied the counsel, who at once recognized the failure of his appeal, but was quick to find success in his retort, "I know it is impossible."—London Globe.

He Wasn't a Gormand.

That wary old fellow, Bailie Macduff, was enticed into a friend's house the other night, and his host managed to win 50 shillings from him at "nap." What is more remarkable, when the bailie had parted with his last shilling he rose, full of wrath.

"Won't you stay to supper?" pressed his host. "We have a fine bit of ham waiting."

"No, not I. Dae ye think I eat 50 shillings' worth of ham?"—London Answers.

A Trifling Change.

"I guess I'm willing to go," said the farmer, when they told him his hours would be but few "It is just a change from havin my nose to the grindstone to havin it in the tombstone."—Indianapolis Journal.

In ancient Egypt when a cat died in a private house the inmates shaved their eyebrows. The killing of a cat, even accidentally, was considered a capital offense.

The psaltery of Spain is supposed to have been introduced into that country by the Moors. It is still in common use among the peasants.

A DIPLOMATIC TRICK.

AN INCIDENT THAT PROVED THE CUNNING OF BISMARCK.

The Roundabout Manner In Which He Secured the Safe Transmission of His Official Correspondence to the Foreign Office.

Stepping to the counter, Herr von Bismarck asked a grinning young shopboy in shirt sleeves, a blue linen apron, not of maiden freshness, and blessed with a pair of large, red, greasy paws, engaged in weighing some Dutch cheese, to oblige him with a sheet of writing paper, some sealing wax and a pen to direct a letter.

On the boy producing the needful with the traditional "What else, sir?" Bismarck said: "My hands are rather cold. You had better do it for me." And he handed the boy a couple of letters wrapped in the sheet of bluish paper forming an envelope, for in those days made up envelopes were still unknown in Germany Evidently flattered by the request of such an imposing looking client, for Herr von Bismarck's tall hat was almost touching the ceiling of the squalid little shop, the greasy handed youth took the parcel, and, having closed it skillfully with some brown sealing wax and indorsed it with the initials of the firm, he returned it to its owner to write the address.

"Sorry, my friend, to give you more trouble," said the future chancellor in his jovial way, "but I can't manage to write with my gloves on; so just address it for me" And he handed him a penciled slip with the name of Herr Fritz Piepenbrink or some such name, oil and colonial warehouseman, No. 000 Friedrichs strasse, Berlin.

"Thank you, young man; that'll do capitally," and paying for the paper, etc., with a small tip to the oily boy with the stereotyped grin, he pocketed his letter, and we left the place to continue our walk.

"I dare say you are wondering why I treat my correspondents to such greasy, evil smelling missives?" And he showed me the cheesy finger marks of the boy on both sides of the improvised envelope "I'll tell you a secret, and teach you a useful lesson for future times You may some day thank me for the hint," exclaimed Herr von Bismarck, laughing heartily

"You know we are blessed here in Frankfort, as throughout all south Germany, with the Thurn and Taxis postal administration, a mine of wealth to that fortunate family, but the most wretchedly managed concern under the sun As you may imagine, it is under the thumb of Austria, hence slow and the triumph of red tape, with a pronounced weakness for diving into other people's business and skimming, of course, the correspondence of all German and foreign envoys, accredited to the diet, with a preference for mine, the ever suspected Prussian culprit and traitor

"They have established a regular black cabinet in the princely postoffice, where specially trained imperial and royal wiseacres peruse our prose with critical eye, transmitting copies of extracts of all 'treasonable' matter, or particularly interesting reports, to the august Ballplatz, where Gentand and after him Klindworth have established a lynx eyed system of political espionage (politisches schnuffeln) extending all over Europe, and comprising eo ipso all German courts and chancelleries.

"Not being particularly anxious to gratify the morbid curiosity of our Austrian ally, I have thought it advisable to send important reports to the Berlin foreign office, as well as all my letters to the king, to Herr von Manteufel, and to my sister and some particular friends, under cover to some mercantile firm in Berlin, changing frequently and usually asking a counter jumper in a cheesemonger's or oilman's shop to address them for me—and you can easily understand that the imperial and royal sniffers (schnuffler) don't manage to guess the correspondent of the Prussian representative under a greasy, ill smelling cover, such as you have seen.

"It stands to reason that the smell of cheese or herring and the scribbling of a shopboy must deceive sharper men than the Thurn and Taxis post officials and the specially delegated Austrian postoffice clerks. The only precaution I have to take is to go to different shops in quarters of the town where I am not known and to vary the Berlin address from time to time. Thus I'm perfectly safe.

"Le tour est joue, and I snap my fingers at the Ballplatz. It is simple enough, as you have seen, yet it wouldn't do to send everything through that channel, as they would otherwise get suspicious, so I treat my Austrian friends at least once a week to some of my diplomatic prose unimportant stuff, and occasionally something I want them to know—or to believe," and he indulged in a boisterous laugh.—Baron de Malortie in Cornhill Magazine.

A Close Shave.

A circus paid a flying visit to a small country town, and the price of admission was sixpence, children under 10 years of age half price. It was Edith's tenth birthday, and her brother Tom, aged 13, took her in the afternoon to see the show Arrived at the door, he put down ninepence and asked for two front seats.

"How old is the little girl?" asked the money taker doubtfully.

"Well," replied Master Tom, "this is her tenth birthday, but she was not born until rather late in the afternoon."

The money taker accepted the statement and handed him the tickets. But it was a close shave.—London Tit-Bits.

MICA MINES OF INDIA.

The Methods of Hundreds of Years Ago Still In Use.

The mica mines of India are in the interior of the country and very inaccessible. The Abruker mine, it is stated, produces the finest mica that has ever been mined, both for lamination and color It has been sunk about 200 feet, following the pitch of the vein, and all this mica and refuse have been raised and carried away by the natives. No machinery of any kind except drill and hammers is used in their mining operations

The refuse and the mica are placed in baskets each holding ten pounds. the baskets being passed up from hand to hand by women, who stand in a line on ladders The contents of the baskets are deposited at the top, and the baskets are returned down the ladder in the same manner as they went up, but by another line of women. Water is taken out of the mines by means of jugs It is supposed that this method of operation has been carried on for many hundreds of years, except that there is more care to protect the miners.

After the crude mica is taken from the mines it is first roughly trimmed and then sorted into different grades, according to sizes and quality It is then taken to the mica workers, who split it up and scribe out the size for it to be cut into by the shearers, the cut pieces then being cleaned, weighed and packed ready for shipment. The mica is then transported to general warehouses in baskets on the backs of bullocks and in bullock carts In this way it is carried hundreds of miles to shipping points at a speed of about ten miles a day

The mica can be split down to .0008 of an inch in thickness. Being both fireproof and transparent, it is very useful for many purposes in the arts, besides being an excellent insulator.—Electrical World.

COLOR BLIND PAINTERS.

A London Oculist Asserts That There Are Such Artists.

To speak of a color blind artist sounds like joking, said a noted oculist; but, strange as it seems, there are several persons so affected who can nevertheless paint extremely well Numbers of color blind people there are, of course, who draw perfectly in pencil, ink and crayons, but I myself know a scene painter attached to a provincial theater who, though "color blind," paints all its scenery, and has quite a local name, not only for his "interiors" and oak chambers, but even for landscapes.

I can tell you also of two London ladies who consulted me for color blindness who paint really beautiful pictures. One is the daughter of a late famous artist and was taught painting by her father She is quite unable to distinguish red from green, but her colors are all labeled with the names, and she has been taught which to use for certain effects Possibly her painting may seem to her eyes, as it were, drawing with a brush and "shading" with the colors.

The other is a lady artist of some celebrity, who has for years exhibited annually in London The public is not aware that she is color blind She painted the "Wedding Group" for a certain noble bridegroom a year or two ago and also several public men's portraits and one of an eminent physician fetched 500 guineas.

There is a gentleman residing at Kensington who, having years ago left the navy through finding his advancement hopelessly barred by his color blindness, is at present making several hundreds a year by his brush as an artist, designing most artistic and brightly colored picture posters for advertisement hoardings.—London Answers

Carved His Epitaph and Died.

"John Harmon died here from the bite of a rattlesnake."

This is an inscription on a beech tree standing on the knobs, in Monroe township, back of Jeffersonville A date once followed the words, but it is now indistinct. There is a strong story connected with the inscription An old resident relates it.

"Years ago, when that section of Indiana was little explored and when the heavy brush was the dwelling place of the wild turkey, deer and rattlesnake John Harmon started to Charlestown to attend court He was armed with an old fashioned rifle A rattler bit Harmon's leg Harmon killed the reptile Then he began to prepare for death It was he who carved the words in lighter lines on the tree, with the request beneath, long since obliterated by the tree's growth, to bury him on the spot. A few days later Harmon's body was found. A grave was dug by the tree and there it can be seen today." —Louisville Courier-Journal

Excessive Precaution.

A southwest Georgia couple going to be married, the prospective husband said:

"Molly, the last time I was married I lost the ring 'fore I got to the parson's. But I'm shore of it this time."

"What is it, John?" she asked

"I've got it in my mouth," he said. "Im shore of it now"

But when they stood before the preacher the latter asked:

"Where is the ring?"

The groom gulped—choked—stuttered, and finally exclaimed in despair:

"'Fore de Lord, I done swallered it!"—Atlanta Constitution.

THE TRADE JOURNAL.

An Enlargement and a Great Premium Offer.

Since H. P. Hall purchased the St Paul Trade Journal it has been rapidly forging to the front, both in increase of subscriptions and in advertising patronage. It success has been so marked that it was given a material enlargement on the 11th inst, by the addition of a column to the page, the standard number of at least 8 pages being maintained and often times more. It gives much entertaining reading matter in this space; as well as valuable business information and market quotations and is a publication the business men of the Northwest cannot afford to do without. The Trade Journal is issued weekly at the subscription price of one dollar per year, and as an incentive for subscriptions Mr. Hall offers, for a limited period, to send The Trade Journal for one year and the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a volume containing 1,[illegible] pages and 80,000 words, for one dollar. The dictionary will be sent express charges prepaid so that the total cost for fifty-two copies of The Trade Journal and a standard unabridged dictionary will be one dollar.—St. Paul Dispatch.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give Farm, Stock and Home one year and the St. Hilaire Spectator for $1.25.

Miss Martha Munch won out in the voting contest in the Crookston Tribune having received 32,895 votes. Miss Phrona Kirsch was the second winner with 27,830 votes to her credit. A subscriber of the Tribune from St. Hilaire cast some over 800 votes for the winner and is consequently happy.

Sheriff Norland returned from Ortonville Friday where he went with a destitute family that the officials of Big Stone county had sent up to Thief River Falls, saying it was a good place, being near the reservation she could get a quarter section of land and run good chances of marrying. Great heads down there.

Don't throw your money away. We are credibly informed that there are some fakirs not far from here that are peddling brass watches and getting good prices for them, claiming that they are gold filled cases and good quality. They claim that the watches are bankrupt stock or fire sale goods and that they can sell them cheap because they bought them cheap. Don't be humbugged by their smooth talk.—Cottonwood Current.

Down in Texas they have some engines like the one used on this branch of the Great Northern. We see by an exchange that a train pulled out thirty-five empties—the track was a little slippery, the sand apparatus on the engine was out of order, so the breakman came to the rescue and filled the long felt want by walking ahead of the engine and sprinkle sand on the track carrying the sand in a pail. The breakman was hungry and foot-sore at the end of his run.

Maddens in Trouble.

Mike and George Madden the "Clearwater Terrors" came to town last Wednesday for the purpose of filling their tanks and do a little hollering on the strength of it. They have a great deal of respect for St. Hilaire as they have been repeatedly kicked out of town when they commenced to handle their firearms. Late in the afternoon they left for home and the next morning Gus. Johnson unfolded the following story: They drove to the house of A. G. Mostrom and at once picked up a quarrel and several shots were fired without effect. The inmates of the house made their escape and went to the farm house of Gus. Johnson's. The Madden's soon discovered they were gone and followed, but on arriving found the doors bolted. They made dire threats but without avail, so they went to the stable, took out one of Mr. Johnson's horses, brought it up to the house and fired two shots through its head, thinking this would bring them out. They went after the second horse but could not get it out of the stable, so returning to their own team, they picked up an axe lying near by and slashed one of their own horses which caused the blood to flow freely and then saying in a loud tone of voice "Look at that George; see what Mostrom done to our horse." This last act was evidently done to clear themselves should the case come to trial. They then left for home. The next morning they realized what had been done so proceeded to Mostrom's house and settled the matter by paying the small sum of $10.00 with the understanding that the case be dropped and to go over to Johnson and try to make a like settlement, substituting a horse for the one shot. Johnson looked at the matter in a different light than to that of his neighbor and came to town and procured a warrant for their arrest. The papers were handed to the deputy sheriff but up to date they have evaded the officers and their whereabouts is unknown. Mrs. Mostrom was in a delicate condition and has suffered serious consequences as a result of the fright having run over a half mile through the snow with light covering. She was confined a few hours after reaching the Johnson house.

The Odd Fellows dance last Wednesday evening was well attended and everybody enjoyed themselves to their hearts content. When the Odd Fellows get up a dance it is a foregone conclusion that it is a success.

The Arlington block in Thief River Falls was reduced to ashes last Thursday night. Below are the facts taken from the Press:

"This city was the scene of the first serious fire, last night; that has occurred for years: At about 12:30 o'clock a. m. policeman Benzie was on La Bree avenue and the corner of First street he noticed an unusual light in the store room of S. Bisazza and immediately gave the alarm and ran to the Fire hall and rung the fire alarm. Soon after the whole front of the store broke out and the north part of the building was developed in flames and in one hour the block and contents was down. The north room was occupied as the Big Store by the owner of the block, S. Bisazzo, aud was filled full with goods. The next room and upper story in the main building were occupied as the Arlington Hotel by A. C. McDonald. The other two lower rooms were used as a store room for the store, a suite of rooms in the second story is fitted up as living rooms and occupied by Mr. Bisazzo's family while the remaining room is used by the I. O. O. F. and M. W. A. as a hall. The stock of S. Bisazzo by a recent inventory was valued at $12,000 with an insurance of $1,000. The building and furniture at $12,000 with 5,000, also cash in the store of $227. Only four boxes of soap was saved from the entire stock.

It is conceded by all that John Wilson, the faithful clerk, with his hair and under clothes burned nearly off, saved the lives of at least a dozen persons by rushing through the burning building and giving the alarm.

Miss Tessie Hughes is the possessor of a kodak since last week and a fine collection of snap shots have already been taken.

The Medical Record says eggs are useful in the following applications: A mustard plaster made with the white of an egg will not leave a blister. A raw egg, taken immediately, will carry down a fishbone, that cannot be extracted. The white skin that lines the shell is a useful application to a boil. White of egg, beaten up with loaf sugar and lemon, relieves hoarseness, a teaspoonful taken once every hour. An egg in the morning cup of coffee is a good tonic. A raw egg, with the yolk unbroken, in a glass of wine, is beneficial for convalescents.

January Ladies' Home Journal.

The New Year's Ladies' Home Journal gives assurance of a purpose to make that magazine more useful and helpful, and stronger in its literary and artistic features, during 1899 than ever before. It contains a number of practical articles, besides a score of features of lighter interest, and opens with a full page drawing by W. L. Taylor illustrating Longfellow's Village Blacksmith. Early Colonial social life is mirrored in "The Most Aristocratic social event in America"—the annual ball of the Philadelphia "Assembly," an article that will be read with unusual interest. A close range view of strong interest is given of Leschetizky, by Cleveland Moffett who discloses the methods of "The Man Who Taught Paderewski," and Elizabeth G. Jordan tells "what it means to be a newspaper woman," a subject upon which she writes from her own experiences.

Edward Bok, in the January Journal writes on "The rush of American women," making a plea for more repose, through which the real pleasures of life are to be extracted. In fiction, the experiences of "The Girls of Camp Arcady," "The minister of Carthage" and "The Jamesons in the country" are continued. The first of a series of articles on "The house practical" details how to furnish and decorate the hall and staircase, and other page features give photographs of "Fifteen Good Halls and Stairways" and "Pretty Rooms of Girls." Mrs. S. T. Rorer tells how to carve and serve meats and game, and gives a variety of menus for small social affairs. There are numerous other practical articles upon subjects of helpful interest in the household. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar per year; ten cents per copy.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

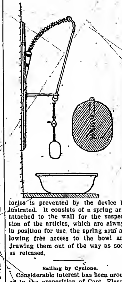
A Handy Tool for Electricians—Handy Attachment for Sleds Where Snow Is Rare—An Invention That Prevents Waste of Soap.

Something About Lenses.

Very few amateurs have time or opportunity to make a thorough study of optics, but if one wishes to use his camera to get the best results he should understand something about the lens and its action. Light, the agent by which we see consists, like sound, of motion. Sound is produced or conveyed to the ear by wavelike motions of the air, and light is conveyed to the eye by wavelike motions of a certain ether which fills all space. Sources of light, such as the sun, send off continuous waves, and these waves, striking against the surface of an object, bound back, and striking the eye, convey to it impressions of the object and we have the sensation of sight. The frequency of these light waves is something almost, if not quite, beyond the comprehension. The waves which affect the eye and produce sight move at the rate of from 400 millions to 760 millions per minute. Some surfaces reflect most of the light that reaches them; others absorb most of the light. The waves of light meeting the surface of an object are broken up by the rough particles of the surface, and each particle of the surface becomes a center from which these reflected rays spread out in all directions. The eye, receiving these waves from every point of an object, condenses them to corresponding points, and re-arranges them on the retina in the form of the object from which they were reflected, and we say we see the object.

Prevents Wasting Soap.

The wasting of soap and the removal of toilet articles in public lavatories is prevented by the device illustrated. It consists of a spring arm attached to the wall for the suspension of the articles, which are always in position for use, the spring arm allowing free access to the bowl and drawing them out of the way as soon as released.

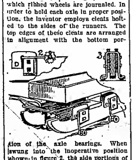


Sailing by Cyclone.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the proposition of Capt. Fleron, a French mariner who thinks that advantage may be taken of the favorable winds at the edge of a cyclone for facilitating navigation. By means of observations with the barometer and other instruments, he would ascertain the direction in which the storm is going, and so shape the course of his ship that it would be carried along by the sweep of the atmosphere, without becoming involved in the dangerous center of the storm. This proposal to treat cyclones as friendly aids to navigation may strike the reader as an extravagant play of fancy, but it is soberly intended by Capt. Fleron, who, in a little book on the subject recently published in Paris, describes his own successful experiments in this new method of sailing the sea.

Where Snow Is Rare.

In order to provide a device by means of which a sled can be readily mounted on wheels, when running over cleared portions of roads, a citizen of Heron Lake, Minn., has devised a novel attachment by means of which the desired end is attained. Of the annexed illustrations, figure 1 is a perspective view of a sled with the attachment in operative position; figure 2 is a side elevation showing the attachment in inactive position, and figure 3 is a transverse section of a runner with the attachment applied, says the Scientific American. The attachment consists of a U-shaped axle mounted in a bearing on each end of a runner, and bent down over the sides of the runner, the ends of the axle being formed with outwardly extending spindles on which ribbed wheels are journaled. In order to hold each axle in proper position, the inventor employs cleats bolted to the sides of the runners. The top edges of these cleats are arranged in alignment with the bottom portion of the axle bearings. When swung into the inoperative position shown in figure 2, the side portions of each axle will rest upon the top edge of a cleat. At their forward end the cleats are provided with ledges, by means of which the side portions of the axles, when in operative position, may be held vertically, as shown in figure 1. When the sled is running over snow or ice and a cleared portion of the road is reached the driver throws the axles forward so as to bring the wheels on the ground. The sled upon being pulled onward will rise upon the wheels and swing the axles against the forward ledges of the cleats. The sled is now mounted upon wheels and can be readily moved over the cleared portion of the road. When snow or ice is again reached, the sled is backed, thus causing the wheels to move forward and enabling the driver to swing into the inoperative position shown in figure 2.



Moulding Steel Like Dough.

The moulding of steel like so much dough is one of the remarkable mechanical feats of the day, made possible by fiercely hot furnaces and huge hydraulic presses. Thus, for the production of shells, a solid cylinder of glowing white metal is carefully adjusted on the die of a hydraulic press. The press operator pulls down a lever with an easy movement of one hand, and down comes a mighty mandrel, exerting a pressure of hundreds of tons upon the mass of hot steel. On the mandrel being withdrawn the piece is automatically ejected from the die, the form of it being slightly conical, having been squeezed into such shape by the great pressure as easily as if it had been putty or dough. Immediately it goes to another of the great presses, where it is held in a die with the thicker end up; here, when the mandrel has silently applied its force and been withdrawn, the piece shows a deep hole punched in the center, and has taken a form resembling the prospective, finished product; without reheating—so rapid is the process—the shell now goes into a third press; from which it comes still more nearly shaped to the proper pattern, and a fourth forming operation makes it ready for the finishing room, where the products are finished and trued in lathes.

Pneumatic Grain Elevators.

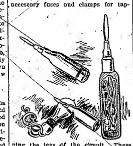
A grain elevator operated by suction has been tried and exhibited in England. Air is exhausted through the pipes which take in the grain, and the grain is delivered by the air draught through other pipes to any desired place. Several pipes may be introduced into a vessel's hold, and will remove the grain therefrom. An automatic scales is part of the system, so that the grain is weighed during the process of elevating and delivery. Quite a complicated system of exhausting and delivery pipes were connected, and the plant worked to great perfection, delivering the grain to a number of places with the one installation of pipes.

Transmission of Earthquake Shock.

When an earthquake occurs, the entire crust, or surface, of the earth experiences some effects of the disturbance. An earthquake in Calcutta which was accurately recorded gave a basis for determining the speed of transmission of the wave of disturbance due to the shock. The disturbance was registered at the Edinburgh observatory, thousands of miles distant, and gave a speed of transmission of six and two-tenths miles per second for the heavier shocks, and less than two miles per second for the lighter ones.

Fills a Long-Felt Want.

Any one who has ever been called upon to insert a fuse into a fuse block located on a ceiling or some other place difficult of access, especially when the place was dark, has felt the necessity for a handy tool and a light to aid him in performing this tedious operation. Such a tool, which seems to fill this long-felt want most admirably, has lately been placed on the market by a southern electrician, says the Electrical Engineer. It includes all of the requisites for enabling an operator to tap a live wire in order to give light during the making of branch connections and the effecting of repairs. It consists of a screw driver, which has a detachable base. The handle, which is hollow, contains the necessary fuses and clamps for tapping the legs of the circuit. These clamps can be connected to the lamp-plug socket, which is the base of the handle itself, by means of plugs, and the operation, by inserting a lamp into this socket, will have the advantage of a light even during the operation of inserting a fuse. The tool has been constructed with the end in view of embodying in the smallest possible space all the necessary implements.



One on the Judge.

A celebrated judge was once trying a case where the accused could only understand Irish, and an interpreter was accordingly sworn. The prisoner said something to the interpreter, and the latter replied.

"What does he say?" demanded the Judge.

"Nothing, my lord."

"How dare you say that when we all heard him? Come, sir, what was it?"

"My lord," said the interpreter, beginning to tremble, "it had nothing to do with the case."

"If you don't answer I'll commit you, sir. Now, what did he say?"

"Well, my lord, you'll excuse me, but he said, 'Who's that ould woman with the red bed curtains round her sitting up there?'"

At which everybody present roared.

"And what did you say?" asked the judge.

"I said, 'Whist, ye spalpeen! That's the ould boy that's going to hang yez.'"—Tit-Bits.

Conclusive.

"They say the jury has acquitted that Spaniard who murdered his employer."

"Yes. He must have been innocent. He shot him, you know."

"What does that prove?"

"Why, the fact that he hit him shows it was accidental."—Harper's Bazar.

The Savage Bachelor.

The Dear Girl—I am really astonished to hear you advance the proposition that a child should not be corrected in the presence of strangers.

The Savage Bachelor—He should not be; because he should never be in the presence of strangers, that's why.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—On account of the constantly-increasing traffic of the Chicago Great Western, that company has placed a rush order within the last few days with the Baldwin Locomotive Works for ten large ten-wheel engines. Of these one-half are cylinder compound and the other half simple engines. The engines are of 165,000 pounds weight, and will be capable of hauling almost any load that can be put behind them. They are for delivery early in February, and the order will probably be followed by another one for five or ten more engines of the same large capacity. The Great Western will let contracts next week for 700 new box cars.

A Mercenary Satisfaction.

"I suppose you will enjoy your Thanksgiving dinner?"

"I'll enjoy several hundred of 'em," answered the complacent citizen.

"Not all at once."

"Yes. I run a poultry farm."—Washington Star.

Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons?

From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

AYER'S PILLS

They daily insure an easy and natural movement of the bowels.

You will find that the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

with the pills will hasten recovery. It cleanses the blood from all impurities and is a great tonic to the nerves.

AUTUMN THE MORAL SEASON.

What Ella Wheeler Wilcox Has to Say About It.

Of the four seasons of the year the autumn seems the distinctly moral one, says Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the New York Evening World. Spring is amorous and frolicsome; summer sensuous and selfish; the winter wild and wicked. But the autumn is grave and introspective. It is like some serious saint, who looks with sad, reproving eyes on the conduct of two siren sisters and a reckless brother. But for the autumn the year might blush for the influence of his children on the human family, but that good sister of charity brings us all to our sober senses and compels us to confess our sins to our own souls. The autumnal season is calculated to sadden the thoughts of the gayest being and to give a serious tinge to the most frivolous mind. It is the season of partings and of changes; of retreating bloom and beauty and advancing frosts and snows. The ephemeral nature of pleasure forces itself upon us whether we will or no, as we hang away our summer clothing redolent with the memories of vanished August afternoons and moon-washed nights. We recall the anticipations which were packed into our trunks with those garments when they were new, and the long, golden summer days which stretched before us. Now the summer is over, and its experiences, sweet or sad, are hung away in time's corridors. Seen in perspective, the summer seemed long; but from the retrospective view it has been brief indeed. To the very young, life is like a long, golden summer, but those who have passed its noon mark realize its brevity. Always at this time of the year there are certain facts which must force themselves upon the most phlegmatic mind and penetrate the dullest perception. Foremost of these facts is the consciousness of the utter folly of pursuing pleasure through selfish paths. The man or woman who obtained a summer's amusement at the cost of another's comfort or happiness and at the sacrifice of his or her own duty must bear the voice of conscience in the wail of the autumn wind and find a symbol of dead gayeties in the dried leaves under foot. People who have ridden roughshod over the rights of others and pushed principles aside like straws in their pursuit of pleasure must be asking their own hearts at this time of year the sad question: "Was it worth while?" There are certain old platitudes which we may ridicule as time-worn and out of date at every other season of the year, but which come home to us as eternal truths in the autumn twilight. We realize that nothing pays in life which takes us outside of the direct path of duty, and that any word or act of ours which harms or hurts another human being is an injury to our own highest interests. It is on the first chilly autumn nights, when in the small hours we draw an extra cover over the couch, that we lie awake with sorrow in our hearts for all earth's suffering poor, and resolve that we will do more for others and less for self in days to come. And in the autumn more than during any other season of the year do we appreciate the real blessing of life, home and human love and tender ties. Yes, surely autumn is the moral season.

DIPLOMATIC REPARTEE.

How a Former French Ambassador in Berlin Retaliated.

When the Duc de Guynes represented France at the court of Frederick the Great in Prussia he made a thorough study of the Prussian army against the wishes of the Prussian officers. Their hints to that effect did not dissuade the French ambassador, so they got a little satisfaction by having his letters opened and copied in the Prussian postoffice. The Duc de Guynes soon discovered these tactics and posted his next letter twelve hours before the time the mail for Paris closed. Accompanying it was the following memorandum: "I am sending the annexed dispatch to the post at 7 o'clock in the morning, instead of waiting until the usual time of departure, 7 o'clock in the evening, so as to give the director of the Berlin postoffice time to copy it and still send it on this evening. I take this course because the dispatch is very urgent and important, and I would consequently be much annoyed if it were kept over until the following mail, as has been done on several previous occasions." His departure from Berlin, which occurred shortly after that, was not mourned deeply.

A Curious Ballot Law.

In the northwest territories there is a curious ballot law. There is only one space for marking, and the character of the vote is determined by the color of the X, each candidate having his own color. Colored pencils are supplied to the voter. It does not work very well in practice. In one constituency, at the recent election, a candidate who was reported elected by a large majority lost his seat on a recount, when it appeared that, by lamplight, the returning officer had not been able to distinguish between green and blue marks, and had thus "counted in" the minority candidate.

He Ought to Know.

"In our passenger traffic," observed the railway magnate, "it has been my observation that only the middle class actually pays." "How do you figure that out?" asked the interviewer. "It's simple enough," was the reply. "When a man's very poor he can't afford to buy a ticket and when he's very rich he travels on a pass."

A Drawback.

"My boy," said the man of ideal temperament, "if you want to become a master of your profession you must study; study day and night." "Yes," replied the energetic youth, "and while I'm away off in a corner studying, some other man will be hustling around getting all the business."—Washington Star.

Very.

That we've been gracious to our foe
There's no one can gainsay,
For everything that we have done
Was in a winning way.

HEALTH WITH WEALTH.

New Western Canada Districts Adapted to Ranching and Mixed Farming.

Calgary, Alberta, Nov. 4, 1898.

To the Editor of the Duluth Evening Herald, Duluth, Minn., Dear Sir—As to many replies to the home-seeker of Minnesota, I can cheerfully say this country is better for a poor man than Minnesota if he wants to farm and raise stock. I have spent one winter and two summers here, which I find more pleasant than any winter I have seen in Minnesota for eight years. The seasons are short, but the effect of long days of bright sunshine produces a very rapid growth of vegetation. There is good money in raising coarse grains and feeding to hogs and cattle, for pork and beef always bring a good price here. Hogs are worth from $4 to $4.50 live weight per cwt., and beef about the same. There is plenty of railroad land to be had very cheap and on long-time payments. A man does not want to think he can pick up money on the ground here, but there is lots of it in the ground, and labor will take it out. There is a vast scope of country north of Edmonton, Alberta, which can be settled, and a large scope of country west of Edmonton adapted to ranching and mixed farming. This country is the best place I have ever seen for the cure of consumption. I could refer you to different people here who were in the last stages of consumption, who are now in perfect health and able to do any kind of hard work and are very prosperous. Hoping this may benefit home-seekers who are willing to work for an honest living, I remain, yours very truly,

(Signed.) CHARLES N. SCOTT.

RELIEF FROM PAIN.

Women Everywhere Express their Gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. T. A. WALDEN, Gibson, Ga., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before taking your medicine, life was a burden to me. I never saw a well day. At my monthly period I suffered untold misery, and a great deal of the time I was troubled with a severe pain in my side. Before finishing the first bottle of your Vegetable Compound I could tell it was doing me good. I continued its use, also used the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, and have been greatly helped. I would like to have you use my letter for the benefit of others."

Mrs. FLORENCE A. WOLFE, 515 Mulberry St., Lancaster, Ohio, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with what the local physicians told me was inflammation of the womb. Every month I suffered terribly. I had taken enough medicine from the doctors to cure any one, but obtained relief for a short time only. At last I concluded to write to you in regard to my case, and can say that by following your advice I am now pefectly well."

Mrs. W. R. BATES, Mansfield, La., writes:

"Before writing to you I suffered dreadfully from painful menstruation, leucorrhœa and sore feeling in the lower part of the bowels. Now my friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not hesitate one minute in telling them what has brought about this great change, I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is the greatest remedy of the age."

Still After It.

Askins—Let me see! Somewhere I read of a book entitled, 'A Young Girl's Heart." Do you know anything of it?

Grimshaw—Yes; it came out right after "A Young Man's Pocketbook."—Puck.

CUBANS YIELD TO GEN. BROOKE

GIVE UP THEIR PLANS FOR A CELEBRATION.

Excitement Continues, But It Is Thought Violent Incidents Will Be Prevented—Cuban Committee Issues a Manifesto to the People—Nothing Will Be Done Against American Wishes—Details of the Evacuation Ceremonies Have Been Completed — Promptly at Noon United States Regulars Will Patrol the Entire City.

Havana, Dec. 31.—The Cuban patriotic committee, consisting of 150 leading Cubans — lawyers, doctors and business men — at a meeting which lasted until 4 o'clock in the morning, decided to yield without reservation to the wishes of Gen. Brooke and Gen. Ludlow in the matter of postponing the six days' celebration. The committee approved a manifesto to the Cuban population of Havana on the lines of Gen. Ludlow's reply on the subject of the proposed celebrations, quoting some portions of it and paraphrasing others. The Cuban citizens in Havana and the Cuban soldiers outside the city are intensely excited but the patriotic committee and the military chiefs of the Cubans think they can quiet this feeling and prevent violent incidents. The city and suburbs of Havana are absolutely quiet. The United States patrol officers are keenly on the alert, penetrating into every corner of the town. Senor Frederico Mora said to a correspondent of the Associated Press:

We are sorry we cannot execute our programme, but we agree with Gen. Ludlow's desire. He will have difficulty in keeping the low people down and restraining the young people of the army; but we are sure no acts of disturbance will occur. Nothing will be done against the American wishes. Now is Cuba's opportunity. If we go wrong now we shall never attain independence, never reach national life, and the Americans would never leave Cuba.

Evacuation Ceremonies.

The details of the evacuation ceremonies on Sunday have been completed. At 11 a. m. the American commissioners, Generals Wade, Clous and Butler, with their staffs, will leave the Trocha hotel at Vedado for the palace. They will arrive at the reception rooms of the palace at 11:45, where they will meet Generals Brooke, Lee and Ludlow and their staffs. Capt. Gen. Castellanos, Admiral Monterola and the Spanish evacuation commissioners and their staff will stand in the throne room, the throne having been removed. Castellanos will, in a few words, at noon sharp, turn over the command to Gen. Brooke. There will then be a short reception to the outgoing and incoming generals and immediately afterward Castellanos will start for Cavalleria wharf, escorted by Gen. Clous. One division of Lee's Seventh corps will, in the meantime, be massed at the Lea end of the Prado, and these troops, 3,000 strong, under Gen. Keifer, will march on review. Three flags will be officially raised—at the palace, at Morro and at Cabanas—by Lieutenants Lee and Wade and Maj. Butler, all sons of generals. American artillerymen will first salute the falling Spanish flag, and then Spanish artillerymen will use the same guns to salute the American flag. Promptly at noon United States regulars will patrol the entire city.

CUBANS DISBAND.

Feb. 24, on Which Date They Will Begin Their Celebration.

Havana, Dec. 31.—A compromise has been arranged by Gen. Brooke which satisfied the Cubans and will result in all classes celebrating the evacuation on Sunday. The Cubans were feeling greatly hurt over the refusal of the American commander to allow them to participate in the ceremonies. Generals Brooke and Menocal had a conference in the Inglaterra hotel, at which it was agreed that full sway should be given to the Cubans for a big insurgent celebration to be held in Havana Feb. 24, the fourth anniversary of the uprising in Santiago province. Gen. Brooke told Menocal that the insurgents might march and feast to their heart's content at that time. When this became known good feeling revived and plans were immediately begun for a week's celebration. It has already been decided that the formal disbandment of the insurgent force shall take place on Feb. 24.

FRANCE FOLLOWS SUIT.

Strengthens Its Squadron in Newfoundland Waters.

St. Johns, N. F., Dec. 31.—Sir Herbert Murray, the governor of Newfoundland, dispatched by the British cruiser Pelican, just sailed for England, important charts and data respecting the proposed fortifications here and the establishment of a naval reserve among the fishermen. The French government, following Great Britain's example, will strengthen its squadron in Newfoundland waters next season, appointing to the command, Commodore Henrique, bureau chief at the French naval hydrographic office.

STRICKEN BY DEATH.

Senor Romero's Illness Has a Fatal Termination.

Washington, Dec. 31. — Senor Don Matias Romero, the Mexican ambassador to the United States, died at the embassy here at 4:10 o'clock yesterday morning. On Wednesday last an operation for appendicitis was performed upon the ambassador, and, although the operation was entirely successful, the resulting shock proved greater than he could bear. About his bed were his sister, Mrs. Garcia, and his aunt, the secretaries and other attaches of the embassy, and his physicians and ex-Secretary and Mrs. John W. Foster. The death of Mrs. Romero, which occurred some months ago, was a great shock to the ambassador, and on his return from Mexico, where he had taken her remains for interment, his friends remarked that he was greatly broken, and showed unmistakable signs of failing health. While in Mexico at that time Mr. Romero was stricken with fever, and, although he was soon able to return to the United States, he never fully regained his health.

MRS BOTKIN IS GUILTY.

The Jury Imposes a Penalty of Life Imprisonment.

San Francisco, Dec. 31.—Rather to the general surprise of those who have followed the Botkin trial, and to the dismay of the defendant and her attorneys, Mrs. Cordelia Botkin was found guilty of murder in the first degree for causing the death of Mrs. John P. Dunning, by sending a box of poisoned candy to her temporary home in Dover, Del. The condemned murderess will be spared an ignominious death on the gallows, however, the jury that found her guilty, imposing also a penalty of life imprisonment. The verdict was unexpected. An acquittal was confidentially awaited by the defense, while the prosecution feared a disagreement. Although the jury was out four hours, more than one of them was devoted to dinner. It is currently reported that the verdict was the result of a compromise. The sex of the prisoner made such a concession satisfactory to the jury. Considering the unexpectedness of the verdict Mrs. Botkin kept herself well in hand when her fate was announced.

TO REMAIN AT SEA.

Admiral Sampson Does Not Desire Any Leave of Absence.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Rear Admiral Sampson to retain command of the North Atlantic squadron. Commodore J. W. Philip in command the Brooklyn navy yard. Commodore H. F. INVESTIGATION IS ORDERED

BOARD OF OFFICERS WILL LOOK INTO THE BEEF SUBJECT.

Result of the Issue Between Gen. Miles and Gen. Egan Concerning the Quality of Beef Supplied the Army—Investigation Ordered at Gen. Egan's Request—General Subject of the Quality of Beef Supplies, and Particularly the Responsibility for the Loss of Three Hundred Thousand Pounds of Beef, Will Be Thoroughly Investigated.

Washington, Dec. 31.—As a result of the issue between Gen. Miles and Gen. Egan, concerning the quality of the beef supplied the army, and on request of Gen. Egan the war department has issued a special order, for the assembling of a board of officers in Washington on next Tuesday at 10 a. m. to inquire into the general subject of the quality of beef supplies, and particularly as to the responsibility for the loss of 300,000 pounds of refrigerated beef sent to Porto Rico when the expedition under Gen. Miles was there. The special order is as follows:

"By direction of the secretary of war a board of survey is hereby ordered to convene at the war department, Washington, at 10 a. m., Jan. 3, 1899, to examine into and report upon the responsibility for the loss of about 300,000 pounds of refrigerated beef, the property of Swift & Co., Chicago, to ascertain and report if due and proper effort was made to feed this beef to the troops in Porto Rico, and to fix the responsibility if due and proper effort was not made; to ascertain and report the character and quality of the refrigerator and beef herein referred to; to ascertain and report if it was good and fit meal for issue, if it had been subjected to any chemical processes whatever, and to report whether or not the United States is responsible for its loss, or who, if any one, is responsible for its loss, and whether, in its opinion, Swift & Co. should or should not be imbursed for the beef. Detail for the board: Col. Charles H. Alden, assistant surgeon general; Col. James M. Moore, assistant quartermaster general; Col. Francis L. Guenther, Fourth United States artillery; Capt. J. C. Scherrer, assistant adjutant general, recorder."

The 300,000 pounds of beef referred to was shipped from Newport News to Porto Rico about the time that word came from Gen. Miles that he had supplied himself with fresh beef taken on the island. The refrigerated beef made the trip to Porto Rico and back, but by the time it reached Montauk Point it is understood to have spoiled, owing to the delay and consequent lack of refrigerating material.

MERRITT AND SHAFTER.

Changes in Assignments Announced by the War Department.

Washington, Dec. 31. — Several important army assignments are announced at the war department. Maj. Gen. Wesley Merritt has been relieved from command of the department of the Pacific, and from further duty pertaining to the Philippine islands, and will proceed to New York city and assume command of the department of the East. Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter has been relieved from command of the department of the East and assigned the command of the department of the Pacific, to relieve Maj. Gen. Henry C. Merriam. Gen. Shafter will proceed at once to San Francisco and enter upon his duties.

MAKES TWO DEPARTMENTS.

Havana City Under Gen. Ludlow and Havana Province Under Gen. Lee.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The war department issued an order establishing two departments in and about Havana, viz: The department of Havana, comprising the city proper, suburbs and an area of about ten square miles, and the department of the province of Havana, comprising the territory outside of the territory proper. Maj. Gen. Ludlow is assigned to command the department comprising the city and suburbs, and Maj. Gen. Lee is assigned to the department outside of the city.

SERIOUS CHARGE.

Court Bailiff Indicted for Jury Bribing.

Chicago, Dec. 31. — Indictments for jury bribing were found against James Lynch and H. Powell by the grand jury. Charges in a number of similar cases are being investigated. Lynch is a court bailiff. Powell is a cattle buyer and was a juror in one of the cases. The jury bribing is alleged to have been done in the interests of a street railway company defendant in the case in question.

Serious Rioting.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 31.—Letters received from Punta Arenas announced that serious riots have occurred there between the sailors of the Italian cruiser Piemonte and the Chilean warship Casma. About twenty men were wounded. The national guard was called to arms to re-establish order. The rioters were arrested and put at the disposition of their respective commanders.

Struck a Rock.

Hongkong, Dec. 31. — The British steamer Glen Avon, Capt. Pitble, has been wrecked on a rock. Part of her crew has been saved and landed here. The captain, chief officer and the second and fourth engineers are missing.

Spanish Money.

Madrid, Dec. 31. — The cabinet has agreed to send additional funds to Cuba for the repatriation of the Spanish troops remaining there. The prospects for the release of prisoners in the Philippines is discouraging.

INVESTIGATING THE BAUER CASE.

Hospital Trustees Take Testimony at St. Peter.

St. Peter, Minn., Dec. 31. — All the members of the state board of hospital trustees arrived at St. Peter and immediately commenced an investigation of the charges of cruelty to patients recently brought against the St. Peter institution. Rev. Bauer of Minneapolis was present and made the direct charges. Chairman Mason examined the witnesses, and from the testimony gleaned the board decided that a post mortem examination would be necessary, and the board will adjourn after all the witnesses have been examined until the examination is completed, which will probably not be until Tuesday of next week. On the whole the affair partakes of the nature of a farce. The trustees, however, will give the matter a full and impartial investigation, and if the hospital authorities are at fault the offenders will be punished.

WARMED THINGS UP.

Spontaneous Combustion Causes a $70,000 Fire at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Dec. 31. — Fire, which started from spontaneous combustion in the dry kiln of the North side yards of the John Schroeder Lumber company, caused a loss of about $70,000; partially insured. The flames, after wiping out the dry kiln, communicated to the large planing mill, which was also destroyed. The large lumber yards escaped. The loss to the company is $50,000; insured for $25,000. The coal sheds of the Louis Hanes, Jr., Coal company, adjoining, where 10,000 tons of coal are stored, also caught fire. The loss to this property is partial and is estimated at $20,000, fully insured. The steam barge Grace Drummond, belonging to the John Shroeder Lumber company, and which was lying in the river, was slightly damaged.

BANQUET TO BRYAN.

Business Men's Bryan Club of Lincoln Entertain the Colonel.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 31.—A complimentary reception and banquet to Col. W. J. Bryan was tendered by the Nebraska Business Men's Bryan club at the Lincoln hotel. Invitations were sent to 250 admirers of Bryan which were, with few exceptions, accepted. The only notable absentee was Congressman Bailey of Texas, who was to have responded to the toast "Democracy," but who telegraphed from Washington his inability to be present. The dining hall was thrown open at 9 o'clock and the speechmaking began an hour later. Mr. Bryan responded to the sentiment: "America's Mission; Let not the crimes of the East e'er crimson thy name, Be Freedom and Science and Virtue thy fame."

CHILDREN INCINERATED.

Small Boy and Girl Meet a Terrible Fate.

Osseo, Wis, Dec. 31. — Two little children, a son and daughter, aged four and two respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bonger, were burned to death in their home at Lincoln. It is believed the fire was set by the little boy because he was punished, and that part of his plan was that his sister should die with him. Mr. Bonger was away at work at the time and the mother of the children was making a call on a neighbor. The boy had been punished and was heard by his mother to make a remark that he was going to die and take his sister with him. The fire was started in a room where there was no stove, and it is believed the boy carried out his threat as planned.

POSTAGE TWO CENTS.

Dominion of Canada Comes Down in Its Rates.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The Canadian government, in a telegram from Postmaster General Molock to Postmaster General Smith, announces that it has reduced the domestic letter rate from 3 to 2 cents per ounce, commencing Jan. 2. Under the convention between the United States and Canada letters are sent from this country to Canada for 2 cents, the domestic rate of each country applying to letters sent. The reduction now made is reciprocal, and, for the first time, permits letters to be sent from the other side at 2 instead of 3 cents.

SAWYER WILL IMPROVE.

Wisconsin's Former Senator Has Undergone a Critical Surgical Operation.

Oshkosh, Wis., Dec. 31. — Former United States Senator Philetus Sawyer, who has been suffering from an abscess on the back of his neck for some time, has just undergone a successful operation for a removal of the growth. It was thought, owing to the extreme age of the senator, that considerable danger would attend the operation. However, Dr. Walter Kempster, his attending physician, reports his patient as getting along nicely and that nothing serious is expected to result from the treatment.

VICTORIA FIRE.

Business Portion of British Columbia City Scorched.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 31.—Fire broke out in a cigar store on Government street, in the very heart of the city, and caused damage to the extent of $35,000. The fire department was out to an outlying suburb and valuable time was lost in getting to the fire. The Heathery block was gutted. The loss is about $20,000; partly insured.

Bad Weather in the Mediterranean.

Paris, Dec. 31—Terrible weather prevails in the Eastern Mediterranean. Several mail boats have been damaged.

Farm Residence Burned.

Jamestown, N. D., Dec. 31.—P. Moran's farmhouse, a few miles out, was completely destroyed by fire, with contents. Loss, $5,000; partly covered by insurance. The fire originated from ashes thrown near the building.

Incendiarism.

Owatonna, Minn., Dec. 31.—Fire totally destroyed the Rosenbrock building, occupied by the Salvation Army, together with two adjacent frame structures. The fire was of incendiary origin.

SPANIARDS RETAKE GUAM

REFUSE TO RECOGNIZE THE AUTHORITY OF THE GOVERNOR.

They Set Up a Governor of Their Own and Ran Things With a High Hand—Massacre of the Spanish Garrison by the Natives on One of the Caroline Islands Is Reported—Iloilo Will Be Surrendered to the Americans—News Brought by the British Schooner Esmeralda—Exciting Times in the Far Pacific Since Last May.

Manila, Dec. 31—The British schooner Esmarabla, which has just arrived here from the Ladrone Islands, reports that after the United States cruiser Charleston left the island of Guam, in June last, the Spaniards refused to recognize the authority of Francis Portasach, who was verbally authorized by Capt. Glass to continue his former regime as governor and Jose Sisto, a former public administrator, was declared governor. He armed part of the native guards, collected a tax of $6 a head, and secreted fifteen tons of powder and a small stock of ammunition when the island was taken by the Americans.

Massacre at Carolines.

The schooner also reports the massacre of the Spanish garrison by the combined native forces at Panopi, Caroline islands. Henry Nanpei, an educated chief, has been selected as the ruler. He is reported to be favorable to Americans. The British cruiser Bonaventure has gone to Iloilo to protect British interests there.

Iloilo Will Be Surrendered.

The Spanish steamer Remulus, which has just arrived here, confirms the report that the insurgents at Iloilo are inclined to surrender that town to the Americans if satisfied as to the form of government which will be accorded them.

Francis Portusach, whom the officers of the United States cruiser Charleston left in charge of the Ladrone islands, being the only American citizen there, is a native of Spain, where he was born about thirty years ago. He took out his citizenship papers in Chicago during the year 1888. He is said to be the son of a wealthy merchant of Barcelona. Pafopi may mean the island of Puyalpet, also referred to as Bonabe and Panapee. It is probably the second in size of the Carolines proper.

THERE WILL BE NO TROUBLE.

So Says Mr. Palma, Head of the Late Cuban Junta.

New York, Dec. 31—Tomas Estrada Palma, president of the late Cuban Junta, said that he did not anticipate any serious disturbances in Havana at the raising of the American flag. Mr. Palma expressed a disbelief in the rumor that Gen. Menocal had taken the field. Gen. Menocal, he said, was a patriot and a brave man and would not become actively hostile to the Americans. Mr. Palma expressed regret that Gen. Gomez was not summoned to Havana, as such a courtesy would furnish the best guarantee of peace and order. "I hope for fraternity and intelligent sympathy between the Cubans and Americans," said Mr. Palma, "for it will greatly facilitate the beneficent work of the United States in Havana."

GEN. OTIS REPORTS.

Has Not Heard of the Landing of Our Forces at Iloilo.

Washington, Dec. 31.—A cablegram was received at the war department from Gen. Otis, in command at Manila, and, much to the disappointment of the officials, he announced that he had not yet heard of the result of the landing of Gen. Miller's forces at Iloilo. Provision has been made by the navy department for the establishment of a mail service between Manila and Guam, our new naval station in the Pacific. Admiral Dewey has been instructed that after the Yosemite arrives at Manila he must send a mail to the island of Guam at least once in every two months, using any vessel of the navy available for the service.

APPEAL TO KRUEGER.

To Prevent the Celebration of the Defeat of the Jameson Raid.

Pretoria, Dec. 31—Strong representations have been made to President Krueger urging him to forbid the proposed celebration on Jan 2 of the defeat of the Jameson raid, when, at the suggestion of the Pretoria Volkstein, the project was to burn Dr. Jameson in effigy. Owing to the president's action the celebration has been abandoned. There is no doubt that such an observance of Jameson day as planned would have led to serious riots.

OFF FOR CUBA.

Three Transports With Troops Sail From Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 31. — Three transports have just left for Cuba. They carry Gen Sanger, brigade headquarters, hospital corps and the Twelfth New York regiment, on board the Manitoba; Gen. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

SCIENTIFIC TOPICS.

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

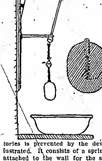
A Handy Tool for Electricians—Handy Attachment for Sleds Where Snow Is Rare—An Invention That Prevents Waste of Soap.

Something About Lenses.

Very few amateurs have time or opportunity to make a thorough study of optics, but if one wishes to use his camera to get the best results he should understand something about the lens and its action. Light, the agent by which we see consists, like sound, of motion. Sound is produced or conveyed to the ear by wavelike motions of the air, and light is conveyed to the eye by wavelike motions of a certain ether which fills all space. Sources of light, such as the sun, send off continuous waves, and these waves, striking against the surface of an object, bound back, and striking the eye, convey to it impressions of the object and we have the sensation of sight. The frequency of these light waves is something almost, if not quite, beyond the comprehension. The waves which affect the eye and produce sight move at the rate of from 400 millions to 760 millions per minute. Some surfaces reflect most of the light that reaches them; others absorb most of the light. The waves of light meeting the surface of an object are broken up by the rough particles of the surface, and each particle of the surface becomes a center from which these reflected rays spread out in all directions. The eye, receiving these waves from every point of an object, condenses them to corresponding points, and re-arranges them on the retina in the form of the object from which they were reflected, and we say we see the object.

Prevents Wasting Soap.

The wasting of soap and the removal of toilet articles in public lavatories is prevented by the device illustrated. It consists of a spring arm attached to the wall for the suspension of the articles, which are always in position for use, the spring arm allowing free access to the bowl and drawing them out of the way as soon as released.

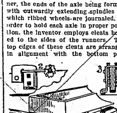


Sailing by Cyclone.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the proposition of Capt. Fleron, a French mariner who thinks that advantage may be taken of the favorable winds at the edge of a cyclone for facilitating navigation. By means of observations with the barometer and other instruments, he would ascertain the direction in which the storm is going, and so shape the course of his ship that it would be carried along by the sweep of the atmosphere, without becoming involved in the dangerous center of the storm. This proposal to treat cyclones as friendly aids to navigation may strike the reader as an extravagant play of fancy, but it is soberly intended by Capt. Fleron, who, in a little book on the subject recently published in Paris, describes his own successful experiments in this new method of sailing the sea.

Where Snow Is Rare.

In order to provide a device by means of which a sled can be readily mounted on wheels, when running over cleared portions of roads, a citizen of Heron Lake, Minn., has devised a novel attachment by means of which the desired end is attained. Of the annexed illustrations, figure 1 is a perspective view of a sled with the attachment in operative position; figure 2 is a side elevation showing the attachment in inactive position, and figure 3 is a transverse section of a runner with the attachment applied, says the Scientific American. The attachment consists of a U-shaped axle mounted in a bearing on each end of a runner, and bent down over the sides of the runner, the ends of the axle being formed with outwardly extending spindles on which ribbed wheels are journaled. In order to hold each axle in proper position, the inventor employs cleats bolted to the sides of the runners. The top edges of these cleats are arranged in alignment with the bottom portion of the axle bearings. When swung into the inoperative position shown in figure 2, the side portions of each axle will rest upon the top edge of a cleat. At their forward end the cleats are provided with ledges, by means of which the side portions of the axles, when in operative position, may be held vertically, as shown in figure 1. When the sled is running over snow or ice and a cleared portion of the road is reached the driver throws the axles forward so as to bring the wheels on the ground. The sled upon being pulled onward will rise upon the wheels and swing the axles against the forward ledges of the cleats. The sled is now mounted upon wheels and can be readily moved over the cleared portion of the road. When snow or ice is again reached, the sled is backed, thus causing the wheels to move forward and enabling the driver to swing into the inoperative position shown in figure 2.



Moulding Steel Like Dough.

The moulding of steel like so much dough is one of the remarkable mechanical feats of the day, made possible by fiercely hot furnaces and huge hydraulic presses. Thus, for the production of shells, a solid cylinder of glowing white metal is carefully adjusted on the die of a hydraulic press. The press operator pulls down a lever with an easy movement of one hand, and down comes a mighty mandrel, exerting a pressure of hundreds of tons upon the mass of hot steel. On the mandrel being withdrawn the piece is automatically ejected from the die, the form of it being slightly conical, having been squeezed into such shape by the great pressure as easily as if it had been putty or dough. Immediately it goes to another of the great presses, where it is held in a die with the thicker end up; here, when the mandrel has silently applied its force and been withdrawn, the piece shows a deep hole punched in the center, and has taken a form resembling the prospective finished product; without reheating—so rapid is the process—the shell now goes into a third press; from which it comes still more nearly shaped to the proper pattern, and a fourth forming operation makes it ready for the finishing room, where the products are finished and trued in lathes.

Pneumatic Grain Elevators.

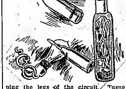
A grain elevator operated by suction has been tried and exhibited in England. Air is exhausted through the pipes which take in the grain, and the grain is delivered by the air draught through other pipes to any desired place. Several pipes may be introduced into a vessel's hold, and will remove the grain therefrom. An automatic scales is part of the system, so that the grain is weighed during the process of elevating and delivery. Quite a complicated system of exhausting and delivery pipes were connected, and the plant worked to great perfection, delivering the grain to a number of places with the one installation of pipes.

Transmission of Earthquake Shock.

When an earthquake occurs, the entire crust, or surface, of the earth experiences some effects of the disturbance. An earthquake in Calcutta which was accurately recorded gave a basis for determining the speed of transmission of the wave of disturbance due to the shock. The disturbance was registered at the Edinburgh observatory, thousands of miles distant, and gave a speed of transmission of six and two-tenths miles per second for the heavier shocks, and less than two miles per second for the lighter ones.

Fills a Long-Felt Want.

Any one who has ever been called upon to insert a fuse into a fuse block located on a ceiling or some other place difficult of access, especially when the place was dark, has felt the necessity for a handy tool and a light to aid him in performing this tedious operation. Such a tool, which seems to fill this long-felt want most admirably, has lately been placed on the market by a southern electrician, says the Electrical Engineer. It includes all of the requisites for enabling an operator to tap a live wire in order to give light during the making of branch connections and the effecting of repairs. It consists of a screw driver, which has a detachable base. The handle, which is hollow, contains the necessary fuses and clamps for tapping the legs of the circuit. These clamps can be connected to the lamp-plug socket, which is the base of the handle itself, by means of plugs, and the operation, by inserting a lamp into this socket, will have the advantage of a light even during the operation of inserting a fuse. The tool has been constructed with the end in view of embodying in the smallest possible space all the necessary implements.



One on the Judge.

A celebrated judge was once trying a case where the accused could only understand Irish, and an interpreter was accordingly sworn. The prisoner said something to the interpreter, and the latter replied.

"What does he say?" demanded the Judge.

"Nothing, my lord."

"How dare you say that when we all heard him? Come, sir, what was it?"

"My lord," said the interpreter, beginning to tremble, "it had nothing to do with the case."

"If you don't answer I'll commit you, sir. Now, what did he say?"

"Well, my lord, you'll excuse me, but he said, 'Who's that ould woman with the red bed curtains round her sitting up there?'"

At which everybody present roared.

"And what did you say?" asked the judge.

"I said, 'Whist, ye sphalpeen! That's the ould boy that's going to hang yez.'"—Tit-Bits.

Conclusive.

"They say the jury has acquitted that Spaniard who murdered his employer."

"Yes. He must have been innocent. He shot him, you know."

"What does that prove?"

"Why, the fact that he hit him shows it was accidental."—Harper's Bazar.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—On account of the constantly-increasing traffic of the Chicago Great Western, that company has placed a rush order within the last few days with the Baldwin Locomotive Works for ten large ten-wheel engines. Of these one-half are cylinder compound and the other half simple engines. The engines are of 165,000 pounds weight, and will be capable of hauling almost any load that can be put behind them. They are for delivery early in February, and the order will probably be followed by another one for five or ten more engines of the same large capacity. The Great Western will let contracts next week for 700 new box cars.

A Mercenary Satisfaction.

"I suppose you will enjoy your Thanksgiving dinner?"

"I'll enjoy several hundred of 'em," answered the complacent citizen.

"Not all at once."

Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons?

From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

AYER'S PILLS

They daily insure an easy and natural movement of the bowels.

AUTUMN THE MORAL SEASON.

What Ella Wheeler Wilcox Has to Say About It.

Of the four seasons of the year the autumn seems the distinctly moral one, says Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the New York Evening World. Spring is amorous and frolicsome; summer sensuous and selfish; the winter wild and wicked. But the autumn is grave and introspective. It is like some serious saint, who looks with sad, reproving eyes on the conduct of two siren sisters and a reckless brother. But for the autumn the year might blush for the influence of his children on the human family, but that good sister of charity brings us all to our sober senses and compels us to confess our sins to our own souls. The autumnal season is calculated to sadden the thoughts of the gayest being and to give a serious tinge to the most frivolous mind. It is the season of partings and of changes; of retreating bloom and beauty and advancing frosts and snows. The ephemeral nature of pleasure forces itself upon us whether we will or no, as we hang away our summer clothing redolent with the memories of vanished August afternoons and moon-washed nights. We recall the anticipations which were packed into our trunks with those garments when they were new, and the long, golden summer days which stretched before us. Now the summer is over, and its experiences, sweet or sad, are hung away in time's corridors. Seen in perspective, the summer seemed long; but from the retrospective view it has been brief indeed. To the very young, life is like a long, golden summer, but those who have passed its noon mark realize its brevity. Always at this time of the year there are certain facts which must force themselves upon the most phlegmatic mind and penetrate the dullest perception. Foremost of these facts is the consciousness of the utter folly of pursuing pleasure through selfish paths. The man or woman who obtained a summer's amusement at the cost of another's comfort or happiness and at the sacrifice of his or her own duty must hear the voice of conscience in the wail of the autumn wind and find a symbol of dead gayeties in the dried leaves under foot. People who have ridden roughshod over the rights of others and pushed principles aside like straws in their pursuit of pleasure must be asking their own hearts at this time of year the sad question: "Was it worth while?" There are certain old platitudes which we may ridicule as time-worn and out of date at every other season of the year, but which come home to us as eternal truths in the autumn twilight. We realize that nothing pays in life which takes us outside of the direct path of duty, and that any word or act of ours which harms or hurts another human being is an injury to our own highest interests. It is on the first chilly autumn nights, when in the small hours we draw an extra cover over the couch, that we lie awake with sorrow in our hearts for all earth's suffering poor, and resolve that we will do more for others and less for self in days to come. And in the autumn more than during any other season of the year do we appreciate the real blessing of life, home and human love and tender ties. Yes, surely autumn is the moral season.

DIPLOMATIC REPARTEE.

How a Former French Ambassador in Berlin Retaliated.

When the Duc de Guynes represented France at the court of Frederick the Great in Prussia he made a thorough study of the Prussian army against the wishes of the Prussian officers. Their hints to that effect did not dissuade the French ambassador, so they got a little satisfaction by having his letters opened and copied in the Prussian postoffice. The Duc de Guynes soon discovered these tactics and posted his next letter twelve hours before the time the mail for Paris closed. Accompanying it was the following memorandum: "I am sending the annexed dispatch to the post at 7 o'clock in the morning, instead of waiting until the usual time of departure, 7 o'clock in the evening, so as to give the director of the Berlin postoffice time to copy it and still send it on this evening. I take this course because the dispatch is very urgent and important, and I would consequently be much annoyed if it were kept over until the following mail, as has been done on several previous occasions." His departure from Berlin, which occurred shortly after that, was not mourned deeply.

A Curious Ballot Law.

In the northwest territories there is a curious ballot law. There is only one space for marking, and the character of the vote is determined by the color of the X, each candidate having his own color. Colored pencils are supplied to the voter. It does not work very well in practice. In one constituency, at the recent election, a candidate who was reported elected by a large majority lost his seat on a recount, when it appeared that, by lamplight, the returning officer had not been able to distinguish between green and blue marks, and had thus "counted in" the minority candidate.

He Ought to Know.

"In our passenger traffic," observed the railway magnate, "it has been my observation that only the middle class actually pays." "How do you figure that out?" asked the interviewer. "It's simple enough," was the reply. "When a man's very poor he can't afford to buy a ticket and when he's very rich he travels on a pass."

A Drawback.

"My boy," said the man of ideal temperament, "if you want to become a master of your profession you must study; study day and night." "Yes," replied the energetic youth, "and while I'm away off in a corner studying, some other man will be hustling around getting all the business."—Washington Star.

HEALTH WITH WEALTH.

New Western Canada Districts Adapted to Ranching and Mixed Farming.

Calgary, Alberta, Nov. 4, 1898.

To the Editor of the Duluth Evening Herald, Duluth, Minn., Dear Sir—As to many replies to the home-seeker of Minnesota, I can cheerfully say this country is better for a poor man than Minnesota if he wants to farm and raise stock. I have spent one winter and two summers here, which I find more pleasant than any winter I have seen in Minnesota for eight years. The seasons are short, but the effect of long days of bright sunshine produces a very rapid growth of vegetation. There is good money in raising coarse grains and feeding to hogs and cattle, for pork and beef always bring a good price here. Hogs are worth from $4 to $4.50 live weight per cwt., and beef about the same. There is plenty of railroad land to be had very cheap and on long-time payments. A man does not want to think he can pick up money on the ground here, but there is lots of it in the ground, and labor will take it out. There is a vast scope of country north of Edmonton, Alberta, which can be settled, and a large scope of country west of Edmonton adapted to ranching and mixed farming. This country is the best place I have ever seen for the cure of consumption. I could refer you to different people here who were in the last stages of consumption, who are now in perfect health and able to do any kind of hard work and are very prosperous. Hoping this may benefit home-seekers who are willing to work for an honest living, I remain, yours very truly.

(Signed.) CHARLES N. SCOTT.

RELIEF FROM PAIN.

Women Everywhere Express their Gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. T. A. WALDEN, Gibson, Ga., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before taking your medicine, life was a burden to me. I never saw a well day. At my monthly period I suffered untold misery, and a great deal of the time I was troubled with a severe pain in my side. Before finishing the first bottle of your Vegetable Compound I could tell it was doing me good. I continued its use, also used the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, and have been greatly helped. I would like to have you use my letter for the benefit of others."

Mrs. FLORENCE A. WOLFE, 515 Mulberry St., Lancaster, Ohio, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with what the local physicians told me was inflammation of the womb. Every month I suffered terribly. I had taken enough medicine from the doctors to cure any one, but obtained relief for a short time only. At last I concluded to write to you in regard to my case, and can say that by following your advice I am now perfectly well."

Mrs. W. R. BATES, Mansfield, La., writes:

"Before writing to you I suffered dreadfully from painful menstruation, leucorrhœa and sore feeling in the lower part of the bowels. Now my friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not hesitate one minute in telling them what has brought about this great change. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is the greatest remedy of the age."

PITH OF THE NEWS

DIGEST OF THE NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

A Comprehensive Review of the Important Happenings of the Past Week Culled From the Telegraph Reports—The Notable Events at Home and Abroad That Have Attracted Attention.

Washington Talk.

Owing to the prevalence of grip at Washington a large number of government employes are on sick leave.

Commissioner General Peck has appointed Charles Richards Dodge of New York, director of agriculture of the American exhibit at the Paris exposition.

The state department has just received $5,000 from the Mexican government for the heirs of Henry Hoppe of New Orleans, who was murdered in Mexico by a Mexican constable.

The German ambassador, Dr. von Holleben, has returned to Washington after important conferences with the authorities in Berlin relative to American reciprocity.

The first American production of "Zaza," a French play, occurred at Lafayette Square theater, Washington, with Mrs. Leslie Carter as the heroine. It was a success, and was largely attended by officialdom and society.

Joseph B. Pearson, the man who created a disturbance by throwing missiles through the plate glass windows of the British embassy at Washington, and was sent to the insane asylum, has escaped from that institution and is still at large.

The report of Agents Meyer and Bede on the charges preferred against deputy marshals by Indian Commissioner Jones has been received by Secretary Bliss and by him referred to the commissioner. An officer of the Indian office said that the report was unsatisfactory, and intimated that it was a "whitewashing affair."

Maj. Hopkins, military aide to Secretary Alger, has returned to Washington from Cuba. Maj. Hopkins thoroughly indorsed the extremely favorable reports that have already reached the department through the regular official channels. He believes that the Mobile is worthy to form the nucleus of an army transport service that shall excel any other in the world in the comfortable surroundings and supplies to the soldiers.

Foreign.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Daily Mail says that early next year Emperor Nicholas will visit Emperor Francis Joseph of Austro-Hungary and King Humbert of Italy.

Mrs. Saunders, who was the claimant for the sum of $20,000,000 left by an uncle named Leake, who died intestate in America, died recently in Wales.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times says that according to M. de Blowitz, Emile Zola escaped to England after his sentence last June and is living in seclusion.

The government of Victoria, according to a special dispatch from Melbourne, has accepted the tender of the Pennsylvania and Maryland Steel company for 35,000 tons of steel rails at $75,000 below the English tender.

Owing to the failure of the seconds to agree upon conditions it has been decided to abandon the proposed duel between Baron Banffy, the Hungarian premier, and Deputy Heransky, of the opposition in the lower house of the Hungarian parliament, who, in the course of Friday's debates upon the government's policy, called the premier an imposter, cheat and traitor.

Accidental Happenings.

The North Cornwell iron furnace at Cornwell, Pa., was badly wrecked by an explosion. Several men had narrow escapes. The damage is estimated at $20,000.

One man was instantly killed and another seriously if not fatally injured in a collision which occurred off Liberty Island, between the freight steamer Idaho of the Wilson line, and the tramp steamer Flower Gate.

A terrific explosion of gas occurred in the east gangway on the first lift of the Luke Fuller shaft, at Shamokin, Pa., by which two persons were fatally injured, several others seriously, and it is feared that some of them were overcome in the shaft by black damp.

The great lumber plant of the Shepard & Morse Lumber company at Burlington, Vt., covering fifteen acres and containing 11,000,000 feet of lumber, together with a planing mill, eight sheds and a large quantity of machinery, was completely destroyed by fire. Loss, $250,000. One hundred men are thrown out of employment. It is believed the plant will not be rebuilt.

People Talked About.

Judge Hamilton Ward, of the supreme court, died at Wellsville, N. Y., aged seventy years. He was a member of the Thirty-ninth, Fortieth and Forty-first congresses, and in 1870 was elected attorney general of New York.

Paul P. Kelly, a prominent lawyer of Southwestern Iowa, died at his home in Glenwood, Iowa. A bad cold contracted at the last term of court resulted in cerebral inflammation, which caused his death.

A fire destroyed the Drew-Inman dry goods store at Joliet, Ill. Loss, $50,000; insurance, $35,000.

John P. Cochrane, ex-governor of Delaware, died at his home in Middletown, Del., aged ninety years. He was elected governor in 1874.

Charles F. Orthwein, the millionaire grain merchant and street car magnate, died at his home in St. Louis of cancer of the liver.

Maj. David Hemphill of South Carolina, quartermaster of the old Second division, First corps, died at Knoxville, Tenn., in the division hospital of stomach trouble.

Sporting Notes.

Joe Gans of Baltimore outpointed Jack Daly of Wilmington, Del., in a twenty-five-round bout at 150 pounds before the Lenox Athletic club at New York.

"Black Griffo" was defeated at the Trenton Athletic club at Trenton, N. J., in the fourteenth round by Jack Waldron. The men fought at catch weights.

Joe Choynski, who was booked for a bout with Gus Ruhlin before the Lenox Athletic Club of New York on Jan. 10, will be unable to fight on account of blood poisoning in his arm.

Johnny Lavack of Cleveland and Fred Green of Toledo fought before the Imperial Athletic club at Sandusky, Ohio. In the fourth round Green broke his right forearm and the contest was given to Lavack. The men are feather-weights.

Articles of agreement have been signed at Victoria, B. C., for a boxing match for $10,000 a side between "Denver" Ed Smith and Jim Jeffries, champion heavy-weight of the Pacific coast. They will meet before the Olympic club at San Francisco toward the end of January.

Criminal Record.

A young woman in Wisconsin kills her babe and herself.

Jeff Bolton, colored, was lynched near Harmony Grove, Ga., by a mob while being taken to jail. He was charged with burning a barn and shooting the owner.

William Shaver, a farmer living four miles west of Greenfield, Mo., shot his wife four times, producing fatal wounds, and then shot himself, dying instantly. Family trouble was the cause.

Michael Ferrandon, a Greek charged with assaulting and robbing a Greek sailor, was identified in court at New York as Soteros de Santeros, the brigand for whom the Greek government offers 5,000 francs, dead or alive.

Private Turner, of the Sixth Virginia colored regiment, was shot and killed at Macon, Ga., by O. A. Thrower, a street car conductor. Turner was drunk and threatened Thrower with a knife for trying to eject him from the car.

A new counterfeit silver certificate has been discovered. It is the series of 1896, Bruce, register, Roberts, treasurer, and apparently printed from photo-etched plates on heavy bond paper.

Isidor Lorber surrendered himself to the police at San Francisco, saying that New York authorities wanted him on a charge of murder. Last October his wife was found dying from asphyxiation, and as Lorber had disappeared he was suspected. He says that he left her and only recently learned that he was accused of her murder.

Louis Slick, of 1904 North Marshfield avenue, Chicago, chose a unique and horrible method to end his life. He lifted a lid from the stove and held his head against the glowing coals until it was burned so severely that he was rendered unconscious. He was found a few minutes later by his wife, and eight hours later he died, not regaining consciousness. Slick was sixty-eight years old and was formerly a harness-maker.

General.

Disorders are of frequent occurrence in Havana.

W. W. Rope has been appointed receiver of the Rope Lumber Company of Brooklyn. Liabilities, $50,576; assets, $23,104.

Chauncey W. Young of Payton, Ohio, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States court at Cincinnati. Liabilities, $60,000; no assets.

The standing committee of the diocese of Nebraska has decided to refuse its canonical consent to the consecration of Dr. Morrison as bishop of Iowa.

Preparations for the departure of the Seventeenth United States infantry for the Philippines are being rushed forward at Columbus post, at Columbus, Ohio.

Commissioner Peck has appointed as director of customs for the United States commission to the Paris exposition, Mr. Louis Meredith Howland of New York.

The steamer China brings word of the death last month of Ensign George I. Fermier at Shanghai, who distinguished himself on the gunboat Petrel at Manila.

It was said at the New York navy yard that Commodore J. W. Philip will succeed Rear Admiral Francis M. Bunce, retired, as commander of the Brooklyn navy yard on Jan. 15.

The eight shoe factories in Marlford, Mass., which are involved in the general strike of shoe-workers, were recently opened to such as chose to accept work independent of the unions.

Secretary Bliss stated recently that Mr. Hitchcock, his successor in the cabinet, would sail for this country on Jan. 6, and that the change of office would take place just prior to Feb. 7.

The American Chemical society at New York held its 1th general meeting in the assembly hall of the Chemist's club. Dr. Adelbert Morley, of Adelbert college, Cleveland, was elected president.

Frank Cooper, a live stock man of Kansas City, has a letter from Grant Gillett in which he charges fraud against several other prominent cattlemen and expresses a willingness to return if wanted.

The engagement of Mrs. Seville Packards of Cleveland, widow of Col. James Packards, and sister of M. A. Hanna, to Jay O. Morse of Chicago, former president of the Illinois Steel company, is announced.

The American-Jewish Historical association held its seventh annual meeting at Philadelphia with a large and representative gathering of Jewish scholars and writers. Dr. Cyrus Adler was elected president.

A call was issued at New York by Bishop Alexander Walters, president of the Afro-American council, for a convention of colored people, under the auspices of the council, at Washington on Dec. 29. All organizations having for their object the amelioration of the Afro-American race are invited to send delegates.

CUBANS YIELD TO GEN. BROOKE

GIVE UP THEIR PLANS FOR A CELEBRATION.

Excitement Continues, but It Is Thought Violent Incidents Will Be Prevented—Cuban Committee Issues a Manifesto to the People—Nothing Will Be Done Against American Wishes—Details of the Evacuation Ceremonies Have Been Completed — Promptly at Noon United States Regulars Will Patrol the Entire City.

Havana, Dec. 31.—The Cuban patriotic committee, consisting of 150 leading Cubans — lawyers, doctors and business men — at a meeting which lasted until 4 o'clock in the morning, decided to yield without reservation to the wishes of Gen. Brooke and Gen. Ludlow in the matter of postponing the six days' celebration. The committee approved a manifesto to the Cuban population of Havana on the lines of Gen. Ludlow's reply on the subject of the proposed celebrations, quoting some portions of it and paraphrasing others. The Cuban citizens in Havana and the Cuban soldiers outside the city are intensely excited but the patriotic committee and the military chiefs of the Cubans think they can quiet this feeling and prevent violent incidents. The city and suburbs of Havana are absolutely quiet. The United States patrol officers are keenly on the alert, penetrating into every corner of the town. Senor Frederico Mora said to a correspondent of the Associated Press:

We are sorry we cannot execute our programme, but we agree with Gen. Ludlow's desire. He will have difficulty in keeping the low people down and restraining the young people of the army; but we are sure no acts of disturbance will occur. Nothing will be done against the American wishes. Now is Cuba's opportunity. If we go wrong now we shall never attain independence, never reach national life, and the Americans would never leave Cuba.

Evacuation Ceremonies.

The details of the evacuation ceremonies on Sunday have been completed. At 11 a. m. the American commissioners, Generals Wade, Clous and Butler, with their staffs, will leave the Trocha hotel at Vedado for the palace. They will arrive at the reception rooms of the palace at 11:45, where they will meet Generals Brooke, Lee and Ludlow and their staffs. Capt. Gen. Castellanos, Admiral Monterola and the Spanish evacuation commissioners and their staff will stand in the throne room, the throne having been removed. Castellanos will, in a few words, at noon sharp, turn over the command to Gen. Brooke. There will then be a short reception to the outgoing and incoming generals and immediately afterward Castellanos will start for Cavalleria wharf, escorted by Gen. Clous. One division of Lee's Seventh corps will, in the meantime, be massed at the Lea end of the Prado, and these troops, 3,000 strong, under Gen. Keifer, will march on review. Three flags will be officially raised—at the palace, at Morro and at Cabanas—by Lieutenants Lee and Wade and Maj. Butler, all sons of generals. American artillerymen will first salute the falling Spanish flag, and then Spanish artillerymen will use the same guns to salute the American flag. Promptly at noon United States regulars will patrol the entire city.

CUBANS DISBAND.

Feb. 24, on Which Date They Will Begin Their Celebration.

Havana, Dec. 31.—A compromise has been arranged by Gen. Brooke which satisfied the Cubans and will result in all classes celebrating the evacuation on Sunday. The Cubans were feeling greatly hurt over the refusal of the American commander to allow them to participate in the ceremonies. Generals Brooke and Menocal had a conference in the Inglaterra hotel, at which it was agreed that full sway should be given to the Cubans for a big insurgent celebration to be held in Havana Feb. 24, the fourth anniversary of the uprising in Santiago province. Gen. Brooke told Menocal that the insurgents might march and feast to their heart's content at that time. When this became known good feeling revived and plans were immediately begun for a week's celebration. It has already been decided that the formal disbandment of the insurgent force shall take place on Feb. 24.

FRANCE FOLLOWS SUIT.

Strengthens Its Squadron in Newfoundland Waters.

St. Johns, N. F., Dec. 31.—Sir Herbert Murray, the governor of Newfoundland, dispatched by the British cruiser Pelican, just sailed for England, important charts and data respecting the proposed fortifications here and the establishment of a naval reserve among the fishermen. The French government, following Great Britain's example, will strengthen its squadron in Newfoundland waters next season, appointing to the command Commodore Henrique, bureau chief at the French naval hydrographic office.

Captured the Chief.

London, Dec. 31.—According to the Pretoria correspondent of the Times the police of the Chartered company have captured Mpfon, chief of the Magollos tribes in the Setlansberg district and sent him to Bulawayo.

Monument to Lincoln's Mother.

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 31.—A monument to the mother of Abraham Lincoln is to be erected by the old soldiers of the Second Iowa brigade, three regiments from Illinois and two from Indiana.

STRICKEN BY DEATH.

Senor Romero's Illness Has a Fatal Termination.

Washington, Dec. 31. — Senor Don Matias Romero, the Mexican ambassador to the United States, died at the embassy here at 3:10 o'clock yesterday morning. On Wednesday last an operation for appendicitis was performed upon the ambassador, and, although the operation was entirely successful, the resulting shock proved greater than he could bear. About his bed were his sister, Mrs. Garcia, and his aunt, the secretaries and other attaches of the embassy, and his physicians and ex-Secretary and Mrs. John W. Foster. The death of Mrs. Romero, which occurred some months ago, was a great shock to the ambassador, and on his return from Mexico, where he had taken her remains for interment, his friends remarked that he was greatly broken, and showed unmistakable signs of failing health. While in Mexico at that time Mr. Romero was stricken with fever, and, although he was soon able to return to the United States, he never fully regained his health.

MRS. BOTKIN IS GUILTY.

The Jury Imposes a Penalty of Life Imprisonment.

San Francisco, Dec. 31.—Rather to the general surprise of those who have followed the Botkin trial, and to the dismay of the defendant and her attorneys, Mrs. Cordelia Botkin was found guilty of murder in the first degree for causing the death of Mrs. John P. Dunning by sending a box of poisoned candy to her temporary home in Dover, Del. The condemned murderess will be spared an ignominious death on the gallows, however, the jury that found her guilty, imposing also a penalty of life imprisonment. The verdict was unexpected. An acquittal was confidentally awaited by the defense, while the prosecution feared a disagreement. Although the jury was out four hours, more than one of them was devoted to dinner. It is currently reported that the verdict was the result of a compromise. The sex of the prisoner made such a concession satisfactory to the jury. Considering the unexpectedness of the verdict Mrs. Botkin kept herself well in hand when her fate was announced.

TO REMAIN AT SEA.

Admiral Sampson Does Not Desire Any Leave of Absence.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Rear Admiral Sampson to retain command of the North Atlantic squadron. Commodore J. W. Philip to command the Brooklyn navy yard. Commodore H. F. Picking to command the Boston navy yard. Capt. Louis Kempff to command the naval station at Guam and to be naval governor of that island. Rear Admiral Schley and Rear Admiral H. L. Howison to be assigned to sea duty. These assignments were announced by a high official of the navy department as having been determined upon by Secretary Long.

TO AVENGE INSULTS.

Italy Has a Grievance Against Colombia.

Colon, Colombia, Dec. 31.—The local press, referring to the report that the Italian cruiser Fieramosca, under command of Ammiraglio de Brochetti, has been ordered to Colombian waters to demand satisfaction for alleged insults offered to Italian naval officers, says that "Colombia should act with dignity, prudence and forbearance, so as to attract the nations of the world to the repeated display of right vs. might." The "insults" of which the Italian government is said to complain grew indirectly out of the Cerutti case.

CONTRACT IS SIGNED.

Granting Concessions in China to the Anglo-American Syndicate.

London, Dec. 31.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail says: The terms of the contract concerning the concession to the Anglo-American syndicate of mining and railway privileges in Sze-chuen have been agreed upon and are now being signed. Sze-chuen is undoubtedly the largest as well as the richest province in China. The United States and Great Britain get the greater portion, the natives and other nationalities getting the balance.

STRATLING SENSATION.

Emile Zola Has Something Up His Sleeve.

London, Dec. 31. — Several of the morning papers publish an interview with Emile Zola, who says he is only kept in England by the entreaties of his wife and the urgent advice of Maitre Labori, his Paris counsel. But for them he would return to Paris. His leisure here he has utilized to finish his novel "La Frondite." M. Zola says he possesses "startling documents concerning the relations of Gen. Zurlinden with the Bonapartists."

Entombed in a Mine.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 31. — Eight men were entombed by a cave-in in a coal mine here. After a heroic rescue five men were taken out alive. The other three are still shut in. It is thought they will be taken out alive.

Plague Does Not Exist.

Pretoria, Dec. 31.—An official contradiction is given to the report that the bubonic plague has broken out in the Delagoa bay district.

The Treaty Ratified.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 31.—The chamber of deputies has approved the extradition treaty with the United States.

Parker Is a Bad Man.

New York, Dec. 31.—Frank A. Parker, said to be the son of wealthy residents of Chicago, was remanded in police court here on a charge of forgery. The police say he is at the head of a dangerous gang of forgers.

Killed the Sheriff.

Seaside, Or., Dec. 31.—Charles Willard, a desperate character shot and killed Sheriff J. K. Williams and Deputy Lamers here and wounded Deputy Miller and was himself killed by State Senator Fulton.

INVESTIGATION IS ORDERED

BOARD OF OFFICERS WILL LOOK INTO THE BEEF SUBJECT.

Result of the Issue Between Gen. Miles and Gen. Egan Concerning the Quality of Beef Supplied the Army—Investigation Ordered at Gen. Egan's Request — General Subject of the Quality of Beef Supplies, and Particularly the Responsibility for the Loss of Three Hundred Thousand Pounds of Beef, Will Be Thoroughly Investigated.

Washington, Dec. 31.—As a result of the issue between Gen. Miles and Gen. Egan, concerning the quality of the beef supplied the army, and on request of Gen. Egan the war department has issued a special order for the assembling of a board of officers in Washington on next Tuesday at 10 a. m. to inquire into the general subject of the quality of beef supplies, and particularly as to the responsibility for the loss of 300,000 pounds of refrigerated beef sent to Porto Rico when the expedition under Gen. Miles was there. The special order is as follows:

"By direction of the secretary of war a board of survey is hereby ordered to convene at the war department, Washington, at 10 a. m., Jan. 3, 1899, to examine into and report upon the responsibility for the loss of about 300,000 pounds of refrigerated beef, the property of Swift & Co., Chicago, to ascertain and report if due and proper effort was made to feed this beef to the troops in Porto Rico, and to fix the responsibility if due and proper effort was not made; to ascertain and report the character and quality of the refrigerator and beef herein referred to; to ascertain and report if it was good and fit meat for issue, if it had been subjected to any chemical processes whatever, and to report whether or not the United States is responsible for its loss, or who, if any one, is responsible for its loss, and whether, in its opinion, Swift & Co. should or should not be imbursed for the beef. Detail for the board: Col. Charles H. Alden, assistant surgeon general; Col. James M. Moore, assistant quartermaster general; Col. Francis L. Guenther, Fourth United States artillery; Capt. L. C. Scherrer, assistant adjutant general, recorder."

The 300,000 pounds of beef referred to was shipped from Newport News to Porto Rico about the time that word came from Gen. Miles that he had supplied himself with fresh beef taken on the island. The refrigerated beef made the trip to Porto Rico and back, but by the time it reached Montauk Point it is understood to have spoiled, owing to the delay and consequent lack of refrigerating material.

MERRITT AND SHAFTER.

Changes in Assignments Announced by the War Department.

Washington, Dec. 31. — Several important army assignments are announced at the war department. Maj. Gen. Wesley Merritt has been relieved from command of the department of the Pacific, and from further duty pertaining to the Philippine islands, and will proceed to New York city and assume command of the department of the East. Maj. Gen. W. R. Shafter has been relieved from command of the department of the East and assigned the command of the department of the Pacific, to relieve Maj. Gen. Henry C. Merriam. Gen. Shafter will proceed at once to San Francisco and enter upon his duties.

MAKES TWO DEPARTMENTS.

Havana City Under Gen. Ludlow and Havana Province Under Gen. Lee.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The war department issued an order establishing two departments in and about Havana, viz: The department of Havana, comprising the city proper, suburbs and an area of about ten square miles, and the department of the province of Havana, comprising the territory outside of the territory proper. Maj. Gen. Ludlow is assigned to command the department comprising the city and suburbs, and Maj. Gen. Lee is assigned to the department outside of the city.

SERIOUS CHARGE.

Court Bailiff Indicted for Jury Bribing.

Chicago, Dec. 31. — Indictments for jury bribing were found against James Lynch and H. Powell by the grand jury. Charges in a number of similar cases are being investigated. Lynch is a court bailiff. Powell is a cattle buyer and was a juror in one of the cases. The jury bribing is alleged to have been done in the interests of a street railway company defendant in the case in question.

Serious Rioting.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 31.—Letters received from Punta Arenas announced that serious riots have occurred there between the sailors of the Italian cruiser Piemonte and the Chilean warship Gismn. About twenty men were wounded. The national guard was called to arms to re-establish order. The rioters were arrested and put at the disposition of their respective commanders.

Struck a Rock.

Hongkong, Dec. 31. — The British steamer Glen Avon, Capt. Pithie, has been wrecked on a rock. Part of her crew has been saved and landed here. The captain, chief officer and the second and fourth engineers are missing.

Spanish Money.

Madrid, Dec. 31. — The cabinet has agreed to send additional funds to Cuba for the repatriation of the Spanish troops remaining there. The prospects for the release of prisoners in the Philippines is discouraging.

INVESTIGATING THE HAYER CASE

Hospital Trustees Take Testimony at St. Peter.

St. Peter, Minn., Dec. 31. — All the members of the state board of hospital trustees arrived at St. Peter and immediately commenced an investigation of the charges of cruelty to patients recently brought against the St. Peter institution. Rev. Bauer of Minneapolis was present and made the direct charges. Chairman Mason examined the witnesses, and from the testimony gleaned the board decided that a post mortem examination would be necessary, and the board will adjourn after all the witnesses have been examined until the examination is completed, which will probably not be until Tuesday of next week. On the whole the affair partakes of the nature of a farce. The trustees, however, will give the matter a full and impartial investigation, and if the hospital authorities are at fault the offenders will be punished.

WARMED THINGS UP.

Spontaneous Combustion Causes a $70,000 Fire at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Dec. 31. — Fire, which started from spontaneous combustion in the dry kiln of the North side yards of the John Schroeder Lumber company, caused a loss of about $70,000; partially insured. The flames, after wiping out the dry kiln, communicated to the large planing mill, which was also destroyed. The large lumber yards escaped. The loss to the company is $50,000; insured for $25,000. The coal sheds of the Louis Henes, Jr., Coal company, adjoining, where 10,000 tons of coal are stored, also caught fire. The loss to this property is partial and is estimated at $20,000, fully insured. The steam barge Grace Drummond, belonging to the John Shroeder Lumber company, and which was lying in the river, was slightly damaged.

BANQUET TO BRYAN.

Business Men's Bryan Club of Lincoln Entertain the Colonel.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 31.—A complimentary reception and banquet to Col. W. J. Bryan was tendered by the Nebraska Business Men's Bryan club at the Lincoln hotel. Invitations were sent to 250 admirers of Bryan which were, with few exceptions, accepted. The only notable absentee was Congressman Bailey of Texas, who was to have responded to the toast "Democracy," but who telegraphed from Washington his inability to be present. The dining hall was thrown open at 9 o'clock and the speechmaking began an hour later. Mr. Bryan responded to the sentiment: "America's Mission; Let not the crimes of the East e'er crimson thy name. Be Freedom and Science and Virtue thy fame."

CHILDREN INCINERATED.

Small Boy and Girl Meet a Terrible Fate.

Osseo, Wis., Dec. 31. — Two little children, a son and daughter, aged four and two respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bonger, were burned to death in their home at Lincoln. It is believed the fire was set by the little boy because he was punished, and that part of his plan was that his sister should die with him. Mr. Bonger was away at work at the time and the mother of the children was making a call on a neighbor. The boy had been punished and was heard by his mother to make a remark that he was going to die and take his sister with him. The fire was started in a room where there was no stove, and it is believed the boy carried out his threat as planned.

POSTAGE TWO CENTS.

Dominion of Canada Comes Down in Its Rates.

Washington, Dec. 31.—The Canadian government, in a telegram from Postmaster General Mulock to Postmaster General Smith, announces that it has reduced the domestic letter rate from 3 to 2 cents per ounce, commencing Jan. 2. Under the convention between the United States and Canada letters are sent from this country to Canada for 2 cents, the domestic rate of each country applying to letters sent. The reduction now made is reciprocal, and, for the first time, permits letters to be sent from the other side at 2 instead of 3 cents.

SAWYER WILL IMPROVE.

Wisconsin's Former Senator Has Undergone a Critical Surgical Operation.

Oshkosh, Wis., Dec. 31. — Former United States Senator Philetus Sawyer, who has been suffering from an abscess on the back of his neck for some time, has just undergone a successful operation for a removal of the growth. It was thought, owing to the extreme age of the senator, that considerable danger would attend the operation. However, Dr. Walter Kempster, his attending physician, reports his patient as getting along nicely and that nothing serious is expected to result from the treatment.

VICTORIA FIRE.

Business Portion of British Columbia City Scorched.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 31.—Fire broke out in a cigar store on Government street, in the very heart of the city, and caused damage to the extent of $35,000. The fire department was out to an outlying suburb and valuable time was lost in getting to the fire. The Heathery block was gutted. The loss is about $20,000; partly insured.

Bad Weather in the Mediterranean.

Paris, Dec. 31—Terrible weather prevails in the Eastern Mediterranean. Several mail boats have been damaged.

Farm Residence Burned.

Jamestown, N. D., Dec. 31.—P. Morgan's farmhouse, a few miles out, was completely destroyed by fire, with contents. Loss, $5,000; partly covered by insurance. The fire originated from ashes thrown near the building.

Incendiarism.

Owatonna, Minn., Dec. 31.—Fire totally destroyed the Rosenbrock building, occupied by the Salvation Army, together with two adjacent frame structures. The fire was of incendiary origin.

SPANIARDS RETAKE GUAM

REFUSE TO RECOGNIZE THE AUTHORITY OF THE GOVERNOR.

They Set Up a Governor of Their Own and Ran Things With a High Hand—Massacre of the Spanish Garrison by the Natives on One of the Caroline Islands Is Reported—Iloilo Will Be Surrendered to the Americans—News Brought by the British Schooner Esmeralda—Exciting Times in the Far Pacific Since Last May.

Manila, Dec. 31.—The British schooner Esmaralda, which has just arrived here from the Ladrone islands, reports that after the United States cruiser Charleston left the island of Guam, in June last, the Spaniards refused to recognize the authority of Francis Portusach, who was verbally authorized by Capt. Glass to continue his former regime as governor and Jose Sisto, a former public administrator, was declared governor. He armed part of the native guards, collected a tax of $6 a head, and secreted fifteen tons of powder and a small stock of ammunition when the island was taken by the Americans.

Massacre at Carolines.

The schooner also reports the massacre of the Spanish garrison by the combined native forces at Panopi, Caroline islands. Henry Nautt, an educated chief, has been selected as the ruler. He is reported to be favorable to Americans. The British cruiser Buenaventura has gone to Iloilo to protect British interests there.

Iloilo Will Be Surrendered.

The Spanish steamer Remulus, which has just arrived here, confirms the report that the insurgents at Iloilo are inclined to surrender that town to the Americans if satisfied as to the form of government which will be accorded them.

Francis Portusach, whom the officers of the United States cruiser Charleston left in charge of the Ladrone islands, being the only American citizen there, is a native of Spain, where he was born about thirty years ago. He took out his citizenship papers in Chicago during the year 1888. He is said to be the son of a wealthy merchant of Barcelona. Panopi may mean the island of Puynipet, also referred to as Bonabe and Ponapee. It is probably the second in size of the Carolines proper.

THERE WILL BE NO TROUBLE.

So Says Mr. Palma, Head of the Late Cuban Junta.

New York, Dec. 31.—Tomas Estrada Palma, president of the late Cuban junta, said that he did not anticipate any serious disturbances in Havana at the raising of the American flag. Mr. Palma expressed a disbelief in the rumor that Gen. Menocal had taken the field. Gen. Menocal, he said, was a patriot and a brave man and would not become actively hostile to the Americans. Mr. Palma expressed regret that Gen. Gomez was not summoned to Havana, as such a courtesy would furnish the best guarantee of peace and order. "I hope for fraternity and intelligent sympathy between the Cubans and Americans," said Mr. Palma, "for it will greatly facilitate the beneficient work of the United States in Havana."

GEN. OTIS REPORTS.

Has Not Heard of the Landing of Our Forces at Iloilo.

Washington, Dec. 31.—A cablegram was received at the war department from Gen. Otis, in command at Manila, and, much to the disappointment of the officials, he announced that he had not yet heard of the result of the landing of Gen. Miller's forces at Iloilo. Provision has been made by the navy department for the establishment of a mail service between Manila and Guam, our new naval station in the Pacific. Admiral Dewey has been instructed that after the Yosemite arrives at Manila he must send a mail to the island of Guam at least once in every two months, using any vessel of the navy available for the service.

APPEAL TO KRUEGER.

To Prevent the Celebration of the Defeat of the Jameson Raid.

Pretoria, Dec. 31—Strong representations have been made to President Krueger urging him to forbid the proposed celebration on Jan 2 of the defeat of the Jameson raid, when, at the suggestion of the Pretoria Volkstein, the project was to burn Dr. Jameson in effigy. Owing to the president's action the celebration has been abandoned. There is no doubt that such an observance of Jameson day as planned would have led to serious riots.

OFF FOR CUBA.

Three Transports With Troops Sail From Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 31. — Three transports have just left for Cuba. They carry Gen. Sanger, brigade headquarters, hospital corps and the Twelfth New York regiment, on board the Manitoba; Gen. Bates and staff and the Sixth Ohio on the Minnewaska, and a battalion of the First infantry on the Saratoga.

Want Their Pay Restored.

Fall River, Mass., Dec. 31.—The textile workers of the city are preparing to ask for a restoration of the 10 per cent reduction in wages made in the early part of the year. The reduction affected more that 25,000 operatives.

The Iceland Geysers.

All the warm tints, from cream to russet, are found in the mineral deposit around the basin of the Great Geyser, Little Geyser, Strokkr (the Churn), and the Little Strokkr, while Blesi (the Blue One) is lined with exquisite white, like porcelain, making it a fitting vessel for the cooking of food and for furnishing boiling water for our tea and coffee. It was so smooth and beautiful that I seemed to be mutilating something rare when I chopped off pieces of its lining, but I knew they would be valuable souvenirs, and the uneasy, bubbling water would soon amend the deficiency.

The mud pools on this plain are the most dangerous, for they spout hot mud diagonally out of the earth. Coming upon them in one direction they are not seen, and many a visitor has gone home with a scalded foot. The hydraulic display is now very fitful, as inconsiderate tourists have injured the spouting fountains by loading stones into them to see them cast out, so you must take your tent with you and encamp on the plain to await the pleasure of their majesties. Blesi will serve you well while waiting. The Great Geyser had not spouted for a week when we were there, and such surliness indicated a near activity. The water spouted unusually high when it finally appeared, 150 feet, and showed all the tints of the rainbow, majestic at the same time and mysterious. It played for 15 minutes, and then its beautiful cascades subsided in feathery mist, a refined and graceful withdrawal.—International.

One Way of Settling It.

An amusing comedy in real life is reported from Paris. A married man was in a cafe near the Opera with his better half one evening and left her for a few moments. While he was absent, his wife was insulted. The lady rose from her seat and went to meet her husband. The latter re-entered the cafe in order to chastise the offender. The latter, however, had gone, but the husband found his name and address.

The man was a card printer. The irate husband went to this person's place, but he did not find him at home, so he left his card with the chief shopman, saying, "Your employer will know what that means."

"All right," rejoined the person addressed, "we shall send up to you tomorrow."

On the following day the indignant husband was amazed to receive a collection of 100 visiting cards in his own name, all beautifully printed, accompanying them being the inevitable bill. This helped to close the matter, and it is recorded that after brief explanations on both sides the husband paid the bill, and the master printer apologized to the lady.—Pearson's Weekly.

Cats and Shellfish.

"Did you ever notice the cats about the oyster stands of the city?" asked a gentleman who takes an interest in zoology. "They are invariably as fat as butter. That is because they get plenty of shellfish to eat, and, by the way, the fondness of cats for that kind of diet is a mystery which I'd like to hear some evolutionist explain. A cat will go crazy over a shrimp, and it is all the same whether it's a city cat or a hayseed cat that never saw water except in a cistern. It's a taste born in them, like their fear of dogs, and the question is, How the mischief did they acquire it?

"According to the evolution theory, such traits are inherited and traceable to conditions away back toward the beginning of things. That would seem to indicate that the primal cat was a fisher, but how is one to reconcile the idea with the instinctive abhorrence of the tribe for water? Their craving for shellfish is certainly so pronounced that there must be an excellent reason behind it, and, altogether, it is quite a pretty little problem for some savant. It is too hard for me."—Exchange.

Women Nameless in Korea.

The Korean woman has not even a name. In her childhood she receives a nickname, by which she is known in the family and by her near friends, but which when she arrives at maturity is employed only by her parents. To all other persons she is "the sister" or "the daughter" of such and such a one. After her marriage her name is buried—she is absolutely nameless. Her own parents refer to her by mentioning the district into which she has married. Should her marriage be blessed with children she is "the mother" of so and so. If it happens that a woman has to appear in a law court, the judge gives her a special name for use while the case lasts in order to save time and to simplify matters.—National Zeitung.

The Simple Minded Duke.

The Duke of Wellington was largely endowed with that modesty or simplicity which makes a great man almost unconscious of his greatness. He met a lady friend, who was going to see a model of the battle of Waterloo, relates a writer in The Cornhill Magazine, and remarked to her: "Ah, you're going to see Waterloo. It's a very good model. I was at the battle, you know." Surveying a field of battle he could detect almost at a glance the weak points in the disposition of the contending forces, but he could never tell whether his dinner was cooked well or ill.

The Sycamore Tree.

The sycamore has been called the Egyptian fig tree. The date of its being planted in England is not known, but it was very early. Mary, queen of Scots, brought over from France a young sycamore, which she planted in the gardens of Holyrood, and from this have sprung all the beautiful groves of sycamores now to be seen in Scotland.

Ulcerated Teeth.

Never put a hot water bag to an ulcerated tooth. If the dentist is unavailable at the moment, apply an ice bag, which will reduce the swelling, and next to the gum lay a hot raisin.

A Wonderful Floating Snail.

There is a small snail which is so fond of the sea that it never comes to land and it builds such a capital boat for itself and its eggs that while large ships are sinking and steamers are unable to face the storm it tosses about in perfect safety.

The little snail is of a violet color and is therefore called ianthina. It has a small shell and there projects from the under part of the body a long, tonguelike piece of flesh. This is the raft, and it is built upon most scientific principles, for it has compartments in it for air. It is broad and the air compartments are underneath, so that it cannot capsize.

Moreover, the snail knows how to stow away its cargo, for the oldest eggs and those which hatch the soonest are placed in the center, and the lightest and newest on the sides of the raft. The ianthina fills its own air compartments by getting a globule of air underneath its head, the body is then curved downward beneath the raft, and the head being tilted on one side, the air rushes up and fills the spaces. It feeds on a beautiful little jellyfish, which has a flat, raftlike form with a pretty little sail upon it, and they congregate in multitudes when the sea is calm.

Sometimes specimens are washed upon the northwestern coast of France and when they are handled they give out a violet dye.—Philadelphia Press.

Microbes in Milk.

It will be readily granted that the inspection of milk and its sources of supply is of even more importance from a public health point of view than the inspection of meat, since milk is so largely used as the food of infants.

Milk immediately it is taken from the healthy cow contains no microbes. Hardly has the milk settled in the pail than they abound, as many as 10,000 in one-quarter cubic inch having been detected. The question which naturally presents itself is, "Where do they come from?" From the soiled teats, from the soiled hands of the workers, from the atmosphere of the milking shed and from the pails themselves. They possess the property of propagating very rapidly.

M. de Freudenrich of the Berne laboratory asserts that milk just drawn containing in one-quarter cubic inch 9,000 microbes seven hours later was found to contain 60,000. After a period of 25 hours had elapsed 5,000,000 microbes were present in the same quantity of milk, and if the temperature be raised to 95 degrees F. the microbic population of the same milk during the same time would reach the enormous total of 812,500,000.

Children appear particularly prone to contract consumption through the agency of milk containing tubercle bacilli.—Chambers' Journal.

How We Walk.

In The Literary Digest appears a translation of a review of "Comment on Marche" ("How We Walk"), the latest book on the subject by Messrs. Regnault and Raoul. In this work it is claimed that we have been wrongly educated in walking and that the erect posture and firm step that we have been led to believe were evidences of health and strength are conventional and vicious.

M. Marey, who wrote the introduction to the volume, says that there is a style of walking that enables one, without excessive fatigue, to go distances of from 20 to 25 miles in a third of the time usually required. This may be accomplished by walking with the knees bent and the body inclined forward, a method which has been observed in professional pedestrians, mountaineers, peasants, hunters and soldiers fatigued by long marches. In not adopting this method, it is claimed that, as with all the other acts of life, we remain slaves of conventional æsthetics.

He Knows How Adam Felt.

A young man was recently taken to a Lewiston hospital and suffered the removal of a rib. When he came to himself, he was told what had been done and seemed satisfied. Shortly after he dropped into a semiconscious state and kept calling for "the woman." For two days he was delirious, and frequently called for "the woman." "I want to see the woman," he kept saying.

At last the nurse in desperation said, "Well, I'm the woman." The man looked at her critically from top to toe and said, "Who would have thought that they could have made such a pretty girl out of one of my ribs." And then he settled back on his pillow, and when he awoke again he was in his right mind and was better.—Kennebec Journal.

They Work Alike.

A fly had fallen into the ink well of a certain author who writes a very bad and a very inky hand. The writer's little boy rescued the unhappy insect and dropped him on a piece of paper. After watching him intently for awhile he called to his mother, "Here's a fly, mamma, that writes just like papa."—Current Literature.

The German Fire Department.

"I have the honor to announce, captain, that the fire is in the fourth story, and our ladders and hose will reach only to the second."

"Indeed! Then we'll have to wait till the fire gets down to the second."—Fliegende Blätter.

The tongue is divided into three regions of taste, the first of which is chiefly sensible to pungent and acid tastes, the middle portion to sweets or bitters, while the back is confined entirely to the flavors of roast meats, butter, oils and rich and fatty substances.

We never enjoy perfect happiness. Our most fortunate successes are mingled with sadness. Some anxieties always perplex the reality of our satisfaction.—Corneille.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

Unfortunate Mary Wollstonecraft.

Conspicuous among the brilliant and beautiful women of her time was the lovely and every way unfortunate Mary Wollstonecraft Godwin, the first agitator of the question of "woman's rights." No woman, with the exception of Mme. de Staël, made so great an impression on the public mind. Her new and startling doctrines were seized with an avidity scarcely credible at this day, and her famous book, "The Vindication of the Rights of Women," was the theme of the most universal praise and abuse.

Thomas Paine, the author of "The Rights of Man," was one of her familiar acquaintances, but their intercourse was an argument, their views neither on this subject nor any other coinciding. In these arguments Paine either lost his temper or became sulky, and the woman champion won an easy victory.

Until her marriage with Mr. Godwin she was the friend of Mrs. Siddons, but she, with the majority of her admirers, declined to sanction this union, for she had married some years before an American called Imlay, to whom she had been a most devoted wife. The man, however, took advantage of the fact that the marriage was only a civil one, performed in Paris, and deserted her. She then married Mr. Godwin, but this act placed her in a position no charity could explain away. Death, however, soon covered her faults with a pitiful oblivion. She left an infant daughter a few hours old, who afterward became the wife of Percy Bysshe Shelley.—Exchange.

Those Black Eyes.

"The small son of the people," says the Philadelphia Record, "and his little sister were inside the great West Philadelphia church for the first time. 'Um—m—my! but it's a beaut, place,' he whispered. 'I bet people wot belong here comes every time dey can.' Her breath came to her in little gasps. Her soiled little finger pressed on his with thrilled intensity. Her eyes feasted on the splendid chancel. 'Heaven mus' be nex' door,' she said. They hardly moved throughout the service, and never once let go each other's hands, for it was as a strange land. At last the sweet voiced procession of choir boys came down the aisle. At its head was a slim young seraph, with a face as fair and pure as the linen he wore. Faint, dark circles beneath his eyes completed the ethereal effect.

"'Is dem angels?' the little girl began, but stopped short, surprised at the look on her brother's face.

"'Dat kid in front's Bill Griggs, wot I licked last week fer swipin' t'ings from ole Mrs. Maguire's apple stand. He ain't got over dem black eyes I gov 'im yet. Come on, let's git out.' His face was stern and set as they went. She furtively wiped a tear."

Field and the Street Arabs.

McClure's Magazine relates the following anecdote of Eugene Field, whose fondness for children was his dominant trait:

Never was a man more devoted to his wife. Nevertheless on the day that made her his he was guilty of keeping her waiting for him at the church. The bridal party had assembled and were rapidly becoming uneasy. At length, after an anxious delay, some one went out in search of the missing bridegroom.

He was found on the street a short distance away, down on his knees in the mud, absorbed in settling a dispute between two small street arabs, which had arisen over a game of marbles. Listening with eager interest to the testimony vociferated at either ear by the belligerent parties and their friends and trying to evolve a peace compromise out of a very lively quarrel, he was abruptly reminded that just then he had something more important to attend to, and hastened penitently away to make his anxious bride Mrs. Field.

She Was Unduly Excited.

Bishop Selwyn was a hard worker and never spared himself. He was one day seizing an hour's much needed sleep on the bench of a little roadside station in Derbyshire, en route for a confirmation. A lady of some social distinction and her daughter were on their way to the same rite, the daughter as a confirmee. They went to the solitary porter and said they were afraid to pass the drunken man on the platform, to which the porter replied in tones of much solemnity, "If you please, my lady, it's the lord bishop!"—Mainly About People.

England's "Rose Regiment."

The custom of wearing roses in their headgear by the Lancashire regiment on the anniversary of the battle of Minden originated in a curious manner. On the day of the battle, Aug. 1, 1759, the men passed through a field of roses, each man plucking a rose and placing it in his bonnet, wearing the flower during the fight. This commenced the custom which obtains at the present day of wearing roses on the anniversary of the battle.

The Sultan's Throneroom.

The throneroom of the sultan at Constantinople is a gorgeous sight. The gilding is unequaled by any other building in Europe, and from the ceiling hangs a superb Venetian chandelier, the 200 lights of which make a gleam like that of a veritable sun. At each of the four corners of the room tall candelabra in baccarat glass are placed, and the throne is a huge seat covered with red velvet, and having arms and back of pure gold.

Rosebery's Definition of Memory.

Here is a joli mot of Lord Rosebery's—would one ever expect mots from Lord Rosebery?—told in our garden by a woman who heard him say it at a dinner. Some one asked him what memory was. "Memory," said Lord Rosebery, "is the feeling that steals over us when we listen to our friends' original stories."—Harper's Bazar.

THE TRADE JOURNAL.

An Enlargement and a Great Premium Offer.

Since H. P. Hall purchased the St. Paul Trade Journal it has been rapidly forging to the front, both in increase of subscriptions and in advertising patronage. Its success has been so marked that it was given a material enlargement on the 10th inst, by the addition of a column to the page, the standard number of at least 8 pages being maintained and often times more. It gives much entertaining reading matter in this space, as well as valuable business information and market quotations and is a publication the business men of the Northwest cannot afford to do without. The Trade Journal is issued weekly at the subscription price of one dollar per year, and as an incentive for subscriptions Mr. Hall offers, for a limited period, to send The Trade Journal for one year and the Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, a volume containing 1,281 pages and 80,000 words, for one dollar. The dictionary will be sent express charges prepaid so that the total cost for fifty-two copies of The Trade Journal and a standard unabridged dictionary will be one dollar.—St. Paul Dispatch.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. In Probate Court.
County of Red Lake. } Special Term, January 3rd 1899.

In the matter of the estate of Alexander Banisdale, deceased.

Whereas, Certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the Letters of Administration of Alexander Banisdale, late of the City Toronto, Ontario, deceased, and the probate thereof in Her Majesty's Surrogate Court in and for the County of York, in the Province of Ontario have been delivered in this court;

And Whereas, Eliza Dunn has filed therewith her petition, representing among other things that said Alexander Banisdale lately died in said County of York, Ontario, intestate, possessed of certain real estate, situated in said County of Red Lake and that said Petitioner is Administratrix in her Majesty's Surrogate Court and praying that said instrument may be admitted to probate and that letters of administration be to her issued thereon;

It is Ordered, That the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this Court, at the Probate Office in said county, on the 27th day of January 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for, or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is Further Ordered, That notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Hilaire Spectator, a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire, in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 3rd day of January A. D. 1899.

Alex. Thompson, of Crookston is here to day looking after business in his line.

Supt. Ballard of the Crookston Lumber Co., was here last Saturday between trains.

After a two weeks lay off the traveling men are around again drumming up trade.

The country this side of the Pacific is saved. Hobson has left for the Phillipines.

BORN:—To Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Odegaord Dec. 29, 1898 a son, unusual size and weight.

The ice harvest is now on at St. Hilaire. Chas. Fellman is monopolizing the business.

Master L. Meehen of Thief River Falls was visiting with Eddie and Joe Freeman last week.

We would like to have a few more correspondents in the country. Stationery and stamps furnished.

WANTED:—20,000 poplar poles for car stakes. Apply at office of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company for size, etc.

A man that can't afford to pay for his paper (less than two cents a week) will never succeed in any kind of business.

H. E. Mussey, editor of the Thief River Press passed through here yesterday enroute home from the county seat.

Paul Meridigh, the upper Falls butcher was here yesterday to meet his mother-in-law who came up from Red Lake Falls.

Mrs. Fred Elkhoff and daughter Pearl returned Friday from a ten days visit with relatives at Grand Forks and Crookston.

Now is the time to talk over water works, electric lights and sewerage and when election comes around in the spring vote for the bonds.

Sheriff Norlend was here the first of the week enroute to the county seat to wind up matters pertaining to that office and handing over the keys.

O. T. Taadberg the county treasurer elect went to the county seat last Monday to file his bonde and have them approved by the county commissioners.

Change of time on the Great Northern system took place yesterday with the exception of this branch. It would be impossible to make a change on this line.

Bill Clerk McConnell of the St. Hilaire Lumber Co., returned from his holiday vacation Monday and is on duty again. He reports a delightfull time while absent.

Miss Annie McKenzie who has been spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. McAndress of this village returned to her home at St. Thomas, N. Dak., Monday.

The correct way of pronouncing the name of the present sheriff is saw-saw. Sampson is the way it is spelled, but the French have peculiar ways of pronouncing names.

Rev. H. Logan will preach at 11 a. m. next Sunday. At 8 p. m. also will be preaching. Morning subject: "The Power of an All Controling Idea." You are invited to both services.

The dance given at the Hotel Markham Saturday evening was largely attended. The old year was danced out and one leap into the new and all departed early on account of the Sabbath.

John Morgan left last Saturday for St. Paul in order to visit old time friends and take in the inauguration of Gov. John Lind. He will return the latter part of the week.

The following Royal Neighbors will drive to Red Lake Falls this afternoon to be present at the installation of officers this evening:—Mr. and Mrs. Sorsoleil, Mrs. H. Thibedeau, Mrs. L. Sinclair, Mrs. F. Eikhoff, Miss L. Hall and Jas. M. Hall.

If Jim Hill wants to hold this territory within the Great Northern system he had better get a hump on him as there is a move on foot to extend the Northern Pacific to the Lake of the Woods from St. Hilaire.—Roseau Times.

Emil E. Zeh and Miss Delia B. Forder were united in marriage last Saturday at Thief River Falls. Both of these popular young people are well and favorably known in this village and the SPECTATOR wishes them good sailing through life.

The St. Hilaire Lumber Co., are receiving a large number of poplar poles from the farmers, which they intend using for car stakes as soon as shipping starts up. They say they can still use a lot more. Call and see them and make a contract for a few hundred.

P. G. Paradis left last week on an extended trip to Canada taking advantage of excursion rates. It has been thirteen years since Pete left the scenes of his childhood days and the old folks at home. It will be interesting to hear him talk when he returns home about being two weeks below Quebec.

Considerable trouble was experienced with engine No. 31 in pulling the G. N. train over the Red Lake Falls branch Monday afternoon. The wind was blowing from the northwest and what little snow was in the air was blown into one of the cuts. With the aid of a shovel or two, she was dug out—backed up—made a charge at the drift and came in three hours behind time. Not over a foot of snow was on the track.

Carl Kretzshmar has leased the O. K. roller mill at Thief River Falls to Messrs. Barzen, McGinne & Haason for a period of ten years, commencing Jan. 1st 1899. The first two have been engaged in the liquor business at that place for a number of years while the latter has been a wheat buyer for the Jacobi Elevator Co., for some time. They are all well and favorably known throughout the territory and no doubt will make a success in the milling business.

Subscribers knowing themselves indebted to us for two years and over are not doing the square thing with us by hanging back. A great many have paid and to them we are very thankful. We run an article in another column of this issue about a farmer selling 1,800 bushels of wheat—read that article over twice—put yourself down as the editor—and then—pay the printer who has been carrying you over for several years. We must have money to carry on the business.

Dancing may have its evils; so has almost every form of amusement, and there is scarcely a virtue that by overpractice may not be converted into a vice. But do you know that it is absolutely impossible to divorce music and motion? The pious old elder who frowns at the mention of the word dancing, contradicts himself unconsciously when he keeps time with his foot to the Psalm on Sunday morning; and he quickens the tap and allows his face to relax into a smile on Monday as the band plays "There will be a hot time in the Old Town, to-night."—Exchange.

Another Saw Mill.

The articles of incorporation of the Clearwater Manufacturing company have been filed with the register of deeds of this county. This company, which is also known as the "Ceder Mill company," will build a mill at Red Lake Falls and manufacture cedar shingles, telegraph poles, etc., and is composed wholly of Red Lake Falls business men with the exception of one, Marcus Johnson, of Atwater Minn. The officers are: President, Dr. Watson; vice president, Marcus Johnson; secretary and manager, Edward F. West; treasurer, H. H. Zaiser. The capital stock of the company is $50,000.

Cattle Wanted.

I will buy any kind of cattle at all times and pay the highest possible prices. If you have anything to sell leave your name and description of your cattle with S. M. Dainard.

J. A. DAINARD.

Will Wed To-Day.

Cards have been issued announcing the marriage of Miss Minnie Olson to Mr. Oscar F. Post which will take place some time this afternoon in presence of a few invited guests outside of the family. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. H. Logan at the residence of the bride's parents. The groom is well and favorably known having resided in St. Hilaire for the past fifteen years. He is the junior member of the firm of Rapp & Post. His straight forward business ways and accommodating manners have drawn many friends and customers his way and all speak very highly of him. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs Carl H. Olson, who have been residents of St. Hilaire the past seventeen years. She is highly spoken of by all those who have the pleasure of her acquaintance, and all join in wishing the new couple much joy in their married life. Cosy rooms have been fitted up and they will be at home after January 12th.

"You fellows lack enterprise, a whole lot of things happened around town and you never said a word about it. For instance, I was at Bedford for two days and I had visitors at my house, not a word in the Commercial about it, though," so speak a citizen of our town recently. We are at fault many times, it is true, but when it becomes necessary to snoop around and pry into family affairs to get items we find it difficult. If you have friends visiting you or if you have been away, kindly tell us and we will make a note of it.—Mitchell Commercial.

All Red Lake county orders drawn on the revenue fund and presented prior to Dec. 29th 1897, are now payable Interest is stopped after this date, so any one holding such orders will do well to present them for payment.

Mr. Ed. Rushton, the only St. Hilaire volunteer who seen service in the late war, and was right in the midst of bullets and shells in the Santiago campaign surprised his many friends yesterday by dropping in on them unexpected. He left Matanzas three weeks ago Friday and is home on a furlough visiting relatives and friends. He rather likes this bracing atmosphere we have been having lately and the change is preferable as it was 102 in the shade the day he left Cuba. The stories he relates are very interesting. He has seen hard service especially after making the londing at Caimito where they were under fire for six days. He gives the battle ship Iowa great credit for pouring hot shot and shells into the enemy (10,000) thereby driving them back and the 1500 troops were safely landed. He is perfectly satisfied that without the aid of the battle ship not one would have been left alive to tell how it happened. As to the inhabitants he says most all from the age of five to sixteen live in the water from daylight to dark for want of covering on their body. To use the slang expression, he is not stuck on the country and when mustered out of the service will come back to the states.

Conundrum.

Will anybody tell us why President James J. Hill does not advertise his railroad in the newspapers? It would certainly accommodate the traveling public to be able to find by a reference to them that there was such a road in the state and that its passenger trains were started and stopped at stations at given times. It is true the newspapers are called upon occasionally, and all too frequently, to publish accounts of collisions, smash-ups and accidents on that road, but this is a sort of advertising that they do not ask compensation for in the way of transportation mileage or trip tickets.—Moorhead News.

Across the Nicaragua neck is 169 miles—of which 120 miles is open water furnished by the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua—thus only forty-eight miles of canal must be dug. It is 14,840 miles from New York to San Francisco via the Horn—4,927 miles via the canal. An outside figure for its completion is $125,000,000. The Panama canal has already cost more that twice that. The Suez canal is sixty-six miles long and cost about $100,000,000, requiring nine years to dig. The American Nicaragua canal will be the greatest achievement arranged for in this century—though it will not be completed until—probably 1906 or 1907.

A Broken Rail.

A broken rail on this line wrecked the southbound train last Thursday evening. The accident occurred at bridge No. 5, about three miles east of Shirley. Engineer Laramie was bowling along at the ordinary rate of speed, when upon looking back over his train he saw the rear cars begin to pile up. After the passage of the engine and three cars, a rail broke under the fourth and the result was that three box cars, the combination baggage and smoking car, and the passenger coach all left the track.

The engine had just reached the bridge and the cars bumped along the ties until the first one to leave the rails struck the bridge when it went over the embankment and upset, followed by all of the others.

The only person who was injured so as to require the services of a physician was Mrs. Charles Wilcox, of Sunrise, Minn., and her injuries are not serious. The cars, one of which was loaded with flour, were quite badly wrecked, and the freight scattered considerably

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent.

It seems from the reports of Gen. Otis that Aguinaldo will be unable to hold his government together long enough to be officially asked to step down and out by Gen. Otis. His Cabinet has resigned and he has not been able to form another, but that is no reason why a good enough government for the Philippines would not be formed from the educated and well-to-do natives, if this government chose to lend a hand in doing so. Aguinaldo is an adventurer, who was a priest's servant only a few years ago, and who has been seeking only his own gain, not the welfare of the islands. He and several others of a kind sold out the Philippine insurgents for a snai in Spanish gold and then Aguinaldo stole the money from his fellow traitors.

The Vanderbilt interests are not satisfied with owning one seat in the Senate that promised by Boss Platt for Chauncey Depew: they are out for another seat. The body of Senitor Morril, of Vt., who died in Washington last week, and whos funeral will be held in the Senate chamber tomorrow was hardly cold before the wires were being pulled to get Dr. Seward Webb, who marrfed one of the Vanderbilt girls and who acquired a residence in Vermont several years ago, for the purpose of awaiting Senator Morril's death, appointed to succeed him. This scheme will be watched with much interest, particarly as it has been a boast of Vermonters that the state has never had a rich Senator. Perhaps tho Vanderbilt who owns "Biltmore", in N. C., also has an eye on the Senate.

Watches Clocks and Jewelery.

I will carry a full line of wathes, clocks and jewlery hereafter at Johnson's drug store. Anything you want that we do not carry in stock we will order for you at ten per cent above the wholesale prices and by doing this you will save money by dealing at home. Once a farmer had 1,800 bushels of wheat, which he sold not to one grain merchant, but to 1,800 different dealers, a bushle each. A few of them paid him in cash, but far the most would pay later. A few months passed and his bank account ran low. "How is this?" he said. "My 1,800 bushels of grain should have kept me in affluence until another crop is raised, but I have ported with the grain and have instead only a vast number of accounts, so small and scattered that I cannot get around and collect fast enough to pay expenses." So he posted up public notices and asked all those who owed him to pay quickly. But few came. The rest said, "Mine is only a small matter, and I will go and pay one of these days," forgetting that though each account was very small, when all were put together they meant a large sum to the man. Things went on thus. The man got feeling so badly that he fell out of bed and awoke, and running to his granary found his 1,800 bushels of wheat still safe there. He had only been dreaming. Moral—The next day he went to the publisher of his paper and said, "Here, sir is the pay for your paper, and when next year's subscription is due you can depend on me to pay promptly. I stood in the position of an editor last night, and I know how it feels to have one's honestly earned money scatterdd all over the country in small amounts."

A Question in Ichthyology.

"I wonder if fishes have brains," reflectively remarked the Presiding Genius of the Woman's Page, in her low, pleasant voice.

While the Doctor Johnson of the group was clearing his throat for a ponderous reply, the bald-headed Scoffer came in and said:

"I guess not. At any rate, they don't know enough to get in out of the wet."

The Rounder cackled his assent, and what promised to be an interesting inquiry was abandoned, more in sorrow than in anger.

Just a Cough

Not worth paying attention to, you say. Perhaps you have had it for weeks.

It's annoying because you have a constant desire to cough. It annoys you also because you remember that weak lungs is a family failing.

Selecting Seed Corn.

"In selecting seed corn for next season each one should have a fixed standard in his mind to aim at and every ear of corn should be chosen on account of its being near the standard," says a contributor to "Country Gentleman."

"My father practiced selecting his seed corn at husking time. His first rule was to choose the upper ear on a stalk having two or more good plump ears. A few of the inner husks were left on the ear to mark it for saving, when putting the corn in the crib. When all the seed was collected the ears were braided into large bundles and hung up to dry, out of the reach of mice or rats. The second rule of selection was more useful than the first. He chose only the ears set close to the stalks, having a short footstalk and a small or medium-sized shank at the end of the cob. Such ears husk easily, as the cob breaks close to the corn and the husks cling to the footstalk and not to the ear when husking.

"Following these directions, we always saved a large supply of seed corn, and the type of ears and corn and ear-setting became noted and uniform. Many hills of corn having two stalks would yield three ears each, and where there were three or four stalks in a hill often all but one of them had two ears each. Prolific bearing was the rule. And this was clearly produced by constant, persistent selection following one line. At the same time the ears were set close to the stalks so that the weight of grain was balanced. Thus storms would not so readily tangle and twist the crop, or carry it down to the ground.

"I know of farmers today who have been saving their seed on another line for many years. They choose the longest ears to be found, without any regard to the stalks or footstalks. The result has been to establish a type of corn with one long ear growing on a long footstalk, attached to the main stalk low down, often close to the ground, so that when cutting the corn the footstalk is cut and the ear is thus separated from the stalk and has to be picked up and put in the stout. And when the ears are not thus cut off, they hang down and drop to the ground and become watersoaked or rot by the time of husking. These long drooping ears often bear down so heavily that the stalks are carried to the ground early in the season and cannot fully mature the crop."

Peach Yellows in Ohio.

A bulletin from the Ohio Experiment Station says: This destructive, contagious disease of peach trees has shown greater virulence the current season than during any other year since the station began to study it. This applies to all of the peach growing districts of the state except, possibly, the Maumee valley, wherein the "yellows" has not yet been known to occur. Such is the number of diseased trees, however, in the affected portions of the state, as to call for prompt and urgent measures to limit the spread of the disease. This can be done, so far as known, only by prompt removal of affected trees, root and branch, and burning them as near as possible to the point of removal. Dragging the affected trees through the orchard is not advisable.

The symptoms of "yellows" are:

1. Premature ripening, by from one to six weeks, of fruit which is high colored and spotted and has the flesh marked with red.

2. Premature development of winter buds in the formation of short shoots or clusters of narrow, elongated leaves. This growth is often very conspicuous where the old leaves have fallen from the present year's growth.

3. Growth of shoots from adventitious buds on the trunk and larger branches of the affected trees.

4. For the present season, general yellow color of the trees with peculiar backward folding of the leaves and general premature dropping of the foliage.

These symptoms, with illustrations, are described in Bulletins 72 and 92 of the Ohio Experiment Station and by the aid of the facts known, growers will be able to distinguish the diseased trees. It is urged that such trees be removed before the close of the present season.

Where communities wish to organize for this purpose, the Ohio statute provides for the appointment, by the township trustees upon petition of five freeholders in the township, of boards of fruit commissioners of two members. These commissioners have generally proved exceedingly valuable and useful in the work for which they are appointed.

Killing the Aphis.

A horticulturist speaking at an Illinois meeting said: "I think we have solved the question in Southern Illinois. We remove the earth round the trees for a distance of three feet from the trees and to a depth of three inches. On the roots thus laid bare we sprinkle powdered tobacco. The earth is then put back, and when the rains come the tobacco is washed down onto the roots and the aphis are killed. I think it a great thing; it takes very little tobacco. You can always tell when a tree is infested by the woolly aphis by the roots growing in knots and being covered with mildew. The aphis is very easily killed. It is a good idea for a man when setting a tree to dip the roots in a mild solution of soap suds."

Fresh Eggs in Demand.—A great many of the eggs that reach the large cities are what is known as limed eggs, and are purchased by those who buy the cheapest in the market, bakers being the best customers. They do not begin to compete with strictly fresh eggs, which are bought by a different class of customers, and it is doubtful if it really pays to lime the eggs except in the extreme west, or in those sections where eggs in the summer are very cheap and plentiful. In the east there is always a ready sale for fresh eggs.—Ex.

Poison Ivy.—Poison Ivy (Rhus toxicodendron) is known also as three-leaved ivy and in some localities as poison oak. In growth it much resembles the harmless Virginia creeper or American ivy (Ampelopsis quinquefolia). To avoid mistaking one for the other, remember that the poison ivy has but three leaflets on a stem, while the Virgina creeper has five. Children distinguish them as "three-leaved ivy" and "five-leaved ivy." The poison ivy bears clusters of small smooth berries, greenish white when ripe.

CITIZENS OF WAIT-A-WHILE.

Curious Controversy in Australia Over the Name of a Station.

A curious dispute has been settled in New South Wales. On the railway between Berrigan and Finley there is a station named Wait-a-While. The railway authorities in Sydney have long regarded this appellation of depot on such a business route as the Finley line as a satire on their operations, and they intimated to the residents of the district a desire to alter the name to "Hurry-on-There," "One-Side-Please," or some other phrase pregnant with up-to-date railway life and movement.

This radical proposal resulted in violent protests from the residents of Wait-a-While, who said that the name had been good enough for their fathers and for them, and that it would have to suit the railroad magnates way up in Sydney. The parties have been in severe conflict for some time, but ultimately the commissioners have given way, and the romantic cognomen will stand.—Westminster Gazette.

Another Pair.

A new anecdote to show the evils of intemperance is found in Modern Society.

A Russian peasant, returning from town, where he had bought a new pair of boots and drunk a few glasses of spirits, fell asleep by the roadside, and was stripped of his boots by a light-fingered tramp. The fellow's sleep remained unbroken until a passing wagoner, seeing him lying half across the track, shouted to him to "take his legs out of the way."

"My legs?" echoed the half-aroused sleeper, rubbing his eyes; "those legs ain't mine—mine had boots on!"

Mrs. Hoffman Describes How She Wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for Advice, and Is Now Well

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using your Vegetable Compound I was a great sufferer. I have been sick for months, was troubled with severe pain in both sides of abdomen, sore feeling in lower part of bowels, also suffered with dizziness, headache, and could not sleep. I wrote you a letter describing my case and asking your advice. You replied telling me just what to do. I followed your directions, and cannot praise your medicine enough for what it has done for me. Many thanks to you for your advice. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me, and I will recommend it to my friends.—MRS. FLORENCE R. HOFFMAN, 512 Ruland St., Canton, O.

The condition described by Mrs. Hoffman will appeal to many women, yet lots of sick women struggle on with their daily tasks disregarding the urgent warnings until overtaken by actual collapse.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

WHITE-HAIRED ORACLE.

Rules Over a Tribe That Is Centuries Behind the Times.

From the Two Republics: As is well known to all who have looked into the matter carefully—for instance, such men as Lumholtz, Starr and Saville—there are in remote parts of Mexico today to be found portions of tribes of Indians who are practically as much given to idolatry, superstition and witchcraft as were their forbears in the vanished years when the gleaming banner of Castile and Aragon glanced amid the peaks and valleys of Mexico, announcing the advent of a stronger race and more victorious faith. The other day, while making a little trip over the Interoceanic, that runs through so many picturesque Indian towns, I happened to meet in one of these villages a very intelligent Indian, who told me the following. Whether it is true or not I do not know—"I tell the tale as 'twas told to me." He said that on the northern slope of Popocateptl, near the foot, there is a large cave almost unknown to the outside world. In this cave lives an old white-haired Indian who is the oracle of a small tribe of Indians in that vicinity, whose language is unlike that of any of the neighboring towns. This little tribe has never been conquered either by the Spaniards or by the church, or by the modern government of the republic. The Indians have preserved all their old customs and traditions until this day, and are practically as they were 400 years ago. One of the very curious institutions among them is that of the oracle, or seer, who dwells in the above-mentioned cave all alone. He is always the oldest and wisest man of the tribe. He is looked upon with the same superstitious reverence as were the oracles of Dodona and Delphos in the boyhood of the world. In that cave are preserved rare gems of curiously carved emeralds, such as the great "Malinche" sent home to Spain; idols of gold and silver and copper and stone, pearl necklaces from the far-off Gulf of California, and strange robes of feather work, of which but very few examples are known today outside the pages of Sahagun, Prescott or Clavigero. There are also ranged in fitting order the ancient gods of this strange people, of whom this old man is the high priest. Once a month a commission of the oldest men of the tribe visits the cave and takes with it, in the name of the people, offerings of fruit and flowers and eatables and incense in honor of the gods and their oracle. Upon all affairs of importance to the tribe this old man is consulted, and his judgments are as those of the Medes and the Persians. I asked whether it would be possible to visit him or not and was told no one, not even members of the same tribe, outside the before-mentioned "commission," had ever seen the inside of that strange and mysterious cave. My informant told me that at a certain point all persons are stopped by a guard and told that they can proceed no further upon pain of death. And this is not a tale of 400 years ago, but of today. The tribe and the cave are at the north side of Popocateptl and every Saturday in Atlixco members of this tribe are at the market to buy and sell their simple necessities of life. It is enough to see them to realize at once the great difference between them and the other Mexican Indians who are to be seen there at that time. Not only is their style of clothing very different, but also their language.

A Typographical Error.

Our Constantinople correspondent writes, under date of Nov. 12: "The Turkish newspaper Sabah was seized yesterday and its publication suspended because it contained the phrase, 'that wicked Padishah.' The editor explains that his offense his wholly due to an untoward accident. The intention had been to say 'majestic Padishah,' but the letter lam dropped out, and the compositor carelessly pushed the two preceding letters up to the final waw, thus transforming the word, which means majestic, into 'that wicked.' It remains to be seen whether this explanation will be found acceptable in the eyes of the offended sovereign."—London Times.

What the Fool Said.

It was where the motor cars pass in a certain city. An old gentleman alighted, and the conductor told him to look out for the other car. The passenger did not understand him, and turning around, asked: "What did you say?" Just then the motor struck him and knocked him without serious damage toward the curb on the opposite side from which he wanted to go. As he got up, he was heard to mutter, "I wonder what the fool said."

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

To woo a woman properly a man must first win her.

Love is like a butterfly—it was probably a lot more comfortable when it was a worm.

Before a girl is 20 you can never tell whether she is in love or her stomach is out of order.

The average woman doesn't want her husband to be just; what she wants is for him to love her.

A man without any religion at all may not be manly, but a woman without any religion at all isn't even feminine.

If there are women who can make a fool of every man, there are other women who can make a man of every fool.

At the age of 25 a man must be either engaged or married, or else the women begin to wonder why he doesn't behave himself.

To be fascinating to a young man a woman must never admit that she is not in love; to be fascinating to an old man she must never admit that she is.

Before a man falls in love he wonders how a woman would suit him for a wife; after he falls in love he wonders how he would suit a woman for a husband.

The best imitation of a woman hurrying through some shopping in a department store is a cat for about five minutes after she has lit with all four feet on a hot stove by mistake.—New York Press.

Healthy, Happy Girls

often, from no apparent cause, become languid and despondent in the early days of their womanhood. They drag along always tired, never hungry, breathless and with a palpitating heart after slight exercise so that merely to walk up stairs is exhausting. Sometimes a short, dry cough leads to the fear that they are "going into consumption."

They are anæmic, doctors tell them, which means that they have too little blood. Are you like that? Have you too little blood?

More anæmic people have been made strong, hungry, energetic men and women by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People than by any other means. They are the best tonic in the world.

Miss Lola Stevens, of Gasport, Niagara Co., N. Y., had been a very healthy girl until about a year ago, when she grew weak and pale. She lost her appetite, was as tired in the morning as on retiring, and lost flesh until she became so emaciated that her friends hardly knew her. The doctors declared the disease anæmia, and gave her up to die. A physician who was visiting in Gasport prevailed upon her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She did so, and was benefited at once. She is now well and strong—the very picture of health.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Courier.

Unexpected.

"So you want to marry my daughter, eh?"

"If you please, sir."

"Let me see. Have you read the president's message?"

MANITOBA'S CAPACITY.

Enough Wheat to Supply Britain All She Requires from Abroad.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—The "World" comments on the report of the United Empire trade-league on the capacity of Canada as a granary for Britain. The report refers to Manitoba as follows: Manitoba has an area of forty-seven million acres. Deducting ten million for lakes, rivers, town sites and waste land, 37,000,000 acres are left for farm cultivation or homes for 116,000 families on 320 acres each, and as up to now there are only 27,000 farmers there altogether, that leaves room in one province for 89,008 more wheat growers. Supposing, then, we got them there and each one of them out of his 320 acres grew on an average 100 acres at 20 bushels to the acre; if you figure it up you will find it is quite possible for Manitoba alone to supply us with all the wheat we require from abroad. It is only a question of money and comparatively speaking not money either. The cost of one first-class battleship (about £750,000) would put 5,000 families onto farms in the Northwest, allowing £150 to each to find them in implements, seeds, horses, etc., and would keep them until their first crop was harvested. Five thousand farmers, averaging 100 acres of wheat each at 20 bushels to the acre, means an extra 10,000,000 bushels, for if that scheme is not liked Britain would put a duty on foreign wheat. In addition to the wheat lands of Manitoba there are the millions of acres in Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

ONE PURE BAKING POWDER.

Over seventy per cent of all baking powders contain alum. The ill effects upon the system of food leavened by this injurious drug are attested by the highest medical authorities: Alum baking powders would be less dangerous were they fatal at once, for then they surely would be avoided, but their baneful action because imperceptible at first and slow in its advances is no less certain.

THE NEWS RESUME

EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

A General Resume of the Most Important News of the Week From All Parts of the Globe, Boiled Down and Arranged in Convenient Form for Rapid Perusal By Busy People.

From Washington.

The commissioner of Indian affairs disapproves the establishment of a medical department for the Indians.

Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota has introduced a bill providing for the free importation of seed wheat.

The president has approved the urgent deficiency bill covering the deficiencies in the army and navy expenditures during the last six months.

The war investigating commission has decided to make a thorough investigation of the complaints about the beef furnished the army in the expeditionary campaign.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was reported to the house. It carries $23,229,237, about the amount of the last bill and a reduction of $1,135,768 on the estimates.

Secretary Long has completed detailed estimates for congress for the fifteen new warships he recommended to be constructed in his annual report. The figures are for armament and armor for all the ships, 14,168,400, and for construction and engineering, $36,100,800.

Personal.

The duke of Northumberland is dead.

Oliver E. Boddington has been appointed counsel to the United States embassy at Paris.

Thomas Edward Corrie Burns Righton, the comedian, is dead at London.

Christian Diden, one of the oldest members of the German reichstag, is dead, in his eighty-ninth year.

Mrs. Lilly Lord Tuft, secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Women, died at her home in Buffalo, N. Y.

John Meiner, a millionaire resident of Ojai valley, died at Ventura, Cal. The deceased owned much valuable Milwaukee, Wis., property, having been a pioneer brewer of that city.

Judge Howard B. Reeder, son of Andrew H. Reeder, noted governor of Kansas during the anti slavery controversy before the civil war, is dead, aged fifty-five.

Gen. Wood, at Santiago, reports the following deaths: Private Green Burrell, D, Twenty-third Kansas, dysentery; Frank Paffenbarger, H, Fourth volunteers, [illegible], following typhoid.

Nixon & Zimmerman, the theatrical managers of Philadelphia, have signed a contract with Francis Wilson by which they become managers and half-owners in all the comedian's operatic business.

Maj. Gen. Henry C. Merriam, who is now in San Francisco, in command of the departments of California and the Columbia, is to be transferred to the department of Colorado. His headquarters will be at Denver.

Mrs. Mabel [illegible] Burnett, only child of the poet, James Russell Lowell, died at her home at Elmwood, Mass., where she was born fifty-one years ago and where she had passed nearly all her life.

Augustus W. Peters, president of the borough of Manhattan, died suddenly at his home in New York of heart disease. He was for many years president of the Consolidated Exchange and chairman of the Tammany executive committee.

A letter from Judge Nathan Goff says that he is not and does not intend to be a candidate before the coming legislature of West Virginia for United States senator. The leading Republican candidates are, therefore, Gov. Atkinson and N. B. Scott.

Dr. William Blackburn, president of Huron college, was found dead in his room in Pierre, S. D. He at one time held the chair of history of the McCormick Theological Seminary of Chicago, and was a prominent Presbyterian minister of the city while in that school.

Daniel La Forte, known by his Indian name as Te-hes-la, president of the Six Nations, died on Sunday at his farm house on the reservation near Syracuse, N. Y. He was eighty-six years of age, and is survived by a widow and grandson, which latter will succeed as chief of the Six Nations.

Foreign Notes.

Prominent Bolivians are fleeing from the revolution.

An eruption of Vesuvius has occurred from the crater formed in 1875.

France expects trouble with England before the Newfoundland question is settled.

The government of Peru has decreed the re-establishment of the habeas corpus act.

Dreyfus will not be taken back to Paris because the court of cassation fears a riot in such an event.

The duke of Marlborough has been appointed paymaster general in succession of the earl of Hopetown, who was recently made lord chamberlain.

The magnificent chateau Tagstein, near Thusis, Canton of Grisons, eleven miles from Chur, has been burned.

Pope Leo says that "there is something superfluous about electric light." He refuses to allow it to be introduced into his apartments.

Thomas Townsend Bucknill, queen's counsel and member of parliament in the Conservative interest for Mid-Surrey (Epsom), has been raised to the bench of the high court of judicature in succession to Justice Henry Hawkins, who was recently raised to the peerage.

Criminal Record.

A shooting affray occurred on board the American line steamer St. Paul. Five members of the crew were shot and one stabbed.

Karl Kierdelberger of Jersey City, N. J., unsuccessfully attempted to murder his wife and stepdaughter, and then committed suicide.

Redmond, a Chicago traveling man, was robbed in St. Joseph of $580 in money and $200 worth of jewelry. He was drinking.

Harry C. Howell, an alleged bigamist, was driven out of town by the authorities of Kansas City. He is said to have eight wives.

At Sergeant, in Eastern Kentucky, George Frazer, a prominent young farmer, gave a holiday dance to which John Stidborn came unbidden. Frazer ordered Stidborn to leave, and on his refusal to go, shot him dead. Frazer gave himself up.

Frank Weber, a Cincinnati molder, struck his only son, Frank, aged 12, on the head with a hammer and crushed the skull. The crime was committed at his home. Weber had been drinking heavily and had even robbed the child's bank to procure whisky.

Frank A. Parker, the son of wealthy Chicago parents, was held in the police court at New York for examination on the charge of forgery. Parker is accused of being connected with the forgery of a check for $751 in New York, and the police say that he has passed many bad checks in Chicago.

As the result of a three-cornered duel fought at Lulu, Miss., J. E. Kennedy and Richard Harmon are dead and T. Grady is mortally wounded. It is not known how the trouble started, no one being in the vicinity when the shooting began. Harmon and Kennedy were each hit twice and died in a few minutes. Grady was struck in the lungs, and is not expected to survive. All were fairly prominent.

Western Mining Notes.

Nearly all the gold-producing states of America show an increase in the output for 1898.

A six-foot vein of ore carrying $40 a ton in silver and gold has been opened up in the Elkhorn mine in Cache valley, Utah.

Assays from the Whittaker mine at Mammoth, Utah, give values of 117 ounces silver, 62 per cent lead and a small amount in gold. The ore is fine galena.

The gold-bearing region on the western slope of the Sierra Madras, on a tributary of the upper Yaqui, is in a fair way to be opened up for prospecting and development. It is in the Tres district, State of Sonora, Mexico, about eighty miles east of Hermosillo.

Mariposa county, California, is having a gold sensation in the Big Betsy mine, near Groveland, on the Tuolumne county line. The main shaft is now down over 300 feet and in ore all the way. The average width of the ledge is thirteen feet and the ore assays $72 per ton.

Tucson, Ariz., reports that the Old Dominion Copper Mine company is accumulating copper at the smelter. There will be, probably, 2,000,000 of copper for shipment as soon as the railroad is ready to take large quantities of freight from Globe to the Southern Pacific track at Bowie.

A rich strike is reported from the Windy mine, half a mile north of Randsburg, Kern county, California, at a depth of forty feet. The main shaft is down about 150 feet, but the richest ore taken out comes from above that depth. The ore in the last strike runs as high as $400 per ton.

General.

Illinois Democrats declare for Bryan and the Chicago platform.

The J. Wright Tobacco company of Richmond, Va., was sold out to the Continental Tobacco company.

A number of Chicago painters, decorators and frescoers have formed a co-operative association.

The next year's naval estimates for Italy will provide for eight new battleships, two being of the first-class.

Arbuckles have reduced granulated sugar 1-16c a pound below the American Sugar company and several of the independent refiners.

Ex-Gov. Merriam of St. Paul goes to West Superior and takes the management of the Superior Water, Light and Power company.

The directors of the St. Joseph & Grand Island Railroad company have declared a dividend of 2 per cent on the first preferred stock.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch says negotiations are nearly completed for the equipment of a part of the St. Louis street railway system with air motors.

Henry Watterson, in an editorial in the Louisville Courier-Journal, nominates Dewey and Lee for the presidential ticket in 1900.

Attorney General Monnett of Ohio is going after another company which he regards as a trust. It is the American Biscuit company, of which B. F. Crawford is president. He is preparing a petition to file in the supreme court to oust the company, which is capitalized at $55,000,000, but which he has been informed is doing business on $5,000,000 capital. Some of the wholesale grocers have made the complaint.

The Great Western distillery at Peoria, Ill., destroyed by lightning last June, has been remodeled and enlarged and will resume with a capacity of 15,000 bushels of corn daily, which means an output of 60,000 gallons of alcohol every day. This is the largest distillery in the world and work has been pushed on repairing it, owing to the unprecedented demand for spirits for the manufacture of smokeless powder by various foreign governments.

The naval cadets of the first class have been informed that they will be graduated after the semi-annual examination in February.

Brig. Gen. John N. Andrews, who has command of a brigade of volunteer troops, has arrived to take command of Jefferson barracks at St. Louis.

Superior Judge Coffey of San Francisco has granted Mrs. Jane L. Stanford an order for the final distribution of the estate of her late husband. Legacies amounting to $5,155,000 have been paid.

GOV. LIND'S FIRST MESSAGE

THE EXECUTIVE MAKES SOME IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS.

The Subject of Taxation Is Exhaustively Discussed and Suggestions Are Made Looking to a More Equitable Levy—Taxation of Railroads Comes in for a Fair Share of Attention and Important Changes in the Law Are Urged—Wisconsin's Plan for the Care of the Insane Is Favored—Practice of Issuing Railroad Passes Should Be Stopped—Direct Legislation Receives Consideration.

The following is a synopsis of Gov. Lind's inaugural message:

The governor opens by reminding the members of the legislature that among the important duties which they have been commissioned by the people of the state to discharge and one that cannot be delegated or deferred, is to provide the necessary moneys for defraying the expenses of the government and of the support of the schools and state institutions. The governor says:

Pursuant to law, the state auditor has submitted his estimate of revenue receipts for the ensuing biennial period, based on a tax levy of one and one-half mills. This rate, according to the estimate, will produce $2,560,000 in the first year, and leave a surplus of $270,000 over and above estimated disbursements. In the second year, $2,655,000 with a surplus of $110,000. The estimated surplus for the two years aggregating $380,000, limits your appropriations for new buildings and other original expenditures to a sum within those figures. While it is conceded that this estimated surplus is not excessive in view of the urgent necessity for increased facilities in some of our institutions, I venture the prediction that the rate suggested will produce a much larger amount than estimated under a stricter administration of our tax laws governing the return and assessment of personalty. A reform in that regard, even though you should not see fit to change existing law, is imperatively necessary. Besides, there is an extensive domain for a legitimate and material increase in the revenues of the state in a manner which will not impose any new burdens on our people, or on industry, as will be suggested farther on. If you avail yourselves of these sources, I feel confident that you can safely reduce the levy by 3-10 of a mill, and the state still realize in excess of the estimate. The taxpayers are entitled to a reduction in view of the growth of the state in population and wealth, and I earnestly recommend that it be made.

The governor goes deeply into the subject of taxation which he characterizes as so vital to the state, so important to the people that it always merits the most earnest consideration of both legislature and executive. "Our state is to-day," says the governor, "exacting taxes on the little stock, tools, implements—the means of subsistence—of numbers of our citizens who are struggling to support themselves and their families, while thousands who possess great wealth escape. Besides the inherent injustice of this, the state can ill afford to have those already battling for an independent existence loaded with additional burdens which will sooner or later transfer many of them into the dependent classes. That this condition of affairs exists, the most cursory investigation of the subject will show. It is no more just or candid to charge this to the depravity of the wealthier members of the community than it is to cry demagogy whenever the subject is brought up. It is in my judgment a condition resulting from the new forms that wealth has assumed under the remarkable progress and the economic changes which have taken place in this century. It is not a subject for a declamation or invective, but for patriotic, speedy solution, now and here, and as rapidly as the forms of our institutions permit.

"In the early days of the republic, when the principles were formulated which still control our methods of taxation, visible property constituted the property of the community. Wealth meant houses, lands, implements and cattle. Franchises, bonds, stocks and securities were practically unknown. To-day they constitute according to conservative estimates perhaps 80 per cent of personalty wealth. They are owned by the wealthy. As a rule, they escape taxation, not because they are the property of the rich, but because the assessor cannot get his eyes on them. The producer, on the other hand, cannot conceal his stock, or the implements of his trade, and they are taxed."

The governor suggests the appointment of a commission to solve the problem of taxing personalty.

The law which now requires the payment of a minimum incorporation fee of $50 to obtain a corporate charter, and in addition, one-tenth of 1 per cent on the capitalization in excess of $50,000 should, in the opinion of the governor, be extended so as to apply also to foreign corporations doing business in this state. The governor also recommends the levying of an annual franchise tax upon corporations, foreign and domestic.

The governor devotes considerable attention to the subject of the taxation of express, telegraph and sleeping car companies, and recommends radical changes in the system. In this connection he says:

"The legislation now in force for taxing express, telegraph, telephone and sleeping car companies in this state is in my judgment radically defective and should be revised. The rate imposed of 3 per cent on gross earnings computed solely on local business—originating and ending within the state—is grossly inadequate.

"Situated as is our state on the highway of commerce between two oceans, with our large centers of population near the state lines, it is but a small proportion of our business that is strictly local, that is to say, business originating and ending within the boundaries of the state.

"To impose a percentage tax, or any tax levied directly on the gross earnings, state and interstate, of these monopolies, would be held a violation of the federal constitution. The tax, whether it be a 3 per cent or a greater rate, should be computed on a valuation of the corporation's property employed in its business in this state."

Taxation of railroads receives a large share of the governor's attention. After reviewing at length the present laws on that subject and pointing out their weaknesses and deficiencies, the governor says that it is imperatively necessary that some action be taken upon this subject at this session.

The average rate of gross earnings tax collected in Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin is more than one-third higher than the rate imposed in this state. In the opinion of the governor this is a state of affairs that neither the legislature nor the executive can ignore.

"There is no question," says the governor, "but that the companies will much prefer to pay a reasonable gross earnings tax than to have their property and franchises taxed upon a valuation. But if it is feared that any company might resist the payment of a higher gross earnings tax than is now levied, on the ground that it is in violation of federal law to impose a tax upon the income from interstate commerce, and as a precaution you can readily obviate this difficulty by also enacting an alternative mode of taxation, providing: That in the event that any railroad company, subject to the payment of taxes to this state, shall refuse to adopt and abide by the rates of taxation on gross earnings which you establish in commutation of other forms of taxation, then the property and franchises of such corporation shall be taxed upon valuation the same as other property in the state, and at the average rate of taxation in the state, thus leaving it to the corporations themselves to determine whether they will pay taxes on a valuation, the same as other property in the state, or accept your gross earnings commutation plan in lieu of that form of taxation. You could go one step farther and authorize the companies to fix their own valuation with the proviso that the valuation so fixed should be the valuation and basis for determining transportation rates as well as for taxation. With such an alternative before them, you need have no fears that they would reject any reasonable gross earnings rate."

In concluding his observations on the subject of taxation the governor says:

By well considered legislation, the state may be able to utilize its different resources for raising revenue by taxation that the rate may be reduced and still an increase secured in the revenues. But it is idle in a young state like ours, with a constant and rapid growth of population, to speak about decreased expenditures. What we can reasonably hope for, and what we should insist upon attaining, is not necessarily a reduction in aggregate expenditures, but a system of management and administration in all public affairs that will give the people the greatest possible efficiency and the largest possible returns for the money expended. This is as true with reference to our schools as it is in regard to our correctional and charitable institutions.

On the subject of education the governor says:

"The educational interests of the state have kept pace with the other factors in its growth and development in a most gratifying degree, as appears by the report of the superintendent of public instruction, which, with the recommendations therein contained, I commend to your attention."

Speaking of the state institutions, the governor calls attention to the gratifying results shown by the management of the state prison. The net gain in earnings over expenditures is regarded as a phenomenal showing. The state reformatory at St. Cloud is recommended as deserving the attention of the legislature.

The governor goes thoroughly into the subject of the care of the insane. He says:

"The problem of properly caring for the insane has become so pressing that it absolutely demands solution at your hands at the present session. The importance of the subject, by reason of the great number and helpless character of the unfortunates, as well as the great cost to the public for their care and maintenance upon the lines heretofore and now in vogue in this state, can hardly be overestimated, and justifies all the care and consideration that I am sure you will give it."

The governor recommends the adoption of what is known as the "Wisconsin plan" to relieve the congested condition of our present hospitals and to provide a humane and economical method of caring for the chronic insane. Under it any county that may so elect should be authorized and empowered by the legislature to erect and furnish a suitable building or buildings for the maintenance and care of the chronic insane, under such restrictions and safeguards as they point out and suggest, the state to pay the county $1.50 per week for each inmate cared for.

Under the head of agriculture the governor calls attention to the importance of giving generous support to the agricultural college.

The governor considers the subject of good roads as sufficiently prominent in the public mind to justify the assumption that it will receive earnest consideration.

The fees received by the clerk of the supreme court, the oil inspector and the surveyor general of logs, and which constitute the compensation of those officers are so large that they cannot, in the opinion of the governor, be regarded in any sense of the word as compensation. He recommends that the laws relative to these offices be amended so as to place the offices on a salaried basis.

The report of the state railroad commission is recommended to the consideration of the legislature.

The state auditor reports that several hundred thousand acres of swamp lands in the northern part of the state located within the granted limits of certain land grant railroads, have been certified to the roads as inuring under the grant. This is clearly erroneous, says the governor, as the swamp land grant antedates the railroad grants. The hope of getting indemnity for such lands is very slight. The legislature should therefore direct the attorney general to institute proceedings in the circuit court of the United States for the recovery of these lands without delay.

The governor recommends that the practice of issuing railroad passes to public officials be abolished by legislative enactment.

The subject of direct legislation is favorably considered by the governor, and in this connection he says:

"The constitution could, and, in my judgment, should be so amended as to enable a majority in the legislature by appropriate action to refer enactments, at least such as extend corporate privileges or authorize the granting of franchises, to a vote of the people before becoming operative."

The governor speaks in terms of praise of the efficiency and good judgment shown by the capitol commission in carrying on the important work connected with the construction of the new capitol.

The message concludes as follows:

"In conclusion permit me to express the conviction that cordial co-operation between the executive and the legislature is essential to the best interests of the state, and that it is my earnest desire to extend to you in the performance of your many and arduous duties every assistance that the executive department can render and in the same spirit that I shall look to you for suggestion and aid."

GOV. CLOUGH SAYS FAREWELL

DELIVERS HIS LAST MESSAGE TO THE LEGISLATURE.

A Comprehensive Review of the Business of the State—All Departments of the State Government Are in a Satisfactory Condition—Work of Organizing and Equipping Minnesota's Volunteers Is Reviewed—National Government Severely Criticised for Its Treatment of the Indians—Makes No Recommendations, but Asks Careful Consideration of Those of His Successor.

Gov. Clough's Address.

The following is a brief synopsis of the farewell message of Gov. Clough:

The message is a thorough and comprehensive review of the state's affairs. The attention of the legislature is called to the development and present condition of the various departments of the state government, and to such other matters of public concern as the governor believes are worthy of consideration.

The work of organizing and equipping the four regiments which constituted Minnesota's quota of the volunteer force called into the service of the national government to serve in the war against Spain is reviewed by the governor. He points with pride to the excellent record made by the Minnesota regiments who, he says, proved themselves worthy sons and successors to the brave members of the First Minnesota, which withstood Pickett's charge at Gettysburg, and to the equally brave men of the other Minnesota regiments, who faced death on the numerous battlefields of the Civil war. A tribute is paid to the noble, self-sacrificing women who did so much toward ministering to the sick, wounded and dying in camp. The governor refers in glowing terms to the Third United States infantry, whose ranks contain so many sons of Minnesota, and pays a feeling tribute to the memory of the noble-hearted Maj. M. C. Wilkinson.

The governor touches briefly on the new problems which confront the nation as a result of the late war, and expresses his confidence in the ability of the national government to deal justly and adequately with them.

The business of the adjutant general's office has assumed large proportions, owing to the work of equipping and organizing the volunteers and the efficiency of the office is testified to by the promptness with which this work was accomplished.

The expense incurred in organizing the four regiments was $143,164.34. The expense of caring for the sick soldiers and sundry allied objects amounted to $10,[illegible]. The proper bills for these expenditures have been forwarded to the war department for settlement.

The governor speaks of the recent Indian fight at Leech lake as the culmination of a series of acts and neglects on the part of the national government most wrongful to the Indians. His criticism of the government's treatment of the Chippewas is particularly severe.

The legislature is asked to change the statutes governing the militia so as to authorize the permanent maintenance of four regiments, instead of three.

The duties of the public examiner have enormously increased, according to the governor, and the increase in the force at his command has not kept pace with the demands that ought legitimately to be made upon his office. The office, he says, furnishes the only illustration known to him of a department with totally inadequate facilities for even approximately discharging its duties and one where all the acts of the executive officer can justly be judged, only when they are considered in connection with this mistaken and niggardly policy which has hitherto directed legislation governing this office.

Of the work of the bureau of labor the governor speaks in terms of the highest praise. The bureau has been a most potent factor, during the past few years, in changing the state from one that was legally doing very little for labor and giving it a place at the head of our American commonwealths in this beneficent movement for social reform.

The governor says that the general management of all the executive officers of the state has been such as to commend them to the confidence and respect of the public. This, he says, is especially true of the office of insurance commissioner. Through its agency the people of the state have received much protection from fraudulent insurance companies.

The work of the railroad and warehouse commission has resulted in much benefit to the state. The commission has been an important factor in securing reduced freight rates and in correcting abuses and discriminations once so prevalent in railroad management. The inspection of grain is also under the control of this commission and in this work the inspectors have established a reputation throughout the world for the honesty and uniformity of their grades.

The dairy and food commission has assisted in stimulating the development of our dairy interests, and much benefit has been derived from their labors in other fields under their jurisdiction.

Of the educational interests of the state the governor says: "In no other state in the Union can a more favorable exhibit in all matters relating to education be made than in Minnesota. In all departments the enrollment of students has increased faster than the population. The special schools for the blind, the deaf and other defectives are each making improvements in methods of work and in other ways are coming to deserve, as well as to receive, the commendation of the philanthropic workers throughout the state and nation.

The hospitals for the insane in the state contained, on July 31, 1898, a total of 3,263 patients, of whom 1,893 were men and 1,370 were women. The problem of caring for the insane always has been and always will be a serious one. The great and increasing number of insane and the large expenses made necessary by their condition, together with all the complaints arising from efforts to deal with those with disordered minds, forces the administration ever to consider economy in management. This must be observed so far as it is consistent with the proper care of the unfortunate whom we endeavor to restore to themselves and to their right minds. Expense, however, should not be permitted to stand in the way of the possible recovery of the insane. In developing methods for so caring for these unfortunates as to obtain the greatest measure of mental recovery with the least expense, the hospitals of Minnesota have contributed much to the progress in this branch of medical science and successful practical philanthropy. We can reasonably hope for much continuous reform, provided the future legislation for and supervision over them, like that in the past, is dictated by motives of humanity and not those of partisan or private advantage in consideration.

The penal and reformatory institutions of the state are in a satisfactory condition. The managers of our penal institutions, while so shaping discipline as to secure a large amount of reformation among the inmates committed to their care, and also attaining commendable results in so adjusting prison labor as to cause a minimum of injury and a maximum of benefit to free workers, have not been unmindful of the pockets of the taxpayers. To such an extent has this been attained that the state prison is now more than self-supporting. The governor alludes to the investigation of the state prison which, he says, resulted in a complete vindication of the individuals against whom complaints were made.

The state board of charities and corrections has been an important factor in developing in our penal institutions more successful methods of reform work.

The efficiency of the state board of health has won for it the admiration of the medical world in the United States and in Europe.

The state game and fish commission has done admirable work in bringing before the public the great economic value of the fish and game within our borders and wisely administering laws for the prosecution of the same. All the other boards and commissions have made commendable records for usefulness and also for wise and honest administration.

The reimbursing of those public spirited gentlemen who advanced money for Minnesota's exhibit at the Omaha exposition is strongly urged. The amount advanced was $[illegible]. The governor speaks with pride of the showing Minnesota made at that exposition.

The governor gives a detailed statement of the state's finances showing a total in the state treasury of $[illegible]. The estimated receipts and disbursements of the state revenue fund, in the opinion of the governor, will closely approximate the actual revenue receipts on the basis of a tax levy of 1.5 mills, which has been in force during a number of years.

In conclusion the governor says: "My successor brings to this office the experience of many years in the service of the state and of the nation and a high reputation for character, ability and sound judgment. For these qualifications he deserves and I am sure will receive from all his associates in office and from the general public that same consideration which has been accorded to me in such generous proportions. As my official duties end with the sending of this message, I have refrained from making recommendations save as they relate to transactions that have grown out of my administration or that have taken place during my term of office. My successor will offer his recommendations, suggested by the reports of the various departments, by his long experience in public life and by his matured judgment relating to state affairs. For them I bespeak in advance that careful attention from your honorable bodies which I have found the legislature of Minnesota ever ready to grant to its chief executive. The people of Minnesota have honored me with a high trust. In now surrendering it, I desire to acknowledge to my co-workers in official life my sense of duty toward the people which have accompanied all their official acts. Trusting that my successor may be favored with a like cordial, conservative and efficient support from those of his official household, I close the duties devolving upon me by the suffrages of the people with the earnest hope that Divine Providence may ever, in the future, shower the richest blessings upon this fair state and its loyal and devoted citizens."

TREATY WILL BE RATIFIED.

Poll of the Senate Gives This Assurance.

Washington, Jan. 6.—A poll of the senate made after the president had transmitted the peace treaty to that body, shows that the treaty will be ratified as soon as a vote can be reached.

The poll made shows that the opposition cannot even muster forty-five votes necessary to secure the addition of an anti-expansion amendment to the treaty. Including five senators—Baker, Daniel, Mason, Murphy and Wellington—whose views are not known on the amendment proposition, the highest number in favor of such an amendment foots up to only thirty-nine, six less than the required majority. The number of votes, necessary to amend the treaty is forty-five. The highest number of senators in favor of amending the treaty is thirty-nine; number of senators necessary to ratify the treaty, sixty; number of senators who will favor the treaty on final vote, sixty-two.

Senators who favor the amendment: Allen, Bacon, Baker, Bate, Berry, Caffery, Chilton, Clay, Cockrell, Daniel, Gorman, Hale, Harris, Heitfeld, Hoar, Jones of Arkansas, Kenny, McEnery, McLaurin, Mallory, Martin, Mason, Mills, Mitchell, Money, Murphy, Pascoe, Perkins, Pettigrew, Pettus, Roach, Sullivan, Tillman, Turpie, Turner, Turley, Vest, Wellington, White. Total, 39.

In favor of the treaty on final vote: Aldrich, Allison, Burrows, Butler, Cannon, Carter, Chandler, Clarke, Cottrell, Daniel, Davis, Deboe, Elkins, Fairbanks, Faulkner, Foraker, Frye, Gallinger, Gear, Gray, Hanna, Hansbrough, Hawley, Jones of Arkansas, Jones of Nevada, Kenney, Kyle, Lindsay, Lodge, McBride, McEnery, McLaurin, McMillan, Mantle, Mason, Mills, Money, Morgan, Murphy, Nelson, Pasco, Penrose, Platt of Connecticut, Platt of New York, Pritcher, Proctor, Quay, Rawlins, Sewell, Shoup, Simon, Smith, Spooner, Stewart, Teller, Thurston, Warren, Wellington, Wetmore, Wilson, Wolcott. Total, 62.

A TORTURE CHAMBER.

One Said to Have Been Discovered in Havana.

Havana, Jan. 6.—The afternoon papers sent a thrill through the city with a report that a torture and execution chamber had been found at the residence of the Spanish military governor adjoining the palace. The papers declare that there the Spanish officials questioned and murdered political prisoners. According to their accounts the floor of the chamber was covered with dried blood and its walls were indented with machete strokes. An excited crowd gathered outside the house, which was last occupied by Gen. Pando. The report says the chamber is a room eight feet square, just off the dining room. As a matter of fact it was probably used as a pantry. In the wall there is a dirty iron bar, evidently used to hang meat on, and a piece of discolored rope is suspended from it. It is inconceivable that Gen. Pando practiced torture next to his dining room.

INSURGENTS ARE FIRM.

National Government Established at Iloilo.

Manila, Jan. 6.—All is quiet here. The American troops which arrived at Iloilo have not landed. They are awaiting instructions. A native government is firmly established there. Merchants here all desire that America shall plant a firm government in the islands. I am given to understand that the authorities will not allow the "round robin" to pass.

Washington, Jan. 6.—That Brig. Gen. Miller may have at Iloilo a force at least equal to the number of armed insurgents occupying the city, Maj. Gen. Otis has reinforced his command with the First California regiment. Information to this effect has reached the war department from Maj. Gen. Otis. With the addition of the California troops Gen. Miller will have under his command about 3,000 well armed men.

Trophy Vessels Exhibited.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The Spanish war vessels Sandoval and Alvarado, trophy vessels of the late war, are at the navy yard here, having arrived from Annapolis. They were brought here for purposes of exhibition to government officials.

Russia Supports France.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—The Lokal Anzeiger says that the Russian representative at Peking has been ordered to support French interests in China "as energetically as though they were Russian."

DISPLEASES THE CUBANS

APPOINTMENT OF THE BANK OF AS FISCAL AGENT.

The Cubans Say No Greater Offense Could Have Been Given Them, as This Institution Was the Instrument Used for Years to Wrest Unjust Taxes From Them—The Bank Will File a Bond of $1,500,000 With a New York Surety Company—A United States Officer Will Serve With the Bank.

Havana, Jan. 10.—It is officially announced that the Bank of Spain is to be made the fiscal agent of the United States for the collection of taxes, as under Spanish rule. The bank will deposit with a surety company of New York a bond for $1,500,000 for the faithful performance of its services. Accounts will be made from day to day, so that no large balance will remain in the bank. A military agent will serve within the bank, supervising collections. Having the machinery already organized for the collection of taxes it is argued that the Bank of Spain can carry on the work with less friction and cost than it could be done in any other manner. The Cubans, however, are greatly incensed, and no greater offense could have been given them than this. The Bank of Spain was the instrument used for years to wrest unjust taxes from them. It is the most unpopular institution on the island, and the administration could hardly have done anything else that would have gone so far to convince the Cubans of its insincerity as the choice of this bank as its financial agent.

Twenty-one postal clerks have arrived reporting to Postmaster General Rathbone. Ten will remain here to clear up affairs in the Havana office, while the others will be immediately scattered throughout the island, and the prediction is made that another fortnight will see the postal affairs here in as good a condition as in the United States.

Gen. Ludlow gave instructions that the police and provost guard shall report all cases of destitution and suffering. An emergency relief corps will investigate all cases that are reported. Rations will be issued to the needy and medicine and nurses will be provided for those who are ill. Records will be kept, and as soon as possible the idle will be put to work. Beginning next week all beggars will be kept off the streets.

EXCITEMENT CONTINUES.

People of Santiago Want Provincial and Municipal Autonomy.

Santiago, Cuba, Jan. 10.—Senor Bacardi, the mayor of Santiago, is cabling to Havana concerning the situation, explaining that the local excitement growing out of the proposal of the United States authorities to concentrate the customs receipts at Havana is not allayed, and that the people want provincial and municipal autonomy. It is understood that Gen. Wood, governor of Santiago, with Gen. Castillo, will reach the United States on or before Thursday, and arrangements have been made of a special cable service to inform the people here of developments after Gen. Wood's arrival in Washington. Lieut. Col. Ray reports from Guantanamo that a Cuban major a short time ago took to the woods with several of his men, became a bandit and killed five men. The entire band have been captured and will be put on trial.

DIED IN BATTLE.

Spaniards Were Not Massacred by Filipinos.

Hongkong, Jan. 10.—According to the statements of people who have just arrived here from the island of Balabac, south of the island of Palawan, there is no truth in the report that the Spaniards there have been massacred by the Filipinos. They say the story is an invention of priests to prejudice the Filipino cause, declaring also that there are not more than half a dozen Spaniards on the island, and that all who have been killed fell in warfare.

DREYFUS IS GUILTY.

Court of Cassation Convinced He Was Justly Condemned.

Paris, Jan. 10.—Le Soir says it learns from an indisputable source that the court of cassation is convinced that Dreyfus was justly condemned. M. Quesnay de Beaurepaire, president of this section of the court of cassation, has resigned his position in consequence of a disagreement regarding the Dreyfus inquiry.

NO RESTRICTIONS.

Tourists to Yellowstone Park May Stop at the National Hotel.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Secretary Bliss, in a communication just sent to the superintendent of the Yellowstone National Park, gives instructions that no restrictions whatever are to be placed by the interior department on tourists entering the park, as to stopping at the Park National hotel.

Capital Stock Increased.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 10.—Swift & Co. of Chicago have filed with the secretary of state a certificate of increase of capital stock from $15,000,000 to $42,000,000.

Hand Blown Off.

Halstad, Minn., Jan. 10.—William B. Larson had his hand blown off in an explosion of a cast iron boiler in the engine room of the Climax fire department. The pipes leading from this boiler to the main boiler were frozen.

High License for Alaska.

Washington, Jan. 10.—A system of high license for Alaska in place of a system of prohibition now in vogue was tentatively agreed upon by the house committee on revision of the laws.

Character In the Eyebrows.

An arched eyebrow does not indicate the highest order of intelligence, but is expressive of great sensibility. Scant growth of the eyebrows denotes lack of vitality. On the contrary, heavy, thick eyebrows indicate a strong constitution and great physical endurance.

They are not beautiful on a woman's face, however much they may signify either mental or bodily vigor, and when they are not only heavy, but droop and meet at the nose, they are disagreeable and are said to accompany an insincere and prying nature. Long, drooping eyebrows, lying wide apart, indicate an amiable disposition. Where the eyebraws are lighter in color than the hair the indications are lack of vitality and great sensitiveness.

Faintly defined eyebrows placed high above the nose are signs of indolence and weakness Very black eyebrows give the face an intense and searching expression. When natural, they accompany a passionate temperament. Very light eyebrows rarely are seen on strongly intellectual faces, although the color of the eyebrows is not accepted simply as denoting lack of intelligence. The form gives the key to the faculties and their direction. Red eyebraws denote great fervor and ambition; brown, a medium between the red and black. —Exchange.

A Modern Battleship.

A battleship is not only a floating fortress, but is also a steam power plant of the largest size, with a greater variety and number of engines or machines than is ever dreamed of by the uninitiated. Of all this combination there is no portion that can be permitted to remain in a state of repose for any length of time without endangering its effective action when the emergency arises for which it was designed. It is only by constant use that they can be kept perfectly efficient.

On an armored cruiser like the Brooklyn of the United States navy, taking her as a sample of an up to date warship, between a battleship and an ordinary cruiser, there are altogether 81 separate engines, having a total of 156 steam cylinders.

Add in imagination to this number, imposing in itself, the vast quantity and extent of steam, exhaust and water piping needed to connect all these engines to the boilers, condensers and water systems, the thousands of valves to be kept workable and efficient. Then include the seven great boilers, capable of evaporating into steam, under forced draft, 185 tons of water an hour, and one can begin to comprehend the vastness of the steam plant of a modern ship.—Cassier's Magazine.

India Rubber.

Not a little singular is the fact noted by chemists that, contrary to the general belief, natural india rubber is not waterproof. Indeed since the article has to be dried to be freed of its moisture the conclusion is obvious that it will absorb moisture again, and, according to experiments mentioned by E. Schulze in the Gummi Zeitung, it does so with certain rapidity.

It is found that rolled rubber plates, which by virtue of their treatment are in a somewhat compressed condition, absorb from 8 to 25 per cent of water in two hours. When the water is heated to about 120 degrees F., at increased pressure, the absorption takes place much more readily, and a piece of rubber, kept in a cylinder under a pressure of 140 pounds, absorbed 25 per cent of water in five minutes.

Oils, of course, stop the water. Vulcanized rubber remains dry, though not entirely so, and badly vulcanized goods deteriorate, owing to this reason. Schulze kept a plate of the best Para rubber in water not above 110 degrees F., and after 2½ months it had become a hopeless, smeary mass.

The Elaborate Chinese Novel.

It is a proof of the high degree of elaboration to which fiction literature in China has been carried that most of their novels are thickly interspersed with poems of all orders of merit. No stronger evidence could be afforded of the fact that whatever they lack it is not literary finish. If anything, they have this in excess. These poems are introduced in a variety of ways. The hero sends one in a billet doux to the heroine, or he overhears her singing one or perhaps a poetic contest is struck up, the fine on defeat being generally the compulsory drinking of so many extra flagons of wine. Wine drinking and poetizing almost invariably go together in Chinese novels, though whether they do so in real life we are unable to say. Above all things, every man who sets up to be anything in the way of a hero in Chinese fiction must be prepared to extemporize by the ream in inimitable poetry.—Rev. G. F. Candlin in Open Court.

Punishment.

"The idea of sending children to bed early to punish 'em!" exclaimed Mrs. Corntossel, who was discussing her city relatives. "That ain't any way to c'rect 'em."

"Of course it ain't," answered her husband. "If you want to convince 'em that you mean business, make 'em get up an hour or so earlier in the morning."—Washington Star.

Sure of Game.

Fox—There is one thing that I can say for Badger; whenever he goes shooting his family is sure of game.

Knox—Why, is he such a good shot?

Fox—No; but it really doesn't make any difference whether he shoots anything or not, for if he doesn't get any game his wife makes game of him.—Boston Courier.

In one of Carlyle's private letters sold in London recently he says: "Oliver Cromwell had no squint, stare or deficiency of any kind in the eyes of him. One eye, probably the left—but I am not sure—was considerably bigger than the other."

A Ute Funeral.

All night long the ceaseless, muffled beating of the medicine tomtom had come to us across the hot, barren, alkali flats; all night long the dismal wailing of the bereaved squaws and the lonesome howl of the masterless dog, crying like lost spirits, had come to us out of the darkness, plaintive and weird; all night long we had rolled and tossed on our blankets, spread upon the broad breast of mother earth, underneath the silent, watchful stars, and now, as the first pink blush of breaking morn began to revolve out of infinity into a newborn day, we rose, unrefreshed and weary.

A blood red sun thrust his scorching rays across the rugged peaks of the Book plateau. All nature seemed aflame, and as our tired, aching eyes sought what rest there could be found in the dingy green of the few scrub cedars that marked the single variation to the otherwise unbroken glare of whiteness a strange, sad procession emerged from them and wended its way toward us. As it approached we could see the cortege plainly. There were the patient, sad eyed women, their faces blackened by charcoal, their hair disheveled, their garments rent and covered with ashes. There were the favorite dog and horse of the dead warrior, the latter fully equipped, as though ready for a journey, and so he was. There was the corpse itself, borne, all bedecked and enshrouded, to its last earthly resting place.—Lippincott's.

A Natural Fog Horn.

At the Farallones the erosive agents have worked with queer caprice. The rock, being granite, has been acted upon by the sea at all levels and throughout the long period when it has been rising out of the watery depths. Through a long narrow hole, slanting and communicating with the ocean, there comes at intervals a terrific stream of air, forced by the spasmodic heaving of the waves against the lower orifice. The government, which uses this island for lighthouse purposes, inclosed the upper end with the nozzle of a fog horn, and every few seconds there was blown an ear splitting brawl, which was heard far out at sea and above the din of the breaking rollers.

It was allowed to roar only in foggy weather, but it was eccentric in that it would only sound at high tide. When the tide was low, although the weather might be very thick, the thing was silent. For lack of its warning a ship went ashore upon the island rocks, and then it was that the government abandoned its location on the wind hole and erected a steam siren or mechanical fog horn, which has since very faithfully performed the necessary service.—"Our Seaboard Islands on the Pacific," by John E. Bennett, in Harper's Magazine.

The Boy and His Cap.

"I can't find my cap anywhere," is a sentence more or less familiar in the household, that being what the boy says, looking for his cap, when he wants to go out to play. Early in the search he enlists his mother, and that may make a serious business of it. She has to drop her dusting or whatever household work she may be engaged in, and the search may take a long time.

"Where did you put it when you came in?" is a question sure to be asked sooner or later, but all the boy can answer is:

"I don't know."

And then the search goes on everywhere, over and under, in all sorts of places, all at a great loss of time, if not of temper. It is found at last, as most things are in time, and in some simple, easy place, which makes the finding of it all the more exasperating.

The boy takes it and goes out to play and straightway forgets all about it; but it may take quite a little time to restore the normal calm in the house.

It is a mystery how the boy manages to lose his cap as often as he does, but it appears to be a boy's way, and common to almost all.—New York Sun.

English Suburban Homes.

In the United States you are far ahead of England in respect to new suburban homes. Whatever may be the faults of the imitations of Richardson—America's greatest architect—or even of the queer gabled and verandaed villas which for some inscrutable reason are named after the good Queen Anne, there is something picturesque about most of these buildings—if it is only the usually good sky line. But the modern suburban homes in England are monotonously ugly. As a rule they are run up in rows by some speculative builder who is his own architect.—Montague Marks in Art Amateur.

Pathetic Scene.

The minstrel man lay dying. He called his eldest son to his bedside and said:

"My boy, I cannot leave you any money; I have spent that as fast as I made it. But you shall inherit the heirloom that I received from my father. It will make you a living; it made his and it made mine."

Then, laying in the hand of the young man the worn and stained joke book, he breathed his last.—Indianapolis Journal.

No Rest.

A comedy scene followed the third act of a tragedy at a theater in an English provincial town. The villain had met his death, and the curtain was lowered, but hung suspended three feet above the stage. All efforts to lower it proved unavailing until the corpse arose from the stage, and said, in sepulchral tones, as he dragged down the curtain, "No rest, even in the g-r-r-r-ave!"—London Fun.

A Bad Break.

"That florist is singularly inept."

"How so?"

"When Pleader, the lawyer, died, his friends ordered something appropriate sent, and the dolt sent a floral lyre."—Philadelphia North American.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

Unloaded Guns.

"Unloaded guns are the deadliest weapons in the world," remarked a clerk in a Royal street curio shop. "They are always going off and killing somebody. Yesterday a fellow brought an old horse pistol into the shop. It was one of the dragoon model; loads with powder and ball, you know, and uses a percussion cap. The thing was as big as a small cannon and hadn't been fired, I suppose, since the year 1. The owner assured me it wasn't loaded, and, as there was no cap on the nipple, I handled it a little more carelessly than I otherwise would have done. We were standing at the back door, and I raised the hammer to see whether the lock was still in working order.

"When I pulled the trigger, there was an explosion that shook the house and scared us both half out of our wits, while the bullet hit a packing case over there in the corner and knocked it into smithereens. How the confounded machine happened to go off was a mystery until I closely examined the lock. Then I saw that an old cap had evidently corroded and attached itself to the hammer, which was slightly cup shaped at the end, and when I cocked the weapon it simply lifted off the nipple and came up too. It was only one of the little tricks of unloaded weapons. They are mighty good things to let alone."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Banking in Switzerland.

Some of the methods are sufficiently antiquated, according to our standards. For instance, it requires 15 minutes in which to make a deposit at a bank. Every banking house has numerous chairs outside the railing, and the visitor is expected to sit quietly and cultivate a spirit of patience while the machinery is getting under way.

A customer who wishes to make a deposit goes to a window and hands in his money, together with a memorandum of the amount. The employee behind the railing counts the money and prepares a receipt for it, adding his signature by way of preliminary. Then a small boy takes this receipt up stairs and submits it to an official, who studies it and then ponders for awhile as to whether it will be safe to take the money.

If he decides that the bank can undertake the risk, he passes the receipt to another man, who prepares a duplicate slip and makes several entries, and finally signs his name. Then, as soon as another man has examined the receipt and added his name it is taken down stairs and turned over to the depositor. There is one satisfaction—the money is thoroughly deposited.—Zurich Letter in Chicago Record.

Temper and Football.

At football all manner of men have played at the ends of the rush line—an ideal man would be a composite of all the other men on the team.

He would be about 5 feet 10 in height and would weigh about 165 or 168. He would have the speed of a half, the quickness of a quarter, the bulldog pluck and nerve of a guard, and the brain of a captain. In addition to all these (and contrary to the opinions of most people) he would have a quick temper. There is nothing in football nor indeed in any form of athletics incompatible with a little of the "Old Adam," nor is there anything like anger to put life and fire into a tired man late in a hard fought game.

One can be as angry as he may and still be a gentleman. Temper, properly directed and controlled, will add fierceness to one's tackles, speed to his running and strength to his blocking, as nothing else on earth will do, and many the captains there are who, knowing this, have stirred up their wearied men with harsh words of command which they themselves realized were unmerited simply to make their teams work harder and faster.—College Athlete.

A Golf Story.

At a dinner party not long ago a certain young gentleman (an enthusiastic golfer) started in with the shellfish to enumerate to his partner the details of a match that he had been playing that day, says W. G. Van Tassell Sutphen in The Independent. It was not until the pudding was brought on that he suddenly bethought himself that he had been doing all the talking. Indeed, the young lady had not said a single word during the entire progress of the meal. It was possible that she was not interested in the subject—incredible, but still possible.

"I am afraid that I have been boring you with this talk of the shop," he said in half apology.

"Oh, no, not at all," was the polite response. "Only what is golf?"

Keeping Cool.

At one of the viceregal balls in the Emerald Isle a young "detrimental" came up to where a young lady was sitting and asked in her mother's presence if he might have the pleasure of the dance.

"'Deed an ye can't, then. Shure she's keeping herself cool for the Earl of Clanfarly!" was the pointed refusal volunteered by the ambitious mamma. —Exchange.

Evasive Disraeli.

Here is a story of Disraeli; it is one of his quick replies: A lady, who had asked him to dinner, when the eastern question was looming large, inquired, "Lord Beaconsfield, what are you waiting for?" "For mutton and potatoes."

At Munich many of the clerks at the banks and hotels are girls, and as cashiers and bookkeepers at restaurants and other houses of business they are well in evidence. Many women are also employed at railway stations as booking office clerks.

The New Zealand old age pensions bill provides that persons of good character attaining 65 and having resided for 20 years in the colony shall be entitled to a pension of £38 annually.

No less than a dozen traveling men were bunched here Monday. When the weren't talking business they said something about Jim Hill's line that would not look good in print.

Jim Hill must have had a horrible dream last week which caused him to dump this miserable try-weekly service onto us. Take it the year round this is one of the very best feeders on his line.

A merry party of young people to the number of thirty drove down to the farm residence of P. Lemay's Friday evening and enjoyed themselves to their hearts content dancing and playing games.

Supt. Bollard of the Crookston Lumber Company was here last Thursday between trains. When he was apprised of the new schedule on this line—try-weekly—a look of disgust was visable in his countenance.

A message was sent to Agent Rippon last Thursday to the effect a new schedule was to go into effect at once and to notify the newspaper, postmaster and hotels. Jim has a way of doing business that is very pleasing to the public on this branch.

G. K. Haavi of the town of North was in town a short time Monday on business. He came down on the train but on account of the excellent train service on this line he had to walk back or stay here two days and wait for the train.

The gang in the St. Hilaire Lumber company's mill has been removed to Crookston.—Thief River Falls News.

There is a mistake somewhere, no machinery has been taken out of our mill, but as a matter of fact, after the 15th inst., repairs will be made and new machinery put in.

The M. W. A. dance given at the Odd Fellows hall last evening was a success in every sense of the word. A large gathering were present and a jolly good time was had by everybody. A light repast was served at 12:00 o'clock after which dancing continued for a few more hours and everybody went home satisfied and only regretted that the time flew so quickly by.

Roseau, a village seventy-five miles away from a railroad, and way up near the Lake of the Woods has better mail service than St. Hilaire of Thief River Falls since Jim Hill put on his abortive train service. They receive a daily mail there while we get one every other day—some days. It looks as though Jim was not only attending to his own business, but digging into the government business as well. Its about time the people put in a protest. It looks as though we are drifting back to the days when Jim Hill was a deck-hand on a scow running the Red River—30 years ago.

Post-Olsen Wedding.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Olsen at 6:30 o'clock last Wednesday evening January 4th 1899, when Miss Minnie Olsen and Oscar F. Post were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives. Rev. H. Logan tying the nuptial knot. The bridesmaids were Misses Julia Sovick and Alvina Fryk, best men were Oscar Olsen and Chas. G. Rapp. The bride was arrayed in cream satin trimmed with chiffon and wore brides roses. The groom wore the conventional suit of black. The bridesmaids wore pink and blue organdie. After the ceremony the guests repaired to a suit of rooms over Rapp & Posts store where an excellent supper was served, of which all partook of heartily. The SPECTATOR introduced the young couple in its last issue, but again we wish them much joy throughout life.

The Ladies of the Norwegian Luth church will give an Oyster supper in the church Saturday evening Jan. 21st at 6 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

Mysterious Package Explodes Over Van R. Brown's Office Door.

An explosion in Van R Browns office yesterday morning caused considerable excitement in the bank block. Mr. Wyer upon hearing the report rushed upstairs and found the glass broken from the door with bits embedded in the walls and ceiling. Mr. Brown was lying on the floor but was not badly injured, having received several scratches in the face. It seems that some explosive in a bottle wrapped in a newspaper had been placed on the transom above the door. Sheriff Sampson and B. Sivigney had been in and out of the office with Brown during the morning and Sampson had called Brown's attention to the package above the door in a joking way; Brown remarking that some one had made him a Christmas present. After their departure Brown reached up and instead of taking the article down brushed it off onto the floor where in exploded, he holding the door between himself and the explosion. Fortunately he was not badly injured. The matter should be fully investigated.—Red Lake County Courier.

The county commissioners are in a squabble over the letting of the county printing. It is strange in what light they look at the "big four." The fact of the matter is, a bid was put in calling for legal rates—complying with the state law, asking no more, or less. Now the commissioners propose to come the Mark Hanna "trust" or "monopoly" act. They dictate our terms and say, YOU MUST do the printing for less than the state law prescribes, whether you like it or not. What use is there to to send men down to the state capitol to make laws when county commissioners can make them at home. There is a law fixing the commissioners' salary and so much per mile. Will they cut down their own salary? Nit. This is a horse of another color.

Key to Successful Domestic Financing.

"The secret of domestic finance is to make a little money go a long way," writes Frances Evans in an article "About Men," in the January Ladies' Home Journal. "The old axiom about saving the pennies and letting the pounds take care of themselves is not the natural policy of Americans; only the frugal Scotch and French know that rule by heart. But women could learn it better than men, because their minds dwell more naturally upon little things. If they are rarely great financiers they are frequently successful small financiers. Make a woman responsible for an allowance and she feels the interest of a junior parent: pay your bills, and she is put on an inferior. There is a feeling of ignominy about asking a man for car fare, fifty cents, five dollars or even a hundred dollars, disagreeable beyond expression to a woman with any pride or independence. Now that women are thinking more for themselves than in the past, independence is becoming naturally a part of their creed. This independence cannot be choked out."

Mrs. H. O. Scottem, residing a few miles north of here met with an accident last Wednesday evening while preparing supper. The trap door had been left open by one in the family and while she went into the room after something, it being quite dark she fell down cellar dislocating her shoulder. Dr. Blomburgh was called and soon had the patient resting easy.

What Causes Hay Fever.

An Ohio editor says that hay fever is caused by kissing grass widows. A Missouri editor says it is caused by a grass widow kissing a fellow by moonlight. An Iowa editor says it is caused by the fellow kissing his girl while he is feeding hay to the cow and an eastern Kansas exchange is of the opinion that it is caused by missing the girl and kissing the cow. A poetical editor says that it is caused by too much kissing in the heyday of youth.

The county commissioners this a. m. accepted the highest bid for job printing. Before opening the bids we understand Commissioner Sutor asked if they couldn't reject the Gazette bid without opening it. Mr. Sutor is supposed to represent the people and not a faction. And yet, as it is reported, he desired to reject a bid before it was opened. The other commissioners were satisfied to wait until the bids were read. The Gazette bid was the lowest. On purely technical grounds the highest bid was accepted. There's an economical board of county commissioners for you! and their protestations of a desire to save money on the county printing are as vapor.—R. L. F. Gazette.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent.

The Senate might have done four day's work this week, but it did not actually do four hours work. Evidently the Senators are not helping the administration avoid an extra session of the next Congress.

Jerry Simpson was in his seat when Congress reassembled, for the first time this session. He is the same old Jerry; defeat hasn't soured him at all. He says he is still in politics and expects to be as long as he lives. He is strongly opposed to the large standing army provided for by the Hull bill, and will be heard from before the bill is jammed through the House.

Talk of the administration putting a candidate in the field against Czar Reed for the Speakership of the next House is again prevalent. It is said that Mr. Reed has been asked to define his position towards the Hull army bill and several other measures in which the administration is deeply interested, and that if he does not agree to aid in getting those measures through the House an administration candidate for Speaker of the next House will at once be brought out. Such talk has heretofore amounted to nothing, and this will probably do the same but isn't likely to help the administration; nor will he fight it. He will allow it to pass any bill that can command a majority.

Where the public gets a chance to see the report of the army board of survey, which is now secretly investigating the charge of Gen. Miles, that the beef furnished our soldiers in Cuba and Porto Rico was "embalmed" with chemicals, which rendered it unfit to eat and dangerous to health, will depend entirely upon what Secretary Alger says after the report has been submitted to him, and what he will say will depend upon the nature of the report. If it be against Miles, it will be published as widely as possible; if it confirm his charges, it will be pigeon-holed for keeps. The beef trust is working hard to convince the board that they used no chemicals and that the beef furnished the soldiers was the same that the trust sells in every large city in the country all the time. Gen. Miles is conducting an independent investigation, through the office of the Inspector General of the Army, and the War Investigating commission is also dallying with the beef question.

Southern men who come to Washington these days nearly all have something to say about the proposition to admit Confederate veterans to government Soldiers' Homes and the pension roll, and the substance of the opinions of nine-tenths of them is contained in the following remarks, made Mr A. D. McClure, of Ga.: "If any one supposes that the southern people have the remotest idea that the veterans of the Confederate Army or their friends expect pensions of the U. S. Government, or even reception into the Soldiers' Homes, a grievously mistaken notion is cherished. Our people are not dreaming of any such idea, for they are too sensible to entertain any proposition so utterly romantic, not to say absurd. The old Johnnies are doing first-rate without any bounty from Washington. Our pension list is already big enough, and there is no need for further burdens. The whole idea is quixotic and the very first to denounce it would be the proposed beneficiaries."

Words Used by Writers.

A statistician in Paris has had the patience to count the number of words employed by the most celebrated writers. The works of Corneille do not contain more than 7,000 different words, nor those of Moliere more than 8,000. Shakespeare, the most fertile and varied of English authors, wrote all his tragedies and comedies with 15,000 words. Voltaire and Goethe each employed 20,000. "Paradise Lost" contains only 8,000, and in the Old Testament, he says, not more than 5,642 words are used.

He Won the Day.

An Irishman was foreman of a jury who had to try a man for murder. Word was sent to him that he would be paid £200 if he persuaded the jury to return a verdict of manslaughter. The verdict was returned, and the friends of the prisoner readily came and paid the money.

"Did you have much trouble in getting that verdict?" asked one.

"Faith, an' I had an awful struggle," said the son of Erin. "The rest of the jury wanted to acquit him, but, begarra, I wouldn't give way!"—Answers.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CONSUMPTION

GAMBLERS ARE WARY

THE RELIANCE THEY PLACE UPON CHARMS.

Luck-Bringing Potato—An English Gambler Who Always Carried One in His Pocket—A Jockey Who Carries a Pearl Button.

Seeing that gambling is nearly always a matter of luck or ill-luck, it seems consistent with the eternal fitness of things that habitual gamblers should be superstitious and place a certain amount of reliance upon charms and presentiments; but nevertheless, it is truly extraordinary how much importance many gamblers attach to trivial things and occurrences such as any one else would simply ignore.

One of the most notorious gamblers in the British aristocracy is an implicit believer in the luck-bringing powers of a small kidney potato, without which he rarely plays at any game at the risk of losing large sums of money. The history of the extraordinary charm is "wrapped in mystery," and no one has been able to drag out of the noble lord (for he is a member of the House of Peers) in what way he became possessed of his plebeian potato. But he stoutly asserts that but for his talisman he would have been ruined years ago by his gambling habits.

He is one of the luckiest men who ever cast a dice or cut a pack, and it is notorious that an evening's play at his favorite club has more than once put £1,000 into his pocket and it really seems that the superstition attached to his potato has solid basis, for on one occasion, when by chance he left his charm at home—a very rare thing for him to do—he lost heavily; whereas it is a most exceptional thing for him to rise from a card table a penny the poorer for a long evening's reckless gambling.

A well-known jockey who is reputed to have won ten times as much in betting as he has by his profession, although he has been wonderfully successful, never rides in a race or backs a horse for a half penny if he has not on his person at the time a smoked pearl button, and to attempt to argue with him that his charm could not possibly affect his fortunes would be useless; he would tell you of a hundred occasions on which the button changed his luck, and finally inform you that it had, when he was a child, saved his life by catching in the upholstery of a railway carriage when he fell out of the improperly closed door.

How he gets over the fact that he always carries the button when racing, but does not always get his horse a place, we do not know. Probably he believes it saves him a fall even when it does not carry him to victory, and he has certainly been remarkably lucky in the matter of accidents.

A leading light of London society, who is a frequent visitor to the gaming palaces at Monte Carlo and Ostend, when gambling wears on her wrist part of a broken clock spring, to which she attaches the greatest importance. It is said that on the occasion of one of her visits to Monte Carlo a friend persuaded her to leave her strange looking bracelet at her hotel and to play without it, and the result was that, unable to resist the fascination of gambling, even when losing, she lost between £7,000 and £8,000, not thinking how the money was going until it had actually gone.

Since then she has never gambled unless wearing her famous clock spring, and she has often surprised the company at her table by her wonderful runs of luck. She is perfectly calm when gambling with the bracelet on her wrist, while without it she always lost her head at the first loss of money and then plunged.

Every one knows how superstitious racing men are concerning dreams, but we came across a case a short time since which appears so novel that we include it in this article, although the actual subject is so hackneyed.

The superstitious gentleman is one with whose name every sporting man is acquainted, and relies absolutely upon suggestions made to him in dreams for every move he makes upon the turf; and since he made it his habit to do so he has never lost a penny upon a race, or lost a race in which one of his horses was running!

France Wants More Territory.

According to a lengthy article in the Paris Nouvelle Revue Internationale, an entirely new division of Europe is proposed. For France it proposes the "natural boundaries"—the Alps, the sea and the Rhine—with protective interests over Belgium, Holland and Luxemburg. To Russia is assigned Denmark, Norway and Sweden, in addition to the Slav districts of Austria and Prussia and a big slice of the Orient. Italy's share, it is argued, should include Trient, Triest, Dalmatia and Albania. To undertake this revision the Revue nominates the "big brother in St. Petersburg." In view of France's present condition and its position in the political world the suggestion appears like a bad joke. But it is made in all seriousness, with an undoubted hope of its accomplishment.

The Reluctant Witness.

Counsel—I insist on an answer to my question. You have not told me all the conversation. I want to know everything that passed between you and Mr. Jones on the occasion to which you refer. Reluctant Witness—I've told you everything of any consequence. "You have told me that you said to him, 'Jones, this case will get into court some day.' Now, I want to know what he said in reply." "Well, he said, 'Brown, there isn't anything in this business that I'm ashamed of, and if any snoopin', little, yee-hawin', fourby-six, gimlet-eyed lawyer, with half a pound of brains and sixteen pounds of jaw ever wants to know what I've been talking to you about, you can tell him the whole story.'"—New York Herald.

Weighed and Found Wanting.

"Our neighbors are shiftless people." "How do you know?" "When I go over to borrow anything they never have it."

SHE DYED HAIR, HE WHISKERS.

How a Husband Punished His Wife for Disobeying His Injunction.

A good story is going the rounds in Washington of the disastrous results which followed a wife's disregard of her husband's objections to peroxide. There were several tints in the wife's crown of glory and she had decided that inasmuch as it was nearly all blonde anyway the best thing she could do was to peroxide the whole lot. On broaching the subject to her liege lord, however, she was met with such decided disapproval as to put a damper on her plan for a time. By way of squaring things the husband gave her a handsome check and told her to get a new dress. When this garment came home from the tailor it was immediately tried on and there and then she decided that yellow hair and that gown would "just match splendidly." Next day she had the job done, and it must be confessed that she did not admire herself quite as much as she had expected. When her husband came home in the evening he gazed in amazement at the transformation, but did not say much, and the wife congratulated herself on his taking it so easily. Hubby was unusually silent, however, and she feared the coming storm. Next morning he went to his office in anything but an amiable mood. He sat for half an hour tugging savagely at his auburn beard and mustache, and finally decided on a course of action. An hour or so before his usual quitting time he visited a barber shop, where he had his beard and mustache dyed a poisonous looking black. The natural paleness of his face was hugely exaggerated by the stygian hue of his hirsute adornment, and he looked like a photograph taken after death. Then he went home and burst into the house with a grisly attempt at a cheery grin and a bluff manner. His wife met him in the hall. "How d'ye like it?" he asked her. "Great, ain't it? Real thing, eh? Thought I'd have it fixed up as a sort of contrast to you, y'know. Now we're both ornamental around the house, too. You look like an orange-padded tabouret and I look the cross section of an oil stove. Oh, ain't we a lovely bunch?" Then he caught sight of himself in the mirror over the mantel and fell into a chair and howled mirthlessly. After several hours of pleading she induced him to sneak around to a late-closing barber shop, where he had his beard and mustache removed. She cannot, in return, have her dead yellow hair shaved close to her head, of course, but he has her promise in typewriting that she will let the peroxide wear off, never in this life to be renewed.

The Black Bonaparte.

The mode in which the "Black Bonaparte," Samory, who has lately been captured in Africa, gradually built up a power that defied the Europeans for twenty years shows an ingenious use of the slave trade, as the basis for a military power that was not to be despised. Col. Combes of the British service, who fought against him for years, thinks that it was not only the character, tactical ability and tyrannical power of Samory that gave him his strength, but still more the ingenious means by which he took pains to provide himself with arms of precision. He had said to himself that if he had these not a tribe in the bend of the Niger could resist him. Beginning by making a few captives he exchanged these with slave merchants for good rifles or the means of procuring them, and thus provided he was able to make raids and to bring large numbers of slaves into the market, always investing his gains in rifles and munitions of war. Thus he brought into subjection the inferior peoples of the region, regarding them as a sort of war treasury upon which he could draw at need. To prevent a similar performance on the part of some other African chief, Col. Combes says the slave trade must be stopped and he urges that military posts should be established on all the frontier lines separating the empire of Samory from the hinterland of the British territories of Sierra Leone and Lagos, as well as from the republic of Liberia. If this be done, he says, Samory can have no successor, because the sources of his strength will be cut off.

Peoria as a Revenue Producer.

Illinois continues to be the largest contributor to the internal revenue of the government, the five highest states being as follows: Illinois, $39,658,686; New York, $21,058,669; Kentucky, $18,226,518; Ohio, $16,436,908, and Pennsylvania, $13,846,790. This covers the taxes on whisky, tobacco, beer, oleomargarine and other aticles. The banner district of the United States is the fifth Illinois (Peoria), which paid $22,837,554 out of a total of $170,866,819 collected by the government during the year.

B. & O. Improvements.

In accordance with the plans formulated two years ago by the receivers to place the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in first-class physical condition, considerable work is being done on the Trans-Ohio divisions. The improvements are being made with a view to using seventy-ton locomotives on all portions of the line, and since July 9,290 tons of 75-pound and 12,943 tons of 65-pound steel rails have been laid on the Central Ohio, Lake Erie and Chicago divisions. About 17 miles of new side tracks have been constructed, five telegraph towers erected, a new freight depot built at Mansfield, Ohio, an interlocking plant installed at Plymouth, Ohio, and five water stations, to expedite freight traffic, constructed. Further improvements of a more extensive character are being planned, in order to materially increase the ton-mile haul.

SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED IN QUALITY.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS

is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the California Fig Syrup Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

A KING'S EXECUTION GARMENT

Vest Worn by Charles I. When He Was Beheaded.

From the London Standard: The sum of 200 guineas bid the other day for the "sky-colored vest" worn by King Charles I. on the scaffold is not an exorbitant price for a relic at once authentic and ghastly. Nothing is lacking that might make a good Jacobite's flesh creep. The stains of blood have been religiously preserved by a succession of royalist owners, and it has been pointed out that of the thirteen buttonholes only twelve had been fastened. The top button had been removed, so that the illustrious victim might more easily bare his neck to the executioner. "He nothing common did or mean. Upon that memorable scene. But with his keener eye, The ax's edge did try." Such was the testimony of a republican poet, and there is no doubt that the sad dignity with which "Charles Stuart" comported himself in his last days roused qualms of remorse among some of those contemporaries who had been harshest in their judgment of his public policy. Admiration of the man went far to redeem the faults of the king, and with posterity he became at once the most sympathetic figure in the history of England—not even second to Mary Queen of Scots. And of her nobody will ever believe, let the Dryasdusts bring forward what documentary evidence they please, that she painted her face and wore false hair.

It is pretty certain, if the purchaser of King Charles' silken raiment ever thinks of allowing that precious possession to pass out of his family, that it would fetch far more than he has given for it. Placed in any museum it would always be thronged with sightseers; the combination of royal associations with gruesome memories would be quite irresistible. The most superior person is attracted, though he may deny it, by such horrors as a book bound in human skin, or by instruments, like the Maiden of Nuremberg, which he knows to have been used for torturing real men and women to their death. This relish of bloodshed—as distinguished from mere love of adventurous deeds—has given vogue to whole schools of romancers; it helped to account for the sudden popularity of Mr. Rider Haggard's tales, as it made the fame of Maurus Jokai. The taste is, no doubt, morbid, and ought not to be encouraged. But it is natural and has to be taken into account. And the psychological interest of it is to show that we are not, in our feelings, so far removed from our barbaric ancestors as we like to think.

Some interesting observations on the treatment of wounds of birds have been made by a writer who tells of a snipe both of whose legs had been unfortunately broken by a misdirected shot. He recovered the bird only the next day, when he discovered that the poor thing had contrived to apply a dressing of down and a sort of splint to each leg. A ligature of grass and been used to wind many times around the wounded parts, and was securely fastened by congealed blood. Twice the writer has brought home snipe with interwoven feathers strapped on one or the other leg, which undoubtedly had been broken.

THEY WANT TO TELL

These Grateful Women Who Have Been Helped by Mrs. Pinkham.

Women who have suffered severely and been relieved of their ills by Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine are constantly urging publication of their statements for the benefit of other women. Here are two such letters.

Mrs. Lizzie Beverly, 258 Merrimac St., Lowell, Mass., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to tell all suffering women of the benefit I have received from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for what she has done for me. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I was under the doctor's care. Upon examination he found fifteen very large ulcers, but he failed to do me good. I took several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, also used the Sanative Wash, and am cured. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine saved my life, and I would recommend it to all suffering women."

Mrs. Amos Trombleay, Ellenburgh Ctr., N. Y., writes:

"I took cold at the time my baby was born, causing me to have milk legs, and was sick in bed for eight weeks. Doctors did me no good. I surely thought I would die. I was also troubled with falling of the womb. I could not eat, had faint spells as often as ten times a day. One day a lady came to see me and told me of the benefit she had derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and advised me to try it. I did so, and had taken only half a bottle before I was able to sit in a chair. After taking three bottles I could do my own work. I am now in perfect health."

THE LEGISLATURE

Business Transacted by Minnesota Solons.

St. Paul, Jan. 10.—The senate was in session just sixteen minutes last evening with forty members present. Three bills were introduced, the most important being one by Senator Benedict, providing a method for the sale and distribution of the binding twine manufactured at the state prison. Other bills introduced were:

To appropriate $800 to aid the village of Climax to build a steel bridge over the Sand Hill river in Polk county. To provide for the election of railroad commissioners, a labor commissioner, a commissioner of insurance, a commissioner of dairy and food products and a superintendent of public instruction by direct vote of the people.

The House.

The house of representatives used up last evening a lot of surplus energy accumulated during the rest from Thursday, in the introduction of nine new bills and a resolution memorializing congress not to seat Brigham H. Roberts, the Mormon member from Utah. The resolution was offered by Mr. Yale of Winona as a result of a petition signed by Winona women. The bills introduced were:

To regulate and govern the sale of binding twine manufactured at the state prison. To amend section 1, chapter 23, Statutes of 1878, relating to the rate of interest. To amend section 4190, General Statutes of 1894, to regulate the use of devices used as a scroll or seal. To legalize and validate instruments without a seal. To amend chapter 48, Laws of 1897, granting a reward for killing wolves. To prevent railroad companies doing business in Minnesota from raising the rate of transportation of freight between stations in this state without the consent of the railroad and warehouse commissioners. To amend section 22, chapter 10, Laws of 1878, to regulate common carriers. To prevent persons from stealing rides on railroad trains, and authorizing trainmen to make arrests. To provide for the payment of all liquor licenses and fines for violations to the towns in which such licenses were granted and fines accrued.

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—Lieut. Gov. Smith announced his committee selections at the opening of yesterday's session of the senate, and the actual work of legislation in that end of the capitol may begin at once.

The senate adopted the resolution calling on the state auditor for all information in his possession relative to the controversy with the Great Northern Railway company over the so-called Biermann deed, conveying to it some 271,000 acres of land which it had persistently declined to accept. Auditor Dunn responded with copies of some correspondence between himself and Gov. Clough during the dying hours of the latter's administration. In substance Gov. Clough had canceled the Biermann deed on Dec. 30, and had issued a new deed embracing several tracts of land aggregating 1,023.08 acres, which the company had accepted. In cancelling the old deed and issuing the new one Gov. Clough expressly conditioned his action upon the statement that the procedure would enable the matter to be brought into court and the whole matter judicially tested.

Auditor Dunn says: "I have refused to record the deed for 1,023.08 acres given by Gov. Clough to the Great Northern company, and have directed the cruisers employed by the state to report to this office any trespass that has or may be committed on the lands described in Gov. Clough's letter of Dec. 27, 1898; and if any trespass has been or may be committed on any of said lands I shall proceed against such trespassers as if the trespass had been committed on any other state lands."

Twenty-one bills were introduced, among the more important being the following:

To regulate the employment of prisoners in the state prison and reformatory. Relating to the railroad and warehouse commission. Proposing a constitutional amendment providing for the initiative and referendum. Relating to wolf bounties. Relating to rate of interest. To provide for the printing of school text books and charts at the state reformatory. To enforce the payment of taxes delinquent in and prior to 1898. To provide for the creation of a public school teachers' retirement fund. To regulate and improve the service of grain inspection. To legalize and validate defective records of deeds, mortgages, etc. To suppress and punish trespassers upon engines or cars for purpose of avoiding payment of railroad fare. Establishing a probation system for juvenile delinquents. To prevent the sale of prison-made binding twine at a profit of more than 2 cents a pound.

The House.

The Jacobson resolution calling for the appointment of a joint legislative committee to investigate charges against the grain inspection department of the state and allegations that the twine trust has secured control of the manufacture and sale of binding twine made at the state prison, passed the house by a vote of 102 to 0. Besides the Jacobson resolution the house considered eighteen new bills, among them being the following:

To provide for the publishing of school text books at the state reformatory at state expense, to be sold to public schools. To license motormen of trolley cars and gripmen of cable cars. Relating to the taxation of express companies, increasing gross earnings tax from 3 per cent to 5. To provide for the taxation of railroads and repealing all other laws of similar nature; increases the gross earnings tax from 3 to 4 per cent. Regulating the employment of prisoners in the state prison and state reformatory. To regulate and govern the sale of binding twine at the state prison. Regulating the taxation of express companies. To regulate the holding of primary elections. To amend the laws regulating the foreclosure of mortgages by advertisement. To provide for the creation of teachers' pension fund in cities of more than 10,000 inhabitants. To extend the work of the state experimental station, providing for a new branch experimental station.

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—Senator Miller offered a resolution, which was adopted, on which it is proposed to base complaint to the state railroad and warehouse commission relative to freight charges from southwestern parts of the state to Minneapolis. The resolution requires that the state railroad and warehouse commission to report to the senate freight rates to Minneapolis from Luverne, Pipestone, Madison, Worthington, Jackson and Fairmont and corresponding rates from Breckenridge, Moorhead, Crookston and Duluth, and also "the reasons for the inequality in such rates, if any exist."

Among the bills introduced was one by Senator Potter of Hennepin relating to re-insurance by fire insurance companies, which restricts this class of business to authorized companies exclusively, and somewhat enlarges the powers of the state insurance commissioner. Other bills introduced were:

To amend the laws regulating exemptions of personal property in mortgages made by a husband or wife. To legalize the foreclosure of real estate mortgages by advertisement. Fixing a bounty for killing wolves. Regulating the establishment and jurisdiction of probate courts.

Senator Wilson proposed an amendment to the rules substituting Roberts' rules of order for Jefferson's rules. The amendment was referred to the committee on rules.

Senator Ives proposed an amendment to the rules enlarging the judiciary committee from seventeen to twenty-one members. It was sent to the committee on rules.

The House.

Speaker Dare, after the opening routine, announced the committee appointments. Of the important chairmanships Mr. Jacobson gets the appropriations committee; Mr. Ferris, the railroads; Mr. Grondahl, municipal legislation; Mr. Torson, grain and warehouse; Mr. Mallette, hospitals for the insane; Mr. S. C. Johnson, temperance; Mr. Babcock, legislative expenses; Mr. Laybourn, taxes and tax laws; Mr. Wood, game and fish laws; and Mr. Staples heads the committee on general legislation.

Thirteen bills were introduced, among the more important being the following:

Regulating elections. To provide for the payment of Minnesota volunteers $1.50 a day for the time between their coming to Camp Ramsey and their acceptance by the United States. Relating to the examination of persons charged with offenses. To protect farm laborers and giving them a lien on crops for their services. Providing for the election of assessors in incorporated villages. To provide for the recording of bonds in courts of record. Relating to fraudulent conveyances. Relating to the canvass of votes for president and vice president. Relating to township mutual insurance companies.

St. Paul, Jan. 13.—Senator Daly of Otter Tail county secured the passage yesterday forenoon in the senate by unanimous vote of that body of a concurrent resolution requesting the Minnesota delegation in congress to support a proposition to amend the United States constitution so as to provide for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. There was no debate on the resolution.

The senate spent a considerable part of yesterday's session in discussion of Senator McGowan's proposition to have the attorney general draft a bill for the introduction in Minnesota of the Torrens system of transferring and recording titles of real estate. A resolution was finally adopted directing the attorney general to investigate the laws of Illinois and Massachusetts relative to the Torrens system in vogue in those states and report in ten days as to whether a constitutional bill embodying the principles of the system can be passed and made applicable to the transfer of land titles in Minnesota. The Jacobson resolution, providing for a joint committee to investigate charges against the state grain inspection department and the management of the state prison relative to the sale of binding twine, was reported out by the committee on agriculture with a recommendation that it be passed without debate.

Among the more important bills introduced were the following:

To legalize foreclosure of real estate made by advertisement, wherein a power of attorney was not filed for record within the time heretofore prescribed. To regulate the practice of osteopathy and requiring practitioners to be licensed. Relating to the discharge of patients from hospitals for the insane. Relating to the conveyance of mortgaged property. To authorize villages to issue bonds. For the further protection of purchasers at judicial or foreclosure sales of real estate in the payment of taxes, assessments and insurance premiums delinquent during the period of redemption. Relating to the jurisdiction and establishment of probate courts. To authorize any city not exceeding 5,000 in population to issue bonds for the purpose of funding its floating indebtedness.

The House.

The most important piece of new legislation proposed in the house yesterday came from Mr. Peterson of Renville, and is drawn to carry into effect one of State Auditor Dunn's recommendations in his recent report. It provides that the rate of interest on deferred payments on public lands sold or to be sold, shall be reduced from 5 to 4 per cent, and that the period of final payment shall be lengthened from forty to fifty years. The measure is designed to prevent the congestion of money in the state treasury resulting from payments on public lands, which the state board of investment finds it difficult to invest at a higher rate than 3 and a fraction per cent.

Among the bills introduced were the following:

To reduce the rate of interest and increase the time for the payment of unpaid principal on all state lands heretofore sold. To legalize certain foreclosures of mortgages. To appropriate $1,200 for the payment of Warren B. Dunnell for plans prepared by him for the fourth hospital for the insane. Providing for the reimbursement of counties in which persons are committed to the hospitals for the insane, whose residence is in another county.

CAUCUS FOR SENATOR.

Minnesota Democrats and Populists Hold a Fruitless Meeting.

St. Paul, Jan. 14. — The minority members of the legislature held a caucus yesterday to select a candidate for United States senator in opposition to senator Davis. Senator Schaller of Hastings presided and Representative Hennessy of Ramsey acted as secretary. Three ballots were taken without result and the caucus adjourned until to-day. The first ballot stood: Towne, 16; Canty, 9; Winston, 6; O'Brien, 4; Schiffman, 1; Severance, 1; Murray, 1. Second ballot: Towne, 18; Canty, 20; Winston, 1. Third ballot: Towne, 22; Canty, 10; Schiffman, 2.

RECEIVER WANTED.

Klondike Company Seeking an Accounting and Dissolution.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Ten stockholders of the Klondike, Yukon & Copper River company, of which Frank Buffington Vrooman is president, have filed a bill in the circuit court asking for a receiver, an injunction restraining the company from disposing of any of its assets, an accounting, and the dissolution of the company. A receiver is sought on the ground that the company is insolvent, and in order that a pro rata division of such assets as remain should be made.

KILLED HIS BROTHER.

Fatal Ending of a Drunken Spree.

West Union, Iowa, Jan. 14.—Samuel Steiner, a farmer of Pleasant Valley township, came here and surrendered himself to the authorities. He said that his brother John and himself, with a neighbor named Hunsberger, were together; that they drank freely of home-made wine, becoming intoxicated; that a quarrel arose between them in which he (Samuel) shot his brother, killing him instantly.

MINNESOTA A MODEL.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 14.—The senate has concurred in the house resolution appointing a committee of five to visit the Minnesota state penitentiary at Stillwater and inspect the twine and cordage plant, with a view to establishing a similar plant at the North Dakota institution.

Strange Way to Marry.

Osage, Iowa, Jan. 14.—The marriage of two young people near Oskaloosa brings out some queer scheming on the part of the young people. The groom's parents refused consent to the union and the young man persuaded the bride's father to swear out a warrant and he was arrested for seduction. At the trial it developed he had no counsel. Upon this the squire ordered the usual prescribed punishment and a license was secured and the young people were married just as they wanted to be.

Train Robbers Bound Over.

Mansfield, Mo., Jan. 14.—Bill Ryan, formerly a member of the James gang; Dutch Weber, charged with complicity in the recent Memphis train robbery at Macon, Mo., were bound over to the grand jury and taken to jail to await trial. Weber says his home is at Sandusky, Ohio. In the preliminary hearing of John Kennedy of Kansas City, the alleged leader of the gang, Kennedy was identified as the man who had bought the dynamite for the robbery.

Hongkong, Jan. 14. — The Filipinos here say that ten American volunteers jumped overboard from the transports bound from Manila to Iloilo, swam ashore and said they had not volunteered to fight Filipinos. The report is not confirmed.

Madrid, Jan. 14.—The Italian steamer Vittoria, Capt. Bucelli, has arrived at Alicante with fire in her hold. The vessel will be a total loss. The 400 emigrants on board and her mails have been landed.

Faribault, Minn., Jan. 14. — Henry Wagner, aged eighteen, living in the town of Morristown, was accidentally shot while hunting. The young man picked up his gun and the trigger was caught and the gun discharged.

WORK OF CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 7.— Immediately after the senate convened the resolution offered by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts, calling for information as to the instructions of the commissioners who negotiated the treaty of Paris, together with all correspondence and reports relating to their work, was laid before the senate. Chairman Davis, one of the commissioners, desired that it be referred to the foreign relations committee, but Mr. Hoar insisted that the senate had as much right to such information as the members of the foreign relations committee, and that the president should determine whether the senate should have it. The resolution was adopted in secret session. In support of the resolution offered some time ago by Mr. Vest of Missouri in opposition to expansion, Mr. Caffery of Louisiana delivered an extended speech. At the conclusion of Mr. Caffery's argument Mr. Morgan of Alabama announced on behalf of the Nicaragua canal committee the acceptance, in a modified form, of the amendments offered by Mr. Berry before the holidays to the pending canal bill. The amendments were not passed.

In the House.

The anti-civil service reformers secured a victory in the house. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was taken up for consideration, and when the appropriation for the civil service commission was reached, Mr. Evans, Rep., Ky., made a motion to strike it out. This motion has been made annually for a dozen years or more and has invariably failed. But yesterday the opponents of the law laid great stress on the fact that they could not get a direct vote upon the proposition and therefore were obliged to seek its nullification in this manner. Even these appeals failed to bring out the full strength of the opposition, though the motion to strike out carried by a narrow margin of 67 to 61. This was in committee of the whole, where no record is made. Mr. Moody, Rep., Mass., gave notice that he would demand a record vote in the house, where the friends of civil service law expect to reverse the decision. Those who advocated the motion to strike out were: Messrs. Evans, Rep., Ky.; Grosvenor, Rep., O.; Hepburn, Rep., Iowa; Linney, Rep., N. C.; Brown, Rep., Ohio; Marsh, Rep., Ill. Its opponents were Messrs. Moody, Rep., Mass.; Hopkins, Rep., Ill.; Fleming, Dem., Ga.; Brosius, Rep., Pa.; Henderson, Rep., Iowa; Dolliver, Rep., Iowa. During general debate on the bill Mr. Swanson, Dem., Va., delivered a speech on anti-imperialism.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The house of representatives was engaged all day in the legislation of the executive appropriation bill, and completed it substantially as reported, except the items for the civil service commission, which went over. There were several side debates. One of these brought out Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio in a speech of an hour on current political questions. The Philippines also came in for attention on the discovery of an item of $12,000 for naval charts of the islands. The item was ruled out on a point of order by Mr. Dockery, the chairman, Mr. Payne, holding that the Philippines were still foreign territory and as such were not the proper subject of the legislation proposed.

The Senate.

Washington, Jan. 9.—When the senate convened Mr. Pasco (Fla.) presented a memorial from a camp of Confederate veterans at Ocala, Fla., protesting against the adoption of the proposition of Mr. Butler (N. C.) to pension ex-Confederate soldiers.

At the conclusion of the routine business the District of Columbia appropriation bill was taken up.

Mr. Mason (Ill.) offered the following resolution:

"Whereas, all just powers of government are derived from the consent of the governed, therefore, be it

"Resolved, by the senate of the United States, That the government of the United States of America will not attempt to govern the people of any other people in the world without the consent of the people themselves, or subject them by force to our dominion against their will."

Mr. Mason asked that the resolution lie on the table, announcing his intention of addressing the senate upon it next Tuesday.

The District appropriation bill was passed. The house bill granting extra pay to officers and enlisted men of the United States volunteers was called up by Mr. Shoup and passed without amendment. The bill grants two months' extra pay to troops that have served outside of this country and one month's extra pay to those who have served only in this country. The senate then, after a brief executive session, adjourned.

Washington, Jan. 10. — Yesterday proved to be an interesting day in the senate, the principal subject under discussion being the constitutional right of the United States to carry into effect the policy of expansion. The leading speaker was Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts, who delivered a speech in support of the resolution introduced by Mr. Vest of Missouri declaring it to be in opposition to the constitution for this country to acquire foreign territory to be governed permanently as colonies. Although Mr. Hoar occupied the time of the senate for more than two hours he was accorded the unusual compliment of close and undivided attention by his colleagues on the floor and a large audience in the galleries. He confined himself closely to his manuscript, but his address was delivered with all the fire, fineness and animation of the orator that he is. His speech was in answer to that recently delivered by Mr. Platt of Connecticut, and had been most carefully prepared. He took strong ground against the position assumed by the Connecticut senator, maintaining that it was in violation of the constitution and the declaration of independence, the "genial expounder of the constitution" for this country to acquire foreign territory to be governed as colonies. Mr. Platt, at the conclusion of Mr. Hoar's address, briefly replied to some points of the speech which had been directed especially at him. He reiterated his former statement that the United States had the power to acquire and govern foreign territories, and declared that if this country had embraced the doctrines of Mr. Hoar the Mayflower would have been turned back from Plymouth Rock and the country would never have had expanded to the Pacific coast. Mr. Caffery concluded his speech in opposition to the Nicaragua canal bill, but an effort to fix a time for a vote upon it failed.

In the House.

The house reversed the decision of the committee of the whole last Friday when the appropriation for the support of the civil service commission was stricken out of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. In committee, where members do not go on record, the appropriation was stricken out by a vote of 67 to 61. Yesterday, when the roll was called, the appropriation was restored, the motion to strike out being defeated—95 to 119. The house, by special order, decided to proceed with the consideration of the naval personnel bill as soon as the bill for the codification of the laws of Alaska was out of the way. About seventy additional pages of the latter bill was covered, leaving almost 100 pages still undisposed of.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Senator Mason of Illinois occupied the attention of the senate for nearly an hour and a half with a speech in support of his resolution declaring that the United States will never attempt to govern the people of any country without their consent. In many respects the speech was one of the most notable utterances in the senate thus far this session. Rugged in language, pointed and effective in illustration, Mr. Mason commanded the attention of the senate and of the galleries from the first sentence of his speech to the apostrophe to liberty which formed his peroration. Several times spontaneous applause swept over the galleries, but under the stringent rules of the senate it was quelled quickly. It was several minutes after the conclusion of the speech before the senate could proceed with its business on account of the confusion incident to the congratulations which many of Mr. Mason's colleagues hastened to extend to him.

The Nicaragua canal bill was discussed by Mr. Turley of Tennessee, who opposed the pending measure. An agreement was reached to consider the bill on Tuesday with fifteen minutes to discuss such amendments.

The House.

The house devoted its undivided attention again to the bill for the codification of the criminal laws of Alaska and when adjournment was had all but ten pages of the bill had been disposed of.

Washington, Jan. 12.—A climax was reached yesterday in the debate on the question of expansion which is in progress in the senate. Heretofore all of the speeches, with the notable exception of that of Mr. Platt of Connecticut have been in opposition to what is presumed to be the policy of the administration with respect to the acquisition of the Philippines. Yesterday Mr. Foraker of Ohio addressed the senate in opposition to the declaration of the Vest resolution that the United States has no constitutional power to acquire foreign territory to be maintained as colonies. While much of his speech was devoted to a constitutional argument in support of the right of this country as a nation to acquire and govern outlying territory, he gave particular attention to the utterances that have been made in contravention of that position, especially those of Mr. Vest and Mr. Hoar. Senator Foraker laid down the broad proposition that to adopt the Vest resolution was to declare that our fathers had brought forth a nation that was inferior to all other nations, regardless of the generally accepted idea that one nation was the equal of another and all equally restricted. He maintained that the right to acquire territory was an inherent right of nationality, and that as we have the right to make war and to enter into treaty agreements it follows logically that we have the power to acquire territory by conquest and to assume the responsibilities that may accrue therefrom. Mr. Foraker's strong assertion that the acquisition of the Philippines was temporary in character created a sensation in the chamber. He maintained, however, that we have a legal right to hold the islands permanently.

Prior to the speech of Mr. Foraker a sharp debate was precipitated by Mr. Allen of Nebraska by some remarks he made upon a resolution he had introduced. Mr. Hoar and Mr. Gray were drawn into it.

At 3:10 p. m. the senate, on motion of Mr. Davis, went into executive session. Senator Davis reported the peace treaty, stating that it had not been amended. He moved at the same time that the treaty and the proceedings of the peace commission be made public. This motion led to debate. The discussion was brief, however, and the motion to remove the injunction of secrecy prevailed without division.

The House.

The house completed and passed the bill for the codification of the criminal laws of Alaska upon which it has been working intermittently for a week. An amendment was adopted providing a high license system in that territory with a species of local option. Liquor dealers, by its provisions, are to pay a license of $1,000 per year, and the consent of a majority of the white settlers residing within two miles of a liquor dealer's establishment must be obtained before a license can issue. An attempt to recommit the bill for the purpose of securing the adoption of a provision excluding ex-convicts from service on juries was defeated.

Washington, Jan. 13. — Little business was transacted by the senate in open session yesterday. Sixteen bills on the private pension calendar were passed and a joint resolution extending the thanks of congress to Miss Clara Barton and other officials of the Red Cross society for their beneficent work in Armenia and Cuba was adopted.

The House.

The house passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill without amendment. During the general debate two set speeches were made against imperialism by Messrs. Carmack and Gaines. The diplomatic and consular is the sixth of the regular appropriation bills to pass the house. Seven budgets yet remain to be acted upon. The bill as passed carries $1,705,533.

THIS IS BETTER.

Favorable Reports From Otis at Manila.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The secretary of war was much gratified by the receipt of the following cablegram from Gen. Otis at Manila:

"Conditions apparently improving. Citizens feel more secure. Many natives returning. City quiet and business active."

Madrid, Jan. 14.—Persons who have returned here from the Philippines expatiate upon the "difficulties facing the United States when undertaking to conquer the whole archipelago in arms." They assert that it will be impossible for the Americans to penetrate beyond the ports without an immense army, declaring that the islands are "so impoverished that the Americans will be compelled to obtain provisions elsewhere, and the climate is much more fatal that the Cuban climate to Americans."

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES.

Gratifying Financial Feature of the Report by Trustees.

New York, Jan. 14.—The forty-sixth annual report of the board of trustees of the Congregational Church Building society was presented at its annual meeting. It shows that only one year (1897) since the society began its work has brought as large an amount to its treasury as this year, $183,177. The sum of $123,874 has been voted to 102 churches on houses of worship; $26,025 to 57 churches on parsonages; to 42 churches $76,260 in the form of loans, and $47,414 to 83 churches in the form of grants. Eighty-eight houses of worship have been built or materially improved, likewise 48 parsonages. The parsonage loan fund has now reached the sum of $108,702, besides the amount refunded on loans. In twenty years the denomination has made a net gain of 2,059 churches.

NEW OFFICERS.

State Agricultural Society Holds Its Annual Meeting.

St. Paul, Jan. 14. — The Minnesota State Agricultural society held its annual meeting here yesterday. The business of the society was transacted and reports of officers were read showing the society to be in a satisfactory and flourishing condition. The following officers were elected:

President, John Cooper, St. Cloud; first vice president, Chester R. Smith, St. Paul; second vice president, George H. Partridge, Minneapolis; members of board of managers (for three years), N. S. Gordon, Crookston; Dr. J. C. Curryer, Mankato.

DEPEW FOR SENATOR.

Unanimously Nominated by New York Republicans.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 14. — Chauncey M. Depew was unanimously chosen as the candidate of the Republican party as representative in the senate and assembly for United States senator in a joint caucus held in the assembly chamber last night. There was very nearly a full attendance of members of the party of both houses. The election will be held in both houses Tuesday next, and on Wednesday next the legislature will meet in joint session to declare the result.

DINGLEY IMPROVES.

The Congressman Has a Good Chance for Recovery.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The favorable change in Representative Dingley's condition continues, and he is reported better, with the dangerous symptoms showing some abatement. The following statement was made by one of his sons: "Mr. Dingley is resting quietly. Pulse good. If no complications arise he will continue to improve."

FIRST OF ITS KIND.

Range Cattle Exhibition to Be Held at Denver.

Denver, Jan. 14.—Great interest is being manifested throughout the West over the coming meeting of stockmen here during the week of Jan. 23. Besides the National Live Stock convention, a range cattle exhibition is to be held at the stock yards, the first exhibition of this kind ever held.

MEMPHIS SCORCHED.

Fire Causes an Estimated Loss of $150,000.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 14. — A fire which broke out at 7:30 last evening in the wholesale and retail dry goods house of the J. S. Menken company, one of the largest establishments of its kind in the South, caused an estimated loss of $150,000.

THE TURKS WIN.

Six Thousand Killed and Wounded in Battle With Arabs.

Constantinople, Jan. 14.—A great battle has been fought in the Yemen division of Arabia. The Turkish troops stormed and captured the insurgent position at Shanel on Nov. 30. About 4,000 insurgents and 2,000 Turks were killed or wounded.

Sudden Death.

Grantsburg, Wis., Jan. 11. — August B. Anderson, a prominent farmer, resident here for thirty years, dropped dead.

Severe Storms in England.

London, Jan. 14.—Telegraphic communication is interrupted almost everywhere by the heavy gales sweeping over the United Kingdom. Steamers are delayed and the channel service also suffered from the storm.

Killed in a Quarrel.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 14. — Charles Williamson, race horseman, was shot and killed at Fifth and Market streets by Ike D. Smith, a gambler. A quarrel over a small amount of money was the cause.

An Illustration of the Artfulness of the Modern Girl.

"The artfulness of the modern girl," remarked a woman who was a girl years ago, "passeth understanding. I have, for example, a young kinswoman of 18, whose mother, knowing that my husband was out of town, invited me to her house to tea one day. The girl was so sweet to me that in the end, though I hadn't the slightest idea of doing it when I set out, I asked her to come home with me and stay the night. She assented—not too eagerly—and as we walked toward the car together—she lives on Capitol Hill—she began to talk of young Mr. So-and-so, Commander So-and-so's son, who was so anxious to meet me. No woman is too old to be proof against flattery, so I expressed an interest in Mr. So-and-so, and told her she might bring him to see me some day.

"'It would be nice if he could come over this evening, wouldn't it?' she said thoughtfully. I agreed that it would.

"'You might have sent him a note if you had known,' I said, for at my age it isn't too often that young men want to make my acquaintance.

"'I tell you what,' she said, quite as if the idea had just occurred to her; 'I'll telephone to him and see if he has any other engagement.'

"We went into the nearest drug store, and idly I followed her to the telephone box, though she called my attention to something at the other end of the store. Central gave her the desired number—the young man's brother is a physician.

"'Is this Mr. So-and-so?' she asked.

"Pause.

"'It's all right about tonight,' she said. 'Goodby.'

"That's all she said. And then, and not till then, I realized how that innocent young thing had played it on me. As I said before, the artfulness of the modern girl passeth understanding."—Washington Post.

A MOST PECULIAR CASE.

Where the Money Came From to Pay the Attorney's Bill.

"Most peculiar case I ever had," mused the attorney who is still a favorite with those requiring a strong defense in the criminal courts. "You never saw a finer looking young fellow. He had a good face and a well shaped head. He was clean and neatly dressed. He talked well and looked you squarely in the eyes. When I went to the jail at his request, I took an immediate liking to him. It had been my business to study human nature and I was satisfied from the first that he had never committed the $10,000 robbery of which he stood accused.

"He told me his story, frankly and without reservation. I was convinced more firmly than ever of his innocence. He outlined his own defense by accounting for every minute of his time on the night of the robbery, and informing me just where the witnesses to substantiate his statements could be seen. I found them, and they affirmed everything he had told me. It was as clear a case as I ever saw, and I went into court with the utmost confidence. The prosecution did the best it could under the circumstances, but we swept the board and the young man was acquitted by the jury's first ballot. He was very grateful, shaking hands with the judge, the jurymen and even the prosecuting attorney.

"'Now, sir,' he began, when we had reached the office, 'what do I owe you?'

"'Only what you can afford to pay me. The saving of an innocent man is something of a reward in itself.'

"'Well, I would like to pay you more, but at present I can only afford to give you half of the $10,000. Is that fair?'"—Detroit Free Press.

As a Brother.

A certain curate was of a painfully nervous temperament, and in consequence was constantly making awkward remarks—intended as compliments—to the bishop and others. Having distinguished himself in an unusual degree during a gathering of clergy to an afternoon tea at the bishop's palace, he was taken to task for his failings by a senior curate, who was one of his companions on the way home.

"Look here, Bruce," said the senior decidedly, "you are a donkey. Why cannot you keep quiet instead of making your asinine remarks? I am speaking to you now as a brother"—

Loud laughter interrupted him at this point, and for the moment he wondered why.—Baltimore News.

Great Watch, Great Cow.

Seven years ago a farmer living west of Webster City, Ia., hung his vest on the fence in the barnyard, and as a result of it a wonderful story is told.

A calf chewed up a pocket in the garment in which was a standard gold watch. Last week the animal, a staid old milk cow, was butchered for beef, and the timepiece was found in such a position between the lungs of the cow that the process of respiration, the closing in and filling the lungs, kept the stem winder wound up, and the watch had lost but four minutes in the seven years.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Family Resemblances.

Aunt—Whom does your new little sister most look like, your father or your mother?

Little Emma—Both. She has no teeth. That's like mommar. And she's hairless, like popper.—Toronto World.

The Papuans of the Malay coast of New Guinea are still in the most primitive state. They are wholly unacquainted with metals and make their weapons of stones, bones and wood.

It is only imperfection that complains of what is imperfect. The more perfect we are the more gentle and quiet we become toward the defects of others.—Fenelon.

HE FOOLED THE JURY

A LAWYER'S CLEVER TRICK THAT SAVED HIS CLIENT.

The Rascal on Trial Was Guilty and Proved So Beyond a Doubt, but the Shrewd Lawyer Found a Way to Win His Case.

When Colorado was organized as a territory, there was little English used outside of Denver and the mining camps. The rest of the thinly scattered country was as Spanish as any part of our latest America. Not Castilians, of course,—more likely a general mixture of Aztec and Apache and a lot of other strains of blood, but certainly Spanish in name and in speech. The government recognized that it had a difficult task before it in bringing these 'greasers' to understand the very beginning of the obligations and the duties of their American citizenship. One of the most trusted agents in this campaign of education was Judge Hallett, who was put in charge of the judicial system of the new territory. From that time to this he has been at the head of the federal judiciary in the great and prosperous state of Colorado. Despite this fierceness of rebuke and countless oddities of temper no judge has ever been so respected as he along the great divide.

When he first went on circuit, the bar left Denver with him and traveled in a body both for sociability and for safety. Then there was no railroad, the only means of reaching any place from any other being along a slightly marked trail barely passable for horses. By slow stages the bench and the bar reached Trinidad under the cold shadows of the Sangre de Cristo range. These Spanish names were an incessant annoyance to Judge Hallett, who declaimed against each one in turn and announced his purpose of memorializing the secretary of the interior to have them, all made American. Of a piece with this was his attitude toward the prevailing Spanish speech of the country. He objected to it. Among the first rules of his court was that which provided that all its transactions should be in English, and that if litigants objected to the work of the sworn interpreter that was their own lookout. It might encourage them to learn to talk "American," as they ought.

In Trinidad Colonel Taylor of the bar was retained for the defense in a case where no defense was possible. The place was full of witnesses who had seen the deed done, whatever it may have been, for that is unimportant. The prosecuting attorney put on witness after witness to prove the facts. He made a perfect case, and he demanded that full punishment be inflicted. It was a difficult situation for Colonel Taylor. His client was guilty beyond a doubt. Cross examination of the witnesses could only make that fact more distinct, and for that reason he did nothing so foolish. The case was altogether Spanish. Criminal, witnesses, audience—there were not six words of English in the whole outfit. The interpreter had been called on for every word which had gone back and forth throughout the trial. Colonel Taylor arose to make his plea. He surveyed the cluster of dark faces which filled the shed in which the court was sitting.

"Caballeros," he began—"caballeras del jurado"—

There was a loud whacking of the gavel by Judge Hallett as soon as he caught the sound of the language which he despised so heartily.

"Mr Taylor, Mr. Taylor," he shouted, "as a member of the bar of this court you must be aware that all its transactions must be conducted in the English language, the language of this country. If I thought that you were using Spanish maliciously, I should punish you soundly for such contempt of this court. You will address this court of the United States in United States and in no other speech, language or dialect."

"I bow to your honor's ruling," continued Colonel Taylor and resumed his plea, but in English and with the assistance of the interpreter. He told the greaser jury how the sight of their proud Castilian lineaments had caused him to forget a rule of the court and to address them in the sonorous speech of Spain, from which their proud forefathers came. He obeyed the judge, but he felt the restraint of having to make his pleading through the assistance of the interpreter. It was a simple matter which he could set right in a few sentences of their own language, but he feared that in English he could not do so well; yet he hoped that they would not see a fellow citizen punished solely for the reason that his advocate was not allowed to address a Spanish jury in their own tongue. Harping on this theme, he avoided any discussion of the evidence which bore so heavily on his client, and in his peroration he paid a glowing tribute to the language of Don Quixote and Queen Isabella. This done, he fled from the spot and was not seen until court had arisen for the day.

When they next met, the prosecuting attorney wanted to know why he had not been on hand to receive congratulations on the acquittal of his client.

"They set him free without a stain on his character and without their seat and it was all due to your Spanish. Why didn't you wait? You're the hero of the whole population."

"That's just the trouble," rejoined Colonel Taylor. "I knew they'd acquit that rascal and then they'd fall all over me with their Spanish. I just naturally had to hide. Those three words that Judge Hallett choked me off on, that's all the Spanish I ever knew in my life. I couldn't afford to be congratulated."—New York Sun.

"Scot Free."

Scot is the equivalent of the Anglo-Saxon word "sceat," meaning taxation, therefore "scot free" originally meant "free from the payment of taxes," and now it has become a general expression for freedom from anything.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

Hungarian Gypsy Minstrels.

The gypsy minstrels form a caste by themselves. Their appearance is always more swarthy than that of other Hungarian musicians, their dress is sometimes purposely fantastic, and their manner of life is far more Bohemian than the most liberal minded artist would care to own to. Every hotel and restaurant in Budapest possesses its gypsy band, and the method of payment is as free and easy as the music itself and their life. The hotel keeper is not bossed by any contract, but at various intervals throughout the performance one of his gypsies takes a dinner plate and goes round among the various guests in the hall from table to table, receiving in the plate what the latter like to put there. The favorite coin deposited there is the nickel 10 kreutzer piece, answering to our twopence. I have not often seen a florin or a krone (half a florin). The whole collection is, as a rule, made up of twopences.—Good Words.

High Officials Take in Washing.

Samoa, Stevenson's island home and grave, is the only country in the world where its rulers and chief justices vie with each other in the honorable work of the laundry. There is no false pride about a chief of Samoa, who will discuss high politics with you one moment and the next make a tender for your washing. What is more, when he has executed the washing to your satisfaction he will ask you to give him a testimonial to that effect, with which to bait succeeding visitors.—New York Journal.

THE GREATWESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

A general invitation is extended to the people of Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls to attend the masquerade ball at St. Hilaire Saturday February 11th.

St. Hilaire has a man that can saw more wood with a buck saw than any other man in the state. His name is S. Harris. He sawed six cords, once in two, in ten hours.

Geo. Tarrant mill-wright for the Crookston Lumber Co., was here the first of the week enroute to points on the Clearwater where there is a few cases of smuggling of logs so to speak.

L. T. Bergh will leave next week for Glenwood where he will look after collections for the Deering Machine Co. He expects to return sometime during the month of May when he will look after the companys interests in this territory.

Mr. Nelson of Crookston and Mr. McManus of Grand Forks was here last Monday checking up the McCormick notes. Everything O. K. they left Tuesday for Red Lake Falls on the same business.

Generals Miles, Breckenridge and Eagan are prominent figures at the present time and all on account of the "embalmed beef" that killed off so many soldiers in the late war. We are of the opinion that Gen. Miles knows what he is talking about.

James J. Hill last Thursday told the farmers how to farm. He does not like it when the farmers tell him how to run the Great Northern railroad. Maybe the farmers will not heed Mr. Hill's advice any more than he heeds their advice.—Moorhead News.

Fergus Falls Journal: We are gratified to state that every county in the Seventh congressional district is paying legal rates for its county printing this year, with the exception of Clay, where it has not been let yet. It is gratifying to see the editorial profession acquiring some sense, and there is no kicking on the part of the people.

Make arrangements now and be sure to attend the masquerade ball which will be given at St. Hilaire on Saturday February 11th, 1899. Four prizes will be given. Masks can be purchased at M. A. Hall's. Tickets 50 cents. Its the ladies of the village that have undertaken to get up this masquerade and everybody should turn out and make it a success.

Looking over the financial statement of Beltrami county we see that William Zipple of the Lake of the Woods was allowed $116.60 for carrying the election returns to the county seat. The township in which Mr. Zipple lives cast eleven votes. Sometime ago we printed an article showing the route Mr. Zipple took via Rat Portage, Winnipeg and Crookston. Rather expensive township for young Beltrami.

For a nice Collins or a Silver Fiz go to Pete Paradis.

To show that the newspapers were right last year, each and every paper in the county published the commissioners proceedings when it was only necessary for one to do it. The commissioners do not appreciate acts of this kind. It seems as though they are not working in the interests of the tax payers, but there to "GET EVEN" with some of the printers. The "big four" did four times more work than was necessary according to the bid last year, thereby giving the tax payers the benefit, as one paper out of the four publications reach every tax payer in the country keeping them posted on county affairs.

AMERICANS RUSH TOO HARD

Consequently They Fail to Extract the Real Joys of Life.

In the Janury Ladies Home Journal Edward Bok deplores the sense of rush that has taken possession of the American women, and emphasizes the dangers arising from this condition of unrest. "Take our family life to-day," he says. "Look around one's own family circle, look into its life, look into the families we know, and tell me if I am so far wrong when I say that what our American families need more than anything else is more time with each other more drawing together; more moments of being alone with each other; a greater extraction of the peace and comfort from those material surroundings which each so earnestly strives for, and all are too much satisfied to strive for simply to possesses, and nothing more. We are all too much in a hurry in America to allow of our knowing and enjoying each other; our lives are too full with the things which ought to be secondary and which we have allowed to dominate us. We are all too busy; men and women, girls and boys—all of us. We are not getting the rich beauties out of life; the greatest enjoyment out of living. Rush and haste are too much upon us. The sweet balm of peace and quiet is an unknown delight to thousands of our people. And much of the cause, disagreeble as it is to say it, lies with our women who have of late allowed their lives to become too full. I will not say that they have neglected, to any alarming extent, the fundamental duties of wifehood and motherhood. But I do say that the danger of doing so in the very near future exists, in many an instance, if things are allowed to go on as they have gone.

WYLIE HAPPENINGS.

The quiet and peaceful meine that generally hovers about the home of Felix Anderson was suddenly disturbed last Saturday evening in a way that completely took that gentleman by surprise. Without a word of warning a large number of his friends and relatives marched in and congratulated Mr. Anderson on the anniversary of his birth, he having reached the 31st mile-stone in the journey of his life. As a momento of the esteem in which he is held, he was presented with a beautiful photo album. Mr. Anderson though taken completaly unaware, was equal to the occasion and entertained his guests in a royal manner. Music and myrth making was the order of the evening and the hours waxed late before the jolly visitors betook themselves homeward. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

Millionaire's Army Meat.

It is charged and incontestibly proven that beef furnished the army by Chicago packers last summer was unfit for human food, was so unwholesome that it was largely responsible for the sickness in the army and its deplorable results. The only point not yet clear is whether the meat was in the condition when it left the packers that it was when it reached its destination. But it is reported that much of the canned meat was prepared to fill orders from the Japanese government during its late war with China, but which was not taken because of the sudden close of that war. Aside from the loss of life caused by feeding soldiers this bad meat, and the scandal implied by prominent American multi-millionaires making such a display of their patriotism(?), this occurrence is most unfortunate by reason of the effect it will have on our foreign meat trade. Heretofore every possible effort has been made to prejudice the European masses against American meats, and now the promoters of the prejudice are supplied with material from our own people that can and doubtless will be used with disastrous results to our meat interests.—Farm, Stock and Home.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent.

Senator Morgan secured the contest of the Senate to vote upon his Nicaragua Canal bill, next Tuesday, and he is confident that it will pass, with amendments acceptable to him. The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is unanimously in favor of the canal, but divided on how it shall be built.

The sword that Congress had made Dewey is on exhibition in Washington; also the sword which the Royal Arcanum had made at a cost of $1,500 for Schley, but nobody is exhibiting a sword that anybody intends for Sampson, who not being able to pull a presentation sword will have to be content with having pulled more promotion than he was entitled to from the Navy Department.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie is in Washington, openly working against the ratification of the treaty of peace. He thinks that if Col. Bryan would revise his advice and try to get democratic Senators to vote against the treaty, instead of voting for the treaty and afterwards against expansion, its rejection would follow. He said: "All that I hear indicates the increase of the opposition, and I am quite encouraged to believe that the ratification of the treaty can be defeated. According to my opinion this is the opportune time for those who oppose expansion to do their work. Only a one-third vote is required to defeat the treaty, whereas with the treaty ratified, we will have to secure a majority to make our views effective. Hence, I say that this is the time for Mr. Bryan and other anti-expansionists to make the fight. Hereafter we will not enjoy the advantage over our opponents that we now do, having them to meet them in the open field.

ROCKSBURY NOTES.

A series of surprise parties have been going on in the neighborhood of Valhall in the last couple of weeks, as for instance with the Engelstads, Romings, Norland's and Bernt Wolds.

Mr. Bernt Wold has been on the sick list for some time and sympathizing friends surprised him the other evening with a present of $26.00.

Mr. J. A. Thorin of Fertile is visiting the Good Templars lodge "Breidablik," representing the Minnesota Grand Lodge for the purpose of giving instructions in signing and general lodge work and is pleased to find this lodge in a flourishing condition.

Norland's, Engelstad's, Torgeson's and Hans O. Rod were guests with Oscar Anderson in Thief River Falls last Sunday. The parties engaged in playing whist, reading, singing and general discussions on differen topics. Everybody had a reel good time. The perty broke up at 12 o'clock p. m.

If you want a morning cocktail go to P. G. Paradis.

Keep it Out of the Papers.

The Terrell Index says: "Keep it out of the paper" is the cry which the local newspaper publisher daily hears. To oblige often costs considerable, though the party who makes the request thinks the granting scarcely worth saying thank you for. A newspaper is a peculiar thing in the public eye. The newsgatherer is stormed at because he gets hold of one item and is abused because he doesn't get another. Young men and often women, as well as older persons perform acts which become legitimate items for publication and then rush to the newspaper office to beg the editor not to notice their escapades the next day they condemn the same paper for not having published another party doing the same thing they were guilty of, forgetting apparently their late visit to the printing office. The subscribers expect to read the news and there is always wonder when for charity's sake, an item on the street and in everybody's mouth is not found in the next issue of the paper.

Words Used by Writers.

A statistician in Paris has had the patience to count the number of words employed by the most celebrated writers. The works of Corneille do not contain more than 7,000 different words, nor those of Moliere more than 8,000. Shakespeare, the most fertile and varied of English authors, wrote all his tragedies and comedies with 15,000 words. Voltaire and Goethe each employed 20,000. "Paradise Lost" contains only 8,000, and in the Old Testament, he says, not more than 5,642 words are used.

He Won the Day.

An Irishman was foreman of a jury who had to try a man for murder. Word was sent to him that he would be paid £200 if he persuaded the jury to return a verdict of manslaughter.

The verdict was returned, and the friends of the prisoner readily came and paid the money.

"Did you have much trouble in getting that verdict?" asked one.

"Faith, an' I had an awful struggle," said the son of Erin. "The rest of the jury wanted to acquit him, but, begorra, I wouldn't give way!"—Answers.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

RETURNED TO GEN. EAGAN

WAR COMMISSION DON'T LIKE HIS TESTIMONY.

He Is Given the Privilege of Resubmitting His Testimony If He Chooses to Revise Its Language—The President and His Cabinet Give the Controversy Considerable Attention—The War Commission Did Not Indicate That the Testimony Would Be Revised, Even if the Objectionable Language Was Excised.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The war investigating commission yesterday took prompt action on the sensational testimony submitted to it by Gen. Eagan and sent the statement incorporating his testimony back to him with the privilege of resubmitting it if he chose to revise its language. Further than this the commission determined it could not and should not proceed. The commission regrets that Gen. Eagan proceeded as far as he did, and it is explained that the vituperative nature of the testimony was a complete surprise to the commission, and that but for the rapidity with which Gen. Eagan read his long statement and the absorbing vehemence of its delivery he would have been checked at the time.

There was no abatement in the interest exhibited here in all the incidents connected with Gen. Eagan's bitter attack. As might have been expected a matter of this official consequence was sure to attract the attention of the president, and in consequence the greater part of the session of the cabinet was given up to its consideration. The principals in the controversy, Generals Miles and Eagan, contributed little during the day to the controversy. The letter of the commission returning Gen. Eagan's statement did not indicate positively whether or not they will receive it as evidence, even though the was excised, nor did Gen. Eagan himself give any sign of any intention on his part to avail himself of the offer made by the board. His friends did not hesitate to intimate that he would expunge the objectionable language, but he would say nothing for himself, and any intimation on that score must be obtained from the board itself. The war department officials are not yet clear as to what would be the effect of a withdrawal or modification of the statement. One element holds that, officially, the record failing to show any objectionable language being used there was no legal offense. Another takes the view that while the amendment of the statement would mitigate Gen. Eagan's offense it would not wipe it out. Another aspect of the case is the bringing forward of the plea of exemption which was guaranteed in the name of the president to all witnesses before the board from what they might say, but again the officials are divided, and this was also true of the members of the cabinet as to whether the exemption could be claimed in this particular case.

Meanwhile Gen. Miles is apparently waiting for the war department to act, taking the position that it is incumbent upon it and the war commission to protect the army from such attacks.

EAGAN EXPLAINS.

He Says That He Was Goaded Into Making the Statement.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Commissary General Eagan consented to be interviewed last night. When the subject of his testimony before the investigation commission was broached, Gen. Eagan first made clear the fact that he and he alone was responsible for the statements, both as to facts and language.

"I had my own grievance," said he. "A terrible charge was brought against me. I was accused of cheating—no, I mean I was accused of poisoning soldiers under the pretense of experiment. If it had not been for that charge I might not have spoken before the commission as I did. For three weeks I chafed under the charge of having poisoned soldiers under the pretense—yes, under the pretense—of experimenting with chemicals. If it had not been for this charge perhaps I would not have used such language before the commission. Let those that criticise my language be placed in the position in which I was placed. Let them be charged as I was charged and they will understand my language better. It is the gored bull that feels the pain."

WILL IGNORE IT.

Gen. Miles' Comment on the Eagan Billingsgate.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—A special to the Tribune from Washington says: When Gen. Miles was seen in regard to Gen. Eagan's statement before the war investigating commission, he said: "I shall pay no attention to a man who seems to forget that he wears the uniform of the United States army, and this dignity should carry with it the instincts of a gentleman. If the secretary of war chooses to take cognizance of Gen. Eagan's language, well and good. I certainly shall not do so."

Cleared Up His Shortage.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 14.—Ex-Secretary W. E. Chilton has paid to the attorney general about $8,000, balance due to the state on his shortage of over $22,000.

Rear-End Collision.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—In the mist and darkness a South side elevated train going at full speed crashed into the rear end of another train at Sixty-third and Madison. Only two of the dozens of passengers were injured.

Fingers Shot Off.

Waverly, Iowa, Jan. 14.—While climbing into a wagon Lute Leitha, who had been rabbit hunting, shot three of the fingers from his right hand, his gun discharging with his hand over the muzzle.

POWER OF THE BUNDESRATH.

And the Sovereign Rights of the German States.

Berlin, Special.—The decision of the bundesrath that it is competent to deal with the Lippe-Detwold succession dispute, is based on the professional opinion of Prof. Kekule von Stradonitz, which differs from the majority. The whole matter will form the subject of a resolution in the reichstag and the Freisinnige party will force the government to define how far the bundesrath or federal council may interfere with the sovereign rights of each state of the German empire.

HUSBAND NATURALLY ANGRY.

Returns From Chicago and Finds His Wife Married to Another Man.

New Paynesville, Minn., Jan. 14.—An interesting and somewhat sensational case will be tried at the coming term of the district court in Kandiyohi county. Something like two years ago a resident of Roseville went to Chicago to get work, leaving his wife and family in the village of Hawick, town of Roseville. All was presumably well between husband and wife. Not many days ago the husband returned from Chicago to find his wife the wife of another man and living in North Dakota. An examination of the records of the court showed that a divorce had been obtained on the ground of failure to support. The returning husband was wroth and at once caused warrants to be issued for the arrest of his wife and her new husband, charging them with perjury. The warrants were served and the new husband procured bail, but the wife, being unable to procure bail, now awaits her trial at the coming term.

SWINDLERS WEAKENED,

And a Clever Scheme to Steal Twenty-One Cars of Wheat Was Frustrated.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 14.—A bold attempt to steal twenty-one cars of wheat was nipped in the bud by clever detective work and prompt and decisive action on the part of officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. The grain was mostly the property of the S. Y. Hyde Elevator company and the W. W. Cargill company of this city and the cars were diverted from their original consignees by the substitution of bogus waybills. It appears just about the time the deal was nearing consummation the swindlers weakened. Had the perpetrators been successful in carrying out their clever scheme it would have made them $15,000 richer. Supt. Wilbert Irwin and Freight Claim Agent H. R. Elliott are now engaged on the case. They have stopped all loss either to the railroad company or the original shippers and expect to have the entire gang of fraudulent waybill workers under arrest soon.

LAWLESS STUDENTS.

Try to Break Up a Play and Are Arrested.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 14.—A crowd of nearly 1,000 students of the University of Wisconsin attempted to break up the play "Fra Diavolo," given by the Deshon du Vries Opera company at the Fuller opera house, and in consequence five were locked up in the police station. The officers attempted to arrest a number in the opera house, but these were rescued by their fellows after a fierce struggle. The opera house was crowded at the time and many women were severely handled in attempting to escape from the bucking. After the play the students gathered in the street and threatened all manner of violence. They refused to disperse at the command of the chief of police and five were arrested.

APPOINTMENTS BY GOV. LIND.

Sent to the Senate and Immediately Confirmed.

St. Paul, Jan. 14.—Gov. Lind sent the following nominations to the senate: J. J. Heinricks of Minneapolis, for state oil inspector; F. W. Johnson of New Ulm, as state librarian; Geo. H. Goodrich of Anoka, as a member of the state board of pharmacy. The nominations were at once confirmed.

Worthy Object.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 14.—The ladies of this city have formed an association which has for its object the prevention of further mutilation of Sugar Loaf mountain. For mercenary greed the rock had been quarried and much reduced in beauty and height and the ladies propose to stop it.

Check Was Forged.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 14.—A smooth game was this morning worked on J. F. L. Deilke by a stranger, claiming to be Carl Schmidt of St. Paul. He said he was brother-in-law to the merchant adjoining and on the strength of this Deilke cashed a check for $30. It proved to be a forgery.

Hardwood Men Interested.

Marshfield, Wis., Jan. 14.—The Wisconsin Hardwood association held its annual meeting in this city. Considerable interest was exhibited on account of the prospect of taking off the $2 a thousand tax on lumber from Canada.

After a Thief.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 14.—Marshal W. Collier, Thomas Keating and William Wolf of Kellogg, Minn., are in the city looking for a man who stole $10 in cash and $80 in gold nuggets from Mr. Keating. They did not find him.

Flouring Mill Consumed.

Clara City, Minn., Jan. 14.—The flouring mill at this point was burned. Insured for about half its value. The Northwestern Elevator company has a force rebuilding its elevator which was burned three weeks ago.

Telephone Sold.

Madison, S. D., Jan. 14.—Messrs. Larkin & Coffey, owners of the local telephone exchange, have sold the system to Acksett & Gray of Harmony, Minn. The system will be improved and extended.

Hotel Fire Victims Dead.

Le Sueur, Minn., Jan. 14.—William Corman, who was found unconscious in one of the rooms after the Le Sueur house fire, has died from the effects of inhaling the smoke.

Struck Dead.

Canton, S. D., Jan. 14.—A passenger train instantly killed Arne Paulson, a prominent farmer of Lincoln county.

Early in the Field.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 14.—At a meeting here yesterday local business men resolved to go after the Republican state convention next June. A committee was appointed to meet the central committee at Des Moines.

Creamery Burned.

Clermont, Iowa, Jan. 14.—The Clermont Valley Creamery company's branch skimming station at Cunder burned to the ground. The property was valued at $2,500 and was insured for $1,000. It will be rebuilt.

British Consul for Cuba.

London, Special.—Lionel E. G. Carden has been gazetted British consul general for Cuba. Mr. Carden was until recently consul general at the City of Mexico.

Richmond, Va., Special.—James Webster, colored, eighteen years old, was hanged in the court house yard at Bedford, Va., for rope. He confessed the crime.

W. C. McDonald, the well known Montreal merchant, has been knighted for his munificence to McGill university.

B. & O. Improvements.

In accordance with the plans formulated two years ago by the receivers to place the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in first-class physical condition, considerable work is being done on the Trans-Ohio divisions. The improvements are being made with a view to using seventy-ton locomotives on all portions of the line, and since July 9,290 tons of 75-pound and 12,943 tons of 65-pound steel rails have been laid on the Central Ohio, Lake Erie and Chicago divisions. About 17 miles of new side tracks have been constructed, five telegraph towers erected, a new freight depot built at Mansfield, Ohio, an interlocking plant installed at Plymouth, Ohio, and five water stations, to expedite freight traffic, constructed. Further improvements of a more extensive character are being planned, in order to materially increase the ton-mile haul.

You Can Work This On Your Friend.

SITUATION IS CRITICAL

BUT GEN. OTIS HAS MATTERS WELL IN HAND.

No Such Certainty of Trouble at Manila as Many Believe—Rebels Concentrated on the Outskirts of the Town and Their Leaders Have Instructed Them to Act Only on the Defensive—An Accident Might Precipitate Trouble—A Call to Arms in Consequence of a False Alarm Restores Confidence in Americans.

Manila, Jan. 14.—The situation here is undoubtedly critical, but Maj. Gen. Otis has it well in hand and there is no such certainty of trouble as many believe. The rebels are concentrated on the outskirts of the town, and their leaders have issued strict orders that they shall act only on the defensive. An accident might precipitate trouble, but the idea of a rebel attack upon Manila is ridiculous, as the Americans resolutely control the position. Aguinaldo has republished the second manifesto in reply to the proclamation of Gen. Otis, which was recalled on its first appearance, but it has proved ineffectual. On Wednesday a false alarm due to trivial incidents occurring simultaneously in opposite parts of the city, led to a general call to arms of the United States forces. In fifteen minutes the entire city was covered. The promptness of the Americans, while it created a scare for the moment, effectually restored confidence throughout Manila and dispelled the excitement due to a passing fear on the part of the citizens that an outbreak was imminent. It is possible that the Filipinos, after the diplomatic conferences that have been had between the representatives of Gen. Otis and Aguinaldo, have finally come to understand that the cautious and conservative policy of the Americans is not due to fear, and they will accept the inevitable with good grace. It is evident that at present they are unable to appreciate the full meaning of the independence demanded, and that when they do understand its extent, the American proposition will be acceptable.

Madrid, Jan. 14.—The government has received the following official dispatch from Manila: "The American troops here that were ordered to Iloilo mutinied and refused to start. Gen. Miller has been ordered to abandon Iloilo and return to Manila. All the American troops have been ordered to concentrate here, the situation being the gravest."

CONVENE THE CORTES.

Sagasta Will Then Immediately Demand Ratification of the Treaty.

Madrid, Jan. 14.—Senor Sagasta, the premier, will convene the cortes for Jan. 25 or 30 and will immediately demand a ratification of the peace treaty. The debate, it is expected, will last a week. The Spanish government has reminded Washington of the undertaking on the part of the peace commissioners of the release of Spanish prisoners in the hands of the Filipinos, and asks for a prompt reply. The newspapers allege that the Americans have requested the Spanish government not withdraw the Spanish troops from Mindanao, the southernmost of the group, before the Americans arrive there so as to prevent the insurrection breaking out.

CALL ON WILDMAN.

Filipinos Claim Money From the American Consul.

Hongkong, Jan. 14—Federo, Sandico, Vilo, Bilartino, Arcadio, Del Rozario, Gallaino and Apaelble, members of the Filipino junta, claim the return of $47,000 (Mexican) deposited with United States Consul Wildman in this city June 3 last, and also the costs of their suit. There are no particulars, but the Filipinos allege the money was handed to Consul Wildman for safe custody when arrangements were made to cooperate with the Americans in the Philippines.

BRITISH GALES.

London Practically Cut Off From Communication With the World.

London, Jan. 14.—This city has been practically isolated all day long. No news messages have been received from the continent for several hours, and communication with all parts of this province is seriously interrupted. There have been wrecks of minor importance, and several lives have been lost around the coast. The gale generally has subsided, but another is approaching the Irish coast.

ORDERED TO CUBA.

Gen. Breckinridge to Make an Extended Trip of Inspection.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Gen. Breckinridge has been given orders to proceed without delay to Cuba and Porto Rico on an inspection trip of several months. He was directed to report to Maj. Gen. Brooke and to Adjt. Gen. Corbin.

Robbed While at a Funeral.

Yankton, S. D., Jan. 14.—While the widow of the late William Herran was attending the burial of her husband the dwelling was broken into and $150, in bills taken from the dresser drawer. Suspicion has centered on a character of that part of the city and the matter is being investigated.

Gold Brick Story.

Rat Portage, Ont., Jan. 14.—A gold brick, estimated to be worth $15,000 to $20,000, has just reached here from the Mikado mine. Several gold bricks have been shipped from here during the past week.

The Pen for Life.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Jan. 14.—The jury in the Carrington murder case brought in a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment at life imprisonment. In the former trial the death penalty was imposed.

CAUSED A PANIC.

Fire in a Pittsburg Hotel Creates Some Excitement.

Pittsburg, Special.—A small fire in the Arlington hotel caused a panic among the guests and help, but no one was seriously hurt. Next door to the hotel is the Alvin theater, where "The Sign of the Cross" is being produced. The audience packed the house to the doors and for a few minutes there was great danger of a serious panic, but the perfect discipline of the employes and the coolness of the actors prevented a general stampede. After an interruption of about five minutes quiet was restored and the play proceeded.

The Laborer and His Hire

"Run back to the hotel and see if I left my watch in my room. Here's half a dollar if you're back with it before the train starts."

The intelligent messenger was off like a shot.

He was back just as the train was pulling out.

"Yes, sir!" he cried; "you left it there; saw it myself. Gimme my half-dollar!"—Boston Citizen.

A Double Crop of Apples.

On a Long Island farm is an apple tree which bore two crops of fruit the past year, and the farmers are taking unusual interest in this peculiarity of nature. Just as much interest is being taken in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which cures dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation and blood disorders when other remedies fail to benefit.

The Gambling Bacillus.

Successful sports know that in the highways and byways are countless idiots who skimp their families, borrow, beg and even steal, in order to bet on horse races at odds of 4 to 1 against them in the long run, on stocks at 20 to 1, on slugging matches at everything to nothing. The gambling bacillus infests every legitimate sport and soon rots it.—Criterion.

Feathered Surgeons.

Some interesting observations on the treatment of wounds of birds have been made by a writer who tells of a snipe both of whose legs had been unfortunately broken by a misdirected shot. He recovered the bird only the next day, when he discovered that the poor thing had contrived to apply a dressing of down and a sort of splint to each leg. A ligature of grass had been used to wind many times around the wounded parts, and was securely fastened by coagulated blood. Twice the writer has brought home snipe with interwoven feathers strapped on one or the other leg, which undoubtedly had been broken.

Enigma.

"I cannot tell you, kind sir," she cried,
For you must know that this pretty maid
Was just beginning to learn to ride.

THEY WANT TO TELL

Those Grateful Women Who Have Been Helped by Mrs. Pinkham.

Women who have suffered severely and been relieved of their ills by Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine are constantly urging publication of their statements for the benefit of other women. Here are two such letters:

Mrs. LIZZIE BEVERLY, 258 Merrimac St., Lowell, Mass., writes:

"It affords me great pleasure to tell all suffering women of the benefit I have received from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for what she has done for me. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I was under the doctor's care. Upon examination he found fifteen very large ulcers, but he failed to do me good. I took several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, also used the Sanative Wash, and am cured. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine saved my life, and I would recommend it to all suffering women."

Mrs. AMOS TROMBLEAY, Ellenburgh Ctr., N. Y., writes:

"I took cold at the time my baby was born, causing me to have milk legs, and was sick in bed for eight weeks. Doctors did me no good. I surely thought I would die. I was also troubled with falling of the womb. I could not eat, had faint spells as often as ten times a day. One day a lady came to see me and told me of the benefit she had derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine, and advised me to try it. I did so, and had taken only half a bottle before I was able to sit in a chair. After taking three bottles I could do my own work. I am now in perfect health."

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XVIII. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1899. NUMBER 26

SENATOR DAVIS IS RE-ELECTED

HAS A MAJORITY OF NINETY-FOUR IN BOTH HOUSES.

The Senate and House Take Separate Votes, the Minority Voting for C. A. Towne—Little Interest Displayed, Owing to the Absence of a Contest—The Senator Telegraphs his Thanks and Says Only Imperative Business Prevented His Being Present in Person.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—Not since Senator Davis was first elected to the United States senate twelve years ago, has such unanimity been displayed in the choice by the legislature of Minnesota of a United States senator as attended the proceedings of yesterday, when Senator Davis was elected for the third time. Senator Davis received the vote of every Republican senator and every Republican representative who was present, and in addition the vote of the Democratic senator, McGovern of Waseca, and of the Democratic People's representative, Fosness of Chippewa, giving his 26 majority in the senate and 68 in the house, or a total of 94 majority. The vote in the senate was 13 for Davis and 17 for Towne, and in the house 93 for Davis and 25 for Towne.

At high noon President Smith of the senate announced as the special order of business the election of United States senator. The name of Senator Davis was presented in a brief speech by Senator Horton of Ramsey. Senator Baldwin of St. Louis performed a like duty for C. A. Towne in a brief but forceful speech. There were no secondary speeches and the vote was taken at once, resulting as follows: C. K. Davis, 43; C. A. Towne, 17. Absent senators: Gansewitz, Hospes and McKusick.

In the house the vote for senator was made the special order for 12 o'clock on motion of Mr. Staples. Gov. Yale of Winona nominated C. K. Davis and Representative Stivers of Crow Wing named C. A. Towne. Numerous seconding speeches were made for both candidates. The vote resulted: C. K. Davis, 93; C. A. Towne, 25. Absent, Representative Von Lehe.

IN JOINT SESSION.

Formalities of Senator Davis' Re-election Are Concluded.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—The proceedings of the joint convention of the two houses with reference to the election of a United States senator were brief and purely formal. At 12 o'clock Lieut. Gov. Smith and the members of the senate appeared at the bar of the house and were seated in the hall. After roll call Speaker Dare, presiding, directed Chief Clerk Bergstrom to read that portion of the journal of the two houses for Tuesday which related to the election of a senator. This done, he formally declared Cushman K. Davis elected United States senator for the term of six years, beginning March 4, 1899, it appearing that he had received a majority of all votes cast in both houses.

Speaker Dare then caused to be read a telegram from Senator Davis thanking the legislature for the honor conferred upon him, and stating that only business of an important nature prevented him from being present to make his acknowledgements in person.

IN AMERICAN SHIPS.

Senator Nelson Wants Our Trade With Porto Rico Carried.

Washington, Jan. 20. — Senator Nelson introduced a bill providing that trade between the United States and Porto Rico, and also between ports in Porto Rico and adjacent islands ceded to the United States, be carried on in American vessels. The bill provides for the forfeiture of any merchandise transported in other vessels, and imposes a penalty of $200 for each passenger so carried. The bill authorizes the commissioner of navigation to make such regulations as he may deem expedient for the nationalization of vessels owned in Porto Rico at the time of the cession of that island.

AFRAID OF DISEASE.

Some of the Soldiers in Cuba Are Anxious to Return Home.

Havana, Jan. 20. — The impression prevails at Mariano that the entire Seventh army corps is soon to be mustered out, and as a result Camp Columbia is a scene of wild joy. The report is probably false, but the boys accept it as correct and are happy. Army of occupation is dissatisfied with the treatment it has received at the hands of the government, and almost to a man is anxious to get home. Disease is constantly increasing, and the prediction is made that another month will see typhoid and yellow fever, if not smallpox, epidemic.

RIOT IN HUNGARY.

Four Persons Reported Killed and Sixteen Injured.

Budapest, Jan. 20. — A fierce election riot took place at Uj-Szent-Anna, in the county of Arod, Hungary, and it is reported that four persons were killed and sixteen injured. Troops have been dispatched to the scene of the disturbance.

Smallpox Among Soldiers.

Baltimore, Jan. 20.—Because of the appearance of smallpox at Fort McHenry the reservation has been quarantined. Private Holbrook, Battery B, Sixth artillery, is the victim. He arrived a week ago from Rochester.

Prisoners Escape.

St. Louis, Jan. 20.—Some time during last night six general prisoners sawed through the cage in the new guardhouse at Jefferson barracks, cut through twelve inches of brick and made their escape.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Wisconsin Republicans Unable to Agree Upon a Candidate.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 21. — The situation in the great senatorial battle remains unchanged, and the belief is prevalent that the Republicans will make no caucus choice before Tuesday noon, when, according to law, the legislature must ballot for senator until one is elected. Three fruitless ballots were taken this morning, it being agreed among the leaders that no more should be taken if no choice was shown. The three ballots were identical and stood: Quarles, 41; Stephenson, 23; Cook, 18; Babcock, 16; Webb, 10. Two members were absent. Adjournment was taken until Monday evening. All the candidates save the indefatigable Babcock will make a flying visit home in the interim. Twenty-two fruitless ballots in all have now been taken. A renewal of the struggle comes Monday evening. A short journal session of the legislature will open half an hour before. Whether or not the caucus fails to make a selection Monday balloting for senator will commence in open session of the two houses Tuesday, continuing daily thereafter till a choice is made.

NORTH DAKOTA'S SENATOR.

P. J. McCumber of Richland County Takes the Prize.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 23.—P. J. McCumber was the unanimous choice of his party for United States senator in the joint assembly of the legislature, with the exception of one vote. Herbrandson voted for Johnson in spite of the understanding in the caucus. McCumber received 77 votes and Thomas Kleinogle of Fargo 13 fusion votes. Lieut. Gov. Devine declared McCumber elected. The scene in the house chamber was an animated one. Bismarck society was present and other cities of the state had a quota of representatives. It was understood that the question had been settled and the occasion furnished no surprises.

PAYNE IS ILL.

He Suffers a Slight Stroke of Epilepsy.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 21.—Henry C. Payne, national Republican committeeman of Wisconsin, suffered a stroke of epilepsy last night while dining at the Milwaukee club. The attack is said not to have been serious and Mr. Payne is reported to have been well enough to go to his home. While Mr. Payne has been subject more or less to these attacks for the past year or so, his friends feel considerable anxiety at this stroke on account of the senatorial contest in this state, in which Mr Payne, in view of his statement yesterday, may cut considerable of a figure before the struggle for the coveted prize is settled.

PRINTING OFFICES PIED.

Some Miscreant Creates Havoc In Three Printing Offices.

Antigo, Wis., Jan. 21. — When the four printing offices of this place were opened yesterday all except one, the Journal, was in a demoralized condition. All the type was pied and portions of the week's edition of each office were destroyed. The papers that suffered from vandalism are the Antigo Republican, the Weekly News and the Herold, German. Suspicion rests very strongly in one direction, and the owners of the three offices are confident they know the perpetrators.

WIRE STOLEN.

Western Union Loses Large Supply Between Omaha and St. Paul.

Omaha, Jan. 21.—It has just been discovered that thieves have stolen about a mile of the heavy copper wire recently strung by the Western Union Telegraph company between this city and St. Paul. The line had only been completed a few days when it ceased to work, and linemen sent out from here discovered about a mile of the wire gone near Florence. The thieves had climbed the poles and cut the wire at the insulators.

Controversy Settled.

Ottumwa, Iowa, Jan. 21. — Rev. J. Hollister Lynch, chairman of the standing committee of the Iowa diocese of the Episcopal church, has received consent from a majority of the standing committees of the church in the United States to the consecration of Rev. Theodore N. Morrison as bishop of the church of Iowa. This settles the long controversy. Only one standing committee—that of Nebraska—has thus far refused.

Want Modifications.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 21.—Two hundred Alaskan citizens here wired Gov. Brady, now in Washington, to urge President McKinley and the joint high commission to use their influence to secure modifications of the recently-enacted alien exclusion law of British Columbia; also for a Pacific coast man to succeed the late Nelson Dingley on the joint high commission.

Attempt to Burn a School.

St. Paul, Jan. 21. — Three deliberate attempts have been made in as many days to burn the central high school, and only prompt discovery has prevented the structure from being reduced to ashes. In each instance unmistakable evidences of arson have been left behind by the perpetrator. The board of education has started an investigation.

Logging Train Wrecked.

McKinley, Minn., Jan. 21.—A logging train of ten cars was wrecked on the Duluth & Iron Range railway near Duluth by running through a switch. No one was injured.

Lafitte Sentenced.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 21.—Dr. Horman Lafitte of Superior, who was found guilty of perjury was sentenced to a year and a half in prison and a fine of $1.

Their Hopes Raised.

Elysian, Minn., Jan. 21.— Since the purchase of the branch railroad running from Mankato to Red Wing by the Minneapolis & St. Louis, it is expected that better passenger and mail service will be secured on the branch.

Busy Logging.

White Earth, Minn., Jan. 21. — Several logging camps are now in active operation on the ceded lands, and many others are now ready to commence work as soon as contracts are affirmed.

AN EMERGENCY MEASURE

Will Be Asked for to Keep the Regular Army Strength at 60,000 Men.

Washington, Jan. 21. — It is understood to be the intention of the administration in the event that congress fails to act upon the army reorganization bill after ratifying the peace treaty, to ask the passage of a joint resolution in the nature of an emergency measure, continuing the authority conferred by the war legislation to keep the regular army up to a strength of 60,000 men. So far 8,000 men have been gotten into the ranks of the regular army under the authority thus conferred. This force of 60,000 would have imposed upon it the duties now performed by about 150,000 soldiers. The entire Second army corps now at Augusta, Ga., however, is for the time being idle, and indications are that the number of troops required to garrison Cuba will be much smaller than was anticipated.

PHILIPPINE COMMISSION.

Two Members Will Start for Manila Jan. 30.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Two members of the Philippine commission, President Schurman of Cornell and Prof. Worcester of Ann Arbor university, will leave Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 30, for Manila. They will be followed about a fortnight later by Col. Denby, the remaining civilian member, who is still sitting as a member of the war investigating commission. At Manila the three civilian members will be joined by Admiral Dewey and Maj. Gen. Otis, who will complete the commission. Both President Schurman and Prof. Worcester have had their final interviews with the president and have received the instructions which shall govern them in making their investigations, and report as to the policy to be pursued by this government towards the islands.

ORDERS FOR THE OREGON.

The Battleship May Be Sent From Hawaii to Samoa.

San Francisco, Jan. 21.—The United States dispatch boat Iroquois has sailed for Honolulu. The vessel carried a number of special dispatches, some for the battleship Oregon, due at the islands, and some that are supposed to relate to the sending of the Oregon to Samoa. The navy department officials here are unable to say whether the Oregon has been ordered out, but it is thought that she has been.

Wellington, N. S. W., Jan. 21.—The British third class cruiser Tauranga has started for Samoa.

INCREASED PAY.

Free Delivery Carriers to Have Their Salaries Raised.

Washington, Jan. 21.—The first assistant postmaster general has issued an order increasing the salaries of all the regular free-delivery carriers who provide their own horses or other modes of conveyance from $300 to $400 per annum, beginning from Jan. 1 last, and is expected to meet the embarrassments caused by many faithful carriers threatening to resign because of insufficient pay.

UNCLE SAM'S DUTY.

Transportation of Spanish Prisoners From Manila.

Washington, Jan. 21.—The war department has issued an invitation for bids from responsible shipping concerns of all nations for transportation of the Spanish prisoners from Manila to Spain. The treaty requires the United States to transport these prisoners home without awaiting ratification of the peace treaty. Bids will be opened Feb. 1 in New York and San Francisco.

WILL PLEAD GUILTY.

Gen. Eagan's Trial Will Probably Be Short Lived.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Former United States District Attorney A. S. Worthington will represent Gen. Eagan before the court-martial to be held in this city the 25th inst. Gen. Eagan will plead guilty to the charges brought against him. It is assumed that the trial will not last more than a day or two.

Gen. Breckinridge Starts.

Washington, Jan. 21. — Brig. Gen. Breckinridge, inspector general of the army, will start to-day on his journey to Cuba and Porto Rico to investigate the conditions of army posts on the islands. This duty, it is thought, will consume probably two months. The general will go from Washington to Miami, Fla., where he will take the boat for Havana.

Deadlock in California.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 21.—The senatorial deadlock continues. Two ballots were taken, the result being unchanged. Milton J. Green, Grant's manager, was very ill and unable to attend the contempt proceedings, which were accordingly continued until next Monday at 2:30 p. m. Speaker Wright to-day filed his $250,000 libel suit against the San Francisco Call.

Reception for Shafter.

San Francisco, Jan. 21.—Maj. Gen. Shafter was given a public reception by the citizens of San Francisco at the Palace hotel. The affair was under the auspices of a committee of 100 citizens headed by Mayor Phelan. The general shook hands with thousands of citizens. Gen. Shafter made a brief speech in which he reviewed the Santiago campaign.

Dairy Cows Diseased.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 21.—City Veterinarian J. J. Miller estimates that 15 per cent of the dairy cattle here are suffering from tuberculosis. In compliance with the state law the doctor will report conditions to the city council, which, in turn, will notify the governor.

New Mail Route.

Bayfield, Wis., Jan. 21.—A new railway mail route has been established over the Bayfield Transfer railway between this place and Red Cliff, Wis. The service will consist of one mail each way six times a week.

The Hancock Mine.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 21.—John D. Cudaby of Calumet has secured an option on the Hancock mine, and will go to Boston next week to organize a company to work the property on a large scale.

THE LEGISLATURE

Business Transacted by Minnesota Solons.

St. Paul, Jan. 14.—Senator McGowan of Minneapolis yesterday submitted the only proposition on which there was extended debate, in the form of a resolution proposing the creation of a joint legislative commission to revise tax laws. The resolution called for the appointment of a committee of seven, three from the senate and four from the house, to investigate and report a bill for the revision of the general tax laws. At the conclusion of a somewhat lengthy debate the resolution was referred to the committee on taxes and tax laws.

Among the bills introduced were the following:

Praying for the passage of a bill now pending in the senate of the United States to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate interstate commerce," for the purpose of giving force and effect to the findings of the interstate commerce commission by making the record made before the commission on a hearing to constitute the record on appeal. Regulating the construction of fences and cattle guards along the rights of way of railroads. To repeal chapter 205, Laws of 1895, providing for the manufacture of beet sugar in Minnesota and offering a bounty therefor. Relating to the payment of taxes. To appropriate $1,500 to reimburse citizens in Cass county for expenses incurred in connection with the uprising of the Bear Island band of Chippewa Indians. To regulate the business of fire insurance companies. To regulate sleeping car companies, designating them as common carriers and placing them under the jurisdiction of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

Gov. Lind transmitted a message to the senate making the following nominations, which were unanimously confirmed: Inspector of illuminating oils, Julius Heinrich of Minneapolis, vice F. C. Barrows; state librarian, Fred W. Johnson of New Ulm, vice Charles A. Gilman; member of the state board of pharmacy, George H. Goodrich of Anoka.

The senate adjourned until 10 o'clock Tuesday forenoon.

The House.

The house devoted the major portion of a brief session yesterday to a somewhat protracted debate over two matters of comparatively little importance, one of which, in the opinion of the majority of the house, had far better been passed by in silence. A day or two ago the Minneapolis Journal, in its political column, said in substance that if Messrs. Dare, Staples and Jacobson were taken out of the house practically nothing would be left. Mr. Nyquist introduced a resolution barring the representatives of the Journal from the privileges of the floor until it should have publicly apologized for its slur on the house. After some debate, the resolution was indefinitely postponed.

The other matter that called out a useless debate was a bill repealing the special law providing for the salary of the judge of probate of Mille Lacs county. The bill was finally passed.

The following bills were introduced: Requiring county auditors and city controllers to furnish records of assessments which are liens. To regulate the payment of fees into the state treasury by foreign corporations upon filing articles. To provide for the cutting of weeds upon the public highways. To provide for the distribution of the sugar beet seed purchased by the state under the act of 1897. To protect all persons in their civil and legal rights. To regulate the practice of osteopathy in this state.

The house adjourned until 10 o'clock Tuesday forenoon.

Outside of the ballot for United States senator the session of the senate was devoted principally to the introduction of bills and the transaction of general routine business.

Gov. Lind transmitted the following nominations, which were laid over one day:

Adjutant General—George C. Lambert of St. Paul, vice Herman Muehlberg, term expired.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction—John H. Lewis of Dakota county, vice W. W. Pendergast, term expired.

Surveyors General of Logs and Lumber—First district, Byron J. Mosier of Washington county, vice James S. O'Brien, term expired; Second district, Elwood S. Corser of Minneapolis, vice S. S. Brown, term expired.

Member of Board of Trustees for Hospitals for Insane—Asa W. Daniels of Nicollet, vice J. H. Block of St. Peter, term expired.

Among the bills introduced were the following:

Requiring foreign corporations doing business in Minnesota to establish and maintain public offices for the transaction of their business. Giving employes of lumbering concerns a preferred lien on logs, etc., to insure payment for their work. Authorizing the appointment of a commission to revise tax laws and defining its powers and duties. Authorizing villages to levy assessments for local improvements in certain instances. To amend the penal Code relating to carnal knowledge and abuse of children. Providing for the payment of all employes at least twice a month; against the issuance of time checks, and that employes shall not be charged more than the market price for goods sold them in exchange for labor performed. Fixing a limit of eight hours for a day's work for all employes.

In the House.

The balloting for United States senator overshadowed the regular proceedings of the day in the house. Some unimportant business was attended to and a bunch of bills was introduced, among them a number of considerable importance. Following are the bills:

To regulate the charges of common carriers and to prohibit the giving of passes. To abolish days of grace. Fixing the salary of the reporter of the supreme court. Appropriating $24,500 to pay the expense of the Minnesota exhibit at the Omaha exposition. To provide for the free education of students of the University of Minnesota who volunteered for the war with Spain. To provide for the payment of taxes by the owners of sleeping, drawing room and parlor car companies. To provide for the local state inspection and weighing of grain. For the protection of fish and game and providing for a license for hunters. Relating to bounties for the killing of wolves. To authorize counties to issue bonds to fund their floating indebtedness. Relating to the qualifications of county superintendents of schools.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—If some stray Filipino had strayed into the house end of the capitol yesterday forenoon he might well have imagined that he had intruded into an executive session of the United States senate busily engaged in the discussion of the proposed treaty of peace between Spain and the United States. Mr. West called up his resolution urging speedy action by the senate upon the peace treaty, and a debate followed that covered the whole Spanish war from Admiral Dewey's destruction of the Spanish fleet in Manila bay down to the present hour, and much was said that would undoubtedly have been of value to the senate in its consideration of the treaty if the debate had occurred in that august presence. The resolution was passed by a vote of 101 to 4.

Several of the committees reported back to the house bills which had been referred to them with recommendations.

Among the important bills introduced were the following:

To provide for the erection of a public grain warehouse and elevators on or near the right of way of railways and providing for condemnation proceedings in connection therewith. To provide for the assessment and collection of taxes upon express companies. Prohibiting common carriers from requiring payment for revenue stamps upon bills of lading, telegraph messages, etc. To appropriate $10,000 for the improvement and preservation of the state park at the Dalles of the St. Croix. To require commission merchants to keep a record of the names of consignors, etc. Relating to the liability of railway companies. Regulating the transportation of baggage by common carriers.

The Senate.

For an off-day, with the ratification of Senator Davis' election coming between as a special order, the senate yesterday transacted a considerable amount of business. All the nominations of the governor were ratified.

A number of bills were reported back with recommendations by several of the committees.

The following bills were introduced: Relating to testimony of husband and wife. Relating to the assessment and collection of taxes. Relating to costs and disbursements of supreme court. To appropriate money to drain state capital lands in Kandiyohi county. To legalize sheriff's certificate issued in certain cases on mortgage foreclosure sales. To legalize conveyances of land unattested by witnesses or executed in blank. To repeal chapter 277, Laws of 1895, to prevent corrupt practices in elections.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—The policy of anti-expansion was championed in the senate yesterday by Senator Stockwell (Dem.) of Hennepin, who introduced a resolution calling upon the Minnesota delegation in congress to oppose vigorously any attempt on the part of the government to govern the people of any other country on earth without the consent of the people of that country. The senator believes it the province of this government to assist in all proper ways the peoples of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines to at once establish self-governing republics. The resolution went over under motion of debate.

The West house concurrent resolution urging congress to hasten the ratification of the peace treaty with Spain, was reported to the senate and went over under the rules to be considered later. The object of hastening the conclusion of the peace treaty is to secure the earlier return of the volunteer troops.

The senate, having passed through the preparatory stage of organization and election of United States senator, it has settled down to business in earnest, and in committee of the whole, with Senator J. D. Jones of Todd in the chair, took up general orders.

The following bills were introduced: Relating to the sale of forfeited property on tax sales. Requiring reports from corporations and concerns engaged in banking business not incorporated under the state laws. To appropriate money for the development of butter and cheesemaking. Prescribing the method of designating titles of bills amending Statutes of 1894; passed under suspension of the rules. Regarding the form of summons in civil actions in justice courts. To amend an act to punish disturbers of public conveyances.

The House.

Work in committee of the whole commenced in the house yesterday. The date is unusually early, as such things go. A suspension of the rules was required to make it possible, as the rules provide that bills must lie over two days after being printed before being eligible for consideration in committee of the whole. There was nothing else to do, however, and Mr. Foss pointed out that whatever work was accomplished now would relieve the pressure later in the session. Mr. Roberts wanted the regular order pursued, and so Speaker Dare called him to the chair when the house decided to work on general orders. Considerable progress was made. Mr. Peterson's bill providing for a reduction of the rate of interest from 5 to 4 per cent and an extension of the time of final payment from forty to fifty years upon contracts for the sale of public lands was recommended to pass.

The following bills were introduced: Relating to the care of the property of insane persons. Relating to the investment of the permanent school and university funds. To prohibit the issuing of passes by railroads and other persons and corporations to public officials, and to prohibit public officials from using passes or franks, and to punish parties violating the provisions of this act. To repeal chapter 13, General Laws of 1891, and the acts amendatory thereof, relating to the formation of farmers' mutual fire insurance companies.

Pool Room Burglary.

Waubay, S. D., Jan. 21. — Parties broke into the pool room of George Addis. J. E. Bleiser and J. E. McCoane were arrested for committing the deed. It is thought, however, that they are not the guilty ones.

WORK OF CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 14.—The house entered upon the consideration of the naval personnel bill. It developed much less opposition than was expected, and the indications are that it will have a large majority when it is placed upon its passage to-day. The last vestige of opposition to the measure from the line officers of the navy was removed when an amendment was adopted designed to prohibit staff officers from exercising command save in their own corps. The committee also announced their purpose to offer an amendment to-day to repeal the law granting prize money to the navy, and this announcement met with loud approval. The speeches on the bill were filled with glowing allusions to the glories of our naval victories in the late war, and Mr. Berry of Kentucky created a great deal of enthusiasm by his eulogy of Seidey as the hero of Santiago. The bill was supported by Messrs. Foss, Dayton, Berry, Driggs and Dinsmore, and opposed by Messrs. Low and Simpson.

In the Senate.

In the senate Mr. McLaurin of South Carolina took strong ground in a carefully prepared speech against a policy of expansion by this country. He cited as one of the principal reasons why the United States should not assume control over people who are widely dissimilar to the people of this country, the experience of the South with the negro race. He advocated the adoption of the Vest resolution, declaring that this country could not maintain permanently as colonies such territory as the Philippines, and held that it would be in opposition to the spirit of developed American institutions to do so. Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Pascoe discussed the pending Nicaragua canal bill, the former supporting it and the latter opposing it. The Indian appropriation bill was taken up but its consideration was not concluded before the hour of adjournment.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A state funeral, almost majestic in its impressiveness, was given the late Representative Nelson Dingley at noon yesterday in the house of representatives, where he has long been such a commanding figure. The president, his cabinet, the distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, members of the supreme court, senate and house and distinguished members in military and civil life were grouped about his bier on the floor of the hall, while the galleries, to which admission could be obtained only by card, were occupied by the families of those who sat upon the floor and prominent persons invited to be present. Some of them, like a delegation from the New York chamber of commerce, had come from a distance to pay their last tribute of respect to the dead statesman.

The remains were taken from Hotel Hamilton to the capitol in the morning and were borne into the hall of representatives by a squad of capitol police under the direction of Sergeant-at-Arms Russell. The casket was placed on a bier in the area in front of the marble rostrum of the speaker, and for an hour the public, which would have no opportunity to witness the official ceremonies later, were allowed to view the remains as they lay in state. The decorations of the hall were very simple, but strikingly beautiful.

Immediately in front of the white marble rostrum the casket lay banked on either side with rare and exquisite flowers. During the interval before 12 almost every member of the house in the city came and stood for a moment by the casket with bowed head. Mr. Dingley's desk was wrapped in black and covered with roses and lilies. Speaker Reed called the house to order. An air of deep sadness pervaded the hall as the members rose to listen to the brief and simple prayer of the chaplain. The clerk read the resolutions adopted on Saturday after the announcement of Mr. Dingley's death, and the clerk of the senate announced the passage of similar resolutions by the senate. The vice president and the senate entered the chamber in a body, followed by the diplomatic corps, with whom came the members of the Anglo-American commission, of which Mr. Dingley had been a member. Then followed the chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court in their somber robes and they in turn were followed by the president with his cabinet, Secretaries Hay, Gage, Alger, Attorney General Griggs, Secretaries Long, Bliss and Wilson, who took places immediately to the right of the casket.

The honorary pallbearers were Senators Hale, Aldrich, Burrows, Fairbanks, Pritchard, Berry, Faulkner, Rawlins, McLaurin and Representatives Boutelle, Payne, Dolliver, Tawney, Evans, Hilborn, Clarke (N. H.), Bailey, Dockery, Bell and McClellan. Directly in front of them and across the aisle from the presidential party, and in front of the casket, sat the large family of the dead man. Owing to the direction of the doctors the widow remained at her room during the official ceremony. Suddenly out of the loft in the rear of the press gallery the notes of an organ echoed through the hall. The services were conducted by the Rev. S. M. Newman, of the First Congregational church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Couden, chaplain of the house. It was a very simple service. When Mr. Newman delivered the benediction the entire assemblage arose. The house then adjourned as a further mark of respect.

Washington, Jan. 18. — Almost the entire session of the senate was devoted to consideration of the pending Nicaragua canal bill. Speeches were made in support of the measure by Mr. Chilton of Texas and Mr. Turner of Washington, and in opposition to it by Mr. Spooner of Wisconsin. At 3 o'clock consideration of the bill under the fifteen-minute rule was begun, and was continued to the close of the session. The first vote reached was on an amendment offered by Mr. Rawlins of Utah, which, in brief, provided that the United States should have absolute control of the canal for military or naval purposes, with power to dictate the use of the waterway during the existence of war. The friends of the pending bill rallied against the amendment and it was defeated by the decisive vote of 38 to 9. A provision was inserted in the bill providing that no more than $5,000,000 should be paid the Maritime Canal company for its concession and work already done on the canal. When adjournment was taken the substitute measure offered by Mr. Caffery of Louisiana was before the senate.

The House.

The house passed the naval personnel bill without division on the final passage, thus accomplishing what the officers of the navy have striven for during more than a decade. By its provisions the line and engineer corps are welded into an amalgamated line, staff officers are given positive rank, but their command is limited to their own corps and a system of voluntary and compulsory retirement on three-quarters pay as of the next higher rank of forty officers a year is established, which is designed to remove the congestion in the lower rank at forty-five. The bill also practically equalizes their pay with that of army officers. Three important amendments were adopted; one creates a judge advocate's court, another abolishes prize money and a third provides for the retirement on three-quarters pay of enlisted men and petty officers in the navy, after thirty years' service. But the most important change in the bill as reported was the adoption after a hard fight of a substitute for the organization of the marine corps by which the corps is to consist of 6,000 enlisted men and petty officers with general officers and staff. This will increase the marine corps by 1,500 men, and increase the cost of its maintenance $1,500,000. Several unimportant bills were passed by unanimous consent before the personnel bill was taken up.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The feature of yesterday's session of the senate was a speech delivered by Mr. Bacon of Georgia in support of his resolutions declaring that the United States would not assume sovereignty over the Philippine islands. Mr. Bacon is one of the orators of the senate, and as he gave himself free rein, not confining himself to manuscript, he spoke strongly and pointedly. His peroration, in which he pictured some of England's methods of controlling her colonial subjects, was a beautiful and forceful bit of word painting. Following Mr Bacon's speech the Nicaraguan canal bill was taken up and remained under discussion until 6 o'clock. Amendment after amendment was voted down, and until almost the last moment it seemed likely a vote on the measure would be reached, but just as a final vote was to be called for Mr. Allison exploded a bomb under the bill by offering an amendment providing that the secretary of the treasury should issue bonds to raise money with which to construct the canal. The friends of the measure then consented to an adjournment.

The House.

The committee on interstate and foreign commerce had the right of way in the house and succeeded in passing quite a number of bills of minor importance, most of which authorized the construction of the lighthouse fog signals, etc. Then the bill to grant the Pacific Cable company a subsidy of $100,000 a year for twenty years for the construction and operation of a cable was called up and a very spirited debate, which consumed the remainder of the day, followed. The opposition was headed by Mr. Corliss of Michigan, who advocated the construction of a government cable. No conclusion was reached at the hour of adjournment, and as the special order under which the house was operating expired yesterday with adjournment, and as objection was made to fixing another day for its consideration, it goes over indefinitely until the committee can get another day, or until a special order is adopted.

Washington, Jan. 20. — The senate listened further to discussion of the policy of expansion. Mr. Turner of Washington, Pop., delivered a carefully prepared speech on the Vest resolution. The speech was for the most part a constitutional argument in which Mr. Turner took issue with Senator Platt and Senator Foraker on their recent utterances. At the conclusion of Mr. Turner's argument Mr. Foraker took some sharp exceptions to statements made in this speech, especially those referring to him personally. He explained at length the nature of his statement, declaring, among other things, that he had spoken only for himself, and had had no intention or desire to pose as the representative of the administration so far as his utterances were concerned. Referring to the interested comment which had been aroused in Great Britain by his statement, he said: "I was not speaking for the administration, and the chill that went up and down the backs of our friends in London was due, perhaps, to a misapprehension as to which of the Ohio senators was speaking."

The Nicaragua canal bill was under consideration nearly three hours. After much debate a substitute presented by Mr. Morgan of Alabama for the bond amendment offered by Mr. Allison was adopted. It provides that the secretary of the treasury shall not pay out for work on the canal more than $20,000,000 during any fiscal year. Earnest efforts were made to amend the measure in other particulars but all failed.

The House.

The house practically decided the Brown-Swanson contested election case from the Fifth Virginia district in favor of the sitting member, Mr. Swanson, a Democrat, by declining to consider the case. Twenty-four Republicans joined with the Democrats and Populists on this vote. The postoffice appropriation bill was then taken up. The greatest surprise of the day was the adoption of two amendments striking out of the bill the appropriation of $171,000 for the fast Southern mail and $25,000 for special mail facilities from Kansas City to Newton, Kan. This appropriation for the Southern mail has been fought annually for six or seven years but has always been retained. The increase in the appropriation for the pneumatic tube service from $225,000 to $300,000 was knocked out by the elimination of the provision which fell under a point of order, for the repeal of the law against the extension of this service. The house adjourned with a motion to recommit it pending. The motion carried instructions to strike out the words "newly acquired territory" in connection with an appropriation of $200,000 for mail facilities in Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 25, 1899.

THE CUMBERLAND.

At anchor in Hampton Roads we lay
On board of the Cumberland, sloop-of-war,
And at times from the fortress across the bay
The alarum of drums swept past
Or a bugle blast
From the camp on the shore.

Then far away to the south up rose
A little feather of snow white smoke,
And we knew that the iron ship of our foes
Was steadily steering its course
To try the force
Of our ribs of oak.

Down upon us heavily runs,
Silent and sullen, the floating fort;
Then comes a puff of smoke from her guns
And leaps the terrible death,
With fiery breath,
From each open port.

We are not idle, but send her straight
Defiance back in a full broadside!
As hail rebounds from a roof of slate
Rebounds our heavier hail
From each iron scale
Of the monster's hide.

"Strike your flag!" the rebel cries
In his arrogant old plantation strain.
"Never!" our gallant Morris replies
"It is better to sink than to yield!"
And the whole air pealed
With the cheers of our men.

Then like a kraken huge and black
She crushed our ribs in her iron grasp.
Down went the Cumberland all a wreck,
With a sudden shudder of death
And the cannon's breath
For her dying gasp.

Next morn, as the sun rose over the bay,
Still floated our flag at the mainmast head.
Lord, how beautiful was thy day!
Every waft of the air
Was a whisper of prayer
Or a dirge for the dead.

Ho, brave hearts that went down in the seas!
Ye are at peace in the troubled stream.
Ho, brave land, with hearts like these,
Thy flag, that is rent in twain,
Shall be one again
And without a seam!

"FILLED" BEDCLOTHES.

They Are Moisture Attractors, and Death Lurks in Them.

Science, thy name is adulteration! Another terror has been added to existence by the revelations made by a trade paper of the processes by which certain manufacturers "fill" the sheets and blankets with which they flood the market.

We are told that after a piece of waste sheeting has been woven the cloth is passed over a trough containing a solution of zinc, sulphate of magnesia (commonly known as epsom salts) and water. This is called a sprinkler. A revolving brush plays a spray of these noxious ingredients upon the cloth, with the result that a 50 pound piece after the operation weighs 7½ pounds more than when it left the loom. As the goods are sold by the pound, the object is evident.

But what about the purchaser? A piece cuts up into ten pairs of sheets. Each pair therefore contains three-quarters of a pound of moisture attracting material. The results are appalling. As soon as a wet day comes the sheets become damp and the luckless wight who sleeps between them is apt to contract a chill that may send him to the bourn whence no traveler returns. Even if his suspicions are aroused and he boldly casts aside the sheets and wraps himself in the blankets it may avail him nothing, for the blanket makers have learned the trick, and the same ill results may ensue.

Next we shall hear that the counterpane makers are equally astute, and the timid sleeper may be driven to provide himself with the woolen sleeping bags that suggest travels in the farthest north. The only advantage of these "filled" or heavily "sized" sheets and blankets is that they are death to insects, but if they kill the sleeper as well as the pulex irritans—to say nothing of the cimex lectularius—what boots it?—London Telegraph.

A Financial Embarrassment.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared.

"Oh, mem, it's turrible finanshul disthress me an the childer's in!"

"Why, what is it—are you out of employment?"

"No, mem; work's in a fair state o' stiddiness, and not a cint do I owe, but it's lashins o' trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day comes round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin me is I earn $6 the week an pay $8 for me board, an God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

Says a dealer in antiquities: "I had a fat woman in here the other day. Well, sir, she was a caution, was that fat woman. She would have the antique all through her house, sir, nothing but the antique for her house decoration. Why, sir, judging by what that fat woman said and bought in this shop, I should judge she was heartbroken, sir, that she couldn't get the shades of her ancestors for her parlor windows."—New York Tribune.

UNDER THE DEEP SEA

HOW THE HEAVILY LADEN DIVER GOES ABOUT HIS WORK.

His Dress Weighs Nearly Two Hundred Pounds and Is a Very Complicated Affair—The Signalman Holds the Diver's Life In His Hands.

The dress of a fully equipped diver weighs, in round numbers, 170 pounds. Taking off his everyday garb, the diver pulls on his thick underclothing—a white knitted sweater and trousers and a pair of ribbed stockings, also white. Should he intend to work in unusually deep water, he puts on two, sometimes three, sets of underclothing, to relieve the pressure of the water.

The woolen clothing donned, the next garment is the diving dress, measuring for a man of average height 5 feet 5 inches from the collar to the sole of the foot. This dress is made of solid sheet india rubber, covered on both sides with tanned twill. It has a double collar, the inner one to pull up round the neck, and the outer one, of red india rubber, to go over the breastplate and form a water tight joint. The cuffs also are of red india rubber and fit tightly round the wrists, making, when secured by the vulcanized india rubber rings, water tight joints, at the same time leaving the diver's hands free. In the outer collar 12 holes are bored for securing the breastplate. This is made of tinned copper. The outer edge is of brass and has 12 screws firmly fitted to it at intervals and projecting upward. These projections pass through the corresponding holes in the outer collar of the dress.

The band of the breastplate is in four sections, and the holes in the sections pass over the protecting screws and are secured in place by wing nuts or thumbscrews. A little careful consideration will make it clear that the dress is held in position by its rubber collar, with the aid of the breastplate flange and wing nuts.

The upper edge of the breastplate is fitted with a neck ring and a segmental screw. The use of this we shall presently explain.

The boots are of stout leather, with leaden soles, and are secured over the instep by buckles and straps. The pair weighs 32 pounds—four pounds over the quarter of a hundredweight. The lead soles are firmly attached by copper rivets. The tongues of the boots are very wide. Boots intended for rough work are fitted with metal toe caps. Thus far—underclothing, dress, breastplate and boots—is our diver arrayed. He has now to be weighted. Lead weights of 40 pounds each, shield or heart shaped, are suspended back and front by means of gun metal clips and studs or tabs and lashings. He has now only to put on his helmet and to affix the air pipe.

The helmet, like the breastplate, is of tinned copper and is fitted with a segment bayonet screw at the neck, corresponding to that mentioned as belonging to the breastplate. The eighth of a turn, and the helmet is firmly secured, being both air and water tight. It has three strong plate glasses in brass frames, protected by guards, two oval at the sides and a round one in front. The front can be unscrewed to enable the diver to give orders without removing any other portion of the dress. An outlet valve is provided at the side or back of the helmet, which the diver can close should he wish to rise to the surface. This valve allows the breathed air to escape, yet prevents the entrance of water.

At the side of the front glass is a mechanical arrangement for getting rid of the excess of air, and it also assists when the back outlet valve is closed in regulating the expansion of the dress in rising to the surface. There is also an inlet valve, and this is constructed so as to allow the air to enter, but not to escape, in case of a break in the air pipe. The air pipe is made in lengths of from 45 to 60 feet, fitted together by means of gun metal joints. Securely connected with the helmet by means of the inlet valve and an elbow tube, the other end of the air pipe is fitted on to the nozzle of the air delivering diving pump.

His leather belt is buckled on, his knife, well sharpened and of strong steel, covered with a metal case to keep it dry and intact, is slung upon it, and after taking a drink, or a little light refreshment, the word is given, "All right," the face glass screwed on, and receiving a tap on the helmet as a signal to descend down he goes by rope or ladder, either of which must be weighted at the bottom.

Each diver while under water requires a signalman to hold his life line (that is, the line fastened round his waist by which he is hauled up) and the air pipe, both of which should be kept just taut, so that any movements of the diver may be felt. The signalman is of the utmost importance to the diver. Indeed, to use the words of a diver with whom we recently talked, he is his life. He must exercise the utmost vigilance all the time that the diver is down. Should the attendant give one pull on the life line it signifies, "How are you getting on?" If all is well, the diver gives an answering pull to reassure those above. Two pulls on the air pipe given by the diver mean "more air" (pump faster), and so on throughout the code of signals.

In addition to the signal code modern invention has adapted and utilized the telephone, and a speaking apparatus for men working at a depth of 60 feet or more is frequently used. The electric light also is now employed by divers working at a depth beyond 20 feet.—James Cassidy in St. Nicholas.

The Berbers of Morocco are an interesting blond race dispersed along the Atlas range. In the central Atlas they still call themselves "Berber" (plural Berebber), but the meaning of the word is uncertain. Perhaps it is the source of our word "barbarian."

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

TOBACCO AND THE HEART.

A Doctor Gives What He Calls Cold Facts About Smoking.

"I don't like to upset a cherished tradition," said a doctor who is himself a devotee of the weed, "but the talk one hears of nicotine saturating the systems of smokers is mostly rot. Nicotine is a deadly poison. One drop of it will make a good sized mastiff turn up his toes if injected subcutaneously, and it would take precious little of it to kill a man. The truth is that very little is absorbed, even by the most confirmed smokers. Now and then you read of men who die from excessive tobacco using and are found on autopsy to be literally reeking with nicotine. All rubbish. Nothing of the kind ever happened.

"Again, it's a favorite experiment to blow smoke through a handkerchief, and the stain that is produced is popularly supposed to be made by nicotine. It is really oil of tobacco, which is a horse of quite a different color. No, the chief harm done by smoking is the stimulus which it gives to the heart. This is particularly true of cigarette smoking, where 'inhaling' is nearly always practiced.

"Each time the smoke is inhaled it acts as a slight spur to the heart, and, needless to say, there is sure to be a reaction. If the smoker is in good general health, he will probably never feel it, but if he isn't there will be periods of profound depression, and, not knowing the cause, he is apt to try to brace up on a drink, which makes matters just that much worse. If he has organic heart trouble—valvular weakness, I mean—it's quite possible that he will tumble over some day and put his angel plumage on. Those are the cold facts about smoking—none other are genuine."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Preferred a Solo.

A gushing, sentimental girl and her matter of fact aunt sat on a green hillside, the aunt endeavoring to enjoy nature, while her niece discoursed of things far and near without a noticeable pause for breath.

At last she spoke of the beauties of the landscape at great length. "I love to listen to the music of that brook as it babbles on and on," she said unwisely.

"Yes," said the aunt, seizing her first opportunity, "the babbling of a brook is a pleasant sound, my dear. I think I prefer it as a solo, however, rather than with another part. I don't care so much for a babbling duet."

Then for a few delightful moments there was silence on the green hillside.—Youth's Companion.

Moody and the Sinless Man.

Some time ago a man who claimed perfection went to Evangelist Moody and commiserated him on his low level of Christian experience. Mr. Moody in a kind manner asked his caller if he never sinned nor did any wrong.

"No; I have not sinned for years; neither have I done anything that was wrong," was the prompt reply.

"Well, I'm glad to know it," said Mr. Moody, "but before I am convinced I would like to ask your wife."—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE GREATWESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Daily Train Service Restored.

The following letter will explain its self.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19, 1899.

Hon. H. E. Ives,
St. Hilaire, Minn.

Dear Sir:—The commission is in receipt of a letter from F. E. Ward, Gen. Superintendent of the Great Northern, informing it that arrangements have been made to resume daily (except Sunday) train service on your branh. Should the resumption be unduly delayed please advise the commission of the fact and oblige.

Very truly yours,
P. M. Ringdal.

The people living on this line have reason to be thankful to Hon. P. M. Ringdal in particular and the Railway commission in general for the restoration of daily train service. This is absolutely the first time the Great Northern has been compelled to do justice in these parts. Surely times are changing.

Died on Jan. 16, 1899 the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Anderson. Age about five months. Cause of death la grippe.

John Strawberg of Wyandotte bought from H. Erickson of the town of Rocksbury the south-east quarter 21-153-43. Consideration $800.

Governor Roosevelt, of New York, late colonel of the Rough Riders, wants the secretary of war to award him a medal for bravery in the battle of San Juan Hill. The secretary, in reply, expresses his appreciation of the fact that Colonel Roosevelt did his duty, but contends that the mere performance of duty does not entitle an officer or soldier to a medal of honor. The secretary refuses to single out the colonel of the Rough Riders from the other officers and men who preformed their duty with equal bravery. It is evident that Secretary Alger has not yet consented to become a part of the Roosevelt Presidential boom.—Silver Knight Watchman.

The most complete surprise party that has happened in St. Hilaire was the one given last Saturday evening to Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Post. The party to the number of sixty-six assembled at the Hotel Markham and marched to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Post where the self invited guests took possession of the house until the surprised parties recovered, somewhat embarresed as they were not prepared to entertain visitors, especially at that hour of the evening. However arrangements were soon made and in less than half an hour dancing after the sweet strains of music was in order and all enjoyed themselves hugely. Card tables were provided and all kinds of games played. Charley Rapp was on hand assisting in serving lunches and otherwise entertaining the guests. At 12 o'clock all departed for home feeling well and much pleased the way they were entertained.

County Printing.

The object of the law requiring the publication of the financial statement, delinquent tax list, proceedings of the board etc. is for the benefit of the voters. That object will be well attained this year as the Herald, Eagle, Times, Journal, Standard and Tribune will all publish the matter and the county will be completely covered as the one legal rate prescribed. This ought to be very satisfactory to the tax payers. McLeod county papers presented a like proposition to the board but that intelligent body, evidently believing it better to save a few dollars than to place their doings before the people, ignored a bid at legal rates, the matter to be published in all the leading papers, accepted one at a slight reduction from a new and obscure paper published at Brownton. Our board had not the opportunity to do likewise but we do not think they would have pursued such a near sighted policy.—Howard Lake Herald.

Our county commissioner are in a jack-pot over letting the county printing. They will meet again next Tuesday when they propose to settle the matter. Wonder if they will do the same as the commissioners in McLeod county?

The Best Cough Remedy on Earth.

Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, Consumption Cure, cures a cold in 24 hours if taken in time and does not stop a cough in ONE MINUTE by paralyzing the throat, but it cures the disease and leaves the throat and lungs healthy and strong. 25 and 50 cts. For sale by the Imperial Drug Co., St. Hilaire.

How to Clean Lamp Chimneys.

One of the most disagreeable tasks of the housekeeper is made easy by the use of a little salt. If your chimney is very sooty take some soft paper and clean it, but use no water. When as clean as you can make it with paper, take a dry flannel cloth, put some salt in your chimney and rub briskly. Treat the outside the same way and you will be surprised at the brilliant polish obtained. Any piece of glass can be treated this way successfully, and even a flat iron can be made free of rust if rubbed over a paper on which salt had been sprinkled.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent.

Senator Sullivan's amendment to the Nicaragua Canal, limiting to $5,000,000 the amount to be paid to the Maritime Canal Company, as compensation for its concession or reimbursement for its work, struck the senate as being so seasible and timely that it was adopted without a division, before the bill was passed.

Senator Gorman has taken charge of the democratic opposition to the ratification of the treaty, unless it is so amended as to make it impossible for this country to permanently govern the Philippines. At a meeting presided over by Mr. Gorman all the democratic Senators, except six, were present, and decided to work together.

Senator Bacon made a strong speech in favor of his resolution declaring the policy of this government to be against controlling the Filipinos by force. The keynote of his speech was the following: "Of all the great powers of the earth the government of the U. S. is the only one that contends for the right in all people of self-government. When they abandon in practice this principle, when they impose their dominion on an unwilling people, in the majestic march of free institutions, the hand upon the great dial of the clock of the world will have been set back an hundred years."

Senator Butler, of N. C., got the Schley-Sampson controversy before the Senate for a few minutes by offering a resolution when the nomination of the two officers to be Rear Admirals were reached, in executive session, calling upon the President for his reasons for making the promotions. It was a very diplomatic discussion, especial care being taken by the friends of each of the officers to avoid offending those of the other. Action on the resolution was deferred on account of the absence of Senator Hale, who is chairman of the Naval committee. The object of the resolution is to show that Sampson and Schley were both promoted, because Sampson could not be promoted for what was done by Schley, if Schley was not also moved up. According to all the official reports, Schley did nothing to be promoted for.

No man deserves any credit for doing the proper thing under compulsion, and there never was a clearer case of official action under compulsion than Mr. McKinley's order for the court-martial of Commissary General Eagan, for his filthy abuse of Gen. Miles. Mr. McKinley was disposed to allow Secreary Alger to try to hush it up in his own way, which would not have hushed it up at all, until he began to hear from influential men of his party, in Congress and all over the country. Therefore he deserves no credit for doing when he found it absolutely necessary what should have been done the day that Eagan's filth was dumped upon the public. Although he has been turned down Alger has not resigned, and those who know him best do not believe that he will, unless forced by McKinley to do so. The court-martial is bound to find Eagan guilty, and the punishment is dismissal from the army. Whether Mr. McKinley will dare to modify that sentence, is yet to be seen.

A Hog Weighing Nearly a Ton

What is claimed to be the heaviest hog ever raised in the State of New Jersey, and, perhaps, in the United States, is owned by Robert Black of Cream Ridge, Monmouth county. The hog, which is of the Jersey Red variety, is three years old. On March last the animal weighed 960 pounds, which had increased to 1,240 pounds on Aug. 1, with a further growth of 1,520 pounds on Nov. 1. The rate of increase at present is three pounds per day, and the owner expects a live weight of 1,700 pounds when the animal is killed in December. He believes that he has the heaviest hog ever grown in the United States.

"I could not sleep at night, had to walk the floor, I suffered so with pain in my side and small of my back. Was troubled with bloating, and at times would faint away; had a terrible pain in my heart, a bad taste in my mouth all the time and would vomit; but now, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound, I feel well and sleep well, can do my work without feeling tired; do not bloat or have any trouble whatever.

"I sincerely thank you for the good advice you gave me and for what your medicine has done for me."

"Cannot Praise It Enough."

Miss Gertie Dunkin,

Pastry Without Butter.

Light, flaky and digestible pie crust and all kinds of fine pastry can be made with Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder entirely without butter or with one half the usual quantity, or with a little lard or other shortening if desired. Pie crust made in either of these ways is more wholesome and digestible besides being more economical and easier prepared. One-third the flour can also be dispensed with, and the crust rolled that much thinner, the raising qualities of Dr. Price's Powder swelling it to the requisite thickness. Those who enjoy the appetizing qualities of the delicious home made pie will rejoice to know this secret. All the elements of ideal excellence are combined in

Dark the theater, hushed the music, for the play is o'er tonight,
And the actress, driving homeward, sits

Roses red and white and yellow litter up the carriage space—
Tributes to her matchless acting—yet a tear slips down her face.

What if hundreds did applaud her—what if well she played her part?
People were like driven cattle—could they read a woman's heart?

All the loves that night she'd acted—all the hates and hopes and fears
Filter through her tired brain cells—come out purified as tears.

Men, my brothers: men, the workers,
when the world has used us rough
Round our hearth we strap our armor—women are of softer stuff.

What to her was this night's conquest?
What the flowers and success?
For the modiste disappointed—never sent her satin dress.

Never sent the dress she'd hoped for—trimmed with pansies down the side,
Jewel trimming on the shoulders, round point sixteen inches wide!

Well she knew that with that dress on
Solomon in all his pride
Couldn't hold a candle to her—ah, no wonder that she cried!

Then she smiled—for on the morrow,
when the papers told her hits,
She would go to that old modiste and would give the woman fits!

Germany and Asia Minor.

It is inevitable that Asia Minor shall eventually pass from Mohammedanism, and whether Germany accomplishes the task or not, the sultan must yield to a Christian nation. It is just as inevitable that disease of the digestive organs must yield to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which are usually called dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness.

Why the Third Finger Is Used.

How many women who fondly love the golden symbol of their wedding vow know why they wear it on the third finger of their left hand? That particular digit was chosen because it was believed by the Egyptians to be directly connected by a slender nerve to the heart itself. And these ancient worshippers of Isis held this finger sacred to Apollo and the sun, and, therefore, gold was the metal chosen for the ring.

Successful Sheep Raising.

A writer in Rural World says: Our sheep have run on the same pastures for twenty-five years, winter and summer. The pastures are principally blue grass and white clover. Our winter feed is mainly shock corn scattered on the sod or on meadows, just as you would feed cattle, only scattered thinly on the ground and quickly as possible, so as to get an even feed. One hundred and twenty-five sheep are as many as should be in one field winter and summer. We keep 125 ewes and their lambs in a forty-acre lot, with a portable shed, 16 feet wide, 48 feet long and four to five feet high on the sides. This shed is needed in winter, so they can go in and out at pleasure; in summer so they can get out of the hot sun and out of reach of the gad fly. The fly can not work in sheds. I do not know that we have lost one sheep from "grub in the head" or from "tape worm" in ten years in a flock of 6,000 head. It is nonsense to make such ado about such things that amount to nothing if sheep are properly fed and cared for. The worst, and indeed, about all that troubles sheep in Missouri is the stomach worm. It does some damage in the lamb crop, especially in late lambs. All sheep will do better to have clean pastures in summer, where no sheep have been running through the winter, but this we cannot always have. Sow a field, early in the spring, in oats, clover and timothy, and you can have a first-class pasture for ewes and lambs and after May 10 or 15 for all summer. We have 500 acres of creek bottom land, too low and wet to be sure of a good corn crop. It is in about seven different fields, blue grass, red and white and alsike clover. Our sheep do finely on these pastures, just as well as on the high lands. We have pastured some of the low lands twenty-five years with sheep and have nearly always done well on them. There is plenty of lime in the soil there. There is no stock less liable to disease than sheep, and if fairly well handled nothing pays better. Hogs are dying at a fearful rate in this section. I have been convinced for forty years past that "swine plague," so-called, is a special and direct decree from the Almighty, in part at least, to stop swine worship and to stop the extensive use of pork as food for the human family. Our sheep are enclosed the year round in barb wire fence, and at the end of the year if you should pick all the fence you would not get enough wool to make a pair of socks. They learn better than to pull their wool out in that way. Sheds should be on dry ground, well-bedded with straw and well ventilated. To beginners I would say, do not fear diseases in sheep. Keep the flock reasonably young and feed well. See that they have water and salt at all times, good, dry, comfortable sheds where no other stock can get at them. Hogs or cattle in the sheds with sheep will not do. Do not fear barb wire fence or bottom land, but look sharp for the worthless curs who love mutton. A few sheep are needed on every farm to keep weeds down in summer, but feed generously on corn in winter. If you make a specialty of the cockle burr crop, don't have sheep. It is a bad mixture. Ewes at six or seven years old raise as good lambs as younger ewes and are better mothers, but it is best to fatten all ewes at not later than eight years and sell to the butcher.

Cattle Feeding in Kansas.

The cattle fever is all over this western country, writes a Kansas correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. It is no wonder. Where one man made money on a wheat crop last year ten farmers increased their bank accounts with profits on cattle. Here in Diamond valley, 100 miles and more from Kansas City. Yet for three years corn has brought Kansas City prices at the farmers' cribs. Cattle from the west, southwest and northwest come into this region in a never ending stream. They range in age from calves to 3-year-olds. They eat the blue stem of the prairies in the summer and consume the corn, the millet, the cane and the alfalfa in the winter. They come in all kinds of conditions. Here they are made ready for the market. It may be three months or it may be three years before the animal from the ranges leaves the pastures and feed lots of the farmers for the market. But this is the half way place between the range and the market. In that capacity it is fulfilling a present destiny. At the same time it is making more money for the farmers than any single crop they raise.

Sale of Oleo in Pennsylvania.—Mr. William D. Edson, a prominent butter merchant of Philadelphia, who, by the way, is not a manufacturer of or dealer in that twin-fraud of oleomargarine, "process butter," writes that owing to the protection accorded the oleo people by the political ring of this state the sales of oleomargarine has greatly increased, and so encouraged have become the fraud butter men that they were even inspired to secretly ask the legislature to legalize their sales by passing a revenue bill, which has been for the time being frustrated by prompt discovery and opposition on the part of dairymen. Mr. Edson says that at a conservative estimate the enforcement of the law has been a saving to the farmers east of the Allegheny mountains of at least $3,000,000 annually.—The Dairy World.

Grain of Butter.—Grain cannot be put in butter, but it can be readily destroyed either by overworking or overchurning. It can be retained in the butter if skill is taken on the part of the buttermaker to free the butter from the buttermilk and incorporate the necessary amount of salt without breaking the natural globules of fat. The advantage of washing out the buttermilk and brine salting and working out the buttermilk and working in the salt is that the grain in the butter is so much easier retained.—Ex.

Watering Cows.—Cows need much water. They should be watered twice or three times each day if they be induced to drink. The average cow, while in milk, requires about 80 pounds—nearly ten gallons—of water a day and nearly 60 pounds when dry. Of this she will get three gallons in her feed, and the remainder must be given her. More than one-third the weight of feed and water consumed by a cow is water.—Ex.

He went to the war a vigorous farmer's boy and came back broken in health, a victim of sciatic rheumatism. Most of the time he was unfitted for manual labor of any kind, and his sufferings were at all times intense. He says: "Nothing seemed to give me permanent relief until three years ago, when my attention was called to some of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had not taken more than half a box when I noticed an improvement in my condition, and I keep on improving steadily. To them I owe my restoration to health. They are a grand remedy."—Mt. MINESOTA POLITICS

THIRD WEEK OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF GOVERNMENT.

Summary of Results to This Date, Appointments, Legislation and Administration, Political and Local Distribution of State Appointments—Good Measures Appearing, in Line with the Governor's Message Suggestions—The Senatorial Function—The New Ulm Coal Rate Case—Political Note and Comment of the Week.

Democratic Reform Press Bureau.
St. Paul, Jan. 23, 1899.

The third week of the administration of Governor Lind has substantial results to record. At least three of the principal departments are quite fully organized, that of dairy and food commissioner, Major J. M. Bowler, the public examiner's, General E. M. Pope at its head, and the labor department, Martin McHale chief. The public examiner's office is nearly complete, and the dairy and food next, though on account of the ramifications of the office over the entire state, there are many appointments yet to be made.

If some have commented upon the "clean sweep" of Governor Lind's new broom, they have but to look at the work done thus far to be reassured. Of the 33 new appointments made so far, but a single important one is a re-commission, Captain James Compton in the public examiner's office. If the reason of that is sought let it be found in the empty sleeve of that veteran of the Civil War, along with the best of records in the state service. Governor Lind and General Pope made friends for the administration by the reappointment, which is testified to in all parts of the state, especially among the G. A. R., of which General Compton was formerly department commander.

The Republican majority of the legislature performed the perfunctory duty expected—the re-election of Senator C. K. Davis—not a man among them venturing a comment upon the many inconsistencies of Senator Davis' career. The minority united in giving the opposition honor to Hon. Charles A. Towne, as a result of the earnest desire for united action for the allied forces. There were some differences of opinion in canvassing the matter, but when it came to a decision, as so often the case in the patriotic desire of all to accomplish the same and the best results, mutual concessions were made, and the honor was very gracefully bestowed on Mr. Towne. Of course, it was with the understanding that it was for the present occasion, and in no sense binding, or perhaps even bearing, on the action to come in 1901.

In this connection there has been some comment in some parts of the state, regarding Mr. Towne's alleged connection with the candidacy of Professor Denfeld of Duluth for state superintendent. Any statement that Mr. Towne pressed, or even supported Professor Denfeld, is unjust and wide of the mark. The facts were that being asked by Governor Lind his view of Professor Denfeld for the place, Mr. Towne replied that so far as he knew it would be a good appointment, but he said that he would investigate when he went home—he being at New Ulm—and write the governor. He did so, after the appearance of certain strictures, and wrote the governor that he wished to make no recommendation in the case whatever.

Speaking of appointments, it will be remembered that these letters have stated that it was believed that Governor Lind would pursue a careful and painstaking policy, not only as to ability and fitness, but as to locality and division among the allied forces. It is remarkable that but a single selection has been adversely mentioned, that of surveyor general of logs and lumber for the Minneapolis district, Elwood S. Corser. The public prints have completely disposed of the matter, the charges falling by their own weight, but a single thing or two should be known throughout the state. First, that the underlying inspiration of the attacks was undoubtedly from those who do not want the opposition party built up in Hennepin county, in which direction Mr. Corser has done and will do gigantic work. The pretext or opportunity was in the business disasters of Mr. Corser five or six years ago. In the panic of 1893 his concern failed for a large amount, but having assets exceeding liabilities by more than $500,000. These, largely in real estate, had shrunk until the mortgages against the property wiped out the equities. The other assets and Mr. Corser's renewed business, under a settlement, have been so managed that his concern has paid off and is monthly paying off considerable sums of the old indebtedness. Governor Lind made personal investigation of all features of the case, and unhesitatingly stood by the nomination. It is no secret that, politically, Governor Lind desired to select a Democrat for the position, but the candidates of that party were so divided by factional differences that it fell to the "least of these," the Silver Republicans.

As to political division of Governor Lind's appointments to this point, the following is the showing: Of the 23 appointments in all, the Silver Republicans, to which wing Governor Lind originally belonged, have received three: Surveyor general at Minneapolis, librarian from New Ulm, and a dairy inspector from Martin county, or four, according to how Labor Commissioner McHale is classed.

The Peoples party has received grain and warehouse commissioner, dairy and food commissioner, and three inspectors, to-wit, for Le Sueur county, ex-Chairman F. C. Gibbs of Waterville; Martin county, L. A. Swift; Brown county, A. O. Onren.

The Democrats appointed are: Public examiner, adjutant general, oil inspector, superintendent of public instruction, surveyor general Stillwater district, labor commissioner, assistant bank examiner, J. O. Davis, Minneapolis, and a deputy in same office, Koerner of Scott; a member of board for the insane, Dr. Daniels; member of state prison board, Weiss of Duluth, and an inspector in the dairy department, Chadbourne of Mille Lacs.

It should be said of labor commissioner, that his classification is not so clear. Though formerly a Democrat he had voted locally with the Republicans for two or three years, until the action of the New Democracy at Chicago, since which time he has been a Democrat. Also A. J. Glover, who goes into Major Bowler's department from Wabasha, refuses absolutely to be classed, except as a thorough going, practical cheese maker, vouched for by his chief.

The distribution of appointments over the state by Governor Lind, is apparently receiving more than ordinary care. To the close of the third week it is as follows:

Beginning with the Twin Cities, Hennepin county has the largest number: Oil inspector, Julius J. Heinrichs; labor commissioner, Martin McHale; surveyor general, Elwood S. Corser; assistant bank examiner, J. O. Davis. Ramsey county, adjutant general, F. C. Lambert; going to the north, St. Louis county has A. C. Weiss, board of prison managers; Polk county, grain and warehouse commissioner, P. M. Ringdal; Otter Tail, assistant bank examiner, James Compton; Mille Lacs, dairy inspector, C. H. Chadbourne; Anoka, pharmacy board, G. H. Goodrich; Washington, surveyor general, B. J. Mosier; Renville, dairy and food inspector, J. M. Bowler; Dakota county, superintendent of public instruction, Professor J. H. Lewis; Scott county, deputy bank examiner, H. O. Koerner; Nicollet county, member insane board, Dr. A. W. Daniels; Brown county, state librarian, Fred W. Johnson; dairy inspector, A. O. Quren, and military storekeeper, Ed. J. Boiletter; LeSueur county, dairy inspector, F. C. Gibbs; Wabasha county, dairy inspector, A. J. Glover; Blue Earth county, public examiner, E. M. Pope; Martin county, dairy inspector, L. A. Swift; Freeborn county, assistant dairy commissioner, B. D. White.

The legislative end of the state capitol, interrupted somewhat by the senatorial election function, has brought to light the following acts and measures since the commencement of the session:

Investigation of grain inspection and binder twine management.

Constitutional amendment to provide for direct legislation, the principles of the initiative and referendum.

Providing primary election laws.

To change criminal executions from hanging to electrocution.

To make grain and warehouse commissioners, and also all present heads of departments, elective instead of appointive.

To change the state fee offices to salaried.

Appropriation of $150,000 for expenses of the present session. Passed.

To print free text books by the state.

To increase the railroad gross earnings tax to four per cent.

To tax sleeping car, express and telegraph companies.

Appropriation of $15,000 for improvement of common schools.

To improve and extend the state experimental station.

Prohibiting use of other than Minnesota stone in public buildings.

To reduce penalties for delinquent taxes.

To restore state wolf bounties.

To pay the state militia $30,000 for services at Camp Ramsey.

To regulate (with a board basis) the practice of osteopathy.

To establish the Torrens land title system.

To reduce interest on state land sales to 4 per cent.

Re-election of C. K. Davis, senator for term ending March, 1905.

Establishing new and reduced salary lis: for the larger cities and counties.

Extending supervision of public examiner to private banks.

To prohibit use of free passes by state officials.

To pay Minnesota expenses at the Omaha exposition, $21,000.

To provide free tuition for university students who went to the Cuban war.

Resolutions against the policy of expansion and imperialism.

To provide for erection of free elevators on railroads rights of way.

To require at least semi-monthly payments of labor.

To legalize an eight-hour day for labor.

To raise the "age of consent" from 16 to 18 years.

To prevent raising railroad rates without consent of grain and warehouse commission.

To erect a normal school at Duluth at a cost of $150,000.

Each and every one of the important measures as yet presented in the legislature was suggested by Governor Lind's message, and yet those so far introduced are less than a dozen, while the governor's message contained 23 specific recommendations for legislative action. Thus thoroughly did Governor Lind understand and cover the needs of the state.

Each department of the state government changed by Governor Lind has gone on without interruption to its business as if nothing had happened, thus belieing those who, for election purposes, declared that change in political administration would rip the whole state up the back. It would have been the same if elective departments had been changed. Just as the national administration goes on without friction or jar with a change, and as it will after the great change of 1901!

Change imparts new life and new effectiveness. There is the grain and warehouse board with only the addition of one member, Hon. P. M. Ringdal. It has speedily unraveled the New Ulm coal rate case, securing to the people a reduction of over 50 cents a ton on coal rates, out of a long-winded case. Also, during the past week, the St. Hillaire case of the discontinuance of daily train service to that place, on being brought to the board, is settled by arrangement between the board and the railway company (Great Northern), when without the board's prompt attention serious and long extended litigation, and serious losses to St. Hillaire, might have resulted.

G. S. C.

THE LEGISLATURE

Business Transacted by Minnesota Solons.

St. Paul, Jan. 25.—The house seems quite ready to again put itself on record as favoring the election of the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners. Two years ago a bill to this end passed the lower house, but was side-tracked in the senate. One of the first bills introduced at this session was H. F. No. 10, by Mr. Torson of Watonwan, renewing the former proposal. The committee on general legislation promptly recommended it for passage, and yesterday it came up in committee of the whole. While no conclusive action was taken, the debate proceeded far enough to make it apparent that there is very little division of sentiment on the main proposition.

Another matter in committee of the whole which gave rise to considerable discussion but ended more conclusively, was the question of the time of holding the annual school meetings in the common school districts of the state. Prior to 1897 the time was fixed by law for the third Saturday in July. Two years ago the legislature changed the time to the third Saturday in June. Mr. Gunderson of Blue Earth introduced a bill to restore the law as it stood before the amendment of two years ago. After considerable debate the bill was recommended to pass.

The following bills were passed in regular order:

A bill for an act to amend section 5518 of the General Statutes of 1888, relating to actions in courts. A bill for an act to legalize and validate deeds and other instruments executed without a seal, scroll or device opposite the name of the grantor and the record thereof. A bill for an act to enable and authorize cities having a population of 10,000 or less to issue certificates of indebtedness in certain cases. A bill for an act to legalize the execution and record of certain instruments authorizing attorneys to foreclose mortgages by advertisement.

Following bills were introduced:

To increase the capacity of the state prison binding twine plant. To legalize acknowledgements taken by notaries public in certain cases.

The senate was not in session.

St. Paul, Jan. 25.—The bill to defray the expenses of the Omaha exhibit, introduced by Mr. Staples, was at the head of the calendar in the house yesterday. Mr. Marin had a word of opposition to offer. He was not opposed to the payment of the bills for which the state had actually received some benefit, but he thought there were included some items of expense for which there was no adequate return. Gov. Yale said he had opposed an appropriation two years ago because he did not think an exhibit would pay the state. He favored an appropriation now because he thought the exhibit had paid. Mr. Helmerdinger took the same view of the case, as did also Mr. Bush and Mr. Elwell. The bill was passed by a vote of 80 to 23.

The railroad commission was again a subject of discussion in committee of the whole, Mr. Dwinnell in the chair. Mr. Jacobson opened the ball by proposing an amendment requiring that the state nominating conventions should take up the nomination of these officers immediately, after naming the governor and lieutenant governor. The amendment was adopted without objection.

Mr. Grondahl renewed his amendment, defeated the day before, providing for a four-year term, one commissioner to be elected at one election and two at the next. This amendment was adopted without substantial opposition.

The following bills were passed:

Appropriating $25,400 to pay the expenses of the Minnesota exhibit at Omaha. Relating to the organization of townships and school districts in newly organized counties. Changing the time of holding the annual school meetings in common school districts.

The following bills were introduced:

To define and punish vagrancy. Relating to the band of the state treasurer. Providing for the sale and use of mileage books on the railroads of this state. Regulating the sale of binding twine manufactured at the state prison. Relating to the payment of claims against counties. Defining what shall constitute public stock yards and regulating charges. To prohibit misrepresentation in the sale of life and casualty insurance.

The Senate.

The senate attended strictly to business yesterday, and, as a result, it finished the day's business before noon.

In response to the senate resolution asking for a report of all fee officers as to their earnings and those of their clerks, A. D. Stevens, surveyor general of logs and lumber for the Seventh district, reported as follows: Total amount received in fees, etc., $348.16; total amount disbursed, $390.76; deficit, $42.60.

L. A. Rosing, Gov. Lind's private secretary, reported the earnings of the governor's private secretary for 1898 as $3,043.

In committee of the whole yesterday the senate recommended for passage S. F. No. 53, to legalize and validate deeds, mortgages, powers of attorney, etc., executed without seal, scroll or device opposite the name of grantor and the record thereof. Debate on S. F. No. 21, to give private orphan asylums the same authority as the state public schools in regard to removing children from their parents, etc., was sayed by the author, Senator Snyder, moving that progress be reported.

The following bills were introduced:

To authorize counties to purchase land for county agricultural fares. To amend section 12, chapter 2, Laws of 1893, relating to the new state capitol building. To legalize foreclosures of mortgages heretofore made by foreign executors. To validate sales of real estate heretofore ordered in certain instances by judges of probate courts. To amend the laws regulating the payment of bounty for the killing of wolves; for second reading. To amend the Statutes of 1894 relating to parties to civil actions; passed under suspension of rules—15 to 0.

St. Paul, Jan. 26.—After a discussion, which was prolonged through two hours, the house yesterday passed, by a vote of 72 to 43, the bill introduced by Mr. Peterson of Renville reducing the rate of interest on state land contracts from 5 to 4 per cent and extending the time of final payment from forty to fifty years. Favorable action was not accomplished without a sharp contest in which the opposition mustered a following that really surprised the friends of the bill. Mr. Dwinnell of Hennepin and Mr. Lyndis of Carleton led the minority, while the sentiment of the majority found expression through Messrs. Jacobson, Grondahl, Stivers, Yale and others.

Aside from the consideration of the Peterson bill the house had time only for the reports of committees, and under this order of business the judiciary committee delivered itself of reports on thirteen bills, none of them of any great importance. The committee on general legislation reported for indefinite postponement the teachers' retirement bill, and for passage Mr. Whealon's amendment to the civil rights bill.

The Senate.

The senate yesterday held a short session so as to give the committees an opportunity to catch up with their work. Senator Greer presided in the absence of Lieut. Gov. Smith, who addressed the students of Hamline college. The only resolution sent up was by Senator Reeves, extending the sympathy of the senate to Senator Young relative to the death of his brother.

Among the bills introduced was S. F. 125, by Senator Barton, which authorizes the state capitol commission to issue certificates of indebtedness to anticipate the tax levy so as to secure beforehand what will come due each year from the appropriation with which to construct the new capitol.

The following bills were introduced:

To increase the number of rural school districts receiving $50 annual state aid. Relating to the annexation of territory to villages of 1,600 or more inhabitants. Relating to the business of telephone companies. Amending the law under which the new state capitol is being constructed. Providing that counties shall bear their share of care for insane. Providing for the submission to the people of a proposition to adopt the single tax method of paying taxes.

St. Paul, Jan. 27.—The senate spent some time yesterday in committee of the whole in discussion of S. F. No. 55, by Senator McGill, proposing an appropriation of $24,500 with which to reimburse business men of Minneapolis who last summer contributed money toward a fund to defray the cost of the state's exhibit at the Trans-Mississippi exposition held at Omaha. The bill was on general orders with a recommendation to pass from the finance committee. Senator McGill moved that the committee of the whole recommend the bill for passage, and explained how the fund was made up under promise that the gentlemen forwarding the money would be reimbursed by the next legislature. Considerable opposition developed and action on the measure was postponed.

The following bills were introduced:

To amend the law regulating the changing of county seats. To compensate members of the state commission that investigated charges against the management of the state prison relative to the treatment of prisoners. To amend the law regulating the attachment of property in certain cases. To amend the law regulating the appropriations of county commissioners for the construction of bridges on county roads. Regulating the powers of notaries public. Regulating the business of hail insurance companies.

The House.

The house spent the most of the forenoon session backing and filling over the question whether they would or would not allow a bill introduced by Mr. Foss, which came up on an unfavorable report from the committee on taxes, to go to the committee of the whole for the consideration of the whole house. The bill provides that a mortgagor shall be entitled to deduct the value of the mortgage from the assessed valuation of his real estate for purposes of taxation. It provides for the assessment of the mortgage and allows the mortgagor to pay the tax and tender the receipt in payment of principal and interest on the mortgage.

After considerable discussion pro and con Mr. Foss succeeded in having the bill sent to the committee of the whole.

The same fight came up on Pederson's bill to reduce passenger fares on railroads and prohibit the issuing of passes to public officials. The bill came from the railroad committee with an unfavorable report and Mr. Pedersen wanted it sent to the committee of the whole. His motion was voted down.

The following bills were introduced:

To amend the laws preventing disorderly conduct on public conveyances. Prohibiting free lunches in saloons. Appropriating $19,975 to the Minnesota Sugar company as bounty earned for manufacture of beet sugar. To provide for the compensation of the commission appointed by the governor to investigate charges against the management of the state prison. To promote practical forestry and appropriating $1,500 annually to the Minnesota Forestry association. Relating to the license fee for the sale of intoxicating liquor. To regulate mutual hail insurance companies. Providing for a lien on grain for threshing the same. Requiring railroad companies to provide stock yards at stations where 500 or more head of live stock are received. To require railroads to run daily passenger trains on branch lines.

St. Paul, Jan. 28.—Senator McCarthy of Itasca county introduced a bill yesterday that is intended to fill a long-felt want, namely, the reservation of a state park of native pine timber, which has been advocated not only to save the natural forest as a park, but as a possible retreat for persons subject to pulmonary ailments. The bill provides that the state shall acquire and establish a public state park, to be known as Leech Lake Park. Gov. Lind is to appoint within ten days after the bill becomes a law, three citizens of the state to comprise a board of Leech Lake Park commissioners, who shall serve without compensation. These commissioners are to acquire the land and have the power of condemnation of such tracts as do not belong to the state. The whole matter, however, is left subject to the approval of the next legislature, which, if it does not approve of the location of the park, may abandon all proceedings.

Two bills were introduced in the senate to declare unlawful trusts and combinations in restraint of trade and products and to provide penalties therefor, and to forbid pools, trusts and unlawful trade combinations in the state. Both bills seek to obtain practically the same result.

Other bills introduced were:

To increase the salary of the warden of the state prison. — Establishing a state board of surveyors to license surveyors. — Providing for an appeal from the decisions of boards of county commissioners relative to claims for damages. — To legalize fishing with pound nets in lakes of 420 or more square miles. — To legalize the incorporation of villages and cities of 1,000 or more inhabitants. — To prevent the use of language calculated to cause a breach of the peace. — To provide pensions at state account for teachers in rural school districts. — To amend the laws relating to the capital stock of trust companies. — To provide a bounty for the encouragement of the manufacture of pig iron in Minnesota. — Authorizing the appointment of a commission to draft a law embodying a modified form of the Torrens system of transferring land titles.

The House.

The house cleaned up its routine business with reasonable thoroughness and adjourned until Tuesday morning in concluding a tacit agreement reached a week ago when the proposition to adjourn over Sunday was defeated. The proceedings were without especial interest. The Torson bill providing for the election of railroad and warehouse commissioners was passed by the decisive majority of 96 to 11, without debate further than that several of the members took advantage of the opportunity more honored in the breach than in the observance, to explain their votes. The bill provides for the election at the general election of 1900 of three railroad and warehouse commissioners, one to serve for two years and two for four years, and thereafter the term is to be for four years. The nomination for candidates for these offices in political conventions is to be made immediately after candidates for governor and lieutenant governor are selected, and they are to have that position on the official ballot.

The following bills were passed:

To amend section 5156, General statutes 1894, relating to parties to civil actions. — To provide for the publication of delinquent tax list in case of the consolidation of the paper designated for such publication with another paper in the same county. — Providing for the election of railroad and warehouse commissioners. — Providing for the election of an assessor in every incorporated village which is a separate election district.

The following bills were introduced:

To appropriate $19,975 to meet any claims arising under chapter 205, General Laws of 1895, the beet sugar act. — To encourage the manufacture of pig iron. — To authorize the payment of certain local assessments against property owned by the state within the city of St. Paul and appropriating $7,464.86. — To appropriate $365.25 to reimburse Deputy Warden Frank H. Lemon for expenses incurred during the investigation of the prison management. — To amend section 1628, General Statutes 1894, relating to fees for the publication of the delinquent tax lists. — To amend section 680, General Statutes 1894, relating to publication of annual statements.

SNOW STORMS IN COLORADO.

Great Damage is Done in Many Places.

Denver, Jan. 31. — The snowstorm which has been raging on the mountains since early last week has subsided. The sun broke through the clouds and the wind abated. In some places the fall of snow has been the heaviest in fifteen years. In and about Leadville great damage is reported. In some of the small towns coal famines are imminent. Information from Kokomo is to the effect that great masses of hard packed snow overhang the town, threatening it with serious damage should it give way. Kokomo was carried away by an avalanche in the early '80s, and the residents are fearful lest this should be repeated now. The South Park road has been tied up between Como and Leadville. Several days ago an attempt was made to run a train with provisions westward through the snow. The train stuck near Dickey, where it has remained ever since. A snow slide near Haggerman tunnel, on the Colorado Midland, has blocked that road west of Leadville, and trains to Glenwood have gone over the Denver & Rio Grande tracks. No casualties are reported, except from Apex, where three persons are killed. In the cuts between Como and Leadville snow has drifted to a depth of from thirty to forty feet. The only road running west from Leadville which is clear is the Denver & Rio Grande, which has felt little of the effects of the storm.

THREE LIVES LOST.

Terrible Result of a Snow Slide in Colorado.

Apex, Colo., Jan. 31. — Three lives were lost in a snow slide near here. Snow had been falling almost continuously the past week and had reached a depth of fifteen feet on the mountain sides. The pack gave way, swept down on the Rudolph home and carried it away. Rudolph escaped but his wife and three children were swept away in the avalanche of snow. A searching party rescued the six-year old son alive. The other three have not been found.

Sent to Waupun.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 31. — Henry Schmittgrund pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny and was sent to Waupun for one year. After the sentence he confessed to eight offenses since Nov. 5.

The school election at Ardmore, I. T. resulted in favor of free schools by a majority of 35 in a total vote of 649.

GOOD CROPS IN CANADA.

Farmers Leave Good Lands in Minnesota for Western Canada.

Delegates representing a number of neighboring farmers in Clay county, Minnesota, who visited the Edmonton district of Western Canada last summer, are evidently very well satisfied with the result of their trip. They think so well of the country that in addition to the privilege of obtaining a free homestead of 160 acres of land they have also purchased land. In a recent interview on the subject Messrs. C. E. and A. Hughes of Barnesville, Clay Co., say:

"We are well pleased with Western Canada. It is far ahead of what we expected. We find the climate to be warmer than we expected. As for the crops we have never seen anything that can compete with them. We have lived in Minnesota and have farmed some of what they count the best lands in the Red River Valley for ten years and have done very well in that part of the country, and have farms there at present free of all encumbrance, but believe that this country (Western Canada) is so much better that we have bought from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company one section of land northeast of Edmonton in the Beaver Hill district. We have traveled through that part of the country and have seen the grain in the granaries and the amount of land that it was taken off and find that they have grown as much as fifty bushels and over to the acre, and they say that this has not been a good year, and very little if any grain had been touched by the frost. Hay seems to be plentiful, and if you wish to put up log buildings you can get the logs within a few miles. Coal can be had at the mines for 75 cents per ton, or you can dig it yourself. Nearly all kinds of garden truck can be grown in abundance. We find everything that can be grown in good demand. The farmers tell us that they can get four and a half live weight per hundred for hogs, and for three year old steers from fifty to sixty dollars per head, providing they are good. We will move into that part of the country next summer. All the people in that part of the country seem satisfied, and we do not see any reason why they should not be so."

The Messrs. Hughes also stated that they would be very glad to afford anyone desiring particulars about the country they had visited the fullest information, on receiving enquiries at Barnesville, Clay Co., before the 1st of June next, when it is understood they propose to return to the Edmonton district.

SHE GOT HIM BACK.

How the Dog's Mistress Retained Her Pet Spaniel.

When Mrs. Marie Nevins Blaine was married to Dr. W. T. Bull, her pet spaniel, Lion, was banished. After the couple had been married a year Mrs. Bull persuaded her husband to let Lion return for a week, promising to keep him in the stable.

Three days of Lion's visit had passed when as Dr. Bull was taking off his overcoat in his office there came a rap at the inner door. It was so faint that at first he did not notice it. Then when it was repeated he said, "Come in." No one came, but the rapping went on. He opened the door, and there stood Lion. He had been knocking the door with a little wooden box he held in his mouth, addressed to Dr. Bull. The doctor took the box, and Lion, too polite to intrude, turned and walked in a dignified manner back up stairs. The doctor opened the box and read the tiny note contained therein, smiled and threw it in the scrapbasket.

The next day Lion knocked and left another note. The third time he came there was a reply for him. The doctor said, "Lion, wait." He took the box, abstracted the note, put one of his own in its place, and handing the box back to the dog gave him a pat and sent him up stairs. Here is a copy of Lion's notes and the reply they finally elicited:

DEAR DOCTOR—I am enjoying my visit to my mistress very much. It was very kind of you to invite me here, and I have tried to behave the best I know how. It will be hard to leave my mistress again. I wish you would like me a little bit. LION.

The letter which Lion carried back to his mistress read:

MOIST WEATHER.

A Description of a Spell of Humidity on the Wabash.

"Talking about rainy weather," said the westerner, "I remember once out in Indianapolis meeting a farmer who took the most cheerful view of dampness of anybody I ever saw. I asked him if they had had much rain down on the Wabash that spring.

"'Well, it has been a little damp,' he answered. 'The day before I left home I had to hang up 24 of my ducks. They had got so water soaked that they couldn't swim any longer. I planted my corn in two feet of water, and I don't expect over 30 bushels to the acre. My wheat is looking pretty well, but the sturgeon and catfish have damaged it considerably. There was about 15 minutes' sunshine one day, and I thought I would plant my potatoes, so I loaded them on a scow and anchored the scow in three feet of water, when it began to rain again.

"'I wanted to go down on the bottom lands next the Wabash to see if the grass was growing for my hay crop, but my wife said that as we didn't have any diving bell she'd rather I wouldn't. I should feel kind of discouraged with all the rain, but I've spent my odd hours of leisure time—and the even ones, too, on account of staying in out of the wet—building us an ark. If it will only rain another week or two until I get her ready to sail, I'm going to take my family out to Missouri by water for a trip to visit our folks that moved off out there because they didn't know enough to stay in a place where they were comfortable.'"—Boston Transcript.

His Concern.

A commercial traveler on his trip called upon a well known chemist. He was nervous as he put his hand in his pocket and handed out a card.

"I represent that concern," said the young man.

"You are fortunate," replied the chemist.

The commercial traveler was encouraged and said:

"I think so, sir, and the chemist who trades with us is even more so. My firm has the finest line of cosmetics in the country."

"I shouldn't have thought it," slowly responded the man of medicines. "Her complexion looks natural."

And he handed back the photograph which the young man had given him by mistake. He took it and left without waiting to make any farewell remarks.—London Sketch.

Worship of the Tiger.

The carcass of the tiger was carried to the adjacent village, where a hen was decapitated in front of it by the Gunde as an offering to the tiger god, while all the women assembled and did obeisance to the monster, bringing also their children, and placing each a small coin on the tiger's body or in front of its jaws; for these primitive people look on the tiger as their god, and small marvel seeing what a wondrous creature he is, with matchless symmetry of form and mighty strength, before which man seems an insignificant puppet.—"Tropics and Snows," by Burton.

Why She Was Sad.

It was in a little out of the way place in the country, and as the recent arrival passed some asked who she was.

"She is a society woman who has been wishing for the last ten years that she could get away from the trials and anxieties and bores and superficiality of society," was the answer.

"But why is she so sad?"

"Because at last she has got away from them."—Chicago Post.

SHIPS SAVED AT SEA.

WHAT IS MEANT BY "SALVAGE" AND HOW IT IS PAID.

There Is No Law That Signals of Distress at Sea Must Be Heeded—Public Opinion Alone Enforces Responses to Calls For Help.

Salvage on ships saved at sea by others in the majority of cases is paid by the underwriters, although the big steamship companies insure themselves. The insurance companies think that a board of arbitration can more satisfactorily adjust salvage claims than can the courts. The word salvage, as defined by that celebrated admiralty authority, Roscoe, is "the reward which is earned by those who have voluntarily saved or assisted in saving a ship or boat or their apparel or any sort thereof or the lives of persons at sea or a ship, cargo or any part thereof, from peril or a wreck from total loss." The last part of the definition is a trifle puzzling.

In discussing the merits of salvage cases it must be remembered that there is no obligation, written or implied, upon the master or crew of any vessel to heed signals of distress. Public opinion alone enforces the idea that "a call for help at sea must be obeyed." The laws of salvage are merely framed to encourage the saving of life and property on the deep. There is avarice in the mariner as in landsmen, and the laws are made to overcome and curb these mercenary ambitions. For that reason a master and his crew cannot expect salvage for saving their own vessel. It is the natural assumption in law, as well as in fact, that they must do everything they can to preserve their charge and under an agreement with the owners keep it from danger whenever possible.

In salvage one of the first laws is that the peril must be actual. The bargain made in time of danger by the master or agent of the imperiled craft with another volunteering aid need not of necessity hold in court, and generally does not. As a rule the bargain is exorbitant and made at a time when the victim would be willing to guarantee the payment of millions for proffered assistance. This point has been decided hundreds of times, the courts taking the stand that the peril made an exorbitant bargain necessary.

As a general thing, the salvage award is equal to about one-third the value in the case of sailing craft and from one-third to one-half in the case of steamers. The owners of the salving craft, whose money was wasted by delay, wear and tear, are of course entitled to the bigger piece of the plum. The master of the salvor gets about twice the sum that his mate receives, and the mate is paid something like double the amount of each sailor.

Should the latter have been a member of a lifeboat crew used in running hawsers or in going aboard as a prize crew he and his mates are entitled to an extra compensation. Naval officers cannot claim salvage when the work accomplished is in the direct line of their duty.

In the case of a abandoned vessel there is a peculiar law as applied to ownership. No matter where the derelict be found and towed or assisted in by a prize crew or otherwise the court holds that she is still the property of her original owners, although abandoned by her crew, their agents, and that no effort has been made by them to recover her. It sounds peculiar to the average mariner, but it's the law.

To make a successful salvage claim it is necessary that the property must be actually saved and saved by those claiming to be salvors. In other words, the salvage services must be rendered by persons not bound by contract to render them. If the mariner or other encounters the danger or misfortune or damage which might possibly expose the ship to destruction unless assistance is rendered and does all he can to save the vessel, and his services tend in some degree to save or preserve her, compensation will be awarded him, although the vessel is mainly preserved by other means.

The longest time that any one steamer has been at sea with disabled machinery before reaching port was 77 days. This was the United States corvette Iroquois in 1890. She was bound to Samoa from Honolulu, and had only seven days' rations left when port was reached. In 1897 the steamer Indraleme was towed into St. Thomas after having been at sea for 47 days. The Glasgow steamer Strathness, after drifting 33 days out of the range of steamers, was towed into St. Michael's in January, 1897, by the British steamer Hannah M. Bell. Another Strath, the Strathnevis, drifted helplessly on the Pacific for two months and over in 1895, and was finally towed into Puget sound. The Dispatch in 1864 was out 61 days with crippled machinery, and four years ago the British cruiser Calypso broke down 2,000 miles from port and sailed in unaided, much to the delight of the dwindling band of naval experts who maintain that every warship ought to be provided with ample sail power.

The owners of those ships that were obliged to drift for weeks, and in several cases for months, would not have found fault with the question of salvage had a helping hand come along—at least there would have been no complaint just then.—New York Mail and Express.

Work of Helpmates.

I was driving through one of the best farming districts in western Ontario a few years ago. I expressed my admiration.

"Yes," said my companion, who knew the country thoroughly, "nearly all the farmers around here have second wives."

"Why?" was my surprised inquiry.

"Oh," he answered, "they killed their first wives making the farm!"—Perth Expositor.

WRECKED THE VESSEL.

A Possible Danger of Steam Jets as Fire Extinguishers.

For many years steam jets have been considered excellent means for extinguishing fires in inclosed spaces, and examples of their good services have been abundant. The theory of their action of course is, like that of the several kinds of fire extinguishing powders which have been proposed at different times, that the steam in the one case and the stifling fumes from the powders in the other displace the air in any particular space under consideration, and with it the oxygen as well, by which alone combustion can be sustained.

In at least one instance, however, the position was taken that if the steam jets did not extinguish a fire promptly they soon became a source of danger, and as such were held accountable for the loss about a year ago of a cargo steamer carrying several hundred tons of coal and as many more of miscellaneous chemicals and old rope. Fire broke out in one of the holds, which were fitted with steam jet fixtures, and the jets were at once turned on. On the day following it was proposed to try a hose in addition to the jets, and one of the upper deck hatches was therefore taken off.

The almost immediate result was a violent explosion, killing one of the officers and seriously injuring another. All the other hatches were blown off at the same time, and the ship began to leak, so that she soon had to be abandoned. One explanation advanced was that the steam from the jets, passing over the incandescent cargo, formed water gas, which, with suitable air admixture, became explosive, with the result noted. The theory is not a comforting one, but whether it portrays a possible condition of things yet remains to be demonstrated.—Cassier's Magazine.

EASY FOR MORPHY.

A Story of the Great Chess Master and a Celebrated Painting.

On reading the notes on Paul Morphy's visit to Philadelphia I am reminded of an incident in connection with his visit to Richmond about the same time, which was related to me some years ago by the Rev Mr. H. of that city. I do not remember ever to have seen it in print. Mr Morphy was Mr. H.'s guest while in the city, and on his arrival was first ushered into the library, and his attention was at once attracted by a painting over the mantel, which was a fine copy of a celebrated painting representing a game of chess between a young man and the devil, the stake being the young man's soul.

The artist had most graphically depicted the point in the game where it was apparently the young man's move, and he seemed just to realize the fact that he had lost the game, the agony of despair being shown in every line of his features and attitude, while the devil from the opposite side of the table gloated over him with fiendish delight. The position of the game appeared utterly hopeless for the young man, and Mr. H said he had often set it up and studied it with his chess friends, and all agreed the young man's game was certainly lost.

Mr. Morphy walked up to the picture and studied it for several minutes, when finally, turning to Mr. H., he said:

"I can win the game for the young man."

Mr. H. was of course astonished and said, "Is it possible?"

Mr. Morphy replied, "Get out the men and board and let us look at it."

The position was set up, and in a few rapid moves he demonstrated a complete win for the young man, and the devil was checkmated.—Robert Munford in American Chess Magazine.

THE GREATWESTERN CLOTHING HOUSE

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $ 1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $ 2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $ 2.35

St. Hilaire Represented.

Last Wednesday Dan Patterson the liveryman and J. K. Hannay the banker visited Crookston as the guests of that hospitable City at the Burns Anniversary Banquet. They say that the spread was both eloquent and bounteful, the songs and music melodious, the speeches learned and eloquent, and the pleasant recollections something long to be cherished. Dr Watson of Red Lake Falls was exceedingly happy both in his address and his management of the toasts. Messrs. Patterson and Hannay wish the planners and promoters of this banquet to understand that they fully appreciate the kindness of the Scottish brothers, brothers in law, and others who are responsible for the occasion. Crookston certainly did the thing handsomely.

Nothing will be left undone to make the masquerade ball on February 11th a success. The Red Lake Falls orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion. The grand march will start promptly at 9 o'clock.

P. G. Parahis returned Monday from a months visit to his old home at St. Bernard, Canada. Pete enjoyed the trip very much. He brought home a trunk full of samples of rock which he is dealing out to his friends as souvenirs.

Banker J. K. Hannay and Dan Patterson took in the Robbie Burns banquet at Crookston last Wednesday. They speak very highly of the way they were entertained and promise to go again at the next anniversary of "Immortal Robbie."

A. Van Prague, Grand Warden in the State of Minnesota for the I. O. O. F. was here last Friday between trains enroute to Red Lake Falls to visit the lodge at that place. Those that know him, say he is the same old jolly soul and one of the best fellows that ever came over.

The English postoffice does all the express business in Great Britain, carries parcels at an average cost of 11 cents each and makes a profit of nearly $3,000,000 a year. Imagine the profits of American express companies, with average charge three times the above.—Broad Axe.

The St. Hilaire Social Club gave their first dance last Saturday evening and it was a success in every sense of the word. About forty couple were present and all report an excellent time. The Theif River Falls orchestra furnished the music. The Club will give their next dance February 18th.

Conductor Murray is back again on this run after spending a month on a passenger run from Grand Forks to Barnesville relieving Jimmie O'Niel another old time boy on this line. We are all glad to see Hank back, but think he is too good a railroad man to waste his time on a jerk water branch like this.

The fellow who thought that taking his local paper was a waste of time and money wrote the editor as follows: Mr. Editur I think floks ought to stop paying there munay fer paypers. My dad d dn't never talk enny and every buddy sed he wes the intelligentest man in the kentry, and razed the smartest fam ely of boize that ever dug taters.—Ex.

A meeting of the Commercial Club was held at Thief River Falls a week ago last Friday—officers were elected and a committee consisting of C. L. Dahner, John Moylan and Sam Bardelson was appointed by the chairman to solicit funds and investigate a plan of action for securing a county seat for Thief River Falls.

Make arrangements now and be sure to attend the masquerade ball which will be given at St. Hilaire on Saturday February 11th, 1899. Four prizes will be given. Masks can be purchased at M. A. Hall's. Tickets 50 cents. Its the ladies of the village that have undertaken to get up this masquerade and everybody should turn out and make it a success.

Active Telephone Operations.

Frederick Kult, right of way agent for the Northwest Telephone company, has been here during the past fortnight collecting the data for his work of securing right of way for the telephone lines to Fooston, Thief River, St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls. Mr Cutts' work will commence at once and as soon as he has secured right of way, the construction will be connected with the east by a branch from Winnipeg Junction to Crookston.—Crookston Times.

A bill has been recently introduced in the house by Representative Haugen, requiring all railroads operating in the state to run daily passenger trains over all main and branch lines. The passage of this bill will be earnestly prayed for by the residents along the Halstad line, and in view of the recent unpleasantness up in Red Lake county, a few petitions may also go up from St. Hilaire and Thief Riverites.—Crookston Times.

Master Wallace and Hiram Mousseau were agreeably surprised last evening by a number of their schoolmates at the Mousseau residence. The little ones sent in a list containing the names of those present with instructions to print. Here they are:—Frank Oolis, Clarence Hall, Laurence Oolis, John Knowles, Victor Brink, John Taylor, Martin Halvorson, Chester Rouse, Albert Knowles, Peter Bjerge, Elmer Cruse, Albert Hall, Harry Carlson, Walter Thibedeau, Lissie Hall, May Weagant, Ida Brink, Nora Johnson Anna Taylor, Tressa Brondby, Lillie Johnson, Alma Cruseo, May Benson, Rosetta Gillette, Emma Kling and Myrtle Knowles.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES.

The senatorial deadlock in Montana has ended in favor of W. A. Clark.

Wm. Donaldson of glass block fame Minneapolis died Sunday morning at Coronado, California.

Geo. Brady, station agent at Fosston attempted suicide Monday morning. It is believed his life will be saved.

The third U. S. infantry left St. Paul yesterday enroute to Manila. The cold weather prevented any sort of demonstration.

February Ladies' Home Journal.

The February Ladies Home Journal offers more than the expected variety of literary and pictorial features. It opens with an article by Mrs. Ballington Booth, taking the readers through State prison, pointing out the awfulness of prison life, and the hopelessness of a released prisoners efforts to gain unaided a place where he can get a livelihood. The story touches the heart and will attract widespread interest. Mrs. Lew Wallace writes of "The murder of the Modern Innocents," a powerful and convincing protest against the over-education of children. "The story of New York's Social Life" gives interesting glimpses of Gotham society, and "The Largest Ranch in the World" describes a Texas pasturage as large as two States of our Union. The three serials, "The Girls of Camp Arcady," Miss Wilkins "The Jamesons in the Country," and "The Minister of Carthage" continue with dash and a successful interest.

Two pages of the February Journal are worthily devoted to pictures of "The Prettiest Country Homes in America," and two more to "Inside of a Score of Gardens." Both features are the inaugural parts of a series of pictures that will be interesting and useful to every home owner or lover of Nature's work. Burton Cheyney tells boys why and where they should learn trades, and William Martin Johnson continues his "House Practical" series; "Good Furniture and Furnishing" are pictured, "Making a Home Aquarium" is explained, and "Gowns for Unusual Figures" are shown. Helen Watterson Moody writes on "What it means to be Engaged," Mrs. S. T. Rores on "Food for Men and Women Over Fifty" and "Preparing and Cooking Shellfish," while every home and family interest is considered. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar per year; ten cents per copy.

Will Cure Grippe.

I have at various times told the press how many at Memphis, Tennessee, [including the agents of "The Howard Benevolent Association"] escaped the terrible epidemic of yellow fever there [as they claimed] by wearing powdered sulphur in their shoes,—also the evidence of a distinguished German medical writer translated into English, that wearing sulphur in this way has proved a complete protection against cholera and other epidemic diseases,— also that those working the sulphur mines of Italy escape the malaria which prevails all about them,—also that sulphur in the shoes has cured various cases of rheumatism,—also that sulphur taken internally or worn in the shoes has sufficient power to pass through the body, the clothing and the pocket-book blackening the silver there.—Geo. T. Angell.

ROCKSBURY NOTES.

Dr. Grundy was called out to Mr. Thompsons place a couple times week before last one of his boys being sick.

Axel Berg lost his best horse some time ago. John A. Dahl was also subject to the same bad luck.

Mr. Henry Norland spent last week at some point on the Clearwater constructing a bridge across said river.

At the last annual meeting of Valhall Society it was decided to complete the hall of said society and a lot of hands are now busy putting on the ceiling.

During John A. Threns visit to the Good Templars Lodge "Breidablik" he and Mr. Henry Norland and several members of said lodge drove out to Black River for the purpose of organizing a Good Templar lodge but did not succeed.

Breidablik of I. O. G. T. started with 14 members, now it has 24. The lodge has hardly eny meeting unless there is new members to initiate.

Mr. Hans Engelstad, who left this a short time ago to seek better and greener pastures in the Scramento Valley, California returned last Wednesday a little wiser but so much poorer at the railroad fare for himself and his family both ways besides some other necessary expenses.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent.

The most carefully prepared speech against the Hull bill was made by Representative Hay, of Va., the ranking democratic member of the Military Committee, who said that the bill provided for too small an army to carry out an imperial policy and too large a one if we are not to have an imperial policy.

That there is something rotten about the war department is every day becoming more apparent, in spite of the efforts made to keep down the truth. The War Investigating Commission seems especially determined to save the contractors who furnished the bad beef, both refrigerated and canned, to our soldiers, by insisting that the beef was good, in the face of positive evidence to the contrary. Another proof of the rottenness of the War Department methods is furnished by the assertions made by Gen. Eagen's friends, that he is willing to accept a nominal punishment as a result of his court-martial for blackguarding Gen. Miles, and keep his mouth shut, but that if McKinley fails to set aside enough of the finding of the court-martial to make his punishment nominal, he will raise such a scandal as Washington has not had for many years, by telling everything he knows about war contracts and those who profited thereby. Eagan's plea before the court martial, of not guilty, although acknowledging the use of the dirty and disgusting language towards Gen. Miles, and his claim for protection under McKinley's promise, is believed to be the result of an understanding, and the belief is strengthened by his confident and nonchalent bearing during the trial. A sportingly inclined army officer offered to bet ten to one that a verdict of guilty would not result in Eagan's dismissal from the army.

The young people of the city who indulge in the dizzy waltz will hear with interest that the heads of Washington and New York societies have decided that "siting out" a waltz this winter will be more fashionable than dancing. The "sitting out" embodies the same position as dancing—the only difference is you sit instead of dance. The man's right arm is around the girl's waist, while his left hand holds her right. Her left hand is placed upon his shoulder while her head rests lovingly upon his bosom, and all they have to do is to sit and listen to the music. Now that is something like it. We have always regarded it as a nuisance to have to gallop a mile or two to get a hug or two. A room full of people sitting around on sofas hugging to music is more to our notion. This will give the old rheumatick brethern another chance to waltz. Most men waltz not for the dance, but for the position and while a man may lose his appetite for dancing he has to get powerful old before he loses his appetite for hugging a pretty girl.—Ex.

Fraternity without a lodge is like a church and organ without a congregation and choir, like a stove without a fire, like a home without a wife and children. In fact, fraternity without a lodge is a misnomer—it is a shell and fake. When you dispense with a lodge room and take fraternity out on the street like a common thing, she will at first hide her face in shame and then freeze to death from the coolness around her. In the lodge room fraternity is in the hands of her friends, There she is revered and loved, and the spirit that she instills and includes into those who make her acquaintances is making the world better and happier. He is a common enemy, not only to the society but to the community as well, who would attempt to bar the doors of the lodge room.—Bee Hive.

The familiar rule that leap year is every calender year with a number divisible by four will be broken in 1900, which fact need not be regarded as an indication that even then it will be time for a change. Then there is no leap year for eight years. February, 1900, will have but twenty-eight days, the extra day not appearing from 1896 to 1904. Centanary years are not leap years. That year will be broken in the leap year 2000, when the interruption may be regarded as an indication that it is time for a change. Centenary years divisible by 400 are leap years, consequently there were twenty-nine days in February, 1600, and the same number of days will be gived to February, 2000 and again to 2400. The object of this rule is to make a calander year coincide with the solar year.

After-Effects of the GRIP

Grip is a treacherous disease. You think it is cured and the slightest cold brings on a relapse.

Its victims are always left in a weakened condition—blood impure and impoverished; nerves shattered. Pneumonia, heart disease and nervous prostration are often the result.

Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will drive every trace of the poisonous germs from the system, build up and enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves. A trial will prove this. Read the evidence:

When the grip last visited this section Herman H. Eveler, of 511 W. Main St., Jefferson, Mo., a well-known contractor and builder, was one of the victims, and he has since been troubled with the after-effects of the disease. A year ago his health began to fail, and he was obliged to discontinue work. That he lives to-day is almost a miracle. He says:

"I was troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and a general debility. My back also pained me severely.

"I tried one doctor after another and numerous remedies suggested by my friends, but without apparent benefit, and began to give up hope. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People extolled in a St. Louis paper, and after investigation decided to give them a trial.

"After using the first box I felt wonderfully relieved and was satisfied that the pills were putting me on the road to recovery. I bought two more boxes and continued taking them.

"After taking four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I am restored to good health. I feel like a new man, and having the will and energy of my former days returned, I am capable of transacting my business with increased ambition.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a wonderful medicine and any one suffering from the after-effects of the grip will find that these pills are the specific." H. H. EVELER.

Mr. Eveler will gladly answer any inquiry regarding this if stamp is enclosed.—From Cole Co. Democrat, Jefferson City, Mo.

Look for the full name on the package. At druggists or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. 50c. per box. 6 boxes $2.50.

Forest Preservation.

Under this head the State Auditor (and Forest Commissioner) in his annual report, says: "The law for preventing and extinguishing forest and prairie fires has been in operation practically for four years, and has met reasonable expectations. During this period Minnesota has been free from such serious forest fires as have occurred in neighboring states. Of course it needs no law to make people turn out to save their own or neighbors' property from fire, but the benefit of the fire warden law is especially apparent in cases where a forest fire may have been set in a remote or a sparsely-settled locality, in a dry season, and which but for the prompt attention of fire wardens might prove disastrous. The leading object of the law also is to prevent dangerous forest or prairie fires from being set. Prevention, indeed, is its leading principle. Not only does the fire warden law tend to prevent such a catastrophe as occurred at Hinckley in 1894, but by helping to save the young growth of timber, it tends to prolong our important lumber industry."

BAKING POWDER

A Pure Cream of Tartar Baking Powder

HOW CREAM TARTAR IS MADE.

Cream of Tartar—which enters so largely into the manufacture of Dr Price's Cream Baking Powder—is obtained from the tart Wines of France, Germany, Austria, etc. The Crude Tartar, called Argolis, is deposited on the sides of the wine casks during the fermentation of the wine. After the wine is drawn off, this crystal deposit is removed, dried and exported to America where the elaborate process of refining takes place, producing the snow-white crystals of Cream of Tartar.

In singling out Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder from all its competitors and bestowing upon it a special Gold Medal, the California Midwinter Fair concurred in the verdict given by the World's Fair jury, which awarded both medal and diploma to Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, declaring it superior to every other brand.

The victories won by it at all the great fairs, and its wonderful growth in popular favor, due to its purity, uniformity, wholesomeness, keeping qualities and excellence, have confirmed and emphasized it as

"The Foremost Baking Powder in all the World."

NOTE.—The Cream of Tartar Refinery, controlled by the Price Baking Powder Company, is the most complete and extensive in the World.

ARE AGAINST PARSONS

SKIPPERS OPPOSED TO MINISTERS ON SHIPS.

It Is a Superstition—Tales of Shipwrecks, Murder and Fatal Accidents Blamed to Their Presence—A Curious State of Affairs.

I have observed that merchant skippers, almost without exception, says the Church Gazette, have a great dislike to having parsons aboard. I once wished one a pleasant voyage. "Pleasant voyage!" he retorted, savagely. "That's likely, ain't it, when there's three parsons shipped, and one of them a bishop?" Here his feelings became too much for him, and he called to the steward to refill the glasses. I was not surprised to hear that the cylinder cover blew off in the bay. Sitting in my club one night, a skipper came in. I shook him by the hand and hoped he had had a good voyage. "Voyage," he replied, in heartrending tones, "don't call it that. I never had such a dog's time in my life. Got two parsons aboard at Sydney, and another at King George's sound, and blame me if two missionaries did not join at Colombo! Sooner than sail with five parsons again, I'll break an arm or a leg, and get put ashore." To see the prejudice in all its glory one must talk to the masters of ocean tramps. I have known in one case in which a skipper feigned serious illness sooner than take command when he found that five missionaries were booked as passengers, and two of them ladies. As it happened the ship had a particularly bad voyage, and the unlucky missionaries had more than one very near squeak for their lives. Once a case was quoted to me as showing great presence of mind and seamanship on the part of the skipper. The ship had a couple of parsons aboard, and, as the crew expected, the voyage was disastrous. The misfortunes culminated in the decks being swept and three men washed overboard. One was a parson, who ought to have been below. After this, the weather suddenly abated, and the ship came safe to land. I remarked that the parson ought to have been under hatches. "Ah!" replied the old sea dog who told me, "Cap'n S. is a good man. He talked it over with the mates, and there seemed nothing else to be done. So they got him up on purpose. Better one man than the whole company, and the parson ought to have been prepared, while it warn't in reason that the whole crew should be." I was in a ship down the coast, and one night, when chatting with the skipper, he said his vessel had never had a serious mishap. This is how he accounted for it: "The ship is a beauty," he said, "and as soon as she was launched I foresaw the necessity of her getting a bad name among parsons and such like. As luck would have it, on her first voyage a missionary shipped. All the other passengers left at the Canaries. Of course we had bad weather, and we had a bad voyage. I mentioned it to the chief officer and he tipped a wink to the steward, who, I fancy, said a word to the cook. When we put him ashore he was as thin as a herring, and he made a lot of complaints and threatened to write to the owners. All I said was that I hoped he would do his duty to the poor heathen as well as I had done mine to my owners. But he talked ashore and he wrote to his society, and my ship's been avoided like the plague by parsons ever since, and that's how it is I've been so lucky." Skippers have told me that, danger apart, parsons are not desirable passengers—they interfere so much. One told me that the wife of one clerical gentleman insisted on holding little religious conversations with the stewards and the crew and giving them tracts till he nearly had a mutiny. At length he found her trying to improve the moral condition of the steersman, when he threatened that if he caught her abaft the funnel again he would put her in irons, after which she subsided. I have often had ludicrous stories of parsonic interference told me. One man gravely remonstrated with the skipper for working on Sundays and wanted him to send all the men aft for a service. The skipper told him he was quite welcome to hold the service, and that the sailors who were not in their bunks or otherwise engaged might go. "Did they?" I asked. "I'd like to have seen them!" he replied, grimly; "I kept them too thundering busy. The parson waited an hour and a half, and as no one went he gave it up and never tried again."

Uniting Broken Filaments in Incandescent Lamps.

It is stated that this apparently impossible feat can sometimes be executed by shaking the lamp with broken filament while connected to an active circuit. Sooner or later the ends of the filament strike together, a bright spark is formed as they meet, and with this end the momentary current enough heat is produced to weld them together, and the lamp burns away as if it had never been injured.

Sterilized Milk Utensils.

Milk from a healthy cow is, in the first instance, absolutely free from bacteria. It becomes contaminated in the mere process of milking, and so admirably adapted is milk to bacterial growth that in a short time it is swarming with minute forms of life. Let us consider whence these are derived. Of first importance are the vessels in use. A momentary application of boiling water or steam is insufficient to destroy germ life, says the Contemporary Review, to be effectual it is necessary to expose the vessels to the influence of high heat for several minutes, at least, and steam is by far the best agent that can be used. Vessels are often used that are in an improper condition for handling milk; a rusty milk can often spoils more milk than sufficient to buy a new can. Wooden pails ought not to be tolerated. Vessels should be of pressed tin, the joints well flushed with solder, so as to be easily cleaned.

An interesting experiment was made with two cans in summer; one was thoroughly well cleaned in the ordinary way, the other was sterilized by steam for thirty minutes; in the first, the milk went sour in twenty-three hours, in the second in twenty-eight and a half hours; and the first can was found, on examination, to contain twenty-six times as many bacteria as the second. The same experiment repeated in winter showed that the sterilized can kept the milk sweet for nine hours longer than did the other. Milk that has been deprived of most of its germs by Pasteurization will remain sweet in cans thoroughly sterilized by steam for about twice as long as if put into cans cleaned in the ordinary way. Where milk is sent to a factory, it sometimes happens that the milk cans are returned to the farm containing separated milk, whey, or butter-milk. It need hardly be said that this practice is utterly disastrous as well to the factory as to the farmer.

The importance of rejecting the first drops from the udder, called the "fore-milk," is not always recognized. In a sample of the fore-milk that was examined, it was found to contain eight times as many bacteria as the following milk. The actual loss occasioned by rejecting the fore-milk is slight, because the first pint of milk contains a very low percentage of butter-fat. The coat of the cow offers exceptional facilities for the harboring of dust and dirt; it is, therefore, extremely rich in various forms of bacterial life that stick to the flanks and underparts of the animals when they lie down. What is true of the animal is likewise true concerning the person of the milker. Clothed in dust-laden garments that he has in daily use, he himself is covered with innumerable bacteria in a dried condition. A large amount of this filth can be restrained or cleaned off. Bacteria can be dislodged from a dry surface with ease, while from a moistened surface, however rich in germs, there is little chance of their diffusion. Therefore, the flanks and under-part of the animal, after carding and cleaning, should be thoroughly moistened with water and then dry-sponged, taking care there shall be no drip; so the myriads of germs that remain may be effectually kept out of the milk.

Turkey Gospel.

The first clutch of eggs laid by a turkey are seldom fertile, and if by chance a few are they invariably hatch out weakly poults and crippled ones, no matter whether the eggs were placed under a hen or in an incubator, says Poultry Journal. The second clutch laid do quite often hatch very well, but the poults are not so strong as the ones hatched from eggs laid by a two-year-old hen. If the young turkey hens can have their entire liberty and can forage at will there will be quite a difference in the vitality of the poults. Of a naturally roaming disposition they are better contented, do better in every way, are not so liable to disease and the results are in every way more satisfactory if you allow them to follow this instinct of roving at will in search of a living. If the hen should select a nest in some out-of-the-way place, don't meddle, just let her alone, and do not allow yourself to be unnecessarily nervous over it. Turkeys can stand a great deal of "letting alone," and they hatch more poults and stronger ones by such treatment. I shouldn't advise anyone to move a brood turkey unless it was an old one and accustomed to being handled by its owner. The second cause is lice; they will kill more poults and do it quicker than any other one thing.

Fig Fertilization.

The Department of Agriculture has made a preliminary attempt to introduce from southern Europe into California an insect which is responsible for the fertilization of the Smyrna figs of commerce. The entomologist visited California in the spring of 1898 and found that conditions were ripe for such an attempted introduction, and an agent in Europe will, during the coming year, endeavor to take the necessary steps to bring about this introduction, which, it is hoped, will result in the production by California of a fig equal to the Smyrna fig.

Corn Cribs Lay no Eggs.—A farmer made the remark to me a short time ago, that he did not like the Buff Cochin as a farm fowl on account of their laziness, and being so easily caught by hawks and coyottes (wolves). His neighbor's reason for disliking them was something like this: "His wife's half sister's husband's brother's wife once had them, and they never laid an egg, although she had them six or seven years, and fed them all the corn they could eat all the time." She certainly tried to make corn cribs of her Buff Cochins. A corn crib won't lay many eggs.—Ex.

Some idea of the rise in the values of horses may be gauged by a report sent out from East Buffalo which is to the effect that the light legged kinds, 15.2 to 15.3 hands, 1,025 lb. to 1,100 lb., fairly good lookers and with some style and a good road gait, which now sell for around $300 a pair, could have been bought three years ago for from $100 to $150 a pair. Indeed, the horses that could be bought in the dullest of the dull times for from $100 to $150 a pair were on the average slightly superior to those for which $300 per pair is readily paid.

THANKFUL TO MRS. PINKHAM.

Earnest Words From Women Who Have Been Relieved of Backache—Mrs. Pinkham Warns Against Neglect.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been thankful a thousand times, since I wrote you, for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I followed your advice carefully, and now I feel like a different person. My troubles were backache, headache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstruation and leucorrhœa.

I took four bottles of Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills, and used one package of Sanative Wash, and am now well. I thank you again for the good you have done for me.—ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio.

Great numbers of such letters as the above are constantly being received by Mrs. Pinkham from women who owe their health and happiness to her advice and medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass. Her advice is offered free to all suffering women who are puzzled about themselves.

If you have backache don't neglect it or try heroically to "work it down," you must reach the root of the trouble, and nothing will do this so safely and surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Backache is accompanied by a lot of other aches and wearying sensations, but they nearly always come from the same source. Remove the cause of these distressing things, and you become well and strong. Mrs. S. J. SWANSON, of Gibson City, Ill., tells her experience in the following letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before using your medicine I was troubled with headache and my back ached so that I could not rest. Your medicine is the best I have ever used; it has relieved me of my troubles, and I feel like myself again. Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham.

"I would advise any one troubled with female weakness to take your medicine. I shall also recommend it wherever I can as a great reliever of pain."

An Economical Rail.

Chief Engineer W. T. Manning, of the Baltimore & Ohio Rail Road, has invented a new rail that experts say has many points of interest to railroad owners, the principal one being its economical feature. It is well known that rails wear rapidly on curves, and where these are short and traffic heavy, the cost of renewal is very large. Manning has evolved a section, which, he asserts, will reduce the cost 37 1-2 per cent. He adds materially to the life of the rail by placing additional metal in the head and on the side upon which the wear comes.

On the 5th of May last, during dry weather, a man in the town of Staples, Todd county, carelessly set a fire which spread half a mile into a neighbor's field, where it fatally burned a woman who was trying to save a team, and severely burned a boy who tried to protect her. Under our fire warden law, which punishes people for carelessness in causing forest and prairie fires that injure or endanger others, the chairman of the town board, acting as fire warden, had the offender arrested, and he was made to pay a fine of $100 and costs. It is this fire warden law that Representative Brusletten, of Goodhue county, has introduced a bill to repeal.

REFORM POLITICS

NOTE AND COMMENT OF THE WEEK AT THE STATE CAPITAL.

More and More Satisfaction With the Administration of Governor Lind—A Few Appointments—Some G. O. P. Coffin Nails in Sprout For 1900—Buncomb Republican Investigations—Legislative Summary and New Measures—Congressman Towne on the Senatorial Honor. Twin City Political Matters—The Joker and His "Gamr Varden Yob"—How General McKinnon Came by His Title. Defeat of the Anti-Pass Bill—State Capitol Completion May Be Hastened. Notes of Floor and Lobby.

Democratic Reform Press Bureau.
St. Paul, Jan. 31, 1899.

At the State Capitol, during another week, there have been numerous events political bearing for the encouragement of those having the care and keeping of the people's reform cause. The sprouts can be seen here and there on numerous G. O. P. coffin nails for 1900, like the defeat of the anti-pass bill, while the opportunities of those who would find fault with the administration of Governor Lind grow more and more beautifully less. As time goes on, fewer and fewer holding Republican fat jobs think they may "stay," though there will doubtless be, to the very last, some who will study Coin Harvey and make other ostentatious signs of "reform," hoping to be "kept." Though ever so loth to do so, all will finally concede that a Democrat, Populist or other reform ally is just as capable of performing the public service as a member of the G. O. P., and knows just as well where to use the accompanying salary.

The only additional appointments made by Governor Lind to this date were for the boards of Corrections and Charities, and for Normal schools, as follows:

Corrections and Charities, Professor W. W. Folwell, Minneapolis, and Hon. John W. Willis, St. Paul.

Normal board, Hon. Pierce Butler, Ramsey; J. C. Norby of Norman; J. A. DuBois, Stearns, and C. A. Nye, Clay.

In these selections, besides securing able material for the boards, the governor has recognized some of the most active and able men of the reform forces. Dr. Folwell, who is president of the Minneapolis park board, and one of the university faculty, was one of the strong forces quietly at work for the reform cause in Hennepin. Judge Willis of St. Paul has done as much as any man in the state for the union cause, and made the Democratic race in the Fourth district for congress. Mr. Butler of Ramsey took active part in the campaign, as in previous ones, while Dr. Du Bois is one of the pioneer reformers of Stearns county, and has done great work in organization in that part of the state. Mr. Norby is publisher of the Norman County Herald, one of the strong reform papers of the state. Mr. Nye is a brother of the late "Bill" Nye, and of Nye, Minneapolis, also "late," politically, but this appointee is far from being politically "late."

Legislative summary for the week is of some interest. Commencing with investigation, the Jacobson-Wilson committee on binder twine and grain inspection devoted one session to Warden Wolfer, and obtained little more than admissions he made during the campaign, through this bureau; in substance, that not enough twine was reserved for sale to farmers, but went to the dealers. Cases of alleged "pull" were admitted, and that some to whom large sales were made were relatives of prison managers. Letters from farmers were presented, showing that in one case twine was refused, with the statement that it was all gone, whereas dealers obtained it at the same time and later, the farmer being Oscar Torson, Castle Rock. Farmer S. P. Roach of Janesville wrote the committee that he was refused, while others specified obtained twine afterwards. Mr. Roach said that the only reason he could give for being discriminated against was that he had "for several years refused to bow the knee to the Republican Baal," while the favored ones worshipped at the G. O. P. shrine. Warden Wolfer denied the truth of the one letter, and said he did not remember the other. The campaign allegations that twine purchased at 6¼ cents by dealers was sold to the farmers at 15 cents, was also admitted; it was by concerns that broke their contracts.

The "investigation" is to be resumed this week, and it remains to be developed what confidence our farmers have, as to whether they will come forward and give their experience or not. If satisfied that it is but Republican "horse-play," they will probably keep in the background.

And the same way as to grain inspection. Scores of well authenticated cases were developed last fall of unjust grading, also weights and excessive dockage. The cases were, however, brought to identification with great difficulty, the sufferers apparently fearing that if they were identified they would in some manner suffer for it. Such should take courage. Whether or not they decide to state their cases, it is certain that they now have "friends at court," and there should be no fears of oppression or injury, at least during the present administration.

The Moorhead News states another of these cases. A farmer, for whom The News vouches, sold 5,000 bushels of wheat to one of the Georgetown elevators last fall, and it was graded "No. 3" and "Rejected." He has lately hauled some of the same yield to Perley, and got "No. 1 Northern." His loss from the difference was $500. The case substantiates the charges that the grading was bad early in the fall, but was better later on, after the matters reached public attention, and is good now, for obvious reasons.

Legislative summary gives the following:

The bills making grain and warehouse commissioners elective, seem unlikely to pass, though favored in the house.

The same is true of proposed reduction of rate of interest on state land sales, though it has passed the house. It has not been made clear that the measure is of good public policy or demanded by farmers and settlers; in fact, ulterior motives are feared by some, and important developments are possible, if not probable, in the senate. It is at least significant that no mention of the subject was made during the state campaign, when state matters were under so great scrutiny.

A strong railroad lobby is opposing any reduction in passenger rates, and especially any increase in the gross earnings tax, as recommended by Governor Lind. The lobby is likely to win.

Organized labor is pushing hard for the eight-hour day on public work.

Typographical labor is opposed to the experiment of printing free text-books, at least by prison labor, Superintendent Lewis makes the showing that the book which the trust sells for 42 cents can be produced for 12 cents.

Abuse of the "Corrupt Practices" act, that requiring public statement of election expenses, is likely to cause its repeal. In considering the repeal bill, the case of candidate W. H. Eustis was cited, in which he filed a statement of expenses for the latter part of the campaign, but made none for the months preceding his long canvass for the nomination.

The hyphonating bill, likely to pass, will permit as many marriages as are desired, of newspapers, and the progeny be lawful in all respects, including printing and advertising.

New measures in sight are:

Seventy thousand dollars appropriation for twine plant.

To regulate sale of binder twine.

A Northwestern exposition in 1902.

Railroads to issue 2-cent mileage books.

Another edition of Minnesota in the War.

Regulation of public stock yards.

Regulation of life and casualty insurance.

Requiring contract work on state capitol.

To authorize branch banking houses.

Thirty thousand dollars appropriation for common schools.

To regulate telephone lines.

Striking out 10-year limit on new state capitol.

Twenty thousand dollars for royalties for beet sugar.

Regulation of tramps and vagrants.

Regulation of mutual hail insurance companies.

Requiring railroads to build live stock sheds.

Requiring daily train service on all railroads.

Prohibiting members of corporations from taking notarial acknowledgements.

Authorizing counties to purchase fair grounds.

Inquiry as to state "boards of control."

To repeal "Corrupt Practices" act.

Official examination shows that the office of private secretary earned but $3,000 in fees last year. In such knowledge Governor Lind did not include it in his recommendation abolishing the fee offices.

By Secretary Rosing's report, as above, light was thrown on the joke perpetrated on Hon. Alex McKinnon, a while ago, that he was to be recognized by appointment as surveyor general for the Crookston district, from which it has been "General" McKinnon ever since. The office earned in fees last year $348.16, while the actual expenses paid out were $390.76, or an outlay of $42.60 for the "recognition." All the same there will be "recognition" for "General" McKinnon later on.

Hon. Charles A. Towne who is now in Washington, supplements the acknowledgement he made by telegram for the courtesy of the minority senatorial nomination, by an expression by letter to this bureau, which bears directly upon the statement made regarding that action, that it was not to be taken as extending beyond the present, or binding on a future action. Mr. Towne says:

"I do not desire anybody to consider that I regard this vote as in any sense a mortgage upon the perfect freedom of action of all our friends at any time hereafter when an actual opportunity for the senatorship shall present itself. Any personal ambition of my own will always be held in strict subordination to the general good, and of this fact I desire all our friends to be fully apprised."

It is not all dullness in state capitol politics, as some may think. They tell of an applicant for game warden deputy that he fell into the hands of the Philistines, who proceeded to have some fun with him as to whether he understood the duties and requirements of the place.

"Can you swim?" was asked by one.

"Can I schvim?" replied the applicant. "Can't I, dough? Didn't I bead any fellow on the hay ven we hed soms races? Ask me can I schvim!"

"Well, how about diving? Can you dive?"

"Vell, can I dove? Didn't I dove 60 feet off my father's fishing boat? Didn't I dove for spawn many a time? Vell, I should say so."

"But how long can you stay under water? The rules require at least two minutes."

"Two minutes. Say you talk about two minutes under vater. Vy ven I was on the government dredge in Havana harbor, just before the Maine blowed up,"—(and the listeners began to smell a mice,)—"I used to go down in the vater every morning and vait there while the cook was getting the buckwheat cakes ready, and"—

But by this time the crowd was stampeded, for the man they were playing for a sucker was one of the best practical jokers about the capitol, and had taken them all in by asking where he should apply for "one of dem game varden's yobs." G. S. Q.

BATTLE WITH FILIPINOS

LONG-EXPECTED RUPTURE HAS COME AT LAST.

Twenty Americans Killed and 125 Wounded in the Engagement—Insurgent Losses Are Not Known—North Dakota, Montana and Nebraska Troops Bear the Brunt of the Fight — Dewey's Warships Take a Hand and Pour a Terrible Fire Into the Enemy's Position—Filipino Forces Were Compelled to Retire From Their Positions.

Manila, Feb. 6.—The long expected rupture between the Americans and Filipinos has come at last. The former are now engaged in solving the Philippine problem with the utmost expedition possible. The clash came at 8:40 o'clock Saturday evening when three daring Filipinos darted past the American pickets at Santa Mesa and refused to stop when challenged. They repeated the experiment without drawing the sentries' fire, but the third time Corporal Greely challenged the Filipinos and then fired, killing one of them and wounding another. Almost immediately afterward the Filipinos' line from Caloocan to Santa Mesa commenced a fusillade which was ineffectual. The Nebraska, Montana and North Dakota outposts replied vigorously and held their ground until reinforcements arrived. The Filipinos, in the meantime, concentrated at three points, Caloocan, Galgagin and Santa Mesa. At about 1 o'clock the Filipinos opened a hot fire from all three places simultaneously. This was supplemented by the fire of two siege guns at Balk-balk and by advancing their skirmishers at Paco and Pandacan. The Americans responded with a terrific fire, but owing to the darkness they were unable to determine its effect. The Utah light artillery finally succeeded in silencing the native battery. The Third artillery also did good work on the extreme left. The engagement lasted over an hour.

Warships Take Part.

The United States cruiser Charleston and gunboat Concord, stationed off Malabena, opened fire from their secondary batteries on the Filipinos' position at Caloocan and kept it up vigorously. At 2:45 there was another fusillade along the entire line and the monitor Monadnock opened fire on the enemy from off Malate. With daylight the Americans advanced. The California and Washington regiments made a splendid charge, and drove the Filipinos from the villages of Paco and Santa Mesa. The Nebraska regiment also distinguished itself, capturing several prisoners and one Howitzer and a very strong position at the reservoir which is connected with the waterworks. The Kansas and Dakota regiments compelled the enemy's right flank to retire to Caloocan. There was intermittent firing at various points all day long. The losses of the Filipinos cannot be estimated at present, but they are known to be considerable. The American losses are estimated at twenty men killed and 125 wounded. The Ygorotes, armed with bows and arrows, made a very determined stand in the face of a heavy artillery fire and left many dead on the field. Many attempts were made in the city to assassinate American officers.

OTIS HEARD FROM.

All Attacks Repulsed—Troops Acted Fearlessly.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The following dispatch from Gen. Otis at Manila has been made public:

"Manila, Feb. 5.—Insurgents in large force made attack on our outposts at 8:45 p. m. last night; renewed attack several times during night. At 4 this morning entire line engaged; all attacks repulsed. At daybreak advanced against insurgents and have driven them beyond lines they formerly occupied, capturing several villages and their defensive works. Insurgent loss in dead and wounded large. Our own casualties thus far estimated at 175, very few fatal. Troops enthusiastic and acting fearlessly. Navy did splendid execution on flanks of enemy. City held in check and absolute quiet prevails. Insurgents have secured many Mauser rifles, a few field pieces and quick-firing guns, with ammunition, during last month. —Otis."

Washington, Feb. 6.—The following dispatch was received from Gen. Otis at 1:15 this morning:

"Situation most satisfactory; no apprehension need be felt; perfect quiet prevails in city and vicinity; list of casualties being prepared and will be forwarded as soon as possible; troops in excellent health and spirits."

DEWEY JUSTIFIED.

He Had a Right to Cut the British Cable at Manila.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Attorney General Griggs, in a decision rendered Saturday, upholds the right of a military commander to cut a cable within the territorial waters of an enemy without making his country liable in damages. The question arose on the cutting by Admiral Dewey at Manila of the cable of the British Eastern Extension Australia, Asia and China Telegram company, who filed a claim with the state department for $36,000 damages. Attorney General Griggs finds that under the law of nations there is no ground for a claim for indemnity.

Maniac's Murderous Deed.

Chicago, Feb. 6. — In a midnight struggle with his maniac brother, J. A. Picben, a farmer living near Carey, Ill., was stabbed eight times. In a subsequent battle the madman attacked his aged father and mother, who may not recover.

Is He Another Dreyfus?

Nancy, France, Feb. 6.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a retired lieutenant of infantry on the charge of communicating military documents to a foreign power.

FATHER CRAFT SNUBBED.

Archbishop Santander of Cuba Is Jealous.

New York, Feb. 6.—A special to the Mail and Express from Havana says: Rev. William Craft arrived here on Thursday with letters of introduction from Archbishop Ireland and Bishop Oberne to Archbishop Santander. His mission was to try to make arrangements for the establishment of an American system of schools here, joining with the Spanish nuns. Dr. Craft expressed to the archbishop here the sympathy of the Roman Catholics of America. To his great surprise the American was badly received here. The bishop is reported to have insulted him by alleging improper methods for his mission. He is said to have received him in the worst possible manner and they finally separated by mutual consent. The bishop is believed to have been instigated by the fear that the Americans would gain control of the church in Cuba. It is said the Americans will appeal to Rome.

International Union Complete.

Washington, Feb. 6. — The Chilean minister called at the state department and informed Secretary Hay that the government of Chile had decided to give its support to the bureau of American republics, and the Chilean congress had appropriated the amount of that country's quota for the present year. This makes the international union of American republics complete for the first time since its creation by the Pan-American conference in 1890.

The Tusk of a Mastodon.

Portland, Or., Feb. 6.—G. M. O'Leary writes from Dawson that he discovered on Dec. 8 on his claim on Hunker creek the tusk of a mastodon. The tusk was embedded in snow and ice thirty feet deep. It was nine feet long, twenty-six inches in circumference and weighed about 500 pounds. He will ship the fossil to the city museum here.

Mothers' Congress.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The third annual session of the National Congress of Mothers will open in Washington Feb. 14. Less time than heretofore will be given to formal papers and more to conference and discussion. Any person may become an associate member of the congress by an annual payment of $2.

Ice Floes Drift Ashore.

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 6.—The big ice floes in which the winter steamers have been drifting for days near this port has been driven off shore by the wind. The car ferry entered the harbor and the steamers Boyce, Moron and Naomi proceeded to Milwaukee.

For Irrigation.

Washington, Feb. 6. — A number of senators gave notice of amendments they will offer to the river and harbor bill. Included is one by Mr. Carter appropriating $5,000,000 for the construction of storage reservoirs, and irrigation canals in the arid land states.

Rioting at Marseilles.

Marseilles, Feb. 6. — At a meeting here of the anti-Dreyfus League of Patriots in Alhambria hall a hostile demonstration on the part of some Dreyfusites led to serious fighting in the streets, during which revolvers were fired.

Fatally Stabbed.

Carrington, N. D., Feb. 6.—M. Garvey, dealer in agricultural implements, who was stabbed in the knee by Mike Harrington six weeks ago, has died of blood poisoning. Harrington is now in jail.

Used a Butcher Knife.

Clinton, Minn., Feb. 6.—H. B. Oram, a farmer, got into a quarrel with his son Alexander. The son knocked his father over the woodbox. The old man got a butcher knife and stabbed his son, who is not expected to live.

Small Blaze at Bismarck.

Bismarck, N. D., Feb. 6. — Fire destroyed Glineberg & Levin's carpenter shop, Katz's restaurant and another frame building occupied by Sidney Cohen as a harness shop. Loss, $5,000; insurance, $2,500.

THE LEGISLATURE

Business Transacted by Minnesota Solons.

St. Paul, Feb. 1.—Without a word of discussion the house yesterday, upon a report of its committee on elections, confirmed the title of Hon. Richard H. McDermit of Roseau to the seat which he occupies in the house, as against Peder H. Henricks, the Populist nominee for representative.

The following bills were passed:

To provide for the destruction of weeds on the public highways and streets of villages. — Relating to the appointment of guardians for insane persons.

The following bills were introduced:

Relating to attorney fee on foreclosure of mortgages. — To provide for the protection and permanent establishment of all government cornerstones on public highways. — To regulate the sale of binding twine manufactured at the state prison. — Relating to hail insurance companies. — To regulate the operation of telephone companies and declaring such companies to be common carriers. — To aid in the establishment of day schools for the instruction of the deaf in special school districts. — To regulate the practice of medicine by all schools and all systems of treatment.

The Senate.

The removal of James S. O'Brien of Stillwater by Gov. Lind as a member of the state board of prison managers was submitted yesterday forenoon to the senate in a curt executive communication from his excellency, the governor, asking the senate to "advise, consent and concur," in the removal of Mr. O'Brien and in the appointment of David Bronson of Stillwater. Under the rules the removal and nomination went over until to-day, when it will probably be taken up. The reason given out by the governor for the removal of Mr. O'Brien is that he was indiscreet enough to offer to manage the prison board to suit the governor if the governor would reappoint Mr. O'Brien as surveyor general of logs and lumber for the First district. Mr. O'Brien denies that he made such an offer to the governor.

In response to the senate resolution adopted the fore part of the session, ex-State Oil Inspector Barrows yesterday submitted to the senate a report showing the amount of the earnings of himself and deputies in fees during the two years that he was in office. According to his report the total amount collected in fees by Mr. Barrows was $36,368.29, and the total amount collected by deputy inspectors was $19,547.65, making a total of $55,915.94. Out of this sum $9,090.51 was paid in salaries, commissions and for office expenses, which, taken from the amount collected by Mr. Barrows, left his net income for the two years at $26,677.78.

The following bills were introduced:

To amend the law relating to courts of justice of the peace. — To grant state aid for public libraries in villages. — To establish boards of equalization in cities of less than 4,000 inhabitants. — To fix eight hours as a day's work in cities of 5,000 or more inhabitants. — To authorize county surveyors to lay corner stones and compensating them therefor. — To relieve ex-State Treasurer Bobleter and his bondsmen from liability for moneys deposited in banks that failed. — To appropriate additional moneys for the support of the Northwestern experimental stations at Crookston and Grand Rapids.

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—The senate yesterday buckled right down to work and held an all-day session, as a result of which the list of bills on general orders will be materially reduced. A number of new bills were introduced, and, altogether, the senate spent a very busy day. Almost one of the first actions of the upper house, after prayer by the chaplain and roll call, was consideration of a motion by Senator Daly (Dem.), of Otter Tail county to concur in the removal by Gov. Lind of J. S. O'Brien of the state prison board and the appointment in his place of David Bronson. Senator Daly's motion to concur was adopted by unanimous viva voce vote.

In committee of the whole the senate recommended for passage ten bills that were on general orders, reported progress on several and recommended one for indefinite postponement. Those recommended for passage are the McGill bill to reimburse in the sum of $24,500 the business men of Minnesota who advanced money for the state's exhibit at Omaha; the Greer bill creating a tax commission to revise and codify the tax laws; the Coller bill to repeal the Ozmun corrupt practices act, which was intended to prevent corrupt practices during political campaigns, and several others of less general interest.

The following bills were introduced:

To preserve, protect and propagate fish. — To provide for the time of redemption of mortgaged property at chattel mortgage sale. — To regulate the practice of medicine, surgery, etc., of all schools. — To restrain and license peddlers. — To amend the Laws of 1889 relating to mineral land leases. — To legalize and validate proceedings of banks. — Amending the law relating to municipal courts in cities of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

The House.

The house proceedings were decidedly routine in character, and aside from the introduction of bills there was nothing of general interest.

Among the more important bills introduced were the following:

Requiring railroads to construct platforms to facilitate the shipping of live stock, products, etc. — To prevent the entry into the state of sheep having any contagious disease. — To prevent fraud in the sale of garden and grass seeds. — To protect the public health by regulating the use of unwholesome matter in the manufacture of food products. — Authorizing county commissioners to purchase lands for county fairs. — To punish illegal voting at school meetings. — Relating to the addition of territory to incorporated villages having more than 1,000 inhabitants. — To detach Wadena county from the Fifteenth judicial district and attach it to the Seventh district.

St. Paul, Feb. 3. — In committee of the whole yesterday the senate spent more than an hour in discussion of the Somerville bill, requiring foreign corporations doing business in Minnesota to have a public office or place in this state at which to transact its business. The real purpose of the proposed law is to place foreign corporations on the same footing with regard to paying a license for the right to do business in the state as those incorporated in Minnesota under the terms of the law of 1889. The question was discussed pro and con but no action was taken.

A number of other bills of minor importance were disposed of in committee of the whole.

A bill was passed to legalize certain deeds, mortgages, satisfactions and releases of mortgages or other liens upon lands, powers of attorney and the records thereof, heretofore defectively executed, acknowledged or made.

The following bills were introduced:

To prevent fraud in the sale of garden and grass seeds. — To prohibit theatrical plays, etc., on Sunday. — To legalize and make valid certain deeds transferred by husband to wife.

The House.

The fact that the house went down the line with its list of general orders and disposed of all the bills ready for consideration, practically without debate, may be taken as an evidence that the committees are doing their work with more care than usual. Fourteen bills were recommended to pass and one was killed, and the whole operation consumed hardly an hour.

The most important bill of the lot was one by Mr. Jacobson, providing that testimony be taken before the railroad and warehouse commission may be certified into court upon appeal and shall there have the force and effect of evidence taken by the court. The bill was recommended to pass.

The following bills were introduced:

Relating to clerk hire of probate judges in certain cases. — Authorizing pledges of personal property to purchase at public sales of such property. — Establishing a board of appeals for the inspection of grain. — To repeal sections 1526 and 1527, General Statutes of 1894, relating to the deduction of indebtedness from credits listed for assessment. — To provide for the selection of grand and petit jurors. — Relating to work upon public highways. — Providing for the selection of candidates for election by popular vote.

St. Paul, Feb. 4.—One of the prettiest senate fights of the session is that over the Somerville bill, placing foreign corporations doing business in Minnesota on an equal footing with Minnesota concerns, requiring them to establish a local business office and agent and to pay the regular license fee, as provided by the law of 1889, when they file articles of incorporation. Senator Horton of Ramsey is leading the fight against the measure, ably supported by Senators Wilson and Stockwell of Hennepin, while Senator Somerville is supporting the measure. The bill is on general orders and has been under consideration two days. It occupied half a day yesterday and will be taken up again to-day, the senate being unable to decide whether to adopt or kill the measure.

The senate put in another busy day yesterday, holding two sessions, and will also work to-day. Among the bills passed were the following:

Providing for the distribution in each county to farmers by county auditors of the sugar beet seed now in possession of the state. — To appropriate money to defray the expenses of the Minnesota exhibit at the Omaha exposition. — A bill for an act to authorize counties to purchase land to be used as agricultural fair grounds on approval of electors of such county, and to improve, sell and lease the same. — Relating to the sale of forfeited property on tax sale and the disposition of the proceeds thereof. — A bill for an act to repeal chapter 277, General Laws of 1895, entitled an act to prevent corrupt practices in elections, etc.

The following bills were introduced:

To prevent delivery of liquor on the Sabbath which has been sold the day previous. Amending the law relating to bonds given by contractors on public work. — Amending the law relating to savings banks and fostering said institutions. — Providing for a poll tax on dogs. Providing for punishment of violators of law relating to non-support. — To erect a live stock amphitheater at the state fair grounds.

The House.

The house put itself on record yesterday afternoon in a manner diametrically opposed to the position taken by the senate on the divorce for desertion proposition. The issue was made over Mr. Fosnes' bill to increase the period to three years. The bill was identical with that offered by Senator Wilson in the senate and which was killed after a hot fight. Before the bill was debated at any length Mr. Fosnes offered an amendment making the period two years. The amendment prevailed by a vote of 36 to 33. Mr. Foss spoke briefly in favor of the bill. Mr. Umland was opposed to it on the ground that the present law was in the interest of morality. Mr. Deming took the ground that the causes for divorce were too easy and too numerous. He offered two further amendments to the bill and to existing law, one providing that impotency to be a ground for divorce must have existed before marriage and the other amending the imprisonment clause so that it should only apply to cases of imprisonment for two years, and that the action might not be begun until after a year's imprisonment, nor in any event after the imprisonment had legally ceased. Both were adopted and the bill was recommended to pass.

The following bills were passed:

Providing a punishment for wilful damage to bicycle paths. — Relating to evidence taken before the railroad commission. — Relating to the descent of property inherited by an adopted child. — Abolishing days of grace. — Making teachers' university certificates good for two years from date, instead of two years from graduation. — Legalizing acknowledgments taken by officers of corporations in matters in which the corporation is interested. — Prescribing the manner of designating acts amending laws appearing in the Statutes of 1894.

The following were among the more important bills introduced:

To appropriate $1,000 annually to the Minnesota Stock Breeders' association. — To establish the office of fire marshal. — Legalizing bonds heretofore issued by cities under chapter 224, Laws of 1893. — Relating to the organization of trust companies. — To provide for the taxation of insurance companies and to distribute a portion of the tax among the fire departments of the state. — To appropriate $45,000 for the erection of a live stock amphitheater and agricultural hall on the state fair grounds.

CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD.

Countess von Wehenean and Her Nephew Are Arrested.

Berlin, Ont., Feb. 5. — Countess von Weheman and her nephew, Herman Boblerhausen, are under arrest here charged with conspiracy to defraud the Merchants' Fire Insurance company. The prisoners put in a claim for $2,000 for their goods, which they alleged were destroyed in a fire Tuesday morning which consumed the house in which they lived. It now turns out that they had sixteen large cases of goods at the Waterloo station addressed to Buffalo the day before the fire. The prisoners were remanded.

STREET CAR HOG.

Shot, Perhaps Fatally, by a Retired Physician.

New York, Feb. 5. — Dr. Thomas Wildes, a retired physician, shot Hugo Wolfert, a cook, in a Lexington avenue car, inflicting a wound, which is said by the hospital officials to be fatal. Wolfert, according to the story told to the police, was occupying more room in the car than he was entitled to and refused to make way for a lady. Dr. Wildes gave his seat to the lady and upbraided Wolfert, who struck him. The physician then drew a revolver and shot Wolfert through the breast. Dr. Wildes was arrested.

Terrible Gas Explosion.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 5. — A terrible gas explosion occurred on Sycamore street, Etna, completely demolishing the brick residence of Joseph Ackerman. Mrs. Weaver was killed, Joseph Ackerman had both legs broken, Mrs. Ackerman was injured internally and two young women, daughters of the Ackermans, were badly crushed. The explosion was caused by a gas leak in the cellar.

THE EAGAN CASE.

Papers Are Now in the Hands of the President.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The record of the court-martial in the case of Gen. Eagan is now in the hands of the president for final review. Yesterday Mr. Worthington, attorney for Gen. Eagan, filed with the judge advocate general additional or supplementary plea, which he was granted permission to lodge. It was an elaboration of the points made by counsel before the court-martial. A formidable array of authorities have been produced, particularly in support of the contention that Gen. Eagan's conduct, though the facts be admitted, was not legally in the line of the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman. This paper was placed by the judge advocate general in the hands of the adjutant general and will be added to the papers bearing on the case now in the hands of the president.

TROUBLES IN SAMOA.

Chief Justice Chambers Makes a Report.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The state department has been informed that Chief Justice Chambers of Samoa has made a long report upon the circumstances attending the recent uprising at Apia. This report was addressed to each of the three powers under whose authority the chief justice holds his appointment. The copies sent to Germany and to Great Britain have reached their destination but that sent to the state department here is still on the way. It is said that the full mail reports of the recent occurrences cannot be expected to reach Europe until the 21st inst., and the United States a week later.

GO OUT OF COMMISSION.

All Vessels of the Navy in Reserve Will Be Disposed Of.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The navy department has ordered that all of the ships of the navy now held in reserve shall be put out of commission at once. There are a number of these ships and the government will effect a considerable saving, besides making available the services of a number of sailors for use in the active ships. The cost of the keeping the Minneapolis alone in reserve with about 100 men aboard was about $34,000 per annum. The advantage of the system, however, has been fully shown in the late war.

QUICK TRIP TO MANILA.

The Buffalo Has Reached There With Men and Supplies for Dewey.

Washington, Feb. 4. — The Buffalo has arrived at Manila, having made a record-breaking run from New York to Manila in fifty-four days. She has aboard about 700 sailors to relieve men in Dewey's fleet whose time has expired. She will be used as a regular transport for men and naval stores, making regular trips between Manila and San Francisco every three months.

SUED A LABOR UNION.

And Got a Verdict for Being Kept Out of Employment.

San Francisco, Feb. 4.—Fred Hess, Jr., who sued the San Francisco Typographical union to recover $25,000 damages for having been forced out of employment by the union, he being a non-union man, has been awarded $1,200 by a jury in the superior court.

SLOAN'S FORTUNE.

The Midget Jockey Said to Have Cleaned Up a Snug Sum.

San Francisco, Feb. 4.—The Examiner says that Tod Sloan has received a telegram from New York stating that he has cleared up $250,000 as the result of speculation in Wall street. It is said that before coming West Tod left several thousand dollars with L. B. Bell, a Wall street operator, with general instructions to invest as he thought best. No details of how the money was used has been received.

"CROSSED" MONEY ORDERS.

Safeguards Employed in England in Making Small Remittances.

Americans who are buying books in small quantities or are remitting dues to the treasurers of English societies of which they happen to be members occasionally receive a printed or written request to use a "crossed" order when sending money. At first they are likely to be mystified by the phrase. Even if inquiry is made at the postoffice in this country it is quite possible that no satisfactory explanation will be obtainable. The remitting party will ascertain, though, that American postoffices do not issue "crossed" orders.

The term in question refers to two lines drawn with a pen from the top to the bottom of a postal order on its face near the middle and an inch or two apart. That treatment of a money order will prevent payment of it to any one but a banker, and if, as is sometimes done, the name of some particular bank is written in the space between the lines the order will be paid only to that institution. It is not necessary to use any words in addition to the name of the bank. No explicit prohibition is required. The mere crossing of the order is a well understood signal to the British postal authorities, for, while the custom is comparatively unfamiliar to people on this side of the Atlantic, it is common enough in the United Kingdom.

When an American remits money in this manner, he crosses his order himself, but in several foreign countries the postoffice does not give the order to the sender, but transmits it directly to the paying office. The person who remits merely sends notice to the right person to go to the postoffice and apply for the money. Where this usage prevails the postoffice issues a crossed order because the sender cannot cross the order himself. Such is the practice, for instance, in Germany, Belgium, Austria, and Italy.—New York Tribune.

NO STOVES IN KOREA.

Instead Flues Are Laid Under the Floors, Which Are Thus Heated.

Stoves are not used to any extent by the native Koreans. The Korean method of heating is excellently adapted to their resources and conditions. In building their houses they lay down a system of flues where the floor is to be. These flues begin at a fireplace, which is usually placed in an outer shed or connecting closed alleyway.

From this fireplace the flues extend in a more or less curved direction, like the ribs of a round fan, to a trench at the rear of the room, which in turn opens into a chimney, which is usually placed some distance from the house. Flat flagstones are then placed carefully over these flues, and the whole is cemented over and finally covered with a thick oil paper, for which the country is noted. This paper keeps smoke from entering the room, and a little straw or brushwood, used in the fireplace for cooking the rice, serves to heat the stone floor and gives an agreeable warmth, which lasts till the time of the next meal.

Two heatings daily tend to give the people a nice warm floor, upon which they sit in the daytime and sleep at night. By leaving their shoes at the door the inmates preserve the paper floor, which from constant polishing takes on a rich brown color.—New York Press.

Maori Women.

The Maori women of Australasia have their rights—flourishing ones. Generally they have little voice or choice in the selection of their first husbands, but they may, and frequently do, change them. A woman may trade her husband without so much as a comment from the public, without the slightest smudge on her good name, and it is nothing to his discredit either. Courtship is always brief and does not often preface marriage. The Maoris, however, love to repeat oriental love tales and sing love songs. Maori widows not infrequently commit suicide on the graves of their husbands and are honored for doing so, as in China. Divorce is simple; it needs no revenue, employs no officers. He turns her out of doors, and both are free to remarry. This is all. Girls are often betrothed irrevocably from infancy.

Protection.

Nephew (from the city)—Why do you have those lightning rods on your house and barn, Uncle Josh? Don't you know the theory that they afford protection has long since been exploded?

Uncle Josh—Waal, I kin tell you they dew act as pertecktors, the'ry or no the'ry.

Nephew—Do you mean to tell me you believe they protect you from lightning?

Uncle Josh—Mebby not, young un, mebby not, but they perteckt me from them pesky lightnin rod peddlers.—Chicago News.

Feeding Hotel Help.

The first work done in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, each day is the preparation of breakfast for 1,200 employees. The last of these meals is served usually before the earliest rising guest sleepily orders his eggs and coffee, thinking himself almost a hero to be breakfasting at such an hour.

Swindled.

Mrs. Smarte says her husband is the worst man that ever was to go shopping. He's almost sure to get swindled every time. "Why," she says, "it was only t'other day that he bought a flute, and when it came home, if you'll believe it, 'twas full of holes."—Boston Transcript.

In Extremis.

Husband—My darling, when I am gone, how will you ever be able to pay the doctor's bill?

Wife—Don't worry about that, dear. If the worst comes to the worst, I will marry the doctor.—Medical Record.

FOOD THAT INJURES.

THINGS THAT AFFLICTED PERSONS SHOULD NOT EAT.

If You Have a Tendency to Gout, Shun Meat as You Would Torture. A Little Advice to the Great Army of Sufferers From Dyspepsia.

A physician, writing in the Philadelphia Inquirer on "Foods and Their Effect on the Human System," says:

That out of sorts feeling from which most of us suffer half the days of our life is usually due to our eating things we shouldn't. Although we are constructed on the same model, scarcely any two people have exactly the same kind of heart, liver and other organs, and as a result nothing is truer than the saying that "One man's meat is another man's poison."

Meat, for instance, is a slow poison to a number of individuals. If there is a gouty strain in your family, you are storing up future torture for yourself every time you eat a chop or piece of beef. Gout is simply the result of too much uric acid in the blood, and meat is full of the material from which uric acid is made.

You may think that so long as you have not to sit in an easy chair all day there is no need for precautions in diet. But the first symptoms are always mild, and if you feel irritable and unable to settle down to work you had better be careful how much meat you eat. Englishmen are said to be the worst tempered people on earth. They are also the most gouty, and there can be no doubt that they are the greatest meat eaters.

Nothing is more nourishing than sugar, yet it is absolutely poison to those who are prone to diabetes, and any one inclined to corpulency should regard it as a natural enemy. Two lumps of sugar per day in excess of the quantity required by the body would add 60 pounds to a man's weight in five years—that is, of course, if he had the sort of constitution that easily puts on flesh.

But it is not sugar alone which is injurious to diabetic and stout people. The former should not look at porridge, rice, beet root, Spanish onions, port wine, rum or ginger beer; the latter should take neither soup, beer, potatoes nor treacle, while gouty people should not touch peas or beans.

If any near member of your family has St. Vitus' dance or epilepsy, you should eat meat very sparingly and grapes not at all, while you might as well think of committing suicide as frequenting the barroom.

For dyspeptics it is impossible to say what food is good, because everything is bad. White bread remains undigested for hours, brown bread is most irritating and injurious, vegetables are converted into gases and painful acids, and most kinds of meat are too heavy. The dyspeptic, in fact, ought never to have been born.

However, since the sufferer from dyspepsia must eat, let him follow this rule, and it may bring relief: Eat a little of everything, but eat sparingly, never leaving the table with a sense of having eaten sufficient; eat slowly. Masticate all food thoroughly and never drink while eating. If he must drink, let him drink after he has finished eating.

No doubt the majority of people see no connection between their ailments and the breakfast or dinner which they have enjoyed. But there are many persons who are so severely affected by particular articles of diet that there is no question about the fact that some kinds of food are more or less poisonous to us all, although we may not suffer very greatly after eating them. An acquaintance of the writer's, for example, falls into convulsions if he eats a single strawberry, and even the odor of strawberry jam in the neighborhood of jam factories almost throws him into a fit.

The writer knows a lady whose heart comes to a stop if she eats an egg. Of course she never intentionally eats one now, but frequently on taking a piece of cake or some kind of pudding or sauce containing eggs she swoons.

Many people get cramp in the stomach from eating honey, and more than one death has resulted from this cause. Others are made violently sick by the smell of apples, and a patient of the writer's has often averred that even the sight of beet root seemed to suffocate him, while another had to give up drinking milk because it produced intense inflammation of the eyes.

Many kinds of fish cause serious illness. Lobsters and crabs produce most painful itching in some people, and the writer has known several who after eating salmon felt a horrid taste in the mouth, and soon after suffered so badly from headache as to be compelled to go to bed.

These latter are the extreme instances of injury from food, but they prove that thousands of people suffer in a less degree, and that probably no one can lunch or dine without swallowing something poisonous to his system.

Tragic.

Scene—A railway carriage.

First Artist—Children don't seem to me to sell now as they used.

Second Artist (in a hoarse whisper)—Well, I was at Stodge's yesterday. He had just knocked off three little girls' heads, horrid raw things, when a dealer came in, sir, bought 'em directly, took 'em away wot as they were on the stretcher and wanted Stodge to let him have some more next week.

Old Lady (putting her head out of the window and shrieking)—Guard, stop the train and let me out, or I'll be murdered!—London Tit-Bits.

A German historian directs attention to the fact that in the middle ages the Mediterranean was connected by a canal with the Red sea, and that in 1586 the Mohammedan powers had a project of rebuilding this predecessor of the Suez canal.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

Bede's Budget.

The real farmer always runs his business into the ground.

Mark Hanna has been vaccinated and now Matt Quay wishes he had been.

There are many things that happened in the old year that you must remember to forget.

A polite colored man who wanted to be a door keeper at the capital met with a sad rebuff when told that they had blackguards enough there already.

A gentleman who was clouded in gloom, being importuned for the source of his sadness, replied in troubled accents that one of his friends had been recently killed by the Indians, another had gone to the penitentiary, and three had been sent to the legislature.

The presence in Washington of a Mormon member in congress with three wives will revive the old story of the two boys who went from Utah to an eastern school, and as they gave the same age and family name the professor remarked, "You are twins are you?" to which one of the lads replied, "Yes, on our fathers side."

Why not prevail upon all the ministers of Minnesota to go into their closets and pray for the legislature at 10 o'clock every morning during the session this winter? Heaven is just as near any other place as it is in St. Paul and we see no reason for the chaplain to be in the presence of the oathbound but oft times tempted solons. If such a corona couldn't do us good, there is no use trying a solo.

Who Owns the Earth.

Most people know in a vague sort of way that the British Empire is the biggest, with Russia a good second. It is interesting, however, to know exactly who are the biggest landowners on earth, and how much each has:

	Sq miles.
British Empire	11,371,311
Russian Empire	8,660,391
Chinese Empire	4,218,491
French Republic	2,821,119

Brazil	3,209,575
Argentine Republic	1,778,195
Turkish Empire	1,576,500
German Empire	1,225,900

These nine nations own over three-fourths of the world.

A TINY RESERVATION.

William Penn's Indian Tract Still Preserved in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia contains one relic of the days of William Penn which is unknown to most inhabitants of the Quaker City. It is a small portion of ground which still retains by virtue of a provision in the charter its original character. Right in the heart of the business section of the city it lies, the only place for miles around that bears no imprints of the march of progress and commerce, the only building lot in the city which has never been near the hands of a real estate agent.

You have but to go down Walnut street to Second, turn up Second until you come to a little iron gate on the east side of the street, swing it back and enter and you stand within the Indian reservation.

In the days when Philadelphia used to be the metropolis of the red men, and they came by various trails across the country and down the Delaware to hold council there, it grew necessary for them to have some appointed spot for their conclaves. William Penn dedicated this reservation to them as a trysting place and provided that it should be sacred to their use forever.

It is a foreign enough place now, shut in as it is by high buildings on nearly every side. The old Union Telegraph office confronts it on one side, a wholesale liquor dealer's store backs up against it on another, and a high board fence chokes off the last hope of any outlook from the place.

There is no mark to tell of its original use or to stamp it as one of the curiosities of the day. One's only solace for his grievance is to imagine that the stealthy tread of moccasined feet is still echoing there and that the strange words of the redskin's tongue have left some spell upon the place.

In size it is a poor comment upon Penn's generosity, for it scarcely affords room sufficient to turn a wagon and a pair of horses. Perhaps because of its microscopic dimensions there has never been any attempt to encroach upon the rights of the old reservation.

For more than a century it has stood in its native state in the midst of the great city, a relic of a pathetic past, an heirloom for owners who will never reclaim it.—New York Herald.

Time Allowance.

"Waiter," said the bicyclist at the little country inn, "bring me three eggs and boil them four minutes."

Fifteen minutes elapse, and the waiter returns with one egg.

"Very sorry, sir, our eggs is out. This is the only one we had left—but we boiled it 12 minutes, sir."—Harper's Bazar.

An Insult.

A Caribou (Me.) man lately wandered into a remote hotel that doesn't keep a dictionary, and on coming down in the morning was asked by the landlord how he rested.

"Oh," replied the gentleman, "I suffered nearly all night with insomnia!"

The landlord took offense at this and roared, "I'll bet you $2 there ain't one in my house!"—Exchange.

The St. Hilaire branch is to have a daily train again and Harry Ives and the other people up on that line are almost tickled to death. It will give them a chance to get out to Ada, the Twin cities or Chicago every twenty-four hours.—Ada Index.

Fred Olson in the Ada Index challenges our St. Hilaire wood cutter and says: "I hereby challenge you to a match. I can saw you the best day you live." Our man has increased his speed by two cords and cut off one hour of his former record. His record now stands—eight cords once in two in nine hours—he ran out of wood.

A special train ran over this line last Thursday with the following officials on board: N. D. Miller, Chief Engineer St. Paul, F. E. Ward, Gen. Supt. St. Paul, J. M. Gruber, Asst. Supt; E. H. Jenks; Div. Supt. E. A. Mills. Master Carpenter, and J. J. Hess Road Master.

Rosenberg announcing the marriage of himself to Miss Louise Mazur of Minneapolis, which will take place Sunday February 19th 1899, at five o'clock p. m. Ceremony at Kenesseth Israel Synagogue 4th street and 6th avenue north. Reception will be given at Morgan Post Hall. Ben is a prominent business man of St. Hilaire and all his friends unite in advance wishing Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberg much joy throughout married life.

An important principle of the homestead law has been decided by the secretary of the Interior, viz: that when one has filed on a piece of land, and for any reason relinquished before he has made final proof, he may file the second time on the same 160 acres if he so desires, provided, of course, that he can take but one quarter section of government land in any event. The effect of this is to permit the settlers to escape the payment of several years taxes, but an attorney took the gound that no other construction of the law is possible, and he is sustained by the secretary.

The fact that diphtheria is prevalent in some of the adjourning counties lead us to republish the Scientific American recipe which the whole world should know. At the first indication of diphtheria in the throat of a child make the room close, and then take a teacup and pour into it an equal quantity of tar and turpentine; then hold the cup over the fire so as to fill the room with fumes. The patient, on inhaling the fumes will cough and spit out the membraneous matter and diphtheria will pass off. The fumes of the tar and turpentine loosen the throat and thus afford relief that has baffled the skill of physicians.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

STRAWBRIDGE MER. CO.

John Bugge, while working around the saw at his saw mill in the tamarack woods about 60 miles north of here last Wednesday night had the misfortune to get his hand badly lacerated. The engine had shut down for repairs, and when these were completed the engineer not knowing anyone was working around the saw, turned on the steam, with the uforesaid accident. They immediately set to work and built a large box in which they placed a stove and themselves and drove to St. Hilaire, arriving Thursday night. Dr. Blomburgh dressed the hand and reports John doing well.

At least two social gatherings must occur every week and as the time was swiftly passing by the two Mikes got an extra hustle on themselves after five o'clock last Saturday and invited about twenty-five of the young people to assemble at a certain place for the purpose of surprising some victims. It was decided that an attack was to be make on the Lonsdale residence. The Adams bus line was utilized which conveyed the merry party to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lonsdale. There is no question but what it was a genuine. The rooms were cleared and soon dancing and games was in order. The intruders were enjoying themselves to their utmost until twelve o'clock when all departed for home well satisfied with their evenings entertainment.

Beet Sugar Bounty.

A bill has already been introduced into the Minnesota legislature to repeal the bounty on sugar made in the state. F. S. & H. does not believe that the beet sugar industry will be a prominent one in this latitude, for the industry will finally locate in a region where the season of manufacture will be much longer than here, and without incurring an expense for protection from freezing after the beets are delivered, or the risk of frost before harvesting, and where conditions, irrigation, for instance, put beet growing beyond the vicissitudes of climate and weather that it must encounter here, yet this paper is compelled to oppose the repeal of the bounty. The bounty act was three years old before a beet sugar factory was crected in the state, and now after one, built a great expense, has run but one season, to repeal the act would be a breach of faith cruel and unpardonable, and it cannot be possible that the legislature will seriously consider the proposition. Offering the bounty in the first place was not good policy, for the reason that but very few farmers can by any possibility be benefited by it, for if Minnesota produces all the sugar now imported by the United States it would require the area of only about two of her average sized counties to grow the necessary beets. But now that the bounty has been offered the offer cannot be honorably withdrawn. —Farm, Stock & Home.

Fergus Falls Journal: The Norwegian papers of the northwest are discussing the advisability of publishing the names of delinquent subscribers who will not even answer letters when asked to pay up. It is a thing which ought to be done, as it would let the world know who was not worthy of credit. A subscriber cannot always pay but he can at least show his honest intentions by acknowledging the receipt of the letter asking him to do so. We know of many an instance where a mortgage has been foreclosed or an account sued because the party would pay no attention to notices. The creditor naturally gets irritated when the man who owes him not only does not pay him but does not even answer his letter. The usual result is that the sheriff goes out to see if the man is alive or whether he has run away, and the man pays the sheriff's expenses, which would have been unnecessary if he had simply made some reply. Always answer a letter, even though you cannot pay and if you have a reasonable excuse few creditors will make you trouble. The Norwegian papers are on the right track and we hope to see their plan put into execution.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent.

The House passed the River and Harbor bill this week. It appropriates a little more than $30,600,000.

One of the first results of the passage of the bill to provide for a standing army of 100,000 men is the announcement that the Military Appropriation bill, which will be reported to the House next week, will carry $90,000,000. Imperialism comes high.

It is now believed that a sufficient number of Senators who are inclined to vote against the treaty will content themselves with the adoption of the resolution declaring that the treaty does not commit us to retention of the Philippines to result in the ratification of the treaty, Monday.

The Hull Bill for the perpetuation of the gold standard, the retirement of the greenbacks, and other purposes, has been favorably reported to the House from the Coinage committee, under pressure from the gold standard men who have been demanding financial legislation, but, easy as it ought to be for the republicans to put the bill through the House, it is very doubtful whether they do it.

Gen. Miles has stirred up the administration menagerie and frightened the War Investigation commission, by again charging that embalmed beef was issued to our soldiers. Secretary Alger would like to have Miles court-martialed, but he is afraid to do so, even if Mr. McKinley would consent, because he knows that would give Miles an opportunity to prove his charge, and that is just what Miles wants. The positive assertion of Miles that he has abundant proof that that the beef was embalmed has greatly disturbed the War Investigation Commission, which had about completed its report declaring that no embalmed beef was furnished the army. It is now a little bit afraid to make its report so strong in favor of the beef contractors. This thing isn't over by a jugfull.

Nobody had any cause to be surprised when the bill authorizing the increase of the regular army to 100,000 men was passed by the House by a vote of 168 to 125. Four democrats and one populist voted for the bill and six republicans voted against it. The humbuggery of the amendment giving the President authority, in his discretion, to reduce the army to 50,000 men was fully exposed by the democrats before the bill was jammed through under orders from the White House. It is Mr. McKinley who is clamoring for a standing army of 100,000; consequently nobody will expect him to voluntarily make the number smaller. Just before the bill was passed a shrewd move was made to add to its strength in the Senate, by the adoption of an amendment for the abolishment of the army "canteen." For several years the temperance and reform organization of the country have been asking Congress to do away with the "canteen", but their requests have been ignored until now, when their influence is needed to get the Senate to agree to a standing army of 100,000 men. The republican leaders are about as slick as they make them, when it comes to manipulating legislation.

He Had a Cellar Full.

The man with the last winter overcoat was proud.

"I tell you, Blinks," said he, "that boy of mine is a genius. He is destined to become a great inventor. Greater even than Edison."

"How's that?" queried Blinks.

"Why, he has managed to get an ice cycle, the only one I ever saw."

"That's nothin'," said Blinks. "I had a whole cellar full of 'em last night."

"What, sir? Cellar full of ice cycles?"

"Yes, sir, a cellar full of ice cycles, and a frozen water pipe into the bargain."

A CANADA FARM.

What a Former Resident of Idaho Says Regarding Western Canada.

Mr. T. A. Tolman, of Lacombe, Alberta, N. W. T., a former resident of Cassia County, Idaho, who moved to Western Canada in July, 1894, writes as follows:

"I brought here thirty-four head of cattle, fifteen horses, two wagons, two sets of harness and one hundred and fifty dollars in cash. I homesteaded the southeast quarter of Section 28, Township 40, Range 26, west of the 4th Meridian, also purchased a quarter-section of Canadian Pacific Railway land. I have been farming more or less all my life, and I am convinced that you can raise crops 40 per cent cheaper here than where I came from. My capital at present, counting everything, is about five thousand dollars. The yield of my grain all round in 1897 was 60 bushels per acre. This year (1898) yield of wheat per acre, 37½ bushels, oats, 50 bushels, barley, 35, and potatoes, 400 per acre. I consider that this is a much better country for a man than where I came from, provided he is industrious. You get a free homestead here, and Canadian Pacific Railway lands are cheap and the terms easy. I have now made my seventh payment on the land purchased by me, and am much pleased with my purchase, as the land has already much more than paid for itself. School law here is decidedly ahead of where I came from, and there are schools wherever there are settlers."

As Yet.

"Henry, dear, what are you going to preach about next Sunday?"

"I shall probably preach from the text: 'And the wine press was trodden without the city, and blood came out of the wine press, even unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.'"

"What is the meaning of that passage?"

"I haven't the slightest idea, my dear."—Chicago Tribune.

A New Year's Resolution.

"I suppose," said Col. Stillwell's friend, "that you will make a New Year's resolution."

"Yes, sir," replied the colonel. "My friends seemed to expect it of me, and, in order not to disappoint them I have given that name to a very appetizing beverage which I invented myself."—Washington Star.

SOCIETY IN LONDON.

RESTS ENTIRELY ON THE GOLD BASIS.

If a Person Has the Coin of the Realm, Though He Is a Black Rascal in Other Respects, He May Purchase Recognition of "Cheap Nobility."

According to the Daily Telegraph, many ladies of social position have indignantly denied the imputation that they have allowed guests to come to their parties on the understanding that they should contribute something to a charitable fund. In London, the contributing guest is a social institution. But he is generally expected to contribute, not to charity, but either to the entertainer or to the entertainer's friends, or, if the entertainer be interested in politics, to party funds. On these conditions, any he or she may—so far as going to parties is concerned—have a very pleasant time in London as well as in country houses. The personal contributions take the form of doing something mysterious in the city by which money is obtained, although it often happens that this is a mere pretext for giving.

An acquaintance of mine, a pleasant enough snob in his way, although he would have robbed a church to make money, and would have cheerfully paid half the plunder to secure social recognition, once explained to me the whole process. I was surprised when he told me the sums that he had paid. "Women," he said, "are never satisfied." "Do they expect you to make love to them?" I asked. "Oh, no," he replied, "there is nothing of that sort expected. What they want is money against invitations. And as they have something to sell that I want to buy, the transaction is easily settled. I generally say that I have made it for them in the city, but I don't think that they really believe it. It is only a civil way of explaining."

If my friend had not been married I should have advised him to purchase an aristocratic bride. As it was, I recommended him to take a big house and give parties himself, hiring some lady of fashion to invite the guests. This he did, and he is now quite a shining light among London entertainers, many of his guests even going so far as to occasionally invite him in return to their own houses.

He asked me about politics. It was perfectly indifferent to him, he said, which party he joined, for his aspirations were social rather than political. Under these circumstances I recommended the tory party. He might stand, I explained, for some place where money was wanted, and whether he got in or not he might subscribe to the party funds. This would secure his admission to a good tory club and to all the tory political crams. Only the other day he thanked me for my disinterested advice, which has borne excellent fruit. I have now suggested to him a few race horses, a cottage at Newmarket, and a yacht. I take the greatest interest in his career, and I expect I shall soon see him a baronet, if not a peer.—London Truth.

UNLUCKY DAYS.

Why is Friday an unlucky day? The sun shines, the rain falls; nature progresses and everything seems to go on the same as usual on that day as on any other; but still the belief in its ominous character is widely disseminated and only too firmly established. Byron had a great dread of Friday. He was struck with terror when he remembered that he had embarked for Greece, at Genoa, on a Friday, and he once dismissed a tailor at Geneva who brought him home a new habit on that day. At Pisa he went to call upon a lady of distinction for the first time, but immediately turned away from the door when he remembered it was Friday.

The superstition of sailors, whose antipathy to undertake a voyage, or, in fact, to commence any work of importance on Friday, is everywhere notorious. In many country districts, especially in the north of England, no wedding takes place on Friday, because it is thought to be unlucky. Even in London at the present day no theatrical manager ventures to produce a play on a Friday for the same reason.

"Saturday is thought to be an unlucky day." Perhaps because it follows Friday? However, strange as it may seem, it has frequently proved a "fatal day" for the royal personages of England, as the following table will show: William III. died on Saturday, March 18, 1702; Queen Anne, Aug. 1, 1714; George I., June 10, 1727; George II., Oct. 26, 1760; George III., Jan. 29, 1820; George IV., June 26, 1830; the duchess of Kent, March 16, 1861; Prince Albert, Dec. 14, 1861, and Princess Alice, Dec. 14, 1878. In every case all the dates fell upon a Saturday. By a strange coincidence, too, it was on a Saturday, Sept. 10, 1898, that the empress of Austria was assassinated.

That peculiar phase of superstition which has regard to lucky or unlucky, good or evil days, is to be found in all ages and climes wherever the mystery-man of a tribe or the sacerdotal caste of a nation has acquired rule or authority over the minds of the people. Throughout the east, among the populations of antiquity, are to be found traces of this almost universal worship of "luck."

True Greatness In Medicine

Is proved by the health of the people who have taken it. More people have been made well, more cases of disease and sickness have been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla than by any other medicine in the world. The peculiar combination, proportion and process in its preparation make Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar to itself and unequalled by any other.

A Hopeless Task.

"Favorable, decidedly favorable!"

"Favorable? Great Caesar! How do you make that out?"

"My dear boy, how can I hope you'll understand it when you never studied diplomacy?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The rehabilitation of the Baltimore and Ohio South Western railway will begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring. Each mile of track will be carefully reballasted and placed in first-class condition. It will take 102,000 pairs of continuous rail joints for the forty thousand tons of rail. The two thousand standard box cars and five hundred steel coal cars recently ordered will be delivered in March.

Additional motive power, in the shape of forty compound freight engines, weighing 156,000 pounds, and five ten-wheel compound passenger engines, weighing 135,000 pounds, is now being built by the Baldwin Locomotive works.

It is expected that by the time the property is reorganized and becomes the southwestern division of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, that it will be in a physical condition fully equal to the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

There Is No Discussion of Matters Affecting Its Welfare.

The world, as was to be expected, has given the salvation army a very mixed reception, says the Contemporary Review. It has been satirized, ostracized, eulogized. High and low, learned and unlearned, have opposed or defended it. Huxley girded at its "corybantic" religion, and charged full tilt against its social wing; Bradlaugh waxed wroth over its "drums and tramplings;" while, on the other hand, Jowett of Oxford praised it in his own judicious way, and Farrar is still the eloquent champion of much of its work. "Skeletons" have caricatured and persecuted it, the church of England has imitated it and royalty blessed it. And yet, though all tongues wag concerning this new, robustious thing under the sun, really discriminating views of the salvation army are by no means plentiful. With some truth it may be said that our enemies batter us and our friends flatter us. And the salvationists, looking through the glasses of our foes, honestly fail to see what they appear to see, and are sometimes almost as much bewildered over the highly colored spectacles of our friends. We have scarcely learned to use our own eyes, to examine and judge for ourselves, and have very little idea of the true propositions, the strength and weakness, the possibilities and dangers of the salvation army. What may be called "public opinion" has no existence among us. There is no open discussion of matters affecting the welfare of the organization, such as we find in other religious bodies. We have, indeed, what are called "officers' councils" and "soldiers' councils," but the title is a misnomer. What is meant is "officers and soldiers counseled." The salvation army, like every other institution, is imperfect, but, under the domination of the military ideas and in the name of loyalty, we appear to have all agreed to keep silence concerning the disquieting symptoms and weak places existing in it. This is unfortunate and may in itself constitute one of our gravest perils. And, really, there is no occasion for it. Bad men and bad institutions rightly fear examination, but the salvation army is sound enough and strong enough to profit by an honest exchange of opinion among its members in their councils and publications.

YOUNG HEROINE OF A WRECK.

Texas Girl Who Saved a Railroad Superintendent from Death.

The authorities of the Houston and Texas Central railroad are considering how best to show their appreciation of the coolness shown by Miss Mae Mosse in a recent wreck on their line at Chambers creek. A trestle gave way at that point and a portion of the train plunged into the water. Superintendent Daffan of the road was in the car with Miss Mosse and both were precipitated into the abyss. Mr. Daffan was at once pinned down to the floor by a broken seat. Water was pouring into the car and the superintendent would certainly have been drowned but for assistance given him by Miss Mosse. The girl was the only passenger who kept a cool head. Exerting all her strength, standing meanwhile waist deep in water, she managed to release Daffan to such an extent that he was able to sit upright. Even then the water was up to his chin, but rose no farther, and so he escaped with life, though badly injured. Miss Mosse, seeing him in comparative safety, went to the assistance of others and rendered invaluable aid to a number of sufferers. Miss Mosse lives in Denison, is not quite 18 years of age and was on her way to take up her studies at the Austin university when the accident happened.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The most remarkable gold beetles in the world are found in Central America. The head and wing cases are brilliantly polished with a luster as of gold itself. To sight and touch they have all the seeming of metal. Oddly enough, another species from the same region has the appearance of being wrought in solid silver, freshly burnished. These gold and silver beetles have a market value. They are worth from $25 to $50.

Eighteen hundred years ago or thereabouts the Roman emperor Trajan built a bridge across the Danube, the piers of which are found by the Roumanian engineers solid enough to sustain a new structure, which will unite the towns of Turnu Severin, in Roumania, and Gladova, in Servia. In the middle of the structure the statue of Trajan will stand four square to all the winds that blow, as well it deserves to do, perpetuating the memory of that great conqueror and bridge-builder for perhaps another score of centuries.

The Russians, Poles, Swedes and what not who were discovered among the American bluejackets at the time of the Spanish-American war have prepared one for a certain amount of adulteration in the American people, but it is still surprising to find no less than twenty different nationalities figuring in one Chicago block. According to a late school census report, the total number of residents was 231 persons. The nationalities of the people within its boundaries were as follows: Americans, 35; Bohemians, 2; Canadians, 2; Chinese, 2; Danes, 10; English, 4; French, 2; Germans, 88; Hollanders, 4; Hungarians, 1; Irish, 9; Italians, 6; Norwegians, 13; Poles, 14; Russians, 8; Scots, 2; Swedes, 7; Swiss, 4; Welsh, 2; persons of mixed parentage, 18.

PERIODS OF PAIN.

Menstruation, the balance wheel of woman's life, is also the bane of existence to many because it means a time of great suffering.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical pain, it does not seem to have been nature's plan that women otherwise healthy should suffer so severely. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It relieves the condition that produces so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors. Here is proof:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—How can I thank you enough for what you have done for me? When I wrote to you I was suffering untold pain at time of menstruation; was nervous, had headache all the time, no appetite, that tired feeling, and did not care for anything. I have taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of Blood Purifier, two boxes of Liver Pills, and to-day I am a well person. I would like to have those who suffer know that I am one of the many who have been cured of female complaints by your wonderful medicine and advice.—MISS JENNIE R. MILES, Leon, Wis.

ALL DID GREAT WORK

UNANIMOUS REPORT OF THE WAR INVESTIGATION COMMISSION.

It Is Full of Praise for Secretary Alger and Many Other Officials for Their Untiring and Unceasing Work, Much of It in the Face of Obstacles Whose Presence Was Due to No Fault of Theirs—Many Charges, Including Those Made by Gen. Miles, Are Declared to Be Unfounded.

Washington, Feb. 12.—The report submitted to the president last Wednesday by the committee appointed by him to investigate the conduct of the war department in the war with Spain was made public to-night. The report is a unanimous one, all the members of the commission having signed it except Col. Sexton, whose death occurred Feb 4. At its close it says:

"It is with profound regret that the commission reports that during its latter session Col. James A. Sexton was prevented by sickness from being present and on the fourth day of February our loved colleague closed an honored and active life."

The report is a voluminous document, containing about sixty-five thousand words, and an official abstract, prepared by the secretary of the commission, was furnished to the press for its convenience.

NO STAR CHAMBER AFFAIR.

All Examinations Thorough and Conducted Openly.

Following is the abstract of the report:

"The commission organized Sept. 24, electing Gen. Granville M. Dodge president, Hon. Charles Denby vice president and Richard Weightman secretary. Gen. James A. Beaver was designated to conduct the examination of witnesses; Lieut. Col. F. B. Jones, chief quartermaster of volunteers, was detailed by the war department as disbursing officer and Maj. Stephen C. Mills, U. S. A., was appointed by the president as recorder.
